[17][†]The LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [18][l]“Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, When you come into the land to which I bring you [19]and when you eat of [m]the bread of the land, you shall present a contribution to the LORD. [20][n]Of the first of your dough you shall present a loaf as a contribution; like a [o]contribution from the threshing floor, so shall you present it. [21][n]Some of the first of your dough you shall give to the LORD as a contribution throughout your generations.

Laws About Unintentional Sins

[22][†] [p]“But if you sin unintentionally, [4] and do not observe all these commandments that the LORD has spoken to Moses, [23]all that the LORD has commanded you by Moses, from the day that the LORD gave commandment, and onward throughout your generations, [24]then if it was done unintentionally [q]without the knowledge of the congregation, all the congregation shall offer one bull from the herd for a burnt offering, a pleasing aroma to the LORD, [r]with its grain offering and its drink offering, according to the rule, and [s]one male goat for a sin offering. [25] [t]And the priest shall make atonement for all the congregation of the people of Israel, and they shall be forgiven, because it was a mistake, and they have brought their offering, a food offering to the LORD, and their sin offering before the LORD for their mistake. [26]And all the congregation of the people of Israel shall be forgiven, and the stranger who sojourns among them, because the whole population was involved in the mistake.

[27][†] [u]“If one person sins unintentionally, he shall offer a female goat a year old for a sin offering. [28] [v]And the priest shall make atonement before the LORD for the person who makes a mistake, when he sins unintentionally, to make atonement for him, and he shall be forgiven. [29] [w]You shall have one law for him who does anything unintentionally, for him who is native among the people of Israel and for the stranger who sojourns among them.
[30][^][†] [x]But the person who does anything with a high hand, whether he is native or a sojourner, reviles the LORD, and that person shall be cut off from among his people. [31]Because he has [y]despised the word of the LORD and has broken his commandment, that person shall be utterly cut off; his iniquity shall be on him.”

A Sabbathbreaker Executed

[32][†]While the people of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man
[z]gathering sticks on the Sabbath day. [33]And those who found him gathering sticks brought him to Moses and Aaron and to all the congregation.
[34] [a]They put him in custody, because it had not been made clear what should be done to him. [35]And the LORD said to Moses, [b]“The man shall be put to death; all the congregation shall [c]stone him with stones outside the camp.” [36]And all the congregation brought him outside the camp and stoned him to death with stones, as the LORD commanded Moses.

Tassels on Garments

[37][†]The LORD said to Moses, [38]“Speak to the people of Israel, and tell them to [d]make tassels on the corners of their garments throughout their generations, and to put a cord of blue on the tassel of each corner. [39]And it shall be a tassel for you to look at and remember all the commandments of the LORD, to do them, [e]not to follow [5] after your own heart and your own eyes, which you are inclined [f]to whore after. [40]So you shall remember and do all my commandments, and be [g]holy to your God. [41] [h]I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt to be your God: I am the LORD your God.”

Korah’s Rebellion

NUMBERS 16 [†]Now [i]Korah the son of Izhar, son of Kohath, son of Levi, and [j]Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, and On the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, took men. [2][^]And they rose up before Moses, with a number of the people of Israel, 250 chiefs of the congregation, chosen from the assembly, well-known men. [3][†][k]They assembled themselves together against Moses and against Aaron and said to them, [l]“You have gone too far! For [m]all in the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the LORD is among them. Why then do you exalt yourselves above the assembly of the LORD?” [4]When Moses heard it, [n]he fell on his face, [5]and he said to Korah and all his company, “In the morning the LORD will show [o]who is his, [1] and who is [p]holy, and will bring him near to him. The one [q]whom he chooses he will [r]bring near to him. [6]Do this: take [s]censers, Korah and all his company; [7]put fire in them and put incense on them before the LORD tomorrow, and the man whom the LORD chooses shall be the holy one. [t]You have gone too far, sons of Levi!” [8][†]And Moses said to Korah, “Hear now, you sons of Levi: [9]is it [u]too small a thing for you that the God of Israel has [v]separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself, to do service in the tabernacle of the LORD and to stand before the congregation to minister to them, [10]and that he has brought you near him, and all your brothers the sons of Levi with you? And would you seek the priesthood also? [11]Therefore it is against the LORD that you and all your company have gathered together. What is [w]Aaron that you grumble against him?”

[12][†]And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, and they said, “We will not come up. [13]Is it [x]a small thing that you have brought us up out of [y]a land flowing with milk and honey, to kill us in the wilderness, that you must also [z]make yourself a prince over us? [14]Moreover, you have not brought us into a land flowing with milk and honey, nor given us inheritance of fields and vineyards. Will you put out the eyes of these men? We will not come up.” [15][†]And Moses was very angry and said to the LORD, [a]“Do not respect their offering. [b]I have not taken one donkey from them, and I have not harmed one of them.”

[16][†]And Moses said to Korah, “Be present, you and all your company, [c]before the LORD, you and they, and Aaron, tomorrow. [17]And [d]let every one of you take his censer and put incense on it, and every one of you bring before the LORD his censer, [e]250 censers; you also, and Aaron, each his censer.” [18]So every man took his censer and put fire in them and laid incense on them and stood at the entrance of the tent of meeting with Moses and Aaron. [19]Then Korah assembled all the congregation against them at the entrance of the tent of meeting. [f]And the glory of the LORD appeared to all the congregation.

[20][†]And the LORD spoke to Moses and to Aaron, saying, [21][g]“Separate yourselves from among this congregation, that I may consume them [h]in a moment.” [22]And they [i]fell on their faces and said, “O God, [j]the God of the spirits of all flesh, [k]shall one man sin, and will you be angry with all the congregation?” [23]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [24][†]“Say to the congregation, Get away from the dwelling of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.”

[25]Then Moses rose and went to Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel followed him. [26]And he spoke to the congregation, saying, [l]“Depart, please, from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs, lest you be swept away with all their sins.” [27]So they got away from the dwelling of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Dathan and Abiram came out and stood [m] at the door of their tents, together with their wives, their sons, and their little ones. [28]And Moses said, "Hereby you shall know that the LORD has sent me to do all these works, and that it has not been [n] of my own accord. [29]If these men die as all men die, or if they are visited by the fate of all mankind, [o] then the LORD has not sent me. [30]But if the LORD creates something new, and [p] the ground opens its mouth and swallows them up with all that belongs to them, and they [q] go down alive into Sheol, then you shall know that these men have despised the LORD."

[31] [r] And as soon as he had finished speaking all these words, the ground under them split apart. [32]And the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them up, with their households and [s] all the people who belonged to Korah and all their goods. [33][‡]So they and all that belonged to them went down alive into Sheol, and the earth closed over them, and [t] they perished from the midst of the assembly. [34]And all Israel who were around them fled at their cry, for they said, "Lest the earth swallow us up!" [35][‡]And [u] fire came out from the LORD and consumed [v] the 250 men offering the incense.

[36] [2] Then the LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [37]"Tell Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest to take up the censers out of the blaze. Then scatter the fire far and wide, for they have become holy. [38]As for the censers of [w] these men who have sinned at the cost of their lives, let them be made into hammered plates as a covering for the altar, for they offered them before the LORD, and they became holy. [x] Thus they shall be a sign to the people of Israel." [39][‡]So Eleazar the priest took the bronze censers, which those who were burned had offered, and they were hammered out as a covering for the altar, [40]to be a reminder to the people of Israel, so [y] that no outsider, who is not of the descendants of Aaron, should draw near to burn incense before the LORD, lest he become like Korah and his company—as the LORD said to him through Moses.

[41][‡]But on the next day all the congregation of the people of Israel [z] grumbled against Moses and against Aaron, saying, "You have killed the people of the LORD." [42]And when the congregation had assembled against Moses and against Aaron, they turned toward the tent of meeting. And behold, [a] the cloud covered it, and [b] the glory of the LORD appeared. [43]And Moses and Aaron came to the front of the tent of meeting, [44]and the LORD spoke to Moses, saying, 45 [c] “Get away from the midst of this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment.” [d] And they fell on their faces. 46And Moses said to Aaron, “Take your censer, and put fire on it from off the altar and lay incense on it and carry it quickly to the congregation and make atonement for them, for [e] wrath has gone out from the LORD; the plague has begun.” 47So Aaron took it as Moses said and ran into the midst of the assembly. And behold, the plague had already begun among the people. And he put on the incense and made atonement for the people. 48And he stood between the dead and the living, and [f] the plague was stopped. 49Now those who died in the plague were 14,700, [g] besides those who died in the affair of Korah. 50And Aaron returned to Moses at the entrance of the tent of meeting, when the plague was stopped.

Aaron’s Staff Buds

NUMBERS 17 [†] [1] The LORD spoke to Moses, saying, 2 [h] “Speak to the people of Israel, and get from them staffs, one for each fathers’ house, from all their chiefs according to their fathers’ houses, twelve staffs. Write each man’s name on his staff, 3and write Aaron’s name on the staff of Levi. For there shall be one staff for the head of each fathers’ house. 4Then you shall deposit them in the tent of meeting before the testimony, [i] where I meet with you. 5[^]And the staff of the man [j] whom I choose shall sprout. Thus I will make to cease from me [k] the grumblings of the people of Israel, which they grumble against you.” 6[†]Moses spoke to the people of Israel. And all their chiefs gave him staffs, one for each chief, according to their fathers’ houses, twelve staffs. And the staff of Aaron was among their staffs. 7And Moses deposited the staffs before the LORD in [l] the tent of the testimony.

8On the next day Moses went into the tent of the testimony, and behold, the staff of Aaron for the house of Levi had sprouted and put forth buds and produced blossoms, and it bore ripe almonds. 9Then Moses brought out all the staffs from before the LORD to all the people of Israel. And they looked, and each man took his staff. 10[†]And the LORD said to Moses, “Put back [m] the staff of Aaron before the testimony, to be kept [n] as a sign for the rebels, [o] that you may make an end of their grumblings against me, lest they die.” 11Thus did Moses; as the LORD commanded him, so he did.

[12][†]And the people of Israel said to Moses, “Behold, we perish, we are undone, we are all undone. [13] [p] Everyone who comes near, who comes near to the tabernacle of the LORD, shall die. Are we all to perish?”

NUMBERS 18 [†]So the LORD said to Aaron, “You and your sons and your father’s house with you shall [q] bear iniquity connected with the sanctuary, [r] and you and your sons with you shall bear iniquity connected with your priesthood. 2And with you bring your brothers also, the tribe of Levi, the tribe of your father, that they may [s] join you and [t] minister to you while you and your sons with you are before the tent of the testimony. 3They shall keep guard over you and [u] over the whole tent, [v] but shall not come near to the vessels of the sanctuary or to the altar [w] lest they, and you, die. 4They shall join you and keep guard over the tent of meeting for all the service of the tent, [x] and no outsider shall come near you. 5[^]And you shall [y] keep guard over the sanctuary and over the altar, [z] that there may never again be wrath on the people of Israel. 6 [a] And behold, I have taken your brothers the Levites from among the people of Israel. [b] They are a gift to you, given to the LORD, to do the service of the tent of meeting. 7And [c] you and your sons with you shall guard your priesthood for all that concerns the altar and [d] that is within the veil; and you shall serve. I give your priesthood as a gift, [1] and [e] any outsider who comes near shall be put to death.”

8[†]Then the LORD spoke to Aaron, “Behold, [f] I have given you charge of the contributions made to me, all the consecrated things of the people of Israel. I have given them to you [g] as a portion and to your sons as a perpetual due. 9This shall be yours of the most holy things, reserved from the fire: every offering of theirs, every grain offering of theirs and every [h] sin offering of theirs and every [i] guilt offering of theirs, which they render to me, shall be most holy to you and to your sons. 10In a most holy place shall you eat it. Every male may eat it; it is holy to you. 11This also is yours: the contribution of their gift, all the [j] wave offerings of the people of Israel. I have given them to [k] you, and to your sons and daughters with you, as a perpetual due. [l] Everyone who is clean in your house may eat it. 12 [m] All the best of the oil and all the best of the wine and of the grain, [n] the firstfruits of what they give to the LORD, I give to you. 13The first ripe fruits of all that is in their land, [o] which they bring to the LORD, shall be yours. [l] Everyone who is clean in your house may eat it. 14[p]Every devoted thing in Israel shall be yours. 15[q]Everything that opens the womb of all flesh, whether man or beast, which they offer to the LORD, shall be yours. Nevertheless, [r]the firstborn of man you shall redeem, and the firstborn of unclean animals you shall redeem. 16And their redemption price [s](at a month old you shall redeem them) you shall fix at five shekels[2] in silver, according to the shekel of the sanctuary, [t]which is twenty gerahs. 17[u]But the firstborn of a cow, or the firstborn of a sheep, or the firstborn of a goat, you shall not redeem; they are holy. You shall sprinkle their blood on the altar and shall burn their fat as a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the LORD. 18But their flesh shall be yours, as [v]the breast that is waved and as the right thigh are yours. 19[†][w]All the holy contributions that the people of Israel present to the LORD I give to you, and to your sons and daughters with you, as a perpetual due. [x]It is a covenant of salt forever before the LORD for you and for your offspring with you." 20And the LORD said to Aaron, "You shall have no inheritance in their land, neither shall you have any portion among them. [y]I am your portion and your inheritance among the people of Israel.

21[†][z]"To the Levites I have given every tithe in Israel for an inheritance, in return for their service that they do, their service in the tent of meeting, 22[a]so that the people of Israel do not come near the tent of meeting, [b]lest they bear sin and die. 23But [c]the Levites shall do the service of the tent of meeting, [d]and they shall bear their iniquity. It shall be a perpetual statute throughout your generations, and among the people of Israel they shall have no inheritance. 24For the tithe of the people of Israel, which [e]they present as a contribution to the LORD, I have given to the Levites for an inheritance. Therefore I have said of them that they shall have no inheritance [f]among the people of Israel."

25[†]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying, 26"Moreover, you shall speak and say to the Levites, 'When you take from the people of Israel the tithe that I have given you from them for your inheritance, then you shall present a contribution from it to the LORD, [g]a tithe of the tithe. 27[h]And your contribution shall be counted to you as though it were the grain of the threshing floor, and as the fullness of the winepress. 28So you shall also present a contribution to the LORD from all your tithes, which you receive from the people of Israel. And from it you shall give the LORD's contribution to Aaron the priest. [29]Out of all the gifts to you, you shall present every contribution due to the LORD; from each its best part is to be dedicated.’ [30]Therefore you shall say to them, ‘When you have offered from it the best of it, [i]then the rest shall be counted to the Levites as produce of the threshing floor, and as produce of the winepress. [31]And you may eat it in any place, you and your households, for it is [j]your reward in return for your service in the tent of meeting. [32]And you shall [k]bear no sin by reason of it, when you have contributed the best of it. But you shall not [l]profane the holy things of the people of Israel, lest you die.’”

Laws for Purification

NUMBERS 19 [†]Now the LORD spoke to Moses and to Aaron, saying, [2]“This is the statute of the law that the LORD has commanded: Tell the people of Israel to bring you a red heifer without defect, in which there is no blemish, [m]and on which a yoke has never come. [3]And you shall give it to Eleazar the priest, and [n]it shall be taken outside the camp and slaughtered before him. [4]And Eleazar the priest shall take some of its blood with his finger, and [o]sprinkle some of its blood toward the front of the tent of meeting seven times. [5]And the heifer shall be burned in his sight. [p]Its skin, its flesh, and its blood, with its dung, shall be burned. [6]And the priest shall take [q]cedarwood and hyssop and scarlet yarn, and throw them into the fire burning the heifer. [7]Then the priest [r]shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and afterward he may come into the camp. But the priest shall be unclean until evening. [8][s]The one who burns the heifer [r]shall wash his clothes in water and bathe his body in water and shall be unclean until evening. [9][^]And a man who is clean shall gather up [t]the ashes of the heifer and deposit them outside the camp in a [u]clean place. And they shall be kept for the water for [v]impurity for the congregation of the people of Israel; it is a sin offering. [10]And the one who gathers the ashes of the heifer [r]shall wash his clothes and be unclean until evening. And this shall be a perpetual statute for the people of Israel, and for the stranger who sojourns among them.

[11][†][w]“Whoever touches the dead body of any person shall be unclean seven days. [12]He [x]shall cleanse himself with the water on the third day and on the seventh day, and so be clean. But if he does not cleanse himself on the third day and on the seventh day, he will not become clean. 13Whoever touches a dead person, the body of anyone who has died, and does not cleanse himself, [y] defiles the tabernacle of the LORD, [z] and that person shall be cut off from Israel; because the water for impurity was not thrown on him, he shall be unclean. His uncleanness is still on him.

14"This is the law when someone dies in a tent: everyone who comes into the tent and everyone who is in the tent shall be unclean seven days. 15And every [a] open vessel that has no cover fastened on it is unclean. 16 [b] Whoever in the open field touches someone who was killed with a sword or who died naturally, or touches a human bone or a [c] grave, shall be unclean seven days. 17For the unclean they shall take [d] some ashes of the burnt sin offering, and fresh [1] water shall be added in a vessel. 18Then a clean person shall take [e] hyssop and dip it in the water and sprinkle it on the tent and on all the furnishings and on the persons who were there and on whoever touched the bone, or the slain or the dead or the grave. 19And the clean person shall sprinkle it on the unclean [f] on the third day and on the seventh day. [g] Thus on the seventh day he shall cleanse him, and he shall [h] wash his clothes and bathe himself in water, and at evening he shall be clean.

20"If the man who is unclean does not cleanse himself, [i] that person shall be cut off from the midst of the assembly, since he has defiled the sanctuary of the LORD. Because the water for impurity has not been thrown on him, he is unclean. 21And it shall be a statute forever for them. The one who sprinkles the water for impurity shall wash his clothes, and the one who touches the water for impurity shall be unclean until evening. 22And [j] whatever the unclean person touches shall be unclean, and anyone who touches it shall be unclean until evening."

The Death of Miriam

NUMBERS 20 [†]And the people of Israel, the whole congregation, came [k] into the wilderness of Zin in the first month, and the people stayed in Kadesh. And [l] Miriam died there and was buried there.

The Waters of Meribah

[2][†] [m] Now there was no water for the congregation. [n] And they assembled themselves together against Moses and against Aaron. [3]And the people [o] quarreled with Moses and said, "Would that we had perished [p] when our brothers perished before the LORD! [4]Why have you brought the assembly of the LORD into this wilderness, that we should die here, both we and our cattle? [5]And [q] why have you made us come up out of Egypt to bring us to this evil place? It is no place for grain or figs or vines or pomegranates, and there is no water to drink." [6]Then Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly to the entrance of the tent of meeting and [r] fell on their faces. [s] And the glory of the LORD appeared to them, [7]and the LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [8] [t] "Take the staff, and assemble the congregation, you and Aaron your brother, and tell the rock before their eyes to yield its water. So [u] you shall bring water out of the rock for them and give drink to the congregation and their cattle." [9]And Moses took the staff [v] from before the LORD, as he commanded him.

Moses Strikes the Rock

[10]Then Moses and Aaron gathered the assembly together before the rock, and he said to them, [w] "Hear now, you rebels: shall we bring water for you out of this rock?" [11]And Moses lifted up his hand and struck the rock with his staff twice, [u] and water came out abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their livestock. [12]And the LORD said to Moses and Aaron, "Because [x] you did not believe in me, [y] to uphold me as holy in the eyes of the people of Israel, therefore you shall not bring this assembly into the land that I have given them." [13] [z] These are the waters of Meribah, [1] where the people of Israel quarreled with the LORD, and through them he showed himself holy.

Edom Refuses Passage

[14][†] [a] Moses sent messengers from Kadesh to [b] the king of Edom: "Thus says [c] your brother Israel: You know all the hardship that we have met: [15] [d] how our fathers went down to Egypt, [e] and we lived in Egypt a long time. [f]And the Egyptians dealt harshly with us and our fathers. [16][†]And [g]when we cried to the LORD, he heard our voice and [h]sent an angel and brought us out of Egypt. And here we are in Kadesh, a city on the edge of your territory. [17][†][i]Please let us pass through your land. We will not pass through field or vineyard, [j]or drink water from a well. We will go along the King's Highway. We will not turn aside to the right hand or to the left until we have passed through your territory." [18]But Edom said to him, "You shall not pass through, lest I come out with the sword against you." [19]And the people of Israel said to him, "We will go up by the highway, [k]and if we drink of your water, I and my livestock, [l]then I will pay for it. Let me only pass through on foot, nothing more." [20]But he said, [m]"You shall not pass through." And Edom came out against them with a large army and with a strong force. [21]Thus Edom [n]refused to give Israel passage through his territory, so Israel [o]turned away from him.

The Death of Aaron

[22][†]And they journeyed from [p]Kadesh, and the people of Israel, the whole congregation, came to [q]Mount Hor. [23]And the LORD said to Moses and Aaron at Mount Hor, on the border of the land of Edom, [24][^][r]"Let Aaron be gathered to his people, for he shall not enter the land that I have given to the people of Israel, because [s]you rebelled against my command at the waters of Meribah. [25]Take Aaron and Eleazar his son and bring them up to Mount Hor. [26][†]And strip Aaron of his garments and put them on Eleazar his son. And Aaron [r]shall be gathered to his people and shall die there." [27]Moses did as the LORD commanded. And they went up Mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation. [28][†][t]And Moses stripped Aaron of his garments and put them on Eleazar his son. And Aaron died there [u]on the top of the mountain. Then Moses and Eleazar came down from the mountain. [29]And when all the congregation saw that Aaron had perished, [v]all the house of Israel wept for Aaron thirty days.

Arad Destroyed

NUMBERS 21 [†]When [w] the Canaanite, the king of Arad, who lived in [x] the Negeb, heard that Israel was coming by the way of Atharim, he fought against Israel, and took some of them captive. [2][†] [y] And Israel vowed a vow to the LORD and said, “If you will indeed give this people into my hand, then I will devote their cities to destruction.” [1] [3]And the LORD heeded the voice of Israel and gave over the Canaanites, and they devoted them and their cities to destruction. So the name of the place was called [z] Hormah. [2]

The Bronze Serpent

[4][†]From Mount Hor [a] they set out by the way to the Red Sea, [b] to go around the land of Edom. And the people became impatient on the way. [5]And the people [c] spoke against God and against Moses, [d] “Why have you brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness? For there is no food and no water, and [e] we loathe this worthless food.” [6] [f] Then the LORD sent fiery serpents among the people, and [g] they bit the people, so that many people of Israel died. [7] [h] And the people came to Moses and said, “We have sinned, for we have spoken against the LORD and against you. [i] Pray to the LORD, that he take away the serpents from us.” So Moses prayed for the people. [8]And the LORD said to Moses, “Make a fiery serpent and set it on a pole, and everyone who is bitten, when he sees it, shall live.” [9][^][†]So [j] Moses made a bronze [3] serpent and set it on a pole. And if a serpent bit anyone, he would look at the bronze serpent and live.

The Song of the Well

[10][†]And the people of Israel set out and [k] camped in Oboth. [11] [k] And they set out from Oboth and [k] camped at Iye-abarim, in the wilderness that is opposite Moab, toward the sunrise. [12]From there they set out and camped in [l] the Valley of Zered. [13]From there they set out and camped on the other side of the Arnon, which is in the wilderness that extends from the border of the Amorites, for the [m] Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorites. [14][†]Therefore it is said in the Book of the Wars of the LORD,

15 and the slope of the valleys that extends to the seat of [n] Ar, and leans to the border of Moab.”

16[†]And from there they continued [o] to Beer; [4] that is the well of which the LORD said to Moses, “Gather the people together, so that [p] I may give them water.” 17Then Israel sang this song:

“Spring up, O well!—Sing to it!—
18 the well that the princes made, that the nobles of the people dug,
with [q] the scepter and with their staffs.”

And from the wilderness they went on to Mattanah, 19and from Mattanah to Nahaliel, and from Nahaliel to Bamoth, 20and from Bamoth to the valley lying in the region of Moab by the top of Pisgah [r] that looks down on the desert. [5]

King Sihon Defeated

21[†]Then [s] Israel sent messengers to Sihon king of the Amorites, saying, 22 [t] “Let me pass through your land. We will not turn aside into field or vineyard. We will not drink the water of a well. We will go by the King’s Highway until we have passed through your territory.” 23 [u] But Sihon would not allow Israel to pass through his territory. He gathered all his people together and went out against Israel to the wilderness and [v] came to Jahaz and fought against Israel. 24 [w] And Israel defeated him with the edge of the sword and took possession of his land from the Arnon to the [x] Jabbok, as far as to the Ammonites, for the border of the Ammonites was strong. 25And Israel took all these cities, and Israel settled in all the cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon, and in all its villages. 26For Heshbon was the city of Sihon the king of the Amorites, who had fought against the former king of Moab and taken all his land out of his hand, as far as the Arnon. 27[†]Therefore the [y] ballad singers say,

"Come to [z] Heshbon, let it be built;
let the city of Sihon be established.
28 For [a] fire came out from [z] Heshbon, flame from the city of Sihon.
It devoured [n] Ar of Moab, and swallowed [6] the heights of the Arnon.
29[‡] [a] Woe to you, O Moab!
You are undone, O people of [b] Chemosh!
He has made his sons fugitives, and his daughters captives,
to an Amorite king, Sihon.
30 So we overthrew them;
Heshbon, as far as [c] Dibon, perished;
and we laid waste as far as Nophah;
fire spread as far as [d] Medeba." [7]

King Og Defeated

31[‡]Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. 32And Moses sent to spy out [e] Jazer, and they captured its villages and dispossessed the Amorites who were there. 33Then they turned and went up by the way to Bashan. And Og the king of Bashan came out against them, he and all his people, to battle [f] at Edrei. 34 [g] But the LORD said to Moses, "Do not fear him, for I have given him into your hand, and all his people, and his land. And [h] you shall do to him as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who lived at Heshbon." 35So they defeated him and his sons and all his people, until he had no survivor left. And they possessed his land.

Balak Summons Balaam

NUMBERS 22 [‡]Then [i] the people of Israel set out and camped in the plains of Moab beyond the Jordan at Jericho. 2And [j] Balak the son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites. 3And [k] Moab was in great dread of the people, because they were many. Moab was overcome with fear of the people of Israel. 4And Moab said to [l] the elders of Midian, "This horde will now lick up all that is around us, as the ox licks up the grass of the field."

So Balak the son of Zippor, who was king of Moab at that time, [5] [m]sent messengers to Balaam the son of Beor [n]at Pethor, which is near the River in the land of the people of Amaw, [1] to call him, saying, “Behold, a people has come out of Egypt. They cover the face of the earth, and they are dwelling opposite me. [6] [o]Come now, curse this people for me, since they are too mighty for me. Perhaps I shall be able to defeat them and drive them from the land, for I know that he whom you bless is blessed, and he whom you curse is cursed.”

[7][†]So the elders of Moab and [l]the elders of Midian departed with [p]the fees for divination in their hand. And they came to Balaam and gave him Balak’s message. [8]And he said to them, “Lodge here tonight, and I will bring back word to you, as the Lord speaks to me.” So the princes of Moab stayed with Balaam. [9] [q] And God came to Balaam and said, “Who are these men with you?” [10]And Balaam said to God, “Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, has sent to me, saying, [11]‘Behold, a people has come out of Egypt, and it covers the face of the earth. Now come, curse them for me. Perhaps I shall be able to fight against them and drive them out.’” [12][^]God said to Balaam, “You shall not go with them. You shall not curse the people, for [r]they are blessed.” [13]So Balaam rose in the morning and said to the princes of Balak, “Go to your own land, for the Lord has refused to let me go with you.” [14]So the princes of Moab rose and went to Balak and said, “Balaam refuses to come with us.”

[15][†]Once again Balak sent princes, more in number and more honorable than these. [16]And they came to Balaam and said to him, “Thus says Balak the son of Zippor: ‘Let nothing hinder you from coming to me, [17] [s]for I will surely do you great honor, and whatever you say to me I will do. [t]Come, curse this people for me.’” [18]But Balaam answered and said to the servants of Balak, [u]“Though Balak were to give me his house full of silver and gold, [v]I could not go beyond the command of the Lord my God to do less or more. [19][†]So you, too, [w]please stay here tonight, that I may know what more the Lord will say to me.” [20] [q] And God came to Balaam at night and said to him, “If the men have come to call you, rise, go with them; [x]but only do what I tell you.” [21]So Balaam rose in the morning and saddled his donkey and went with the princes of Moab.

Balaam’s Donkey and the Angel

[22][†]But God’s anger was kindled because he went, [y]and the angel of the LORD took his stand in the way [z]as his adversary. Now he was riding on the donkey, and his two servants were with him. [23]And the donkey saw the angel of the LORD standing in the road, with a drawn sword in his hand. And the donkey turned aside out of the road and went into the field. And Balaam struck the donkey, to turn her into the road. [24]Then the angel of the LORD stood in a narrow path between the vineyards, with a wall on either side. [25]And when the donkey saw the angel of the LORD, she pushed against the wall and pressed Balaam’s foot against the wall. So he struck her again. [26]Then the angel of the LORD went ahead and stood in a narrow place, where there was no way to turn either to the right or to the left. [27]When the donkey saw the angel of the LORD, she lay down under Balaam. And Balaam’s anger was kindled, and he struck the donkey with his staff. [28]Then the LORD [a]opened the mouth of the donkey, and she said to Balaam, “What have I done to you, that you have struck me these three times?” [29]And Balaam said to the donkey, “Because you have made a fool of me. I wish I had a sword in my hand, for then I would kill you.” [30]And the donkey said to Balaam, “Am I not your donkey, on which you have ridden all your life long to this day? Is it my habit to treat you this way?” And he said, “No.”

[31]Then the LORD [b]opened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, with his drawn sword in his hand. And he bowed down and fell on his face. [32]And the angel of the LORD said to him, “Why have you struck your donkey these three times? Behold, I have come out [c]to oppose you because your way is perverse [2] before me. [33]The donkey saw me and turned aside before me these three times. If she had not turned aside from me, surely just now I would have killed you and let her live.” [34][†]Then Balaam said to the angel of the LORD, [d]“I have sinned, for I did not know that you stood in the road against me. Now therefore, if it is evil in your sight, I will turn back.” [35]And the angel of the LORD said to Balaam, “Go with the men, [e]but speak only the word that I tell you.” So Balaam went on with the princes of Balak.

[36][†]When Balak heard that Balaam had come, he went out to meet him at the city of Moab, [f]on the border formed by the Arnon, at the extremity of the border. [37]And Balak said to Balaam, “Did I not send to you to call you?

Why did you not come to me? Am I not able to [g] honor you?” [38]Balaam said to Balak, “Behold, I have come to you! Have I now any power of my own to speak anything? [h] The word that God puts in my mouth, that must I speak.” [39][†]Then Balaam went with Balak, and they came to Kiriath-huzoth. [40]And Balak sacrificed oxen and sheep, and sent for Balaam and for the princes who were with him.

[41][†]And in the morning Balak took Balaam and brought him up to Bamoth-baal, and from there he saw a fraction of the people.

Balaam’s First Oracle

NUMBERS 23 And Balaam said to Balak, [i] “Build for me here seven altars, and prepare for me here seven bulls and seven rams.” [2]Balak did as Balaam had said. And Balak and Balaam [j] offered on each altar a bull and a ram. [3]And Balaam said to Balak, [k] “Stand beside your burnt offering, and I will go. Perhaps the LORD will come [l] to meet me, and whatever he shows me I will tell you.” And he went to a bare height, [4] [m] and God met Balaam. And Balaam said to him, “I have arranged the seven altars and I have offered on each altar a bull and a ram.” [5]And the LORD [n] put a word in Balaam’s mouth and said, “Return to Balak, and thus you shall speak.” [6]And he returned to him, and behold, he and all the princes of Moab were standing beside his burnt offering. [7]And Balaam [o] took up his discourse and said,

“From [p] Aram Balak has brought me,
the king of Moab [q] from the eastern mountains:
‘Come, [r] curse Jacob for me, and come, denounce Israel!’
[8] How can I curse whom God has not cursed?
How can I denounce whom the LORD has not denounced?
[9][†] For from the top of the crags [s] I see him, from the hills I behold him;
behold, [t] a people dwelling alone,
and [u] not counting itself among the nations!
[10][†] [v] Who can count the dust of Jacob or number the fourth part [1] of Israel?

Let me die [w] the death of the upright, and let my end be like his!”

[11]And Balak said to Balaam, “What have you done to me? [x] I took you to curse my enemies, and behold, you have done nothing but bless them.” [12]And he answered and said, [y] “Must I not take care to speak what the LORD puts in my mouth?”

Balaam’s Second Oracle

[13][†]And Balak said to him, “Please come with me to another place, from which you may see them. You shall see only a fraction of them and shall not see them all. Then curse them for me from there.” [14]And he took him to the field of Zophim, to the top of Pisgah, [z] and built seven altars and offered a bull and a ram on each altar. [15]Balaam said to Balak, [a] “Stand here beside your burnt offering, while I meet the LORD over there.” [16]And the LORD met Balaam and [b] put a word in his mouth and said, “Return to Balak, and thus shall you speak.” [17]And he came to him, and behold, he was standing beside his burnt offering, and the princes of Moab with him. And Balak said to him, “What has the LORD spoken?” [18]And Balaam took up his discourse and said, “Rise, Balak, and hear;

give ear to me, O son of Zippor:
[19][†] [c] God is not man, that he should lie, or a son of man, that he should change his mind.
Has he said, and will he not do it?
Or has he spoken, and will he not fulfill it?
[20] Behold, I received a command to bless:
[d] he has blessed, and [e] I cannot revoke it.
[21][†] [f] He has not beheld misfortune in Jacob, nor has he seen trouble in Israel.
The LORD their God is with them, and the shout of a king is among them.
[22] [g] God brings them out of Egypt and is for them like [h] the horns of the wild ox.

[23][†] For there is no enchantment against Jacob, no [i] divination against Israel;
now it shall be said of Jacob and Israel,
[j] 'What has God wrought!'
[24][†] Behold, a people! [k] As a lioness it rises up and as a lion it lifts itself;
[l] it does not lie down until it has devoured the prey and drunk the blood of the slain."

[25]And Balak said to Balaam, "Do not curse them at all, and do not bless them at all." [26]But Balaam answered Balak, "Did I not tell you, [m] 'All that the LORD says, that I must do'?" [27]And Balak said to Balaam, [n] "Come now, I will take you to another place. Perhaps it will please God that you may curse them for me from there." [28]So Balak took Balaam to the top of [o] Peor, which overlooks [p] the desert. [2] [29]And Balaam said to Balak, [q] "Build for me here seven altars and prepare for me here seven bulls and seven rams." [30] [r] And Balak did as Balaam had said, and offered a bull and a ram on each altar.

Balaam's Third Oracle

NUMBERS 24 [†]When Balaam saw that it pleased the LORD to bless Israel, he did not go, as at [s] other times, to look for omens, but set his face toward the wilderness. [2]And Balaam lifted up his eyes and saw Israel [t] camping tribe by tribe. And [u] the Spirit of God came upon him, [3]and he [v] took up his discourse and said,

"The oracle of Balaam the son of Beor,
the oracle of the man whose eye is opened, [1]
[4] the oracle of him who hears the words of God,
who sees the vision of the Almighty,
[w] falling down with his eyes uncovered:
[5][†] How lovely are your tents, O Jacob, your encampments, O Israel!
[6] Like palm groves [2] that stretch afar,

like gardens beside a river,
[x] like aloes [y] that the LORD has planted, like cedar trees beside the waters.
[7][†] Water shall flow from his buckets, and his seed shall be [z] in many waters;
his king shall be higher than [a] Agag, and [b] his kingdom shall be exalted.
[8][†] God brings him out of Egypt and is for him like the [c] horns of the wild ox;
he shall [d] eat up the nations, his adversaries, and shall [e] break their bones in pieces and [f] pierce them through with his arrows.
[9] He crouched, he lay down like a lion and [g] like a lioness; who will rouse him up?
[h] Blessed are those who bless you, and cursed are those who curse you."

[10]And Balak's anger was kindled against Balaam, and he [i] struck his hands together. And Balak said to Balaam, [j] "I called you to curse my enemies, and behold, you have blessed them these three times. [11]Therefore now flee to your own place. I said, [k] 'I will certainly honor you,' but the LORD has held you back from honor." [12]And Balaam said to Balak, "Did I not tell your messengers whom you sent to me, [13] [l] 'If Balak should give me his house full of silver and gold, I would not be able to go beyond the word of the LORD, to do either good or bad [m] of my own will. What the LORD speaks, that will I speak'? [14]And now, behold, I am going to my people. Come, [n] I will let you know what this people will do to your people [o] in the latter days."

[15][†] [p] And he took up his discourse and said,

"The oracle of Balaam the son of Beor,
the oracle of the man whose eye is opened,

16 the oracle of him who hears the words of God, and knows the knowledge of [q] the Most High,
who sees the vision of the Almighty,
[r] falling down with his eyes uncovered:
17[^][†] [s] I see him, but not now;
I behold him, but not near:
[t] a star shall come out of Jacob, and [u] a scepter shall rise out of Israel;
it shall [v] crush the forehead [3] of Moab and break down all the sons of Sheth.
18[†] [w] Edom shall be dispossessed;
[x] Seir also, his enemies, shall be dispossessed.
Israel is doing valiantly.
19[†] And one from Jacob shall exercise dominion and destroy the survivors of cities!”

20[†]Then he looked on Amalek and [y] took up his discourse and said, “Amalek was the first among the nations,

[z] but its end is utter destruction.”

21[†]And he looked on the Kenite, and took up his discourse and said, “Enduring is your dwelling place, and your nest is set in the rock.

22 Nevertheless, Kain shall be burned
when Asshur takes you away captive.”

23[†]And he took up his discourse and said,

“Alas, who shall live when God does this?
24 But ships shall come from [a] Kittim and shall afflict Asshur and [b] Eber;
and he too [c] shall come to utter destruction.”

[25][†]Then Balaam rose and [d]went back to his place. And Balak also went his way.

Baal Worship at Peor

NUMBERS 25 [†]While Israel lived in [e]Shittim, [f]the people began to whore with the daughters of Moab. [2] [g]These invited the people to the sacrifices of their gods, and the people ate and bowed down to their gods. [3][^][†]So Israel yoked himself to Baal of Peor. And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel. [4][†]And the LORD said to Moses, [h]"Take all the chiefs of the people and [i]hang [1] them in the sun before the LORD, [j]that the fierce anger of the LORD may turn away from Israel." [5]And Moses said to [k]the judges of Israel, [l]"Each of you kill those of his men who have yoked themselves to Baal of Peor."

[6][†]And behold, one of the people of Israel came and brought a Midianite woman to his family, in the sight of Moses and in the sight of the whole congregation of the people of Israel, while they were [m]weeping in the entrance of the tent of meeting. [7][†] [n]When Phinehas [o]the son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose and left the congregation and took a spear in his hand [8]and went after the man of Israel into the chamber and pierced both of them, the man of Israel and the woman through her belly. Thus the plague on the people of Israel was stopped. [9][†]Nevertheless, [p]those who died by the plague were twenty-four thousand.

The Zeal of Phinehas

[10]And the LORD said to Moses, [11]"Phinehas the son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, has turned back my wrath from the people of Israel, in that he [q]was jealous with my jealousy among them, so that I did not consume the people of Israel in [r]my jealousy. [12]Therefore say, [s]'Behold, I give to him my covenant of peace, [13]and it shall be to him and to [t]his descendants after him the covenant of [u]a perpetual priesthood, because he was jealous for his God and made atonement for the people of Israel.'"

[14]The name of the slain man of Israel, who was killed with the Midianite woman, was Zimri the son of Salu, chief of a father's house belonging to the Simeonites. [15]And the name of the Midianite woman who was killed was Cozbi the daughter of [v]Zur, who was the tribal head of a father’s house in Midian.

[16][†]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [17] [w]“Harass the Midianites and strike them down, [18]for they have harassed you with their [x]wiles, with which they beguiled you in the matter of [y]Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi, the daughter of the chief of Midian, their sister, who was killed on the day of the plague on account of Peor.”

Census of the New Generation

NUMBERS 26 [†] [z]After the plague, the LORD said to Moses and to Eleazar the son of Aaron, the priest, [2] [a]“Take a census of all the congregation of the people of Israel, from twenty years old and upward, by their fathers’ houses, all in Israel who are able to go to war.” [3]And Moses and Eleazar the priest spoke with them [b]in the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho, saying, [4]“Take a census of the people, [1] from twenty years old and upward,” as the LORD [c]commanded Moses. The people of Israel who came out of the land of Egypt were:

[5] [d]Reuben, the firstborn of Israel; the sons of Reuben: of Hanoch, the clan of the Hanochites; of Pallu, the clan of the Palluites; [6]of Hezron, the clan of the Hezronites; of Carmi, the clan of the Carmites. [7]These are the clans of the Reubenites, and those listed were [e]43,730. [8]And the sons of Pallu: Eliab. [9][†]The sons of Eliab: Nemuel, Dathan, and Abiram. These are the Dathan and Abiram, [f]chosen from the congregation, who contended against Moses and Aaron in the company of Korah, when they contended against the LORD [10]and [g]the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them up together with Korah, when that company died, when the fire devoured 250 men, and [h]they became a warning. [11][†]But [i]the sons of Korah did not die.

[12]The sons of [j]Simeon according to their clans: of Nemuel, the clan of the Nemuelites; of Jamin, the clan of the Jaminites; of Jachin, the clan of the Jachinites; [13]of Zerah, the clan of the Zerahites; of Shaul, the clan of the Shaulites. [14]These are the clans of the Simeonites, [k]22,200.

[15]The sons of [l]Gad according to their clans: of Zephon, the clan of the Zephonites; of Haggi, the clan of the Haggites; of Shuni, the clan of the Shunites; [16]of Ozni, the clan of the Oznites; of Eri, the clan of the Erites; [17]of Arod, the clan of the Arodites; of Areli, the clan of the Arelites. [18]These are the clans of the sons of Gad as they were listed, [m] 40,500.

[19][†]The sons of [n] Judah were Er and Onan; and Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan. [20]And the sons of Judah according to their clans were: of Shelah, the clan of the Shelanites; of Perez, the clan of the Perezites; of Zerah, the clan of the Zerahites. [21]And the sons of Perez were: of Hezron, the clan of the Hezronites; of Hamul, the clan of the Hamulites. [22]These are the clans of Judah as they were listed, [o] 76,500.

[23]The sons of [p] Issachar according to their clans: of Tola, the clan of the Tolaites; of Puvah, the clan of the Punites; [24]of Jashub, the clan of the Jashubites; of Shimron, the clan of the Shimronites. [25]These are the clans of Issachar as they were listed, [q] 64,300.

[26]The sons of [r] Zebulun, according to their clans: of Sered, the clan of the Seredites; of Elon, the clan of the Elonites; of Jahleel, the clan of the Jahleelites. [27]These are the clans of the Zebulunites as they were listed, [s] 60,500.

[28][†]The sons of [t] Joseph according to their clans: Manasseh and Ephraim. [29] [u] The sons of Manasseh: of [v] Machir, the clan of the Machirites; and Machir was the father of Gilead; [w] of Gilead, the clan of the Gileadites. [30]These are the sons of Gilead: of Iezer, the clan of the Iezerites; of Helek, the clan of the Helekites; [31]and of Asriel, the clan of the Asrielites; and of Shechem, the clan of the Shechemites; [32]and of Shemida, the clan of the Shemidaites; and of Hepher, the clan of the Hepherites. [33]Now [x] Zelophehad the son of Hepher had no sons, but daughters. And the names of the daughters of Zelophehad were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. [34]These are the clans of Manasseh, and those listed were [y] 52,700.

[35]These are the sons of Ephraim according to their clans: of Shuthelah, the clan of the Shuthelahites; of Becher, the clan of the Becherites; of Tahan, the clan of the Tahanites. [36]And these are the sons of Shuthelah: of Eran, the clan of the Eranites. [37]These are the clans of the sons of Ephraim as they were listed, [z] 32,500. These are the sons of Joseph according to their clans.

[38]The sons of [a] Benjamin according to their clans: of Bela, the clan of the Belaites; of Ashbel, the clan of the Ashbelites; of Ahiram, the clan of the Ahiramites; [39]of Shephupham, the clan of the Shuphamites; of Hupham, the clan of the Huphamites. [40]And the sons of Bela were Ard and Naaman: of Ard, the clan of the Ardites; of Naaman, the clan of the Naamites. [41]These are the sons of Benjamin according to their clans, and those listed were [b] 45,600.

[42]These are the sons of [c] Dan according to their clans: of Shuham, the clan of the Shuhamites. These are the clans of Dan according to their clans. [43]All the clans of the Shuhamites, as they were listed, were [d] 64,400.

[44]The sons of [e] Asher according to their clans: of Imnah, the clan of the Imnites; of Ishvi, the clan of the Ishvites; of Beriah, the clan of the Beriites. [45]Of the sons of Beriah: of Heber, the clan of the Heberites; of Malchiel, the clan of the Malchielites. [46]And the name of the daughter of Asher was Serah. [47]These are the clans of the sons of Asher as they were listed, [f] 53,400.

[48]The sons of [g] Naphtali according to their clans: of Jahzeel, the clan of the Jahzeelites; of Guni, the clan of the Gunites; [49]of Jezer, the clan of the Jezerites; of Shillem, the clan of the Shillemites. [50]These are the clans of Naphtali according to their clans, and those listed were [h] 45,400.

[51]This was the list of the people of Israel, [i] 601,730.

[52]The LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [53][j] "Among these the land shall be divided for inheritance according to the number of names. [54][k] To a large tribe you shall give a large inheritance, and to a small tribe you shall give a small inheritance; every tribe shall be given its inheritance in proportion to its list. [55]But the land shall be [l] divided by lot. According to the names of the tribes of their fathers they shall inherit. [56]Their inheritance shall be divided according to lot between the larger and the smaller."

[57][‡] [m] This was the list of the Levites according to their clans: of Gershon, the clan of the Gershonites; of Kohath, the clan of the Kohathites; of Merari, the clan of the Merarites. [58]These are the clans of Levi: the clan of the Libnites, the clan of the Hebronites, the clan of the Mahlites, the clan of the Mushites, the clan of the Korahites. And Kohath was the father of Amram. [59]The name of Amram's wife was [n] Jochebed the daughter of Levi, who was born to Levi in Egypt. And she bore to Amram Aaron and Moses and Miriam their sister. [60] [o] And to Aaron were born Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. [61] [p] But Nadab and Abihu died when they offered unauthorized fire before the LORD. [62]And those listed were [q] 23,000, every male from a month old and upward. For [r] they were not listed among the people of Israel, because [s] there was no inheritance given to them among the people of Israel.

[63]These were those listed by Moses and Eleazar the priest, who listed the people of Israel [t] in the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho. [64] [u] But among these there was not one of those listed by Moses and Aaron the priest, who had listed the people of Israel in the wilderness of Sinai. [65]For the LORD had said of them, [v] "They shall die in the wilderness." Not one of them was left, [w] except Caleb the son of Jephunneh and Joshua the son of Nun.

NUMBERS 27 [†]Then drew near the daughters of [x] Zelophehad the son of Hepher, son of Gilead, son of Machir, son of Manasseh, from the clans of Manasseh the son of Joseph. The names of his daughters were: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. [2]And they stood before Moses and before Eleazar the priest and before the chiefs and all the congregation, at the entrance of the tent of meeting, saying, [3][†]"Our father [y] died in the wilderness. He was not among the company of those who gathered themselves together against the LORD [z] in the company of Korah, but [a] died for his own sin. And he had no sons. [4][^]Why should the name of our father be taken away from his clan because he had no son? [b] Give to us a possession among our father's brothers."

[5]Moses [c] brought their case before the LORD. [6]And the LORD said to Moses, [7]"The daughters of Zelophehad [d] are right. [e] You shall give them possession of an inheritance among their father's brothers and transfer the inheritance of their father to them. [8]And you shall speak to the people of Israel, saying, 'If a man dies and has no son, then you shall transfer his inheritance to his daughter. [9]And if he has no daughter, then you shall give his inheritance to his brothers. [10]And if he has no brothers, then you shall give his inheritance to his father's brothers. [11]And if his father has no brothers, then you shall give his inheritance to the nearest [f] kinsman of his clan, and he shall possess it. And it shall be for the people of Israel [g] a statute and rule, as the LORD commanded Moses.'"

Joshua to Succeed Moses

[12][†]The LORD said to Moses, "Go up into [h] this mountain of Abarim and see the land that I have given to the people of Israel. [13]When you have seen it, you also [i] shall be gathered to your people, as your brother Aaron was, [14][j] because you rebelled against my word in the wilderness of Zin when the congregation quarreled, failing [k] to uphold me as holy at the waters before their eyes." (These are [l] the waters of Meribah of Kadesh in the wilderness of Zin.) [15]Moses spoke to the LORD, saying, [16]"Let the LORD, [m] the God of the spirits of all flesh, appoint a man over the congregation [17]who [n] shall go out before them and come in before them, who shall lead them out and bring them in, that the congregation of the LORD may not be [o] as sheep that have no shepherd." [18]So the LORD said to Moses, "Take [p] Joshua the son of Nun, a man [q] in whom is the Spirit, and [r] lay your hand on him. [19]Make him stand before Eleazar the priest and all the congregation, and you shall [s] commission him in their sight. [20][†]You shall invest him with some of your authority, [t] that all the congregation of the people of Israel may obey. [21]And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall inquire for him [u] by the judgment of the Urim before the LORD. At his word they shall go out, and at his word they shall come in, both he and all the people of Israel with him, the whole congregation." [22]And Moses did as the LORD commanded him. He took Joshua and made him stand before Eleazar the priest and the whole congregation, [23]and he laid his hands on him and [s] commissioned him as the LORD directed through Moses.

Daily Offerings

NUMBERS 28 [†]The LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"Command the people of Israel and say to them, 'My offering, [v] my food for my food offerings, my [w] pleasing aroma, you shall be careful to offer to me at its appointed time.’ [3][^] [x] And you shall say to them, This is the food offering that you shall offer to the LORD: two male lambs a year old without blemish, day by day, as a regular offering. [4]The one lamb you shall offer in the morning, and the other lamb you shall offer at twilight; [5]also [y] a tenth of an ephah [1] of fine flour for [z] a grain offering, mixed [a] with a quarter of a hin [2] of beaten oil. [6]It is a [b] regular burnt offering, which was ordained at Mount Sinai for a pleasing aroma, a food offering to the LORD. [7]Its drink offering shall be a quarter of a hin for each lamb. In the Holy Place you shall pour out a drink offering of strong drink to the LORD. [8]The other lamb you shall offer at twilight. Like the grain offering of the morning, and like its drink offering, you shall offer it as a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the LORD.

Sabbath Offerings

[9][†]“On the Sabbath day, two male lambs a year old without blemish, and two tenths of an ephah of fine flour for a grain offering, mixed with oil, and its drink offering: [10]this is [c] the burnt offering of every Sabbath, besides the regular burnt offering and its drink offering.

Monthly Offerings

[11][†] [d] “At the beginnings of your months, you shall offer a burnt offering to the LORD: two bulls from the herd, one ram, seven male lambs a year old without blemish; [12]also [e] three tenths of an ephah of fine flour for a grain offering, mixed with oil, for each bull, and two tenths of fine flour for a grain offering, mixed with oil, for the one ram; [13]and a tenth of fine flour mixed with oil as a grain offering for every lamb; for a burnt offering with a pleasing aroma, a food offering to the LORD. [14]Their drink offerings shall be half a hin of wine for a bull, a third of a hin for a ram, and a quarter of a hin for a lamb. This is the burnt offering of each month throughout the months of the year. [15]Also [f] one male goat for a sin offering to the LORD; it shall be offered besides the regular burnt offering and its drink offering.

Passover Offerings

[16][†] [g]“On the fourteenth day of the first month is the LORD’s Passover, [17][†] [h]and on the fifteenth day of this month is a feast. Seven days shall unleavened bread be eaten. [18][†] [i]On the first day there shall be a holy convocation. You shall not do any ordinary work, [19][†]but offer a food offering, a burnt offering to the LORD: two bulls from the herd, one ram, and seven male lambs a year old; [j]see that they are without blemish; [20]also their grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil; three tenths of an ephah shall you offer for a bull, and two tenths for a ram; [21]a tenth shall you offer for each of the seven lambs; [22]also [k]one male goat for a sin offering, to make atonement for you. [23]You shall offer these besides the burnt offering of the morning, which is for a regular burnt offering. [24]In the same way you shall offer daily, for seven days, the food of a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the LORD. It shall be offered besides the regular burnt offering and its drink offering. [25]And [l]on the seventh day you shall have a holy convocation. You shall not do any ordinary work.

Offerings for the Feast of Weeks

[26][†]“On [m]the day of the firstfruits, when you offer a grain offering of new grain to the LORD at your Feast of Weeks, you shall have a holy convocation. You shall not do any ordinary work, [27]but offer a burnt offering, with a pleasing aroma to the LORD: [n]two bulls from the herd, one ram, seven male lambs a year old; [28]also their grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, three tenths of an ephah for each bull, two tenths for one ram, [29]a tenth for each of the seven lambs; [30]with [o]one male goat, to make atonement for you. [31]Besides the regular burnt offering and its grain offering, you shall offer them and their drink offering. [p]See that they are without blemish.

Offerings for the Feast of Trumpets

NUMBERS 29 [†]“On the first day of the seventh month you shall have a holy convocation. You shall not do any ordinary work. [q]It is a day for you to blow the trumpets, [2]and you shall offer a burnt offering, for a pleasing aroma to the LORD: one bull from the herd, one ram, seven male lambs a year old without blemish; 3also their grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, three tenths of an ephah [1] for the bull, two tenths for the ram, 4and one tenth for each of the seven lambs; 5with [o] one male goat for a sin offering, to make atonement for you; 6besides [r] the burnt offering of the new moon, and its grain offering, and [s] the regular burnt offering and its grain offering, and their drink offering, according to the rule for them, for a pleasing aroma, a food offering to the LORD.

7[†] [t] "On the tenth day of this seventh month you shall have a holy convocation and [u] afflict yourselves. [2] You shall do no work, 8but you shall offer a burnt offering to the LORD, a pleasing aroma: one bull from the herd, one ram, seven male lambs a year old: [v] see that they are without blemish. 9And their grain offering shall be of fine flour mixed with oil, three tenths of an ephah for the bull, two tenths for the one ram, 10a tenth for each of the seven lambs: 11also [w] one male goat for a sin offering, besides [x] the sin offering of atonement, and the regular burnt offering and its grain offering, and their drink offerings.

Offerings for the Feast of Booths

12[†] [y] "On the fifteenth day of the seventh month you shall have a holy convocation. You shall not do any ordinary work, and you shall keep a feast to the LORD seven days. 13And [z] you shall offer a burnt offering, a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the LORD, thirteen bulls from the herd, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old; they shall be without blemish; 14and their grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, three tenths of an ephah for each of the thirteen bulls, two tenths for each of the two rams, 15and a tenth for each of the fourteen lambs; 16also one male goat for a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering and its drink offering.

17"On the second day twelve bulls from the herd, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, 18with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, [a] in the prescribed quantities; [19]also one male goat for a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering and its grain offering, and their drink offerings.

[20]“On the third day eleven bulls, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, [21]with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; [22]also one male goat for a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering and its grain offering and its drink offering.

[23]“On the fourth day ten bulls, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, [24]with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; [25]also one male goat for a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering and its drink offering.

[26]“On the fifth day nine bulls, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, [27]with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; [28]also one male goat for a sin offering; besides the regular burnt offering and its grain offering and its drink offering.

[29]“On the sixth day eight bulls, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, [30]with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; [31]also one male goat for a sin offering; besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offerings.

[32]“On the seventh day seven bulls, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, [33]with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; [34]also one male goat for a sin offering; besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offering.

[35] [b] “On the eighth day you shall have a [c] solemn assembly. You shall not do any ordinary work, [36]but you shall offer a burnt offering, a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the LORD: one bull, one ram, seven male lambs a year old without blemish, [37]and the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bull, for the ram, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; [38]also one male goat for a sin offering; besides the regular burnt offering and its grain offering and its drink offering.

[39][†]“These you shall offer to the LORD at your [d]appointed feasts, in addition to your [e]vow offerings and your freewill offerings, for your burnt offerings, and for your grain offerings, and for your drink offerings, and for your peace offerings.”

[40] [3] So Moses told the people of Israel everything just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Men and Vows

NUMBERS 30 [†]Moses spoke to [f]the heads of the tribes of the people of Israel, saying, “This is what the LORD has commanded. [2] [g]If a man vows a vow to the LORD, or [h]swears an oath to bind himself by a pledge, he shall not break his word. [i]He shall do according to all that proceeds out of his mouth.

Women and Vows

[3][^][†]“If a woman vows a vow to the LORD and binds herself by a pledge, while within her father’s house in her youth, [4]and her father hears of her vow and of her pledge by which she has bound herself and says nothing to her, then all her vows shall stand, and every pledge by which she has bound herself shall stand. [5]But if her father opposes her on the day that he hears of it, no vow of hers, no pledge by which she has bound herself shall stand. And the LORD will forgive her, because her father opposed her.

[6][†]“If she marries a husband, while under her [j]vows or any thoughtless utterance of her lips by which she has bound herself, [7]and her husband hears of it and says nothing to her on the day that he hears, then her vows shall stand, and her pledges by which she has bound herself shall stand. [8]But if, on the day that her husband comes to hear of it, he opposes her, then he makes void her [j]vow that was on her, and the thoughtless utterance of her lips by which she bound herself. [k]And the LORD will forgive her. [9][†](But any vow of a widow or of a divorced woman, anything by which she has bound herself, shall stand against her.) [10][†]And if she vowed in her husband’s house or bound herself by a pledge with an oath, [11]and her husband heard of it and said nothing to her and did not oppose her, then all her vows shall stand, and every pledge by which she bound herself shall stand. [12]But if her husband makes them null and void on the day that he hears them, then whatever proceeds out of her lips concerning her vows or concerning her pledge of herself shall not stand. Her husband has made them void, and [l]the LORD will forgive her. [13]Any vow and any binding oath to afflict herself, [1] her husband may establish, [2] or her husband may make void. [14]But if her husband says nothing to her from day to day, then he establishes all her vows or all her pledges that are upon her. He has established them, because he said nothing to her on the day that he heard of them. [15]But if he makes them null and void after he has heard of them, then [m]he shall bear her iniquity."

[16]These are the statutes that the LORD commanded Moses about a man and his wife and about a father and his daughter while she is in her youth within her father's house.

Vengeance on Midian

NUMBERS 31 [†]The LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [2] [n]"Avenge the people of Israel on the Midianites. Afterward you shall [o]be gathered to your people." [3]So Moses spoke to the people, saying, "Arm men from among you for the war, that they may go against Midian to execute the LORD's vengeance on Midian. [4]You shall send a thousand from each of the tribes of Israel to the war." [5]So there were provided, out of the thousands of Israel, a thousand from each tribe, twelve thousand [p]armed for war. [6][†]And Moses sent them to the war, a thousand from each tribe, together with Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, with the vessels of the sanctuary and [q]the trumpets for the alarm in his hand. [7]They warred against Midian, as the LORD commanded Moses, and [r]killed every male. [8][†]They killed the kings of Midian with the rest of their slain, [s]Evi, Rekem, [t]Zur, Hur, and Reba, the five kings of Midian. And they also killed [u]Balaam the son of Beor with the sword. [9]And the people of Israel took captive the women of Midian and their little ones, and they took as plunder all their cattle, their flocks, and all their goods. [10]All their cities in the places where they lived, and all their [v]encampments, they burned with fire, [11] [w]and took all the spoil and all the plunder, both of man and of beast. [12]Then they brought the captives and the plunder and the spoil to Moses, and to Eleazar the priest, and to the congregation of the people of Israel, at the camp on [x] the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho.

[13][†]Moses and Eleazar the priest and all the chiefs of the congregation went to meet them outside the camp. [14]And Moses was angry with [y] the officers of the army, the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds, who had come from service in the war. [15]Moses said to them, "Have you [z] let all the women live? [16][^]Behold, [a] these, [b] on Balaam's advice, caused the people of Israel to act treacherously against the LORD in the incident of [c] Peor, and so [d] the plague came among the congregation of the LORD. [17]Now therefore, [e] kill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman who has known man by lying with him. [18]But all the young girls who have not known man by lying with him [f] keep alive for yourselves. [19][†] [g] Encamp outside the camp seven days. Whoever of you has killed any person and [h] whoever has touched any slain, purify yourselves and your captives on the third day and on the seventh day. [20]You shall purify every garment, every article of skin, all work of goats' hair, and every article of wood."

[21]Then Eleazar the priest said to the men in the army who had gone to battle: "This is the statute of the law that the LORD has commanded Moses: [22]only the gold, the silver, the bronze, the iron, the tin, and the lead, [23]everything that can stand the fire, you shall pass through the fire, and it shall be clean. Nevertheless, it shall also be purified [i] with the water for impurity. And whatever cannot stand the fire, you shall pass through the water. [24]You must [j] wash your clothes on the seventh day, and you shall be clean. And afterward you may come into the camp."

[25][†]The LORD said to Moses, [26]"Take the count of the plunder that was taken, both of man and of beast, you and Eleazar the priest and the heads of the fathers' houses of the congregation, [27]and [k] divide the plunder into two parts between the warriors who went out to battle and all the congregation. [28]And levy for the LORD a tribute from the men of war who went out to battle, [l] one out of five hundred, of the people and of the oxen and of the donkeys and of the flocks. [29]Take it from their half and give it to Eleazar the priest as a contribution to the LORD. [30]And from the people of Israel's half you shall take [m] one drawn out of every fifty, of the people, of the oxen, of the donkeys, and of the flocks, of all the cattle, and give them to the Levites [n]who keep guard over the tabernacle of the LORD.” [31]And Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the LORD commanded Moses.

[32]Now the plunder remaining of the spoil that the army took was 675,000 sheep, [33]72,000 cattle, [34]61,000 donkeys, [35]and 32,000 persons in all, women who had not known man by lying with him. [36]And the half, the portion of those who had gone out in the army, numbered 337,500 sheep, [37]and [o]the LORD’s tribute of sheep was 675. [38]The cattle were 36,000, of which the LORD’s tribute was 72. [39]The donkeys were 30,500, of which the LORD’s tribute was 61. [40]The persons were 16,000, of which the LORD’s tribute was 32 persons. [41]And Moses gave the tribute, which was the contribution for the LORD, to Eleazar the priest, [p]as the LORD commanded Moses.

[42]From the people of Israel’s half, which Moses separated from that of the men who had served in the army— [43]now the congregation’s half was 337,500 sheep, [44]36,000 cattle, [45]and 30,500 donkeys, [46]and 16,000 persons — [47][q]from the people of Israel’s half Moses took one of every 50, both of persons and of beasts, and gave them to the Levites who kept guard over the tabernacle of the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

[48][†]Then [r]the officers who were over the thousands of the army, the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds, came near to Moses [49]and said to Moses, “Your servants have counted the men of war who are under our command, and there is not a man missing from us. [50]And we have brought the LORD’s offering, what each man found, articles of gold, armlets and bracelets, signet rings, earrings, and beads, [s]to make atonement for ourselves before the LORD.” [51]And Moses and Eleazar the priest received from them the gold, all crafted articles. [52]And all the gold of the contribution that they presented to the LORD, from the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds, was 16,750 shekels. [1] [53][t](The men in the army had each taken plunder for himself.) [54]And Moses and Eleazar the priest received the gold from the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, and brought it into the tent of meeting, [u]as a memorial for the people of Israel before the LORD.

NUMBERS 32 [†]Now the people of Reuben and the people of Gad had a very great number of livestock. And they saw the land of [v]Jazer and the land of Gilead, and behold, the place was a place for livestock. [2]So the people of Gad and the people of Reuben came and said to Moses and to Eleazar the priest and to the chiefs of the congregation, [3][†] [w]“Ataroth, [x]Dibon, Jazer, Nimrah, Heshbon, Elealeh, Sebam, [y]Nebo, and Beon, [4]the land [z]that the LORD struck down before the congregation of Israel, is a land for livestock, and your servants have livestock.” [5]And they said, “If we have found favor in your sight, let this land be given to your servants for a possession. Do not take us across the Jordan.”

[6][†]But Moses said to the people of Gad and to the people of Reuben, “Shall your brothers go to the war while you sit here? [7]Why will you discourage the heart of the people of Israel from going over into the land that the LORD has given them? [8]Your fathers did this, [a]when I sent them from Kadesh-barnea to see the land. [9]For when they went up to the Valley of Eshcol and saw the land, they discouraged the heart of the people of Israel from going into the land that the LORD had given them. [10] [b]And the LORD’s anger was kindled on that day, and he swore, saying, [11]‘Surely none of the men who came up out of Egypt, [c]from twenty years old and upward, shall see the land that I swore to give [d]to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, because they have not wholly followed me, [12]none except Caleb the son of Jephunneh the [e]Kenizzite and Joshua the son of Nun, for [f]they have wholly followed the LORD.’ [13]And the LORD’s anger was kindled against Israel, and he made them [g]wander in the wilderness forty years, until [h]all the generation that had done evil in the sight of the LORD was gone. [14]And behold, you have risen in your fathers’ place, a brood of sinful men, to increase still more the fierce anger of the LORD against Israel! [15]For if you [i]turn away from following him, he will again abandon them in the wilderness, and you will destroy all this people.”

[16][†]Then they came near to him and said, [j]“We will build sheepfolds here for our livestock, and cities for our little ones, [17][^]but [k]we will take up arms, ready to go before the people of Israel, until we have brought them to their place. And our little ones shall live in the fortified cities because of the inhabitants of the land. [18][l]We will not return to our homes until each of the people of Israel has gained his inheritance. [19]For we will not inherit with them on the other side of the Jordan and beyond, [m]because our inheritance has come to us on this side of the Jordan to the east.” [20][†]So [n]Moses said to them, “If you will do this, if you will take up arms to go before the LORD for the war, [21]and every armed man of you will pass over the Jordan before the LORD, until he has [o]driven out his enemies from before him [22]and the land is subdued before the LORD; then after that you shall return and be free of obligation to the LORD and to Israel, and [p]this land shall be your possession before the LORD. [23][†]But if you will not do so, behold, you have sinned against the LORD, and [q]be sure your sin will find you out. [24][r]Build cities for your little ones and folds for your sheep, and do what you have promised.” [25]And the people of Gad and the people of Reuben said to Moses, “Your servants will do as my lord commands. [26][s]Our little ones, our wives, our livestock, and all our cattle shall remain there in the cities of Gilead, [27][t]but your servants will pass over, every man who is [u]armed for war, before the LORD to battle, as my lord orders.”

[28]So [v]Moses gave command concerning them to Eleazar the priest and to [w]Joshua the son of Nun and to the heads of the fathers’ houses of the tribes of the people of Israel. [29]And Moses said to them, “If the people of Gad and the people of Reuben, every man who is armed to battle before the LORD, will pass with you over the Jordan and the land shall be subdued before you, then you shall give them the land of Gilead for a possession. [30]However, if they will not pass over with you armed, they shall have possessions among you in the land of Canaan.” [31]And the people of Gad and the people of Reuben answered, “What the LORD has said to your servants, we will do. [32]We will pass over armed before the LORD into the land of Canaan, and the possession of our inheritance shall remain with us beyond the Jordan.”

[33][†]And [x]Moses gave to them, to the people of Gad and to the people of Reuben and to the half-tribe of Manasseh the son of Joseph, the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land and its cities with their territories, the cities of the land throughout the country. [34][†]And the people of Gad built [y]Dibon, [z]Ataroth, [a]Aroer, [35]Atroth-shophan, [b]Jazer, Jogbehah, [36][c]Beth-nimrah and Beth-haran, [d]fortified cities, and folds for sheep. [37]And the people of Reuben built [e]Heshbon, [y]Elealeh, Kiriathaim, [38][f]Nebo, and [g]Baal-meon ([h]their names were changed), and [c]Sibmah. And they gave other names to the cities that they built. [39]And the sons of [i]Machir the son of Manasseh went to Gilead and captured it, and dispossessed the Amorites who were in it. [40]And Moses [j]gave Gilead to Machir the son of Manasseh, and he settled in it. [41]And [k]Jair the son of Manasseh went and captured their villages, and called them Havvoth-jair.[1] [42]And Nobah went and captured Kenath and its villages, and called it Nobah, after his own name.

Recounting Israel's Journey

NUMBERS 33 [†]These are the stages of the people of Israel, when they went out of the land of Egypt by their companies under the leadership of Moses and Aaron. [2][^]Moses wrote down their starting places, [l]stage by stage, by command of the LORD, and these are their stages according to their starting places. [3]They [m]set out from Rameses in [n]the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month. On the day after the Passover, the people of Israel went out [o]triumphantly in the sight of all the Egyptians, [4]while the Egyptians were burying all their firstborn, [p]whom the LORD had struck down among them. [q]On their gods also the LORD executed judgments.

[5][†]So the people of Israel set out from Rameses and camped at [r]Succoth. [6]And they set out from Succoth and camped at [s]Etham, which is on the edge of the wilderness. [7]And they set out from Etham and turned back to [t]Pi-hahiroth, which is east of Baal-zephon, and they camped before Migdol. [8]And they set out from before Hahiroth[1] and [u]passed through the midst of the sea into the wilderness, and they [v]went a three days' journey in the wilderness of Etham and camped at Marah. [9]And they set out from Marah and came to [w]Elim; at Elim there were twelve springs of water and seventy palm trees, and they camped there. [10]And they set out from Elim and camped by the Red Sea. [11]And they set out from the Red Sea and camped in [x]the wilderness of Sin. [12]And they set out from the wilderness of Sin and camped at Dophkah. [13]And they set out from Dophkah and camped at Alush. [14]And they set out from Alush and camped at [y]Rephidim, where there was no water for the people to drink. [15]And they set out from Rephidim and camped in the [z]wilderness of Sinai. [16][†]And they set out from the wilderness of Sinai and camped at [a]Kibroth-hattaavah. [17]And they set out from Kibroth-hattaavah and camped at [b]Hazeroth. [18][†]And they [c]set out from Hazeroth and camped at Rithmah. [19]And they set out from Rithmah and camped at Rimmon-perez. [20]And they set out from Rimmon-perez and camped at Libnah. [21]And they set out from Libnah and camped at Rissah. [22]And they set out from Rissah and camped at Kehelathah. [23]And they set out from Kehelathah and camped at Mount Shepher. [24]And they set out from Mount Shepher and camped at Haradah. [25]And they set out from Haradah and camped at Makheloth. [26]And they set out from Makheloth and camped at Tahath. [27]And they set out from Tahath and camped at Terah.

[28]And they set out from Terah and camped at Mithkah. [29]And they set out from Mithkah and camped at Hashmonah. [30][†]And they set out from Hashmonah and camped at Moseroth. [31]And they set out from Moseroth and camped at [d]Bene-jaakan. [32]And they set out from Bene-jaakan and camped at [e]Hor-haggidgad. [33]And they set out from Hor-haggidgad and camped at [e]Jotbathah. [34]And they set out from Jotbathah and camped at Abronah. [35][†]And they set out from Abronah and camped at [f]Ezion-geber.
[36]And they set out from Ezion-geber and camped in the [g]wilderness of Zin
(that is, Kadesh). [37][†]And they set out from [h]Kadesh and camped at [i]Mount Hor, on the edge of the land of Edom.

[38]And Aaron the priest went up [j]Mount Hor at the command of the LORD and died there, in the fortieth year after the people of Israel had come out of the land of Egypt, on the first day of the fifth month. [39]And Aaron was [k]123 years old when he died on Mount Hor.

[40]And [l]the Canaanite, the king of Arad, who lived in the Negeb in the land of Canaan, heard of the coming of the people of Israel.

[41]And they set out from Mount Hor and camped at Zalmonah. [42]And they set out from Zalmonah and camped at Punon. [43]And they set out from Punon and camped at [m]Oboth. [44]And they set out from Oboth and camped at [n]Iye-abarim, in the territory of Moab. [45]And they set out from Iyim and camped at [o] Dibon-gad. [46]And they set out from Dibon-gad and camped at Almon-diblathaim. [47]And they set out from Almon-diblathaim [p] and camped in the mountains of Abarim, before Nebo. [48]And they set out from the mountains of Abarim and camped in [q] the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho; [49]they camped by the Jordan from Beth-jeshimoth as far as [r] Abel-shittim in the plains of Moab.

Drive Out the Inhabitants

[50][‡]And the Lord spoke to Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho, saying, [51]"Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, [s] When you pass over the Jordan into the land of Canaan, [52]then [t] you shall drive out [u] all the inhabitants of the land from before you and destroy all their [v] figured stones and destroy all their metal images and demolish all their high places. [53]And you shall take possession of the land and settle in it, for I have given the land to you to possess it. [54] [w] You shall inherit the land by lot according to your clans. [x] To a large tribe you shall give a large inheritance, and to a small tribe you shall give a small inheritance. Wherever the lot falls for anyone, that shall be his. According to the tribes of your fathers you shall inherit. [55]But if you do not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you, then those of them whom you let remain shall be as [y] barbs in your eyes and thorns in your sides, and they shall trouble you in the land where you dwell. [56]And I will do to you [z] as I thought to do to them."

Boundaries of the Land

NUMBERS 34 [‡]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"Command the people of Israel, and say to them, When you enter [a] the land of Canaan [b] (this is the land that shall fall to you for an inheritance, the land of Canaan as defined by its borders), [3] [c] your south side shall be from the wilderness of Zin alongside Edom, and your southern border shall run from the end of [d] the Salt Sea on the east. [4]And your border shall turn south of [e] the ascent of Akrabbim, and cross to Zin, and its limit shall be south of Kadesh-barnea. Then it shall go on to [e] Hazar-addar, and pass along to Azmon. [5]And the border shall turn [f] from Azmon to [g] the Brook of Egypt, and its limit shall be at the sea.

[6][†]“For the western border, you shall have the Great Sea and its [1] coast. This shall be your western border.

[7][†]“This shall be your northern border: from the Great Sea you shall draw a line to [h] Mount Hor. [8]From Mount Hor you shall draw a line [i] to Lebo-hamath, and the limit of the border shall be at [j] Zedad. [9]Then the border shall extend to Ziphron, and its limit shall be at [k] Hazar-enan. This shall be your northern border.

[10][†]“You shall draw a line for your eastern border from Hazar-enan to Shepham. [11]And the border shall go down from Shepham to [l] Riblah on the east side of Ain. And the border shall go down and reach to the shoulder of [m] the Sea of Chinnereth on the east. [12]And the border shall go down to the Jordan, and its limit shall be at [n] the Salt Sea. This shall be your land as defined by its borders all around.”

[13][^]Moses commanded the people of Israel, saying, [o] “This is the land that you shall inherit by lot, which the LORD has commanded to give to the nine tribes and to the half-tribe. [14][p] For the tribe of the people of Reuben by fathers’ houses and the tribe of the people of Gad by their fathers’ houses have received their inheritance, and also the half-tribe of Manasseh. [15]The two tribes and the half-tribe have received their inheritance beyond the Jordan east of Jericho, toward the sunrise.”

List of Tribal Chiefs

[16][†]The LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [17]“These are the names of the men who shall divide the land to you for inheritance: [q] Eleazar the priest and Joshua the son of Nun. [18]You shall take one [r] chief from every tribe to divide the land for inheritance. [19]These are the names of the men: Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son of Jephunneh. [20]Of the tribe of the people of Simeon, Shemuel the son of Ammihud. [21]Of the tribe of Benjamin, Elidad the son of Chislon. [22]Of the tribe of the people of Dan a chief, Bukki the son of Jogli. [23]Of the people of Joseph: of the tribe of the people of Manasseh a chief, Hanniel the son of Ephod. [24]And of the tribe of the people of Ephraim a chief, Kemuel the son of Shiphtan. [25]Of the tribe of the people of Zebulun a chief, Elizaphan the son of Parnach. [26]Of the tribe of the people of Issachar a chief, Paltiel the son of Azzan. [27]And of the tribe of the people of Asher a chief, Ahihud the son of Shelomi. [28]Of the tribe of the people of Naphtali a chief, Pedahel the son of Ammihud. [29]These are the men whom the LORD commanded to divide the inheritance for the people of Israel in the land of Canaan."

NUMBERS 35 [†]The LORD spoke to Moses in [s] the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho, saying, 2 [t] "Command the people of Israel to give to the Levites some of the inheritance of their possession as cities for them to dwell in. And you shall give to the Levites pasturelands around the cities. [3]The cities shall be theirs to dwell in, and their pasturelands shall be for their cattle and for their livestock and for all their beasts. [4]The pasturelands of the cities, which you shall give to the Levites, shall reach from the wall of the city outward a thousand cubits [1] all around. [5]And you shall measure, outside the city, on the east side two thousand cubits, and on the south side two thousand cubits, and on the west side two thousand cubits, and on the north side two thousand cubits, the city being in the middle. This shall belong to them as pastureland for their cities.

[6]"The cities that you give to the Levites shall be [u] the six cities of refuge, where you shall permit the manslayer to flee, and in addition to them you shall give forty-two cities. [7]All the cities that you give to the Levites shall be [v] forty-eight, with their pasturelands. [8]And as for the cities that you shall give [w] from the possession of the people of Israel, [x] from the larger tribes you shall take many, and from the smaller tribes you shall take few; each, in proportion to the inheritance that it inherits, shall give of its cities to the Levites."

Cities of Refuge

[9][†]And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [10]"Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, [y] When you cross the Jordan into the land of Canaan, [11][^] [z] then you shall select cities to be cities of refuge for you, that the manslayer who kills any person without intent may flee there. [12]The cities shall be for you a refuge from the avenger, that the manslayer may not die until he stands before the congregation for judgment. [13]And the cities that you give shall be your [a] six cities of refuge. [14] [b] You shall give three cities beyond the Jordan, and three cities in the land of Canaan, to be cities of refuge. [15]These six cities shall be for refuge for the people of Israel, and [c] for the stranger and for the sojourner among them, that anyone who kills any person without intent may flee there.

[16][†] [d] "But if he struck him down with an iron object, so that he died, he is a murderer. The murderer shall be put to death. [17]And if he struck him down with a stone tool that could cause death, and he died, he is a murderer. The murderer shall be put to death. [18]Or if he struck him down with a wooden tool that could cause death, and he died, he is a murderer. The murderer shall be put to death. [19] [e] The avenger of blood shall himself put the murderer to death; when he meets him, he shall put him to death. [20]And if he pushed him out of hatred or hurled something at him, [f] lying in wait, so that he died, [21]or in enmity struck him down with his hand, so that he died, then he who struck the blow shall be put to death. He is a murderer. [e] The avenger of blood shall put the murderer to death when he meets him.

[22][†]"But if he pushed him suddenly without enmity, or hurled anything on him [g] without lying in wait [23]or used a stone that could cause death, and without seeing him dropped it on him, so that he died, though he was not his enemy and did not seek his harm, [24]then [h] the congregation shall judge between the manslayer and [e] the avenger of blood, in accordance with these rules. [25]And the congregation shall rescue the manslayer from the hand of the avenger of blood, and the congregation shall restore him to his city of refuge to which he had fled, and he shall live in it [i] until the death of the high priest [j] who was anointed with the holy oil. [26]But if the manslayer shall at any time go beyond the boundaries of his city of refuge to which he fled, [27]and [e] the avenger of blood finds him outside the boundaries of his city of refuge, and the avenger of blood kills the manslayer, he shall not be guilty of blood. [28]For he must remain in his city of refuge [i] until the death of the high priest, but after the death of the high priest the manslayer may return to the land of his possession. [29]And these things shall be for [k] a statute and rule for you throughout your generations in all your dwelling places.

[30][†]“If anyone kills a person, the murderer shall be put to death on the [l] evidence of witnesses. But no person shall be put to death on the testimony of one witness. [31]Moreover, you shall accept no ransom for the life of a murderer, who is guilty of death, but he shall be put to death. [32]And you shall accept no ransom for him who has fled to his city of refuge, that he may return to dwell in the land before the death of the high priest. [33]You shall not [m] pollute the land in which you live, for blood [m] pollutes the land, and no atonement can be made for the land for the blood that is shed in it, except [n] by the blood of the one who shed it. [34] [o] You shall not defile the land in which you live, in the midst of which I dwell, [p] for I the LORD dwell in the midst of the people of Israel.”

Marriage of Female Heirs

NUMBERS 36 [†]The heads of the fathers’ houses of the clan of the [q] people of Gilead the son of Machir, son of Manasseh, from the clans of the people of Joseph, came near and spoke before Moses and before the chiefs, the heads of the fathers’ houses of the people of Israel. [2][^]They said, [r] “The LORD commanded my lord to give the land for inheritance by lot to the people of Israel, and [s] my lord was commanded by the LORD to give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother to his daughters. [3]But if they are married to any of the sons of the other tribes of the people of Israel, then their inheritance will be taken from the inheritance of our fathers and added to the inheritance of the tribe into which they marry. So it will be taken away from the lot of our inheritance. [4]And when [t] the jubilee of the people of Israel comes, then their inheritance will be added to the inheritance of the tribe into which they marry, and their inheritance will be taken from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers.”

[5]And Moses commanded the people of Israel according to the word of the LORD, saying, “The tribe of the people of Joseph [u] is right. [6]This is what the LORD commands concerning the daughters of Zelophehad: ‘Let them marry whom they think best, [v] only they shall marry within the clan of the tribe of their father. [7]The inheritance of the people of Israel shall not be transferred from one tribe to another, for every one of the people of Israel [w] shall hold on to the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers. [8]And [x] every daughter who possesses an inheritance in any tribe of the people of Israel shall be wife to one of the clan of the tribe of her father, so that every one of the people of Israel may possess the inheritance of his fathers. [9]So no inheritance shall be transferred from one tribe to another, for each of the tribes of the people of Israel shall hold on to its own inheritance.'"

[10]The daughters of Zelophehad did as the LORD commanded Moses, [11] [y] for Mahlah, Tirzah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Noah, the daughters of Zelophehad, were married to sons of their father's brothers. [12]They were married into the clans of the people of Manasseh the son of Joseph, and their inheritance remained in the tribe of their father's clan.

[13][‡]These are the commandments and the rules that the LORD commanded through Moses to the people of Israel [z] in the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho.

Study Notes for Numbers

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:1–10:10 Israel Prepares to Enter the Land. Numbers tells how Israel moved from Mount Sinai to the Jordan Valley, the eastern border of the Promised Land. All the material in the first 10 chapters relates Israel's preparations for a war of conquest.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:1–46 The First Census. This census has two purposes: (1) to demonstrate the fulfillment of the promise to Abraham that his descendants would be as numerous as the sand on the seashore (Gen. 22:17); and (2) to count the number of men over 20 years old who could fight. Both considerations should give the people confidence in their battle for the land.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:1 The wilderness of Sinai is the area near Mount Sinai (see map). Israel has been encamped there since Ex. 19:1 and will set out on their journey in Num. 10:11. The tent of meeting, otherwise known as the tabernacle and described in Exodus 25–31; 35–40, had been completed just one month earlier (Ex. 40:2) and now served as God's earthly dwelling in which he gave instructions to Moses. It thus reminded Israel of both Sinai and the garden of Eden.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:3 All … able to go to war shows that the invasion of Canaan is imminent.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:4–19 By appointing the chiefs of the tribes to count their own tribe, the census was begun on the very day it was commanded (v. 18).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:20–46 The results of the census are recorded tribe by tribe. The number of men between the ages of 20 and 60 comes to a total of 603,550, which is the same number found in Ex. 38:26 (cf. Ex. 30:12–16); these are identified as every man able to go to war in Israel (see Num. 1:45–46). When women, children, and men under 20 and over 60 are included, the total population would probably have been about 2 million. This remarkable fulfillment of the promises should have given the people every confidence that the invasion of Canaan would succeed. (Regarding questions that have been raised concerning these large numbers, see Introduction: The Large Numbers in the Pentateuch).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:26–27 Judah is the largest tribe. This, like its position in the camp (2:3) and leading the nation on the march (2:9), indicates Judah's preeminence among the tribes. David and Jesus came from the tribe of Judah.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:47–54 The Responsibilities of the Levites. The Levites, the priestly tribe, were not included in the census because they had a more important job than fighting. They were responsible for the tabernacle, God's palace, the most vital part of the whole camp. Israel was the people of God, but without his presence with them in the tabernacle, there would have been no point to their existence. The Levites' task was to ensure God's continuing presence with Israel. They dismantled, carried, and reassembled the tabernacle (vv. 50–51). They also guarded it from intruders. Entry to the tabernacle by laypeople could lead to divine wrath breaking out and the death of many Israelites, so the Levites were told to execute any outsider breaking in (vv. 51–53). A similar threat had been made against anyone trying to approach God on Mount Sinai (Ex. 19:11–13; Heb. 12:18–29).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 2:1–34 Israel in Camp and on the March. This chapter prescribes how the camp was to be arranged and the order in which the tribes were to march. At the center of the camp was the tabernacle. (Rameses II, in his campaigns in Syria [1275–1270 B.C.], employed a similar strategic layout. The pharaoh, who claimed to be divine, had his large tent pitched in the center of his military encampment.) Surrounding the tabernacle are the Levites: their arrangement is more closely described in ch. 3. They guarded the sanctuary from intrusions by unauthorized laypeople. Beyond the Levites the lay tribes are encamped. The 12 tribes were divided into four groups of three. In premier position, east of the tabernacle camp, were Judah with Issachar and Zebulun (2:2–9). Next in rank came the tribes camping to the south of the tabernacle, Reuben with Gad and Simeon (vv. 10–16). After them on the west came Ephraim with Benjamin and Manasseh (vv. 18–24). Finally, on the northern side of the tabernacle camp were Dan with Asher and Naphtali (vv. 25–34). The same sequence was to be maintained on the march. The Judah group headed the march, followed by the Reuben group. Then followed the Levites carrying the tabernacle. After them came the Ephraim group of tribes, and the Dan group brought up the rear (v. 31). See diagram.

Direction of March

Both in camp and on the march, the tabernacle (guarded by the Levites) is always at the center, as God is at the heart of the nation. The Judah group has pride of place in the camp and leads the nation on the march (capital letters designate the lead tribe in each of the four groups).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 2:2 It is not known what Israel’s tribal banners and standards looked like, though other ancient armies had them as well. Facing (lit., “opposite”) could also be translated “at a distance from.” A gap had to be kept between the lay tribes and the tabernacle.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 2:14 Reuel is elsewhere called Deuel (1:14). The letters D (ד) and R (ר) are easily confused in Hebrew script.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:1–4:49 Two Censuses of the Levites. The two censuses count different groups of Levites: the first (3:1–51) counts every male Levite over one month old, whereas the second (4:1–49) counts those between 30 and 50 years of age. The male Levites took the place of the firstborn males of the other tribes in order to serve the Lord, so the first census ensures that the number of the former matches the number of the latter. Transporting the tabernacle requires strength, so the second census aims to find if there are enough able-bodied male Levites for this task.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:1–51 Census of All Male Levites. This census focuses on the Levites' ongoing role in Israel.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:1–4 The Sons of Aaron. This census begins with the priests, the most holy family of the Levites. The priests were descended from Aaron, who belonged to the Kohathite clan within the tribe of Levi (Ex. 6:16–25). Because of their high status, they camped to the east of the tabernacle, guarding its entrance (Num. 3:38); the tribe of Judah camped farther out (2:3). Despite their privileges, two sons of Aaron died as a result of giving an unauthorized incense offering (3:4; see Lev. 10:1–20).

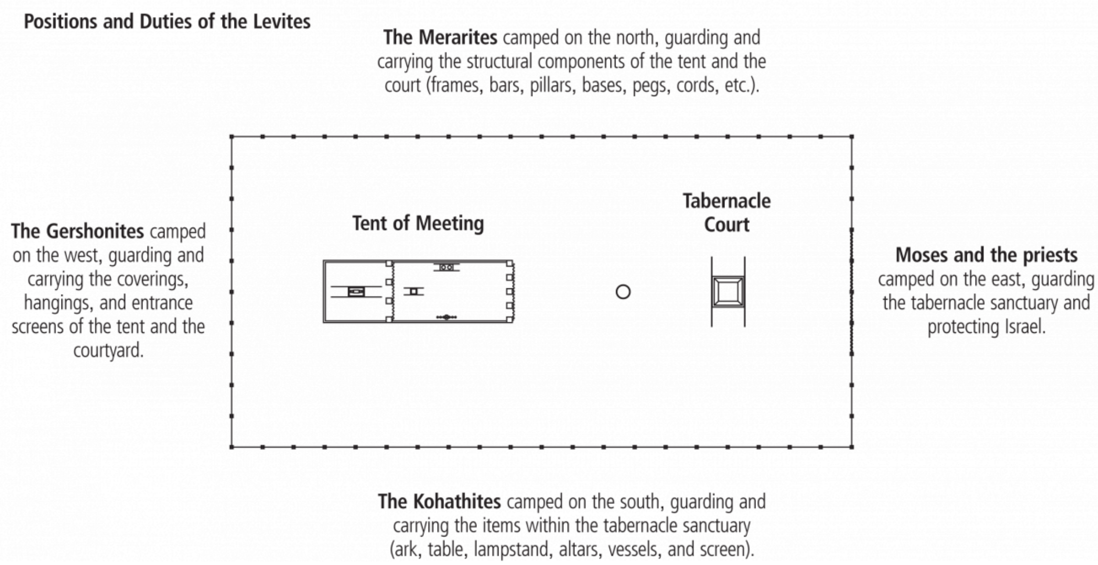
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:5–10 The Duties of the Levites. The two principal tasks of the Levites included: (1) guarding the tabernacle from intruders and (2) ministering at the tabernacle (i.e., transporting it from place to place). How this is to be done is explained in ch. 4.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:11–13 Reason for the Levitical Census. In the last plague, every firstborn male Egyptian and every firstborn of their cattle died, but the Israelite boys and cattle were spared. So after this, all Israelite firstborn boys and cattle were dedicated to God. That meant the cattle were sacrificed and the boys should have served God in the sanctuary (Ex. 11:4–13:15). But after the golden calf incident, the Levites took the place of the firstborn boys (Ex. 32:25–29).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:14–39 The Clans' Numbers, Positions, and Responsibilities. The census results are listed by clan, specifying which parts of the tabernacle each clan was responsible for carrying and which side they had to guard (see diagram). Most privileged were the Kohathites (8,600), camping on the south side and responsible for the ark and other holy furniture. Next in privilege were the Gershonites (7,500), camping on the west side and responsible for the curtains and hangings. Finally came the Merarites (6,200), camping on the north side and looking after the frames, pegs, etc. The total number of Levites (v. 39) is 22,000, which is 300 less than the sum of the individual clans. The likeliest explanation is that, due to a copyist's error, the number of Kohathites should be 8,300, not

8,600. The numerals 6 and 3 are very similar in Hebrew. The location of the priests at the east side of the tabernacle guarding its entrance (v. 38) may anticipate the role of Jesus as high priest, giving his people access to God's presence in heaven (Hebrews 9–10).

Positions and Duties of the Levites



Positions and Duties of the Levites
The Merarites camped on the north, guarding and carrying the structural components of the tent and the court (frames, bars, pillars, bases, pegs, cords, etc.).
The Gershonites camped on the west, guarding and carrying the coverings, hangings, and entrance screens of the tent and the courtyard.
Tent of Meeting
Tabernacle Court
Moses and the priests camped on the east, guarding the tabernacle sanctuary and protecting Israel.
The Kohathites camped on the south, guarding and carrying the items within the tabernacle sanctuary (ark, table, lampstand, altars, vessels, and screen).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:40–51 Redemption of the Firstborn. The census showed there were 273 fewer Levites than firstborn males in the other tribes. To redeem these 273 Israelites who had no Levite to take their place, five shekels (v. 47) per person had to be paid. This is the tariff prescribed in Lev. 27:6 for boys under five. Five shekels would have been about a year's pay for a herdsman.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:43 all the firstborn males … were 22,273. If the total population was over 2 million, as some hold, then this number would only represent the number of firstborn males born since the exodus. Other interpreters understand this figure as the total of all firstborn in Israel, which would then indicate a much smaller total population.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:1–49 Census of Mature Levites. Levites between 30 and 50 years old were responsible for moving the tabernacle from campsite to campsite. This chapter specifies what each Levitical clan must do (vv. 3–33) and then records their number (vv. 34–49). The instructions presuppose that the reader can visualize the tabernacle and its furniture. For a full description of the tabernacle, see Exodus 25–31 and notes, and The Tabernacle.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:1–20 The Tasks of the Kohathites. The Kohathite priests handle the most holy items of the tabernacle (such as the ark, lampstand, and altars), but the non-priestly Kohathites are not even to look at them, lest they die. If someone looks at God, he will die (Ex. 33:20), and because these items share this intense divine holiness, they could prove equally lethal (Num. 4:17–20). For this reason, only the priests may wrap these pieces of sacred furniture. Notice that different-colored cloths are used for different items, symbolizing their different degrees of holiness. The ark, being most holy, was wrapped in three layers, the veil, goatskin, and blue … cloth (vv. 5–6). The next most holy item, the table, had three layers with goatskin on the outside, and the golden altar and lampstand had two layers (vv. 7–11). When the priests had wrapped the items, they were given to the Kohathites to carry, either on poles or on a carrying frame (vv. 6, 8, 10, 11, 12, 14). A Hittite document from the second millennium B.C. provides an analogy to OT texts that describe the work of Levites and priests, in that it describes two classes of people who watch over and take care of the temple: a priestly class and a non-priestly class. People in the latter group serve as aides to the former group.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:21–28 The Tasks of the Gershonites. This section specifies the curtains of the tabernacle that the Gershonites are to carry. They were to be transported in two oxcarts (7:7).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:29–33 The Tasks of the Merarites. The Merarites had to transport the planks, poles, bases, etc. These items, being heavier and bulkier than the curtains, required four oxcarts (7:8).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:34–49 The Results of the Second Census. Levites between 30 and 50 years old totaled 8,580, just over a third of their total number of 22,000 (3:39). This chapter again shows preparations being made for the march into Canaan. It underlines once again the dangerous holiness of God: he cannot be approached casually. It also emphasizes the importance of the ministry of the Levites, who make possible the transport of the tabernacle to the land and who guard it from intrusion.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:1–6:27 Cleansing the Camp. In preparation for the march to the Holy Land, the camp of Israel must be purged of all uncleanness. The concept of uncleanness (i.e., that which disgusts and angers God) is most important in the Bible, and in its OT form is explained most fully in Leviticus 11–16. (The NT shows that some things labeled unclean in the OT period, e.g., particular foodstuffs, were so designated for didactic reasons only until Christ came; see notes on Mark 7:19; Acts 15:1; 15:19–21; Gal. 2:11–12; 4:10; 5:1.) Uncleanness ranges in seriousness from mild uncleanness caused by marital intercourse (Lev. 15:18), to moderate uncleanness caused by skin disease (Leviticus 13), to severe uncleanness triggered by sins such as idolatry, adultery, and homicide. Severe uncleanness led to the Canaanites losing the land, and the same fate could befall Israel (Lev. 20:22–23). People who were unclean were forbidden to participate in worship, and their uncleanness could somehow infect the tabernacle, which would make it impossible for God to dwell there. The Day of Atonement was designed to cleanse the tabernacle once a year (Leviticus 16) in order to ensure God's continuing presence with his people. These regulations in Numbers 5–6 are preventative: they aim to eliminate uncleanness from the camp so that the tabernacle will remain pure and God will stay with his people as they journey to Canaan. The principle that only the purified can belong to the kingdom of heaven is reaffirmed in Eph. 5:5; Rev. 21:27; 22:14–15.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:1–4 Exclusion of the Unclean from the Camp. The unclean are excluded from the tribal encampments of ch. 2 and must live in places such as caves or wilderness tents, separate from the people (cf. Lev. 13:46; 2 Kings 7:3).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:2 leprous. The skin conditions involved are described in Leviticus 13. dead. On the uncleanness caused by death, see Num. 19:11–22. discharge. See notes on Leviticus 15.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:5–10 Atonement for Perjury. This law extends the scope of Lev. 6:1–7, which deals with the case of someone stealing his neighbor's property and then taking an oath denying the fact. This amounts to taking God's name in vain (Ex. 20:7), a most serious offense. If the offender later recognizes his guilt and confesses it, he must return his neighbor's property plus 20 percent and offer a ram as a guilt offering. Verses 5–10 of Numbers 5 deal with the situation when there is none of the victim's family to receive the restored goods: in this case it is to go to the priest along with the sacrificial ram. Verses 9–10 generalize this principle: the priest who offers a sacrifice keeps for himself the parts that are not burnt. The NT affirms that reconciliation with one's fellow man is required of those who would be at peace with God (Matt. 5:23–26; 6:14–15).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:11–31 Test of Suspected Adultery. This ritual is an acted-out prayer that God would show whether a man's suspicions about his wife's fidelity were justified. Adultery, like other sexual sins, causes grievous uncleanness, and so must be eliminated from Israel. The test is designed to distinguish between actual-but-unwitnessed adultery (vv. 12–14a) and unwarranted suspicion (v. 14b). The actions all underline the seriousness of the sin of adultery. When an adulterous man and woman were caught in the act, they faced the death penalty in Israel (Deut. 22:22) and elsewhere in the ancient Near East. On this occasion the husband is merely suspicious. To confirm or dispel his suspicions the woman must offer a sacrifice (Num. 5:15–16), drink water containing dust from the floor of the tabernacle (i.e., dust from the presence of God; v. 17), and accept a curse against herself that her womb swell and her thigh fall away (vv. 19–22) if she is guilty. It is not clear exactly what this threat means (the focus is on the members of her body with which she may have sinned), but it could be a threat of a miscarriage. Ultimately, though, the guilty wife is threatened with childlessness, a catastrophe in Bible times, whereas the innocent is assured she shall be free and shall conceive children (v. 28; cf. Gen. 20:17–18).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:15 grain offering. For the normal procedure, see Leviticus 2. The omission of oil and frankincense shows this is not a joyful occasion.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:18 unbind the hair. An act of shaming, or perhaps of mourning (cf. Lev. 10:6; 21:10).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:1–21 Rules for Nazirites. Nazirites were the most dedicated laypeople in the OT. Samson, Samuel, and John the Baptist were lifelong Nazirites, but usually a person took a vow to become a Nazirite for only a specific period of time.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:1–6 Definition of a Nazirite. A Nazirite (see esv footnote on v. 2) had to avoid cutting his or her hair (both men and women could be Nazirites, v. 2), not eat any product made from grapes, and avoid contact with any dead body.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:7–12 Nazirites and Uncleanness. Death was a source of severe uncleanness, and contact with death compromised the Nazirite's status. It had to be remedied by offering three sacrifices (sin, burnt, and guilt offerings; Lev. 1:14–16; 5:7–10, 14–16) and by starting the period of the Nazirite vow all over again: the previous period shall be void (Num. 6:12). It is probably the issue of uncleanness that prompts the inclusion of the laws on the Nazirite at this point in the book (see 5:2–4).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:7 his separation to God is on his head. The word here translated "separation" (Hb. nezer) is also used of the high priest's crown (Lev. 8:9). Both the priestly crown and the Nazirite's uncut hair reminded other people of their dedication to God's service. In this way the dedication of the Nazirites was a challenge to every Israelite to follow the Lord wholeheartedly.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:13–20 Completion of a Nazirite Vow. When the period to which a Nazirite had dedicated himself was over, he had to bring three animal sacrifices (burnt, sin, and peace offerings; Lev. 1:10–13; 4:32–35; 3:6–11) and the customary accompanying grain and wine offerings (Lev. 2:4–13; Num. 15:1–10). Finally, the Nazirite shaved his head and burned his hair on the altar. His unshaven head marked his dedication to God, and by burning the hair he symbolically gave himself to God. The shoulder of the ram is given to the priest, in addition to his usual share of the sacrifice (the breast and the thigh; cf. Lev. 7:31–34).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:21 Summary of the Law. above his Nazirite vow. If the ex-Nazirite had pledged to do more than keep the Nazirite abstention rules (6:3–7), he must fulfill those pledges too.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:22–27 The Priestly Blessing. Placed here, this famous blessing shows that God's will is to bless every Israelite, not just the Nazirites. But God's blessing is mediated by the priests. The earliest archaeological discovery containing the covenantal name of God (Yahweh) in Jerusalem is a silver amulet containing this priestly blessing. It was found in a Judean tomb dating to the seventh or sixth century B.C.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:24 The LORD bless you. God blesses by giving good harvests, peace, children, and his own presence (Lev. 26:3–13). keep. That is, "guard" and "protect."

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:25 his face to shine upon you. God's presence is like sunshine (Ps. 19:1–11). A shining face is a smiling face, a pledge of God's good favor (Ps. 80:3, 7, 19).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:26 The "countenance" is the face or the expression of one's face. For God to lift up his countenance involves taking notice of and treating his people with favor. Peace (Hb. shalom) involves more than the English sense of "lack of war"; it means total well-being.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:1–89 Offerings for the Tabernacle. On the day when Moses had finished setting up the tabernacle places these events a month before those described in chs. 1–6 (Ex. 40:2; Num. 1:1). If the opening chapters of Numbers had not been placed first, it would have been more difficult to grasp the significance of what is described in this chapter. Numbers 3–4 describes the duties of the priests and Levites; ch. 7 shows how the other tribes supported them. First, they supplied wagons and oxen to help the Levites carry the tabernacle. The Gershonites, carriers of the tabernacle curtains and hangings, were given two wagons and four oxen (4:25–26; 7:7). The Merarites—carriers of the poles, frames, and bases—were given four wagons and eight oxen (4:31–32; 7:8). The Kohathites, who carried the tabernacle furniture on shoulder poles, received none (v. 9).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:10–88 On 12 successive days the chiefs of the 12 tribes (one chief per day) brought gifts to show their tribes' support for the official worship. Each tribe gave exactly the same thing: one silver plate and one silver basin, each filled with flour mixed with oil. They also offered one golden dish … full of incense. The low weight (4 ounces [113 g]) of the dish makes commentators think it may have been more like a ladle or spoon. Then there were a variety of animals to keep the regular sacrifices going. The summary of all the donations in vv. 84–88 shows that the animals were not sacrificed immediately after they were offered but were kept for the appropriate occasion. The exact repetition of the donations of each tribe underlines that all the tribes were equally committed to supporting the tabernacle. It is also noteworthy that, as in chs. 1–4, the tribe of Judah takes the lead (see notes on 1:26–27; 2:1–34).

*The date formula is day.month.year. For example, 1.1.2 = the first day of the first month of the second year. All of these events occurred in the second year after the exodus. (For modern equivalents to the months see The Hebrew Calendar.)

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:89 This verse emphasizes the awesome responsibility of Moses, who often went into the tent of meeting to speak with the Lord, and who then heard the voice of God speaking to him, in order to receive and communicate God's instructions for the people. This verse also reinforces the importance of the tabernacle, for it was there that Moses heard God speaking to him from between the two cherubim. For a description of the cherubim on the ark, see Ex. 25:10–22; see also The Ark of the Covenant.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:1–4 The Lampstand. It is described more fully in Ex. 25:31–40, and its construction is explained in Ex. 37:17–24; see also The Golden Lampstand. This section gives instructions for its operation. The important point is that the seven lamps … give light in front of the lampstand, that is, that their light shines on the table opposite it in the tabernacle (see The Tabernacle Tent) on which are 12 flat loaves of bread symbolizing the 12 tribes of Israel (Ex. 25:23–30). Light reflects the glorious presence of God, so this arrangement of the furniture in the tabernacle is a reminder of God's ongoing intention to bless the people of Israel (see notes on John 1:4–5; 8:12).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:5–22 The Dedication of the Levites. Like the previous paragraph, this section tidies up points partially covered earlier. The duties of the Levites in transporting and guarding the tabernacle have already been covered in chs. 3–4. Now these verses explain how the Levites were inducted into these roles. The rites are not as elaborate as the ordination of the priests in Leviticus 8–9, probably because the Levites had lower status than the priests. Nevertheless, as this ceremony declares, the Levites had an important role to play. As explained earlier (Num. 3:40–43), the Levites substituted for the firstborn Israelites, and this point is repeated (8:16–18). By the Levites taking on this role, they are removing the risk of plague breaking out on the whole people (which would happen if an Israelite approached the sanctuary incorrectly; see v. 19). The ceremony involved several elements designed to cleanse the Levites: sprinkling with the water of purification (probably the liquid described in ch. 19), shaving the whole body, and washing their clothes (8:7). This cleansing process made them fit to be offered to God. The leaders of the congregation then laid hands on the Levites, symbolizing that the Levites are the representatives of the congregation (vv. 9–11). Then, like parts of a sacrifice, they are offered as a wave offering (v. 11). Parts of the peace offering were waved and then given to the priest (Lev. 7:28–34). "Sacrificial waving" is usually supposed to be a side-to-side movement, but how the Levites were “waved” is unclear. The ceremony was completed by offering two sacrifices (the burnt and sin offering) using bulls, the most valuable of sacrificial animals (Lev. 1:3–9; 4:1–21).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:23–26 The Retirement of the Levites. At age 50 Levites were to retire from the duty of the service (i.e., the work involved in transporting the tabernacle) because carrying the tabernacle was too hard for older men. But they were allowed to continue to act as guards (vv. 25–26). In 4:23 it is said that Levites start their labor of carrying the tabernacle when they are 30 years old, but here they start at age 25 (8:24). The reason for the difference is unclear: maybe from the ages of 25 to 30 they were viewed as apprentices.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:1–5 The Second Passover. The first Passover took place in Egypt just before the Israelites escaped. It was unique in that it occurred before the saving event of the exodus and the crossing of the Red Sea; all subsequent Passover celebrations recalled these momentous events, but inevitably many of the features of the first Passover were missing. So this Passover, celebrated a year later at Sinai, was the first of many that were essentially retrospective commemorations of the first Passover in Egypt. On the fourteenth day (vv. 3, 5). This places the celebration of the Passover between the events described in chs. 7–8 and the censuses of chs. 1–4. according to all its statutes (9:3). See Exodus 12–13, which both describes the original Egyptian Passover and gives many regulations about subsequent Passover celebrations.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:6–14 The Delayed Passover. The regular Passover of the “first month” was carried out properly (v. 5), but some people could not join in because they were unclean through contact with a corpse. Death is one of the more potent sources of uncleanness (see ch. 19). As explained in ch. 5 (see notes there), uncleanness prevents those affected from living in the camp, let alone participating in worship. But failure to celebrate the Passover when one is able to do so is a serious sin, meriting being cut off (9:13). “Cut off” probably means dying suddenly and mysteriously as a divine punishment, though some interpreters think it sometimes may refer to excommunication from Israel or judicial execution. (For other offenses that merit this penalty, cf. Lev. 17:4, 9; 20:6, 18; Num. 15:30–31; 19:13.) Those affected by uncleanness were not required to celebrate the Passover at another time; nevertheless, they were allowed to keep it one month later than usual, following the standard procedures (9:11–12). if a stranger sojourns among you (v. 14). Resident aliens, though not obliged to keep the Passover, are welcome to observe it if they so desire. They are expected to observe the Sabbath and the Day of Atonement (Ex. 20:10; Lev. 16:29).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:15–23 The Moving Cloud. The cloud of God's presence had led the people out of Egypt to Mount Sinai (Ex. 13:21–22; 19:9, 16). This hymn-like passage celebrates the relationship between God and Israel (or at least what that relationship was like when Israel was in an obedient mood). Wherever and whenever the cloud moved, the people followed. At the command of the LORD they camped, and at the command of the LORD they set out (Num. 9:23). The people had to be ready for immediate departure on any day, and they had to follow the Lord every day until the cloud stopped—which required continual obedience to God's visible guidance. (Notice, however, the disobedience of the people in Num. 14:1–4, when they refuse to "set out" to Canaan, and the disastrous consequences of their disobedience as seen in 14:11–45. But ch. 11 already shows that the people were not as full of faith as they should have been.)

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:15 the cloud covered the tabernacle. This visible evidence of God's presence (cf. Ex. 40:34–38) could be seen by all Israel. In the evening it was like the appearance of fire until morning and thus it gave continual testimony, day and night, to God's presence among his people.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:1–10 The Silver Trumpets. How was Israel to move in step with the cloud of God's presence? A large group of people needed to be marshaled, or else any movement was bound to be chaotic. So the primary purpose of the trumpets was to signal when the different tribes were to set out (see vv. 5–7). But they are also to be used to summon the congregation (v. 3) or the chiefs (v. 4). Their use in war and on the festival days is also prescribed (vv. 9–10). But blowing the trumpets was more than just a way of summoning the people to come to the tabernacle or to follow the cloud; it was a kind of prayer, a plea to God to remember his people and their needs, that you may be remembered before the LORD your God (v. 9; cf. v. 10). Two silver trumpets (v. 2), according to Josephus (Jewish Antiquities 3.291), were just over a foot in length and flared. They are pictured on Titus's arch among the plunder he brought to Rome from Jerusalem. Two ways of blowing the trumpets are mentioned here: simply blowing (Num. 10:3–4, 7), and sounding an alarm (vv. 6–7). The difference is that blowing involves long notes, whereas sounding an alarm is done with staccato blasts. On the day of your gladness (v. 10) would include such occasions as festivals or victory celebrations after battle.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:11–12:16 Marching from Sinai to Kadesh. As pointed out above, the book of Numbers alternates static sections devoted to law-giving and organization with travelogue. In chs. 10–12 Israel moves from the foot of Mount Sinai to Kadesh-barnea, an oasis on the southern border of Canaan. Initially all runs smoothly. "The cloud lifted … and the people of Israel set out" (10:11–12), just as 9:15–23 said they should. On the move, the people proceeded in the formation specified in ch. 2. The Judahite group of tribes headed the procession (10:13–16; cf. 2:1–9). They were followed by the Gershonite Levites with their two wagons loaded with the tabernacle curtains, and the Merarite Levites with four wagons loaded with poles and pegs (10:17; cf. 3:21–26, 33–37). These Levites preceded the Kohathites so that they could erect the tabernacle before the Kohathites arrived. Then the sacred furniture carried by the Kohathites could be installed immediately in the tabernacle (10:21). The Gershonites and Merarites were followed by the Reubenite tribes (10:18–20; cf. 2:10–16). Then right at the center of the procession came the most sacred items of tabernacle furniture, carried by the Kohathites (10:21; cf. 3:27–32). However, it appears that the ark itself went out in front of the whole procession (10:33); like the cloud, it symbolized and conveyed God's presence and his guidance of his people. The rear of the procession was brought up by the Ephraimite and Danite groups of tribes (10:22–28; cf. 2:18–31).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:11–28 Israel Strikes Camp at Sinai. The people of Israel have been at Sinai for almost a full year (see Ex. 19:1). Israel now leaves Sinai to begin its journey to the Promised Land under the guidance and direction of the shekinah glory (i.e., the dwelling glory cloud). This text describes the striking of the Israelite camp and the order of march of the tribes.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:12 and the people of Israel set out by stages from the wilderness of Sinai. One would expect the people to have felt tremendous excitement, pride, joy, and safety in God's protection when they set out in this great procession, with trumpets, banners, and, in the very front, the cloud of the presence of God himself. They were seeing dramatic evidence of the fulfillment of God's promises to Abraham hundreds of years earlier. Sadly, however, they soon complain (ch. 11), rebel (ch. 14), and oppose Moses' authority (ch. 16).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:29–32 Request to Hobab to Accompany Israel. The relationship of Hobab and Reuel to Jethro (Ex. 3:1; 18:1–2) is uncertain. The least difficult solution is that Reuel and Jethro are alternative names of Moses' father-in-law. This would make Hobab Moses' brother-in-law. In Judg. 4:11 Hobab's descendants are called Kenites, whereas here he is called a Midianite. Probably the Kenites were a subgroup of the Midianites. The LORD has promised good to Israel, that is, the land. I will depart to my own land and to my kindred. Hobab apparently rejects the offer of a share in Canaan (in stark contrast to Abraham's response to God's call; Gen. 12:1–4). It is not clear if Moses' subsequent entreaty persuaded him to change his mind, for the text does not say. In Numbers 25 and 31 the Midianites are fierce enemies of Israel, but in Judg. 1:16 and 4:11 the Kenites are Israel's allies, living in Canaan.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:33–36 These verses describe the first three-day march from Sinai toward Kadesh led by the cloud and the ark. The repetition of three days emphasizes the short distance traveled; it does not imply the ark was separated from the main party by this distance. As the ark set out and rested (vv. 35–36), Moses expressed his confidence that God would bring Israel successfully into Canaan.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:1–12:16 Three Protests. The whole people and their most senior figures complain about the difficulties of the journey to Canaan; by implication they are also complaining about Moses' leadership and God's promises. This pattern matches the problems of the journey from the Red Sea to Sinai. At that time, after a three-day trek, the people had complained about water, and now they complain again (Ex. 15:22–25; cf. Num. 10:33; 11:1–3). The next complaint is about food (Exodus 16; Num. 11:4–35). The final protest is about Moses' leadership (Ex. 17:1–7; Numbers 12).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:1–3 Taberah. This is just a general complaint by the people. In judgment, fire breaks out in the outlying parts of the camp (cf. Lev. 10:2; Num. 16:35). As on other occasions, Moses' intercession halts God's judgment (Ex. 32:11–14, 31–32; Num. 12:13–15; 14:11–25).

Taberah means burning (esv footnote); like other place names in the Bible, it commemorates the events that occurred there.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:4–35 Kibroth-hattaavah. The second popular protest concerns the manna that had been Israel’s food ever since it was provided on the way to Sinai (Exodus 16). On the surface, the protest is merely about the monotony of the diet; underlying the complaint, however, is a yearning for the pleasures of Egypt (Num. 11:4–5) and a rejection of God’s plans.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:7 Bdellium is a pale yellow resin found in desert areas.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:11–15 Moses can bear the complaining no more and protests to God about the burden of leading Israel by himself.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:16–23 The Lord promises to meet Moses’ need for assistance and the people’s desire for an alternative to the manna. But God’s apparent concession to the popular appetite will in fact prove to be a judgment, because they were in effect saying, Why did we come out of Egypt? (v. 20).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:24–30 Moses’ request for assistance is met as the Lord endows seventy elders with the gift of prophecy. Unlike Moses with his unique gift of prophecy (12:6–7), these elders prophesied only for a short time (they did not continue doing it), but this was enough to give them credibility as assistants to Moses. Their prophesying would have involved some kind of speaking under the influence of the Holy Spirit, showing their similarity to the prophet Moses (cf. notes on 1 Sam. 10:5; 1 Chron. 25:1–8). It is unclear whether or not Eldad and Medad were attached to the group of 70. In any case, they prophesied in a different place (in the camp), whereas the 70 had prophesied around the tent (Num. 11:24). This made their prophesying much more obvious to the other Israelites, which was a concern to Joshua (vv. 27–28). However, Moses’ prayer—Would that all the LORD’s people were prophets! (v. 29)—anticipates Joel’s vision of the “day of the LORD,” when “your sons and daughters shall prophesy” (Joel 2:28; cf. Acts 2:17). When this passage (like most of the OT) speaks of the work of the Spirit (Num. 11:17, 25–26), it is focusing primarily on the empowering of the Spirit for service to the people of God, more than an internal, personal experience.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:31–34 Quail (small partridges) migrate north across the Sinai Peninsula in the spring and return in the fall, so although the Israelites had eaten some in the previous year (Ex. 16:13), these were not a regular dish. The migration of the second year was such that the Israelites were able to catch enormous quantities of quail: they were piled two cubits (3 feet or 0.9 m) high on the ground (Num. 11:31); thus anyone could collect at least ten homers (v. 32), roughly 60 bushels (480 dry gallons or 2,200 liters)! This greed was punished by a very great plague (v. 33). The form of the plague is unexplained, but it led to many deaths and the place being named Kibroth-hattaavah, “graves of craving” (v. 34).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:1–16 The Uniqueness of Moses. After the protests of the people comes an even more painful challenge to Moses’ authority. His brother Aaron, the high priest, and his sister Miriam, a prophetess (Ex. 15:20), contest his unique position. Once again their initial remarks, concerning Moses’ Cushite wife, are only cover for their real complaint: Has the LORD … spoken only through Moses? (Num. 12:2).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:1–2 Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses. This represents a further challenge to Moses’ supreme authority, which has many points in common with the previous two challenges (cf. 11:1, 4–6, and 11:10). Cushite woman. Nothing is known about “the Cushite woman” beyond this brief mention. She may be the same person as Zipporah (Ex. 2:16–22), though she is usually described as a Midianite. Some texts, however, suggest Midian and Cushan are the same (see Hab. 3:7). Since Cush normally refers to ancient Ethiopia, most interpreters think that “the Cushite woman” probably was Moses’ second wife, and that she came from Ethiopia. This leads some commentators to suggest that racial or ethnic prejudice may have been involved, the objection being to someone of African descent. In any case it becomes clear that Miriam and Aaron’s objection to “the Cushite woman” was a pretense, and that the real issue was their challenge to Moses’ supreme authority.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:3–4 very meek. The Hebrew term here translated “meek” (Hb. ‘anaw) is more often translated “humble, poor.” The focus is more on Moses' attitude than on his demeanor. Some have argued that Moses could not have written in this way about himself, thereby challenging Moses' authorship of Numbers. It is clear, however, that the inclusion of this description of Moses' character is both accurate and necessary for understanding the account. On the face of the earth indicates that Moses was highly respected, certainly by Pharaoh and the people of Egypt, but also when he encountered other peoples during the 40 years in the wilderness (e.g., the defeat of the Amorites, 21:21–35; and Balaam and the dread of the Moabites, chs. 22–24). Here Moses relies on divine vindication rather than defending himself. Vindication comes quickly, as all three (Miriam, Aaron, and Moses) are summoned by God, who then points out Moses' unique qualities, as seen in the 11-line poem in 12:6–8. Christian readers may see in this description of Moses' unique mediating role a foreshadowing of Christ, the prophet greater than Moses (cf. Deut. 18:15; Acts 3:22; 7:37).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:6–8 This sets Moses apart from the ordinary prophets, who receive their revelations in vision and dream (which thus involves much more imagery). By contrast, God speaks to Moses mouth to mouth (v. 8; that is, as one person facing another and conversing; cf. Ex. 33:11), which implies verbal communication, often extensive, as well as extended dialogue between God and Moses. He is faithful in all my house (Num. 12:7). In other words, he is like the trusted manager of a man's household, such as was Eliezer or Joseph (Gen. 24:2; 39:4). He is someone with whom the owner speaks directly and explicitly, not in riddles (Num. 12:8). the form of the LORD (v. 8). "Form" (Hb. temunah) is sometimes translated "likeness" (e.g., Ex. 20:4). At Sinai, Israel did not see God's likeness but only heard his voice (Deut. 4:12, 15). It is not entirely clear how seeing God's form or likeness differs from seeing his face (cf. Ex. 33:18–23), but it apparently involved a less intensive kind of vision. The point here is that Moses was allowed to see what most ordinary believers must wait for their death to see (Ps. 17:15). Why then were you not afraid to speak against my servant Moses? To oppose Moses, whom God had put in this position, was also to oppose God himself.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:9–12 Moses' unique access to God should have been evident all along to Miriam and Aaron; their obtuseness prompts the anger of God. leprous, like snow. Biblical “leprosy” covers a variety of skin conditions, characterized by sores and peeling skin (see note on Lev. 13:1–59). The flakiness of Miriam’s skin, not necessarily its whiteness, causes her affliction to be compared to snow and the skin of a stillborn child (Num. 12:12).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:13–16 As final proof of Moses’ status, his prayer for his sister’s healing is immediately answered. But like other healed “lepers,” she must be shut outside the camp seven days before being readmitted (see Lev. 14:1–9; Num. 5:2). This punishment is justified by comparison with family custom, where a child must be disciplined for shaming her father (12:14; see Deut. 25:9 for the shame of spitting).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:1–19:22 Forty Years near Kadesh. The central section of the book of Numbers brings together events spanning 40 years, when the Israelites lived in and near Kadesh-barnea. Kadesh is a large oasis about 50 miles (80 km) southwest of Beersheba (see map). It marked the southern limit of the land of Canaan, according to 34:4. So when Israel reached there, they were on the verge of entering the Promised Land. But as a result of the rebellion prompted by the spies’ negative reports, God punished the people by making them wait 40 years to enter the land. A few important episodes from this period are recounted in chs. 13–19.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:1–14:45 The Mission of the Spies and the National Rebellion. The significance of this episode is indicated by its length. It stands alongside the golden calf episode (Exodus 32–34) as one of the two great apostasies of the wilderness wanderings. On the former occasion, Israel broke the first two commandments (Ex. 20:3–6) and the Lord threatened to annihilate them and create a new people from Moses’ descendants (Ex. 32:9–10). Only Moses’ intercession persuaded God to relent (Ex. 32:11–14). This time the people turn their backs on the Promised Land and propose returning to Egypt. Again the Lord threatens their destruction, which is averted only by Moses’ intercession.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:1–16 Spies Sent Out. Twelve tribal leaders are selected to go from Paran to “spy out the land of Canaan” (v. 2) and to bring back a report concerning the quality of the land and the morale of its inhabitants, probably with the intention of strengthening the faith of the Israelites.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:2 Note the reminder that the land has been promised by God.

The Journey of the Spies

When the Israelites first arrived at Kadesh-barnea, Moses dispatched 12 spies to scout out the Promised Land of Canaan. For 40 days the spies traveled throughout Canaan, from the Negeb to Rehob and back again—a distance of over 500 miles (805 km).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:4–16 This list of tribal leaders differs from that in chs. 1–2; perhaps younger, more energetic leaders were needed for the spying mission. In 13:16, Hoshea (“he saves”) is renamed Joshua (“Yahweh saves”), anticipating the faith he shows in 14:6.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:17–24 Mission Accomplished. The spies cover some 220 miles (354 km) from the Negeb, the arid region south of Beersheba, right up to the north, Rehob, near Lebo-hamath, about 47 miles (76 km) north of Damascus (v. 21).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:20 Season of the first ripe grapes, i.e., late July.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:22 Hebron is about 20 miles (32 km) south of Jerusalem. Theologically it is very significant as the burial place of the patriarchs and their wives (e.g., Genesis 23) and the place where God had promised the land to Abraham forever (Gen. 17:8). the descendants of Anak. Anak in Hebrew (ʽanaq) means “neck,” and the Anakim were famous for their height (see Num. 13:33; Deut. 2:21; 9:2). Zoan is Tanis, in the Nile delta. It was the capital of Egypt in the time of the Israelite monarchy, but this verse must be referring to its earlier history. Tanis was founded in the early second millennium B.C., and excavations at Hebron demonstrate that the first fortified city dates to the Middle Bronze II period (c. 2000–1750 B.C.). The correspondence of dating is striking.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:23 Eshcol (“cluster” in Hb.) cannot be precisely located, but grapes grow well in the Hebron area.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:25–33 The Spies’ Report of Their Mission. This report covers the same ground as the narration in vv. 17–24. But whereas the latter is straightforward and factual, the spies’ account is lurid and exaggerated, calculated to dismay the hearers. Notice the description of the cities as fortified and very large (v. 28), and the long list of inhabitants (vv. 28–29). Archaeological excavation has confirmed that Canaanite cities of the Late Bronze Age were large and heavily defended. For example, the city of Hazor consisted of an upper city of 26 acres and a lower city of 160 acres. Estimates put the population at 40,000. Its defense walls were massively built of stone and mud brick; some of the walls measured as wide as 24 feet (7.3 m). The spies claim that the land devours its inhabitants (v. 32) and, to cap it off, that the tall Anakites are descended from the Nephilim (see note on Gen. 6:4) and therefore must be quite invincible. (Given the exaggerated tone of the spies' account, their reference to Nephilim is most likely an expression of their fear and an excuse for their disobedience, rather than an accurate statement indicating that the Nephilim were still living after the flood.) Scholars generally accept that the location of Kadesh is modern Tell 'Ain el-Qudeirat. This site, however, has revealed no remains before the tenth century B.C. This lack of evidence may be explained in a number of ways: (1) the identification may be incorrect; (2) earlier remains may not have been discovered yet; or (3) groups on the move like the Israelites may have left no remains to be discovered.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:31 We are not able to go up against the people, for they are stronger than we are. This statement reflects lack of faith in the Lord, for the spies are evaluating the situation only from a human perspective. As a result, they have no courage. By contrast, trust in the Lord would produce genuine courage, as it does when the people of Israel are given a second opportunity to enter and conquer the Promised Land after 40 years of wandering in the wilderness (cf. Josh. 1:5–9).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:1–12 The People's Reaction. The people react very strongly to this pessimistic view of their prospects. Their comments challenge both God's purposes and his power. God had promised them the land, but they dismiss it as impossible and suggest choosing a new leader to bring them back to Egypt (vv. 1–4).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:6–9 Joshua and Caleb rightly term the popular reaction as rebellion against the LORD and urge them to have faith in God's power to bring them into the land (v. 9). For this they are threatened with stoning (v. 10), a form of execution prescribed for apostates (Lev. 20:2, 27; 24:23; Num. 15:36; Deut. 13:10).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:6 tore their clothes. A typical sign of grief (Gen. 37:29, 34).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:8 If the LORD delights in us, he will bring us into this land and give it to us. This statement from Joshua and Caleb stands in stark contrast to the cowardly statement from the other spies in 13:31. God's subsequent blessing on Joshua and Caleb (see 14:30, 38; 26:65) shows his approval of their faith.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:11–12 The gravity of the sin is marked by God's proposal to destroy the nation and start again with Moses. A similar threat was made in Ex. 32:10.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:13–19 Moses' Plea for Forgiveness. Moses prays here, as he did after the making of the golden calf (Exodus 32), acting, as often in the Pentateuch, as a covenant mediator (cf. Num. 12:3–4). He points out that, were God to fulfill his threat to annihilate Israel, the nations would say that the LORD was not able to bring this people into the land (cf. Ex. 32:12). He reminds God that he promised Abraham that his descendants would inherit the land (cf. Ex. 32:13), and finally he quotes God's own description of his character to prove that he ought to forgive (Ex. 34:6–7; Num. 14:18–19).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:20–35 God's Response to Moses' Prayer. God's response is somewhat surprising. On the one hand, he declares: I have pardoned, according to your word (i.e., he has drawn back from destroying Israel immediately). But that does not mean they can go ahead with their planned entry to Canaan. In fact, the disobedient Israelites will get what they asked for. They wanted to return to Egypt (v. 3); they are told to go into the wilderness by the Red Sea (v. 25). They said they did not want to enter the land because they would die there (vv. 2–3); they are told they will never enter it, but die in the wilderness (vv. 27–38). They feared that their little ones … would become a prey (see v. 3); but it is the children who in 40 years' time will enter the land (v. 31).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:21 all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the LORD. God's purposes will not be defeated by human failure; he will certainly fulfill them. (See notes on Ps. 72:18–20; Isa. 6:3.)

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:29 All those twenty years old and upward are sentenced to die in the wilderness, because it was those over 20 who had been enrolled to fight (see 1:3) but had refused.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:36–38 Death of the Faithless Spies. Though all the adult Israelites were warned that they would die in the wilderness, the 10 faithless spies, who had incited the national apostasy, "died by plague" (v. 37; ironically, this uses one of the same Hebrew words used with reference to the Egyptian plagues—Hb. maggepah, "plague"; cf. Ex. 9:14). A similar fate befell many of those involved in the idolatry of the golden calf (Ex. 32:35). The story of the spies illustrates an important principle: when God forgives sin, he does not always eliminate the consequences of sin. In the case of Israel, God's forgiveness meant that it remained the people of God, in a corporate sense. The covenant made at Sinai—that the Lord would be their God and that Israel would be his people—was maintained. Yet the people still suffered for their sin: they did not enter Canaan, but died in the wilderness.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:36–37 the men who brought up a bad report of the land … died by plague before the LORD. These men are prime examples of unbelief within the covenant people, and must be removed (see note on Isa. 1:24–28). Thus God judged the leaders (who "died by the plague before the LORD") because of the disastrous effect of their bad report (it made all the congregation grumble against Moses)—a dramatic reminder of the principle that God requires a higher level of accountability for those in leadership.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:39–45 An Unsuccessful Attempt at Conquest. Despite the death of the spies, and despite Moses telling the people that they must die in the wilderness and not enter the land, they attempt a conquest. Their defeat, ironically at the hands of the Amalekites and Canaanites (cf. 13:29), fulfills Moses' warning.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 14:45 Then the Amalekites and the Canaanites … came down and defeated them. In disobeying Moses' command (vv. 41–43), the Israelites "presume" (v. 44) to take matters into their own hands. Rather than accomplishing God's purposes, they encounter his judgment. Hormah (Hb. meaning "Destruction"; see 21:3) is a village on the southern border of Canaan (Josh. 15:30).

The Failed Entry into Canaan

After the Lord had condemned the people for refusing to enter Canaan, a group of Israelites changed their mind and tried to go up, even though neither Moses nor the ark of the covenant went with them. When they reached the hill country, they were beaten back by the Amalekites and Canaanites, who chased them all the way to Hormah.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 15:1–41 The Law-giving at Kadesh. At each place where Israel encamped for a long time, laws were given: at Sinai (Exodus 20—Numbers 9), Kadesh (Numbers 15), and the plains of Moab (Numbers 28–36). The Kadesh laws are the briefest and are mainly clarifications of the Sinai laws.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 15:1–16 Meal, Oil, and Wine to Accompany Sacrifice. Leviticus 1–7, which explains how each type of sacrifice is to be conducted, does not explain that burnt offerings (Leviticus 1) and peace offerings (Leviticus 3) must be accompanied by appropriate quantities of meal, oil, and wine. This may be because such materials were not available in the wilderness. But when you come into the land (Num. 15:2), the situation will be different. Then these other products will be available and (along with animal sacrifices) must be offered to God. The imagery of sacrifice is drawn from that of a meal: the worshiper must act as the generous host and give to God all that he would give an important guest (Gen. 18:1–8). It was not that God needed food, but these gifts showed the worshiper's devotion (Ps. 50:12–15). The giving of these laws at this point is very telling. The entry into Canaan has just been delayed 40 years, and an attempt to enter has failed (Num. 14:20–45), so the question could be asked: would Israel ever enter the Promised Land? These laws emphatically answer yes. It is not a question of if they will enter the land, but rather when they will come in. In this way the laws reaffirm the land promise. Further, the continuing instructions show that God has indeed retained Israel as his people (see note on 14:36–38). But more than that, the laws are an assurance that their harvests in the land would be abundant, as they stipulate that large quantities must be offered with each animal. The sacrifice of a lamb must be accompanied by about half a gallon (1.9 liters) of flour, a quart (0.95 liters) of oil, and a quart (0.95 liters) of wine (15:4–5). At least double quantities are needed for a bull (vv. 8–10). Verses 14–16 allow Gentile immigrants to offer sacrifices, as long as they follow the same rules as the Israelites.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 15:17–21 The Dough Offering. The book of Leviticus (19:24–25; 23:10–11) insists that the firstfruits of the crops must be given to God. This principle is now extended to baking. The first dough is given to the priests. Observant Jews today still remember this rule when they bake, by throwing a small lump of dough into the fire.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 15:22–31 Sacrifices for Unintentional Sins. Sins by mistake (i.e., unpremeditated sins, or sins done when the person did not know the action was sinful; cf. Lev. 4:1–5:13) may be atoned for by offering a sin offering.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 15:22–26 These verses recall the rule for a sin of the congregation (cf. Lev. 4:13–21).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 15:27–29 This is the rule for an individual (one person, cf. Lev. 4:27–35). Minor changes from Leviticus are introduced (e.g., the congregation must offer a bull and a goat, not just a bull, while the individual may offer only a female goat a year old, not a lamb). The reason for these changes is unclear. The fact that a sacrifice must be given even for the person who makes a mistake, or who sins unintentionally, implies that such sin still requires atonement, though it is not counted to be as serious as willful sin. An immigrant (the stranger who sojourns among them, Num. 15:29) may also seek atonement for unintentional sin (see also vv. 14–16).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 15:30–31 Sins committed with a high hand must refer to deliberate, intentional sins, since these are contrasted with unintentional sins (vv. 22, 24, 27). A "high hand" suggests lifting up a hand in defiance against God, and such a sin cannot be atoned for (see Heb. 10:26–30). Those who sin consciously and deliberately shall be cut off (i.e., die suddenly and mysteriously as punishment from God; see Gen. 17:14; Ex. 12:15; 31:14; Num. 9:13 and note on 9:6–14).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 15:32–36 A Sabbathbreaker Executed. This seems to be a case of sinning "with a high hand"—and publicly, too—so that the offender is actually executed, not just left to be "cut off" (cf. vv. 30–31), which applied only when the offender escaped human detection. In this case it is clear that the man has sinned, since all work on the Sabbath is prohibited (Ex. 20:10), including lighting a fire (Ex. 35:3). However, in this case the people did not know what his punishment should be: it had not been made clear what should be done to him (Num. 15:34). The mode of his execution underlines the importance of observing the Sabbath.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 15:37–41 Tassels on Clothes. In the ancient world, tassels were worn by nobles and other high-class people. In Israel they are to be worn by everyone as a mark of their status as the chosen people. Blue was used in the tabernacle curtains and in the priests' vestments (Ex. 26:31; 28:31). So the blue threads reminded the Israelites that they were "a kingdom of priests and a holy nation" (Ex. 19:6). This meant they had to remember and do all my commandments (Num. 15:40). In particular, they had to avoid the mistake of the spies of following after your own heart (v. 39). There is a play on words with the expression to follow, for this verb (Hb. tur) means both "to spy" and "to follow," and thus alludes to the danger found in following their own whims rather than being absolutely loyal to the divine commandments. It seems that tassels were part of Jesus' clothing in observance of this requirement and that the "fringes" touched for healing by the sick in Matthew's Gospel would have been "tassels," since the same Greek word used for "tassel" in the Septuagint is also used in Matthew (Gk. kraspedon, "tassel" or "fringe"; see Matt. 9:20; 14:36).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:1–50 The Rebellion of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. This story heads a section concerned with demonstrating the privileges and mediatorial role of the priesthood. It begins with Korah overemphasizing one truth to the exclusion of others (which is what heretics and founders of cults commonly do). He claims that since "all in the congregation are holy," all have equal access to God (v. 3). As a result, he and his followers demand that they should have all the privileges of priests, to enter God's presence in the tabernacle itself. But God judged them swiftly, and the final episode ends with all the people crying out in fear, "we perish," and, "Everyone who comes near … to the tabernacle … shall die" (17:12, 13). They have learned that only the priests may approach the tabernacle, and this protects the rest of the nation from death. This is outlined in the laws of ch. 18, which explain how the tribe of Levi has this vital role (18:1–7), and that the tithes and sacrificial portions that they receive are a reward for their important and dangerous service (18:8–32).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:1–15 The Complaints of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. After the leaders of the revolt are introduced (vv. 1–2), Korah targets his complaint against Aaron's high priesthood (vv. 3–11), and then the scene switches to Dathan and Abiram, who grumble about leaving the comforts of Egypt for death in the wilderness (vv. 12–15).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:1 Korah was a Levite (but not a priest) from the Kohathite clan. They camped near the tribe of Reuben (2:10–11; 3:29), from which the other leaders (Dathan, Abiram, and On) came. This could explain their collaboration. On is not mentioned later in the story.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:3 The claim that all … are holy could be based on the repeated call in the law to be holy (e.g., Lev. 11:45; 19:2; Num. 15:40). But this ethical holiness is not identical with priestly holiness, which confers the right to approach God in the offering of sacrifice and incense. When the Kohathites claim that Moses and Aaron exalt themselves, they show that they have missed the point, not understanding that the priesthood is a matter of God's own appointment (cf. Heb. 5:4).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:8–11 The Levites already enjoy great privileges in serving in the tabernacle, so they should not seek the priesthood also (v. 10).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:12–15 The Reubenite complaint is somewhat different from Korah's. The Reubenites object to dying in the wilderness instead of in Canaan or Egypt. This is rebellion against God's will and purpose akin to that provoked by the spies, who died in a plague (14:37). The complainers here will perish in even more spectacular fashion.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:15 I have not taken one donkey from them. As Samuel would do later (see 1 Sam. 12:3–5), Moses professes that he is innocent of misusing his office for personal gain (see notes on 1 Sam. 8:3; 8:14–15; 12:3–6).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:16–19, 35–40 The Death of the Kohathite Supporters of Korah. For a similar judgment on the unauthorized offering of incense, see Lev. 10:1–3.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:20–34 The Death of the Ringleaders and Their Families. And the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them up. God executes swift judgment on those who thought they could assume the privileges of priesthood for themselves. Sheol (v. 33) is the place of the dead, often pictured as being under the earth (Gen. 37:35; Ps. 6:5; 9:17; Isa. 14:9–20).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:24 Get away from the dwelling of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. This ominous warning builds suspense among the entire people of Israel, and especially among these three men and their families. God is preparing to punish them and affirm the leadership of Moses in a dramatic, public way.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:33 and the earth closed over them. The judgment from God was swift and absolute. The form in which the judgment occurred also may have given a symbolic hint of their future condition, away from the presence of the Lord.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:35 fire came out from the LORD and consumed the 250 men. See note on v. 33. God brings swift judgment, showing that no one should presume to come before his presence without God's own authorization (but cf. Heb. 10:19 with regard to believers in the new covenant).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:39–40 A covering for the altar is mentioned in Ex. 38:2. This new one may have replaced or been put on top of the old one. It served as a reminder that no outsider … should draw near to burn incense.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 16:41–50 Judgment Averted by Aaron. If the previous episode showed that non-priests offering incense provoked divine judgment, then this one shows that priests are indeed appointed to minister atonement. The plague provoked by the protest of all the congregation was stopped by Aaron holding a censer and standing between the dead and the living (v. 48).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 17:1–13 Aaron's Blossoming Staff. This experiment is a symbolic reenactment of the Korah episode, which showed who had the right to approach God (16:5). The chief of each tribe puts his staff in front of the ark for a night to see what will happen to it. Nothing happened to the staffs, except for Aaron's, which "produced blossoms" and "bore ripe almonds" (17:8) overnight (hence miraculously). It may well be that flowering almonds are significant. Their white blossoms symbolize purity, holiness, and God himself, which are all associated with the priesthood.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 17:6 The twelve staffs probably do not include Aaron's. There are 12 secular tribes in chs. 1 and 7, so Aaron's staff brings the number up to 13.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 17:10 The miraculous staff was kept in the ark (which seems to be what before the testimony is meant by) as a sign and a warning (cf. note on Heb. 9:4).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 17:12–13 The miracle of Aaron's staff seems to have finally convinced the people about the status of the priests and prepares the way for a statement of the priestly tribe's rights and privileges in ch. 18. The mediatorial role of the Aaronite high priests foreshadows the even greater role of Christ, the ultimate high priest (Hebrews 4–10).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 18:1–32 Duties and Privileges of Priests and Levites. The preceding events have demonstrated the necessity of properly appointed mediators between God and Israel, if the nation's sins are not to lead to her destruction. This chapter sums up the duties of the priests (cf. Lev. 10:8–11) and Levites, and lays down the rewards that they are to receive for their service. Aaron's special status is underlined by God speaking directly to him (Num. 18:1, 8). Usually in Numbers God speaks to Moses, who then passes on his instruction to the appropriate people.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 18:1–7 Guard Duties in and around the Tabernacle. In general, the priests, as the descendants of Aaron, must guard the interior of the tabernacle (vv. 5–7), and the Levites must guard its exterior (vv. 3–4). This is to prevent intrusion by any outsider (i.e., unauthorized person), who is to be executed if caught (vv. 4, 7). If a Levite should trespass into the area guarded by the priests, both Levite and priest will die (v. 3). These rigorous measures are designed that there may never again be wrath on the people of Israel (v. 5). In the future, the risk of divine judgment is limited to the priests and Levites, who bear iniquity connected with your priesthood (v. 1).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 18:8–20 The Priests' Income. The income of priests is derived from the sacrifices and similar offerings. Most of the privileges listed here are mentioned elsewhere in the law, but here the rights are all brought together. First, there are the parts of those sacrifices that only priests could eat: the cereal, sin, and guilt offerings (vv. 8–10). Second are those sacrifices and other offerings that all clean members of the priestly families could eat (vv. 11–19). These include parts of the peace offerings (v. 11), firstfruits of the harvest (vv. 12–13), and firstborn animals (vv. 17–18). Firstborn humans and unclean animals cannot be sacrificed but instead must be redeemed. That means the parents must give five shekels for their firstborn son (v. 16; see also Ex. 13:1–2, 11–16).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 18:19 Covenant of salt forever indicates a permanent and inviolable principle (cf. 2 Chron. 13:5). The significance of salt may be its qualities as a lasting preservative, well known throughout the ancient Near East, or its use as a seasoning of food, which would point to a shared meal between the two parties of the covenant as symbolic of their friendship and the binding nature of their agreement.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 18:21–24 The Levites' Income. The income of the Levites comes from the tithe given by the other tribes. It is their reward for (1) their transporting of the tabernacle, (2) their service in the tent of meeting (v. 21), and (3) their shouldering the risk associated with holy things, so that the people of Israel do not come near … and die (v. 22). It also compensates them for having no inheritance among the people of Israel (vv. 23–24); that is, unlike other tribes, they had no tribal territory, only 48 cities scattered through the land (35:1–8). "I am your portion and your inheritance among the people of Israel" (18:20; cf. Deut. 10:9). Their tribal "inheritance" is not an allocation of land but their task of serving at the sanctuary for the sake of the people. The Levites do not need an allocation of tribal land because their service in the presence of the Lord, and the tithe of the people of Israel, is their more-than-sufficient inheritance.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 18:25–32 The Tithe of the Tithe. The Levites had to give a tenth of their income to the priests. Indeed, as God's representatives the priests were to receive the best tenth of the tithe (vv. 29–30; cf. Lev. 22:18–25; Mal. 1:6–14; 3:6–10).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 19:1–22 Cleansing from Death. Life and death are the two poles of existence inside and outside the Bible. Holiness, God, and life are associated in Scripture, whereas uncleanness, sin, and death also belong together (see chart). Human corpses caused the gravest kind of pollution under the Mosaic system, affecting all who approached them. Thus those who have contact with the dead must keep away from the sanctuary and undergo cleansing. This rite is designed to provide ritual cleansing for all who have been near or touched corpses. This is especially relevant here in view of the numerous deaths reported in the preceding chapters (14:37; 15:36; 16:32, 35, 49) and those that follow (20:1, 28; 21:6, 35; 25:9; 31:7).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 19:1–10 The Recipe for Producing the Cleansing Ash. a red heifer without defect … on which a yoke has never come (v. 2). Its youth shows its fullness of life, while its redness speaks of blood, the most effective agent of atonement. The redness of cedarwood and scarlet (v. 6) may also be significant. Hyssop (v. 6) is also used for cleansing (Ps. 51:7). The same ingredients are used in the cleansing of a leper (Lev. 14:4). The ashes are described as a sin offering (Num. 19:9), an offering designed to cleanse both the sanctuary and the worshiper (see Leviticus 4). Those engaged in making this cleansing ash paradoxically incur a mild uncleanness themselves (Num. 19:7–8, 10; see also v. 21).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 19:11–22 The Cleansing Procedure. The process of the cleansing ash (see note on vv. 1–10) has two phases: it involves sprinkling water (with some ash in it) on the affected person or tent on the third day after contamination and also on the seventh day. On the seventh day he must also bathe himself and wash his clothes. The sprinkling does not have to be done by a priest, just a clean person (vv. 18–19). Failure to carry out this rite is serious: it defiles the tabernacle, and that person shall be cut off (i.e., die; see notes on 9:6–14; 15:30–31; see also 19:13, 20). Hebrews 9:13–14 notes that the blood of Christ is even more effective in its cleansing power: it will purify the conscience from dead works to serve the living God. These regulations were intended for Israel; now that Christ has come, Christians do not need purification rites such as these.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 20:1–21:35 Marching from Kadesh to the Plains of Moab. After a long time (nearly 40 years) of aimless wandering in the wilderness, Israel is ready to move and enter the Land of Promise. In this section one may see parallels with the earlier journeys from the Red Sea to Sinai and from Sinai to Kadesh (Exodus 13–19; Numbers 11–12). Most of the older generation have died out, and the younger ones are now taking over. Though not perfect, the younger generation are not so harsh in their complaints, nor do they show their fathers' readiness to contend against the leaders of the nation. Now it is those leaders—Moses and Aaron—who make the most serious mistakes.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 20:1 Regrouping at Kadesh. Kadesh was last mentioned in 13:26, when the spies returned. The wilderness of Zin was the area first traversed by the spies (13:21), so it is just north of Kadesh. in the first month. The year is not mentioned, but according to 33:38, Aaron died in the fortieth year after the exodus, and this would fit here. The death of Miriam is a watershed. She was the sister of Moses, the preserver of his life (Ex. 2:4–8), and a prophetess (Ex. 15:20–21). She was clearly the leading woman of Israel (Numbers 12). It has often been noted that the leading woman of the NT was also called Miriam (English, "Mary").

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 20:2–13 Rebellion at Meribah. Complaints about lack of water characterized the journey from the Red Sea to Sinai (Ex. 15:22–27; 17:1–7), and now they occur again. In both situations Moses struck the rock with his staff. This is what he had been told to do in Ex. 17:6, but on this second occasion he had been told to speak to the rock (Num. 20:8). This deviation from carrying out God's instruction led to Moses' being condemned not to bring this assembly into the land (v. 12). Since this seems like a minor error, it has been suggested that it was Moses' anger (see v. 10) to which God took exception. But v. 12 seems to make it clear that it was carelessness in attending to God's command that was the real issue: Because you did not believe in me, to uphold me as holy in the eyes of the people. As the prime mediators of God's laws to Israel, Moses and Aaron had to be exemplary in their obedience. Their failure to follow the divine instruction exactly led to their forfeiting their right to enter Canaan. Some have suggested that another factor was involved: since God had told Moses in the earlier incident, "I will stand before you there on the rock" (Ex. 17:6), Moses should have known that God was present here on the rock as well; therefore Moses' speaking to the rock (Num. 20:8) would be actually speaking to God, and therefore when Moses struck the rock with his staff twice (v. 11), it was a serious manifestation of anger against God, and it is not surprising that God punished Moses severely (cf. note on 1 Cor. 10:3–4). Others hold that the emphasis here is on the difference between what God commanded and what Moses did; usually Moses did just what God commanded him, but not here. It was similar carelessness by Aaron's sons that led to their death in Lev. 10:1–3. The phraseology of Num. 20:12 also echoes that of the spy story, where God complains, "How long will they not believe in me?" (14:11). The people's unbelief led to their exclusion from the land; so did Aaron's and Moses' unbelief. Meribah means "quarreling." In Ex. 17:7, Rephidim was also nicknamed Meribah (see also Ps. 95:8).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 20:14–21 Encounter with Edom. According to Gen. 25:24–26, Edom (Esau) was the twin brother of Jacob (Israel). This made the Edomites the people with whom Israel felt greatest affinity. Yet the history of Israelite/Edomite relations is one of tension, if not bitter hostility, as this story illustrates. Note the form of address: your brother Israel (Num. 20:14).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 20:16 Kadesh, a city on the edge of your territory. In the second millennium B.C., Edom's main settlements were southeast of the Dead Sea, whereas Kadesh-barnea is a long way west of there, in northern Sinai. This suggests either that the Edomites were living west of the Dead Sea, or that another Kadesh is meant instead of Kadesh-barnea.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 20:17–21 The King's Highway is the main trade route from Damascus to Arabia, passing through the Edomite heartlands on the high hills southeast of the Dead Sea. Israel wanted to travel along this road from south to north to bring them to the northern edge of the Dead Sea. Thwarted by the Edomites, Israel turned away, apparently making their way south toward the Gulf of Aqaba (21:4) and then northward through the wilderness east of the King's Highway (see Deut. 2:1–8).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 20:22–29 The Death of Aaron. Aaron's death fulfills the judgment pronounced on him and Moses in v. 12, namely, that they would not live to enter Canaan. Moses prepares to die in 27:12–23, but his death is not reported until Deuteronomy 34.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 20:22–23 The location of Mount Hor is uncertain; it is probably somewhere north of the Gulf of Aqaba, if that is where the border … of Edom ran. "The Mount of the Prophet Aaron" near Petra is the traditional location.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 20:26 gathered to his people. After death, one is reunited with one's deceased relatives, according to OT belief (see note on 2 Sam. 12:23; this expression also occurs in Gen. 25:8, 17; 35:29; 49:33; Num. 20:24; Deut. 32:50).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 20:28 stripped Aaron … and put them on Eleazar his son. The death of Aaron meant that his son must succeed him as high priest. The importance of the high priest as supreme mediator between God and Israel is indicated by his garments: the ritual clothing of Eleazar marks his induction into this highest religious office. Hebrews makes much of the superiority of Christ's high priesthood over Aaron's (see Heb. 4:14–10:18).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:1–3 First Victory over the Canaanites. The spying mission was followed by the death of the spies and an unauthorized attempt to enter Canaan, which ended in Israel's defeat at Hormah (14:36–45). However, the death of Aaron for his unbelief is followed by victory at Hormah. This marks the turning point: from now on, one victory after another will follow until they reach the Jordan, ready to enter the land of Canaan.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:1 Notice that this battle was not an Israelite initiative; rather, Israel responded to an attack by the king of Arad. This point is made about other engagements in the Transjordan (the area east of the Jordan River): Israel responded to threats; it did not provoke the war (see vv. 21–23, 33–35; 25:17–18). Arad and Hormah were in the northern Negeb, but it is uncertain which archaeological sites these places are to be identified with. It is surprising to find this account set in the Negeb, for when last located, Israel was skirting the eastern frontier of Edom (20:21). Thus it is often suggested that the story of the victory at Hormah was placed here out of chronological sequence in order to highlight the change in Israel's fortunes after the death of Aaron. (Some, however, argue that this episode does fit sequentially into the whole narrative.)

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:2–3 devote their cities to destruction (v. 2). Canaanite cities that resist Israel are to be totally destroyed, according to Deut. 20:16–18 (see note). Hormah was the place this policy was first implemented. Its name, "Destruction," commemorates this (Num. 21:3).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:4–9 The Bronze Snake. A new day may have dawned, but old habits are not eradicated. The people once again grumble about their food and are punished: this time by poisonous snakes. As an antidote, Moses makes a bronze snake, which cures anyone who looks at it.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:9 bronze serpent. The Hebrew term translated "bronze" can also mean "copper" (see esv footnote). The area through which the Israelites were traveling had copper mines, and archaeologists have found a 5-inch-long (13 cm) copper snake in a Midianite shrine at Timna, so it seems likely that copper is meant here. The redness of copper suggested atonement (see 19:1–10), so symbolically it was well chosen for this occasion. Jesus compares his own death on the cross to the uplifted serpent (John 3:14–15). By the time of King Hezekiah of Judah (c. 715 B.C.), this copper serpent had become an object of worship among the Israelites and had to be destroyed (2 Kings 18:4).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:10–20 Through Transjordan. Israel's passage east of the Dead Sea, around the territory of Moab and through the land of the Amorites, is summarized here. Many of the places cannot be precisely located, but the general route is clear. The territory of Moab extended from the Zered River to the Arnon River on the eastern side of the Dead Sea. The Zered flows into the Dead Sea at its southern end, and the Arnon enters it about halfway up the eastern side.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:14 The Book of the Wars of the LORD was perhaps a collection of ancient songs like the book of Jashar (see Josh. 10:13; 2 Sam. 1:18). The esv represents the Hebrew text as it exists today for Num. 21:14–15. Because of the difficulty in understanding these verses, some have suggested that the text may have suffered from a copyist's error. Minor changes to the Hebrew text have been proposed, but none of the suggestions can be verified with any degree of certainty.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:16–20 These verses summarize Israel's journey through the territory of the Amorites, who lived north of the Arnon on the eastern side of the Dead Sea, as is explained more fully in vv. 21–30. Verses 16–18 celebrate the finding of an abundant well.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:21–30 Victory over Sihon. The Amorites occupied the Transjordan from the Arnon to the Jabbok (v. 24), so Israel had to pass through their territory, along the King's Highway (v. 22; see 20:17), to reach the northern end of the Dead Sea where they could cross the Jordan. But Sihon, king of the Amorites, came and fought Israel and was defeated (21:24). As a result, this was the first land that the Israelites settled (v. 25). Heshbon’s name is modern Hesban; the absence of archaeological remains at Hesban from the conquest era suggests that the name may have been moved to that location from another site.

The Journey to Canaan

It is difficult to know for certain the exact route they took from Kadesh-barnea to the plains of Moab, but it is possible that they followed a course that went around the lands of Edom and Moab along a desert route, after being refused passage through those lands—or they may have taken another route, through the heart of Edom and Moab along the King’s Highway.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:27–30 This old poem celebrates the capture of Moabite territory by Sihon. It is included in Numbers to show that the Israelites could justifiably displace the Amorites from their land, for the Amorites had acquired it from the Moabites by force. It also helps to explain the king of Moab's anxiety about Israel that drove him to hire Balaam to curse Israel (see 22:4–6, and all of chs. 22–24). Moab had been defeated by Sihon, and Sihon had been defeated by Israel, so what hope has Moab?

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 21:31–35 The Campaign against Og, King of Bashan. This is reported more fully in Deut. 3:1–11. This large area in northern Transjordan was later settled by three tribes (see Numbers 32). These victories scare the Moabites and reassure the Israelites that they will indeed be able to conquer Canaan.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:1–36:13 Israel in the Plains of Moab. These chapters tell of Israel's lengthy encampment in the plains of Moab at the northern end of the Dead Sea. Here they prepared to cross the Jordan and enter Canaan proper. The events here match to some extent those at the other long encampments at Sinai and Kadesh: there is law-giving (chs. 28–36), a major apostasy (ch. 25), a census (ch. 26), and a battle (ch. 31). But these familiar features are preceded and followed by a very positive affirmation of the promise of the land. The prophecies of Balaam reaffirm Israel's destiny in a surprising and emphatic way (chs. 23–24), whereas the last word of God through Moses in 36:9 is: "for each of the tribes … of Israel shall hold on to its own inheritance." In this way the promise made to Abraham that the land of Canaan would be Israel's everlasting possession (Gen. 17:8) is reaffirmed. This theme will be strongly emphasized in the book of Deuteronomy.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:1–24:25 Balak, Balaam, and Israel. This witty and amusing tale makes a serious point, namely, that the one true God is on Israel's side and therefore no human power can prevail against them (23:21–23). Even a pagan seer like Balaam can see this. Because Balaam is said to speak God's word (23:5; 24:2) and sounds pious (22:18, 38; 23:12), it is easy to suppose that the narrator views Balaam as a saint. But it seems more likely that the narrator's remarks about fees indicate that Balaam was indirectly asking for more, and that he was out to obtain as much as he could for his services (22:7, 18; see also 31:16; Deut. 23:4–5). Balaam's request to the second group of messengers to stay here tonight (Num. 22:19) was probably another expression of hoping for more; this account certainly presents Balaam as one "who loved gain from wrongdoing" (cf. 2 Pet. 2:15). It may seem surprising that God can use such a corrupt character to deliver his word, but he can even make a donkey speak (Num. 22:28–30)!

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:1–6 Balak Summons Balaam. Though Israel had not attacked Moab, but skirted their territory, the Moabite king Balak was so scared by their defeat of Sihon and Og that he summoned a man with an international reputation for blessing and cursing to defeat Israel by cursing them (v. 6). Pethor is in northern Syria near the River Euphrates, which is some 400 miles (644 km) by road north of Moab. Amaw is in the same area and is probably mentioned in nonbiblical texts. An eighth-century B.C. inscription found at the site of Deir Alla in Jordan begins with, "Inscription of Balaam the son of Beor [v. 5], the man who was a seer of the gods." This is certainly the same person spoken of in Numbers.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:7–14 Balaam Turns down Balak's First Invitation. Though Balaam says God refused him permission to go, when Balak subsequently increases his offer, it suggests that the original messengers had reported to Balak that it might be a matter of cash (v. 15; cf. note on 22:1–24:25).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:15–21 Balaam Accepts Balak's Second Invitation. The question of money figures much more prominently here (vv. 15–18), but again Balaam awaits God's permission. Happily for Balaam's pocketbook, God agrees, on condition that he only does what I tell you (v. 20).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:19 what more the LORD will say to me. It is hard to think that there was some part of v. 12 that Balaam did not understand. It is likely that he wanted the money and the honor that Balak offered (v. 17; cf. 2 Pet. 2:15).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:22–35 The Donkey and the Angel. This is a hilarious put-down of Balaam's pretensions. The international expert on magic cannot see the angel, but his donkey can. And the angel upbraids him for his temper and cruelty. The whole episode reinforces the message that Balaam must speak only the word that I tell you (v. 35).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:22 But God's anger was kindled, apparently because God knew that Balaam's heart was set on the money, in spite of God's strict instructions.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:34–35 if it is evil in your sight. In view of the overall portrait of Balaam, this apparent submission is probably to be taken as insincere. Despite the clear statement both of God (see v. 12) and of the angel of the Lord in v. 32, Balaam continues to seek a way to get the money and honor that Balak had promised him (v. 17). Even though he had just been told that this was "perverse" (v. 32), he implicitly questions the veracity of this statement by saying "if it is evil" (v. 34). The angel of the LORD represents the manifestation of the presence and authority of the Lord himself (cf. Gen. 16:7; 18:1–2; Ex. 3:1–6).

Israel Defeats Og and Sihon

As with Edom and Moab, the Israelites asked permission to pass through the territory of King Sihon, but he refused. When Sihon attacked the Israelites at Jahaz, the Israelites defeated him and captured his land. Later, Moses dispatched troops to capture Jazer, and then they turned north and were met by King Og's forces. They defeated Og's forces and took control of his land as well.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:36–40 Balak Greets Balaam. Balaam reasserts his intention to say only what God allows him to say (v. 38), despite the fee he has been offered.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:36 The city of Moab (Hb. ‘Ir-Mo’ab) is located on the Arnon, which formed the northern border of Moab (21:13). at the extremity of the border. By meeting him as soon as he entered Moabite territory, Balak showed his respect for Balaam.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:39 The location of Kiriath-huzoth is not known.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:41–24:14 Balaam Blesses Israel Three Times. The first three attempts to persuade Balaam to curse Israel follow a similar pattern, though there are some significant deviations in the third. First, Balak takes Balaam to various high points in order to view Israel: Bamoth-baal (22:41), Pisgah (23:14), and Peor (23:28). Second, seven altars are built and seven bulls and rams are sacrificed at each place (23:1–2, 14, 29–30). Third, Balaam tells Balak to stay by the altars while he goes elsewhere to meet the Lord (23:3–5, 15–16), but on the third occasion the Spirit of God descends on him then and there (24:1–2). Fourth, Balaam pronounces a long, three-part blessing on Israel: the first two address Israel’s wilderness situation, but the third looks forward to an Israelite king (23:7–10, 18–24; 24:3–9). Fifth, Balak reacts angrily to the blessing (23:11, 25; 24:10–11). Sixth, Balaam reasserts that he only has said what the Lord has told him (23:12, 26; 24:12–13). This pattern reinforces the point that Balaam’s words, which are the opposite of what he was hired to say, are inspired by God and therefore must be reliable.

Balaam Blesses Israel

Concerned that the vast number of Israelites would overwhelm his land, King Balak of Moab summoned Balaam to come and curse them. Balaam traveled from the region of the Euphrates River, and Balak went out to meet him at a city on the Arnon River at the border of his land. Balak took Balaam to Bamoth-baal, Pisgah, and Peor to curse the Israelites, but each time Balaam blessed them.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 22:41–23:12 The First Blessing. Balaam's first blessing (23:7–10) reflects on why he has been summoned: to curse … Israel (23:7). In the biblical worldview, a curse can have a real effect on those denounced; it is not merely empty words. Aram is the region of Syria where Balaam came from. It is mentioned often in the OT and other ancient texts.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 23:9 A people dwelling alone comments on Israel's sense of being a chosen people, different from other nations.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 23:10 The dust of Jacob alludes to the fulfillment of the promise to the patriarchs (Gen. 13:16; 28:14). Let my end be like his is a prayer to be like Israel in life and death, which would partly fulfill the promise that in Abraham's descendants all the families of the earth would be blessed (Gen. 12:3; 22:18).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 23:13–30 The Second Blessing. Balaam's second blessing (vv. 18–24) responds to Balak's complaint that Balaam should have cursed, not blessed, the people (v. 11). Balaam observes that God does not change his mind, so the blessing already pronounced cannot be turned into a curse (vv. 19–20). So the nation will be free from disaster (v. 21).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 23:19 God is not man, that he should lie. Balaam, even against his selfish intentions, must speak God's truth (cf. v. 26). Here he is affirming that God's truthfulness in general (cf. Titus 1:2; Heb. 6:18; God does not lie, and he cannot lie, for this would be contrary to his character) implies that his promises to Israel will also come to pass.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 23:21 the shout of a king is among them. The king in view here is God himself, whose festivals are marked by shouts and trumpet blasts (e.g., 29:1).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 23:23 Because God is with Israel, attempts to attack them with magic will fail.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 23:24 lioness. This is a frightening image of Israel's military might and an indirect warning to Balak not to attack them.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:1–14 The Third Blessing. Balaam's third blessing (vv. 3–9) is distinguished from the first two (see note on 22:41–24:14). The mention of the Spirit of God empowering Balaam (24:2) underlines the validity of this blessing, as do the opening lines of the blessing itself: the man whose eye is opened … who hears the words of God, who sees the vision of the Almighty (vv. 3–4).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:5–6 This picture of Israel's future prosperity in Canaan uses imagery drawn from the garden of Eden (see Gen. 2:9–10).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:7 Water shall flow from his buckets. This continues the image of well-watered gardens. his seed shall be in many waters. Though this clause is difficult to interpret, it may refer to the fertility of the land or to the growth of Israel's population. His king shall be higher than Agag seems to be a prediction of Saul's defeat of Agag, the king of Amalek, Israel's oldest enemy (Ex. 17:8–16; 1 Sam. 15:1–9), though it may also refer to an otherwise unknown king.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:8–9 These verses reiterate 23:22, 24 and add a reference to the patriarchal promise (Gen. 12:3; 27:29). Verse 9 of Numbers 24 implies, of course, that Balak, by demanding a curse on Israel, will himself be cursed. This logic inevitably leads to the final blessing on Israel, which ends with an explicit curse on Moab (see vv. 15–19).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:15–19 Balaam's Final Oracle. This oracle begins like the previous one (cf. vv. 3–4 with vv. 15–16). But it rapidly becomes a prophecy about the rise of the Davidic dynasty, which conquered the surrounding peoples, including Moab (2 Sam. 8:2–12).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:17 star … scepter. Symbols of kingship (see Gen. 49:10). Sons of Sheth should probably be identified with nomads who lived in Canaan. The Shutu are mentioned in Egyptian texts from 1900 B.C.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:18 Seir is an alternative name for Edom.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:19 the survivors of cities (or "survivors of Ir"). Ir ("city") could be short for the city of Moab, mentioned in 22:36. In this case this prophecy ends with another prediction of Moab's subjugation by the Davidic dynasty.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:20–25 Three Cryptic Predictions. Balaam unexpectedly adds three short, cryptic oracles against the nations, which function as backhanded encouragement to Israel; her future will be secure through the destruction of her enemies.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:20 The first oracle predicts the defeat of the Amalekites (cf. Ex. 17:8–16; 1 Sam. 15:18; 30:17), probably in the time of David.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:21–22 The second oracle predicts the defeat of the Kenites by Asshur. The Kenites were on good terms with Israel (see Judg. 1:16; 4:11). Asshur is probably a tribe that lived in northern Sinai (Gen. 25:3, 18; 2 Sam. 2:9), not the well-known Assyria. But nothing further is known of their attacking the Kenites.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:23–24 These verses are quite obscure. The passage appears to be a reference to the Philistines (Kittim) arriving on the coasts of Canaan in the twelfth century B.C. They afflicted Asshur and Eber before themselves coming to utter destruction at the hands of David. All these prophecies therefore seem to find their focus in the time of David. Christians have seen them as extending beyond the time of David to the time of the Second David, Jesus Christ, to whom all nations will bow (see Ps. 72:8–11).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 24:25 Then Balaam rose and went back to his place. But this is not the end of the story of Balaam, for it is later discovered that he advised Balak to send women to seduce Israel and lead them away from allegiance to God (31:16; cf. Rev. 2:14). God's judgment came on Balaam in the war against Midian in Num. 31:8.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 25:1–18 Apostasy at Peor. Balaam had delivered his final oracles at Peor (23:28). Now, at the foot of the mountain where Balaam had been prophesying, the Israelites start "whoring with the daughters of Moab" and sacrificing to their gods. The juxtaposition could not be more stark between the most exuberant visions of Israel's future and their present blatant infidelity to the law and the covenant. But this sort of inconsistency was not new. The same thing had happened at Sinai: while Moses was being given instructions on building the tabernacle, the people were making and worshiping the golden calf (Exodus 25–34). And at Kadesh the wonderful prospect of entry to the land was dashed by national unbelief (Numbers 13–14). These earlier episodes are alluded to here in ch. 25, and various details in this apostasy parallel earlier ones (e.g., the plagues, the consecration of the Levites/priest). What is missing here is the threat to destroy the whole nation or delay the entry to Canaan. God's plan is going to be implemented despite Israel's unfaithfulness. As Deut. 9:5 puts it, "Not because of your righteousness … are you going in to possess their land, but because of the wickedness of these nations … that he may confirm the word that the Lord swore to your fathers.”

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 25:1–2 Whore … sacrifices of their gods … ate echoes the terms used in Ex. 34:15–16. The people were breaking the first commandment given after the golden calf apostasy.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 25:1 Shittim was the final encampment before the Israelites crossed the Jordan (see Josh. 2:1). This is possibly Tell el-Hammam, about 10 miles (16 km) east of Jericho. At this site there are impressive remains from the time of David, including massive outer walls, fortress towers, and a large, sloping embankment.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 25:3 Baal was the main Canaanite fertility god, whom Israel was constantly tempted to worship.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 25:4–5 the fierce anger of the Lord. Drastic action (execution) was the only possible way to obliterate the perversion of Baal worship (v. 2) and the accompanying prostitution with the daughters of Moab (v. 1), and so to assuage the Lord’s fierce anger. hang them in the sun. This most likely refers to the ancient Near Eastern practice of impaling dead bodies on a stick after execution for heinous crimes, as a form of disgrace (rather than burying the bodies) and as a public warning to all who would be tempted to engage in such perversion themselves.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 25:6 Publicly flouting this ban on liaisons with foreign women, a chief’s son (v. 14) takes a Midianite princess (v. 15) into a tent near the tabernacle. Moabites and Midianites collaborated in hiring Balaam (22:4, 7), and evidently in the seduction of Israel also.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 25:7–8 Phinehas, the high priest’s son, goes after the chief’s son and the princess (see v. 6) and executes them on the spot, perhaps in the very act of intercourse. This punishment without waiting for a trial corresponds to the Levites’ slaughter of the golden calf worshipers (Ex. 32:25–28). In the case of the Levites, this led to their being set apart as the priestly tribe (Ex. 32:29). For his part, Phinehas was rewarded with heading a permanent priestly dynasty (Num. 25:10–13). Phinehas’s grandfather Aaron had halted a plague by offering incense (16:46–50).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 25:9 Though the plague was stopped by Phinehas's intervention (its start is hinted at in v. 3), still a huge number died. This parallels the plagues at Sinai and Kadesh (Ex. 32:35; Num. 14:37; 16:49).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 25:16–18 The ongoing struggle with Midian is reported in ch. 31 and Judges 6–8.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 26:1–65 The Second Census. The later chapters of Numbers are all concerned with Israel's future life in Canaan. Balaam has predicted a secure and prosperous future there. This census deals with establishing the relative size of the tribes so that they may each be given an appropriately sized holding (vv. 53–54). The first census (ch. 1) was primarily concerned with establishing the number of fighting men, but this issue is mentioned only once in this second census (in 26:2). The issue of territory probably also explains why the second census is so interested in the clans that make up each tribe—which are hardly mentioned in ch. 1. The total number of Israelites has changed very little between the censuses: 603,550 (first) and 601,730 (second). Even though the total may be similar, 26:64–65 stresses that the people being counted are quite different: only Joshua and Caleb figure in both totals. The tribal totals vary somewhat more than the overall total, but the most striking change is the fall in Simeon's total from 59,300 to 22,200 and the increase in Manasseh's from 32,200 to 52,700. The fall in Simeon's numbers could be partly due to the plague caused by Zimri, the Simeonite (25:9, 14), but there is no obvious explanation for the increase in Manasseh. (On interpreting the census numbers, see note on 1:20–46.)

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 26:9–11 These verses recall the events in ch. 16.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 26:11 But the sons of Korah did not die clarifies a possible misreading of 16:32.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 26:19–21 sons of Judah. See Genesis 38.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 26:28–37 Verse 28 reverses the order of Ephraim and Manasseh in 1:32–35. The detail given about Manasseh in 26:28–34 is striking. It is needed to explain the identity of the daughters of Zelophehad (v. 33), who are prominent in chs. 27 and 36. (See also note on 27:1–11.)

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 26:57–62 As in ch. 3, Levites over a month old are counted. Their number has increased from 22,000 to 23,000 (cf. 3:39; 26:62).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 27:1–30:16 Laws for the Land. Chapters 27–30 are united by these laws for the land—particularly the inheritance rules and the celebrations of the festivals.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 27:1–11 The Daughters of Zelophehad. These daughters have already been mentioned (in 26:33) without an obvious reason. Now it becomes clear why they were picked out. Their father had no sons to inherit his land. Under traditional rules, daughters did not inherit from their father. The father would provide a dowry for them when they were married, but his land and other possessions were divided among his sons. If he had no sons, his estate would pass to his nearest male relative. Verses 9–10 of ch. 27 spell out the order of precedence. But the daughters point out that in this situation the land could pass out of Zelophehad's family and his name could be forgotten. To prevent this from happening, the daughters ask that they be allowed to inherit. So a new rule is devised for the case of a man without sons, whereby his daughters will inherit before his brothers or uncles (v. 8).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 27:3–4 He was not … in the company of Korah (v. 3; see ch. 16). It is not clear why Zelophehad's daughters mention this episode. Perhaps those involved in Korah's rebellion lost their right to inherit, or perhaps these daughters just wanted to make clear that their father had not been among those notorious sinners. Nor is it clear why they raised the issue of their inheritance at this stage (27:4). Perhaps the census had led them to think about inheritance, as it was designed to assess the size of the tribes with a view to giving them sufficient land. Maybe the Manassites were already thinking of settling northern Transjordan after defeating Og, king of Bashan, there (21:31–35; 32:33–42). In any case, this request shows the faith of these women: they were sure that the land would be conquered and assigned.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 27:12–23 Joshua Commissioned as Moses' Successor. The sin of Moses and Aaron at Meribah meant they could not enter the land, so a successor to Moses had to be appointed (20:10–13). The Lord designates Joshua as his successor (27:18). Then Joshua stands before Eleazar the high priest and Moses lays his hands on him, publicly declaring Joshua to be his successor (vv. 22–23).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 27:12 Like Aaron, Moses must climb a mountain to die (cf. 20:22–29). From it he will see the promised land. This command is fulfilled in Deuteronomy 34.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 27:20–21 some of your authority. Joshua will not have the direct communication with God that Moses had (12:1–8). Instead he will have to be instructed by Eleazar the high priest, who will use the Urim and Thummim to determine God's will (27:21). The Urim and Thummim were some sort of sacred lot and were part of the high priest's equipment (see Ex. 28:30; Lev. 8:8; cf. note on 1 Sam. 14:41–42).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 28:1–29:40 Calendar of Public Sacrifices. Although Moses' days as mediator of revelation are numbered, he still is God's chosen vessel to pass on law to Israel. First among his final instructions are laws about public sacrifices (cf. other calendars, Ex. 23:10–19; 34:18–26; Leviticus 23; Deut. 16:1–17; cf. also The Hebrew Calendar). These are the sacrifices offered in the tabernacle on a daily basis by the priests on behalf of the nation. Twice a day lambs are offered as a burnt offering (see Leviticus 1): one in the morning and another in the evening. On holy days, extra sacrifices are added. These chapters explain just what is required on which day. They are summarized in the , chart. To see how many sacrifices the priests would have to offer, one must add together all the offerings that are required for each reason. For example, on a Sabbath falling on the first day of a month, the priests would have to offer: two lambs (the daily offering) plus two lambs (the Sabbath offering) plus two bulls, one ram, seven lambs, and one goat (1st-day-of-the-month offering). Most of the sacrifices were burnt offerings (see Leviticus 1), but all the goats are sin offerings (see Leviticus 4). In addition to the animals being sacrificed, a grain offering of flour and oil, and a drink offering of wine had to be made. The size of the grain offering and drink offering varied with the animal being offered. Here the same quantities are prescribed as in Num. 15:4–10: a lamb must be accompanied by about half a gallon (1.9 liters) of flour, a quart (0.95 liters) of oil, and a quart (0.95 liters) of wine. At least double quantities are needed for a bull. These regulations make several points. First, they show the importance of the sacrificial system in Israel (cf. note on 15:1–16). In the limited time before his death, Moses explains what sacrifices must be offered in public worship on behalf of the whole nation. These are over and above the private sacrifices that a layperson may want to bring for personal reasons. Second, they are a strong assurance to Joshua that the nation will indeed inherit the land and become a prosperous agricultural community, able to provide for this lavish and expensive worship. It has been calculated that, over the course of a year, these sacrifices involved a total of 113 bulls, 1,086 lambs, over a ton of flour, and 1,000 bottles of oil and wine! Finally, this list of sacrifices underlines the importance of the sabbatical principle. Every seventh day is a Sabbath and marked by a doubling of the daily sacrifice, while the seventh month is marked by a huge number of extra sacrifices, especially during the Feast of Booths, which is clearly marked out as the biggest celebration of the year.

Occasion	Bulls	Rams	Lambs	Goats
Every day (28:3–8)			2
Sabbath (28:9–10)			2
1st day of month (28:11–15)	2	1	7	1
Unleavened Bread: each day (28:17–25)	2	1	7	1
Pentecost (Feast of Weeks) (28:26–31)	2	1	7	1
1st day of 7th month (29:1–6)	1	1	7	1
Day of Atonement (29:7–11)	1	1	7	1
Feast of Booths (29:12–38):
1st day	13	2	14	1
2nd day	12	2	14	1
3rd day	11	2	14	1
4th day	10	2	14	1
5th day	9	2	14	1
6th day	8	2	14	1
8th day	1	1	7	1

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 28:1–8 The Daily Offering. A lamb was offered in the morning and another in the evening at twilight (v. 4). This pattern of prayer in the morning and in the evening has carried on in Jewish and Christian practice throughout the centuries. Pleasing (or "soothing") aroma is a phrase that regularly describes the effect of sacrifice on God: it soothes his anger at sin (see Gen. 8:21).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 28:9–10 The Sabbath Offerings. The extra burnt offerings on the Sabbath mean that twice as many are offered that day as on other days of the week.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 28:11–15 The New Moon Sacrifices. The first of the month, indicated by the new moon, was an important festival; as many sacrifices were offered then as at Passover or Pentecost (see vv. 16–31). It was an occasion for family worship (1 Sam. 20:5–6; 2 Kings 4:23). It was like the Sabbath, a day when trading stopped (Amos 8:5; see also Col. 2:16).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 28:16–25 The Feast of Unleavened Bread. This immediately followed Passover, which is celebrated on the fourteenth day of the first month (i.e., in late March or April).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 28:17 Unleavened, that is, made without yeast (cf. Ex. 12:15–20).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 28:18 Holy convocation is probably a gathering for worship. Ordinary work, lit., "work of labor." This seems to be a milder ban than the rule for the Sabbath and the Day of Atonement, when absolutely no work was permitted (see Lev. 23:3, 28; Num. 29:7).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 28:19–24 These sacrifices are to be offered on each of the seven days of unleavened bread.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 28:26–31 The Feast of Weeks (Pentecost). This took place seven weeks after Passover. It coincided with the grain festival in Israel, so it is called the day of the firstfruits (see also Lev. 23:15–22). This calendar (Num. 28:1–29:40) requires one more bull and one less ram than the Leviticus instruction, making it like the first of the month and the Feast of Unleavened Bread (Num. 28:25–26).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 29:1–6 The First Day of the Seventh Month. Every new moon was a holy day (28:11–15), but since the seventh month of the year was holy, the first day of that month was especially holy. It was therefore marked by a holy convocation, no ordinary work, the blowing of trumpets, and almost twice as many sacrifices as on other new moon festivals. According to 10:10, blowing the trumpets at the festivals is a plea to God to remember Israel. For observant Jews even today, the days from the first to the tenth of the seventh month (the Day of Atonement) are the holiest in the year, when they search their consciences and confess their sins.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 29:7–11 The Day of Atonement. This day is fully described in Leviticus 16. Here is simply a list of the principal sacrifices and a reminder of the laity's duties: to hold a holy convocation and afflict yourselves (i.e., fast) and do no work.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 29:12–38 The Feast of Booths. This festival involved all the Israelites living in booths (i.e., temporary dwellings) for the week to remind themselves of their lifestyle in the wilderness (see Lev. 23:33–43). Once again, this calendar (Num. 28:1–29:40) focuses on the sacrifices offered by the priests. The large number of sacrifices offered during the eight days highlights its importance. Coming at the end of the agricultural year in October, the feast was an occasion to thank God for the harvest and to pray for plenty of rain in the next year. In Israel, rain is expected only between October and April.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 29:39–40 Clarification and Summary. Verse 39 functions as a footnote to the calendar of public sacrifices (28:1–29:40), clarifying that private sacrifices prompted by vows or other circumstances may be offered whenever they are needed. The calendar of public sacrifices simply lays down the essential offerings that must always be made.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 30:1–16 The Obligations of Vows. In a crisis people often make a vow: "If God delivers me from X, I promise to do Y." There are many examples in the Bible (e.g., Gen. 28:20–22; 1 Sam. 1:11). The danger is that, when the crisis is over, the vow may not be fulfilled. Stern warnings about failing to fulfill a vow are found in Deut. 23:21–23 and Eccles. 5:4–6. These laws are concerned with defining those few circumstances in which a person may be excused from fulfilling a vow. Basically, a man is always obliged to fulfill his vow (Num. 30:2), but a woman may be excused if her father or husband (the leader of the family, who is assumed to have the authority to nullify such a vow) objects to her vow as soon as he hears about it (vv. 5, 8, 12, 14). But if the man, as the head of the family, hears of his daughter's vow or his wife's vow and does not object to it, then it stands and the woman is obliged to fulfill it (vv. 4, 7, 11, 13). The placement of this law here may seem surprising, but there are several reasons why it should come here. Vows are mentioned in 29:39, and they are often involved in the offering of a sacrifice. Also, war often prompts vows, and Israel is about to start its military campaign in Canaan. In addition, the conquest of Canaan depends on God keeping his promised word to Israel, and Israel must be equally strict in carrying out her promises to God.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 30:1–2 Men and Vows. The general principle here is that whether a man makes a vow (to do something positive, like offer a sacrifice) or a pledge (to avoid or abstain from something), he shall not break his word.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 30:3–5 Women and vows. Until married, a woman is under her father's authority. If she makes a vow and her father objects, she will be forgiven for not carrying it out.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 30:6–8 Vows Made by a Woman before Her Marriage. If a woman under a vow gets married, her new husband can cancel her vow.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 30:9 Widows and Divorcees. They are not subject to the authority of a father or a husband, so their vows are binding.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 30:10–16 Vows Made by a Woman after Her Marriage. These may be waived by a husband as soon as he hears of them, but if he says nothing they are binding (v. 14). If he later objects to them, he (and not the woman) is guilty and will suffer the penalty for breaking them.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 31:1–54 Retribution on Midian. The Midianites were a group of nomadic tribes who inhabited the deserts on the fringes of Canaan. They were associated with the Ishmaelites, Amalekites, and Moabites. It is the Moabite Midianites who are the target here. Instigated by Balaam (v. 16), they had seduced the Israelites into worshiping Baal at Peor (ch. 25), so a brief but fierce military campaign is launched against them, for persuading Israelites to worship other gods is a capital offense, according to Deuteronomy 13. As the last campaign headed by Moses (Num. 31:1–2), this one sets precedents for the coming invasion of Canaan.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 31:1–12 The Lord’s Campaign of Vengeance against Midian. This campaign against the Midianites is punishment for their seduction of Israel away from her true Husband, the Lord (cf. 25:1–13).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 31:6 Phinehas was the one who intervened in 25:7 and thereby halted the plague provoked by the worship of Baal. He went as chaplain to the army because his father, the high priest, had to keep away from the pollution caused by death in battle. vessels of the sanctuary. It is not clear exactly what is meant—possibly the priestly garments, the ark, or the Urim and Thummim.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 31:8 The daughter of Zur was killed by Phinehas (25:15).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 31:13–18 Moses’ Anger with His Officers. Normally in wars outside Canaan, the women were spared (Deut. 20:14). But as these women were responsible for seducing the Israelites, they had to be killed. In addition, if every male among the little ones were killed, this would preclude the perpetuation of the Midianite people and eliminate the Midianites as a nation forever. Girls without sexual experience (Num. 31:18), who were not involved with the sin of Baal-peor, were allowed to live and marry Israelite warriors.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 31:19–24 Purification for Uncleanness. Though the war had been ordered by God, and such wars are often called “holy wars,” it nevertheless made the soldiers unclean. (See Introduction to Joshua: The Destruction of the Canaanites.) They had to undergo sprinkling with the water mixture described in ch. 19 and wait outside the camp for a week (Num. 31:19, 24). The spoils also had to be purified (vv. 22–23).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 31:25–47 Dividing the Spoils. The initial division of the spoil of war was that half went to the soldiers and half to those who stayed behind (v. 27; cf. 1 Sam. 30:24). From their share of the spoils the soldiers had to give one-five-hundredth to the priests, and from their share the people had to give one-fiftieth to the Levites. Thus one-tenth of one percent of the total spoil went to the priests and one percent went to the Levites. A similar ratio is decreed in Num. 18:26 for the distribution of the tithes: the Levites give one-tenth of the tithe to the priests.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 31:48–54 Head Count and Atonement. A check on the numbers returning from battle revealed no losses. But conducting a census demands the payment of ransom, normally half a silver shekel per head (Ex. 30:11–16). On this occasion they dedicate all the gold captured from the Midianites, 16,750 gold … shekels (Num. 31:52), on behalf of 12,000 warriors (v. 5). The gold may have been made into vessels for the tabernacle; at any rate it served to remind God of Israel's generosity and to ward off a plague, which a census could provoke (v. 54; cf. 2 Sam. 24:15).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 32:1–42 The Settlement in Transjordan. The conquest of the kings of Transjordan—Sihon and Og—was described in ch. 21. The high hills (2,500 feet [762 m]) of Transjordan made for excellent cattle grazing, so it must have seemed a good idea for some of the Israelites to settle there. The tribes of Reuben and Gad put their bid in first. However, since Transjordan south of the Sea of Galilee is outside the Promised Land, Moses is shocked by the request. He accuses the tribes of making the same mistake as the spies by rejecting God's promises (32:6–15). The tribes of Reuben and Gad insist that they fully support the conquest of Canaan: their fighting men will head the invasion force and not return to Transjordan until Canaan is won (vv. 16–27). Moses accepts this compromise (vv. 28–32). The subsequent settlement of Reuben and Gad is summarized. Part of the tribe of Manasseh also settled in northern Transjordan.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 32:1 The land of Jazer means the land surrounding the village of Jazer. For possible locations of this and other places mentioned, see map. Gilead normally means the hilly district south of the Jabbok River, but in vv. 39–40 it refers to the area north of the Jabbok.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 32:3 These towns were part of Sihon's territory (see 21:2–32) and subsequently were incorporated into the tribal land of Reuben and Gad (32:34–38).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 32:6–15 Moses gives a passionate summary of the spy episode (see chs. 13–14). He sees the reluctance of Reuben and Gad to enter Canaan as worse than that of their parents: you have risen in your fathers' place … to increase still more the fierce anger of the LORD against Israel (32:14). It could provoke God to abandon Israel entirely (v. 15).

Perhaps these fears explain the readiness to punish the Transjordanian tribes in Josh. 22:12.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 32:16–19 The tribes of Reuben and Gad modify their proposal. They will leave their livestock in sheepfolds and their little ones in cities (v. 16; "small villages" must be meant) while their adult fighting men head the army entering Canaan (v. 17). They will not return to Transjordan until the campaign is over (v. 18).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 32:20–32 Moses accepts their offer but warns them that if they fail to live up to their promise, they will be assigned land in Canaan instead (v. 30). They assure him that they will keep their promise (vv. 31–32).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 32:23 Your sin will find you out, that is, "you will suffer for your sin." This statement assumes that God, in his providential knowledge and sovereign oversight of all things, always knows whether his people are faithful and will not endure unfaithfulness among them.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 32:33–42 Following this final summary about the settlement of Reuben and Gad in Transjordan (vv. 33–38), the settlement of part of the tribe of Manasseh in northern Gilead is mentioned (vv. 39–42). It is defined more fully in Josh. 13:29–31. It is unclear why this has not been discussed before. Maybe it was not thought to be as controversial as Reuben and Gad's proposal, because northern Gilead fell within the boundaries of Canaan (see Numbers 34).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 32:34 Dibon and Aroer subsequently belonged to Reuben (Josh. 13:16–17), whereas Heshbon (Num. 32:37) subsequently belonged to Gad (Josh. 21:39).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 33:1–56 Summary of Israel's Journey from Egypt to Canaan. This list of camping places is unexpected at this point in Numbers. What is its function and why is it here? It comes straight after the threat posed by the settlement in Transjordan, when it seemed that some tribes might not have wanted to enter the Promised Land. Further, this is the only part of the book that is explicitly said to be written by Moses: most of the book is said to have been given to Moses by God, but only this is said to have been recorded by him (v. 2). It therefore serves as Moses' testimony of what God has done for Israel during his lifetime. By mentioning Aaron's death in vv. 38–39, Moses indirectly reminds the people that he too will die soon because of his disobedience (see 20:10–13). But this is not to suggest that God has failed his people; rather, this list of places where Israel triumphed over her enemies, was fed and watered, received the law, and was preserved for 40 years in the wilderness is proof that the Lord can bring Israel into Canaan—provided that they do not imitate the unbelief of their forefathers. The list therefore concludes with an urgent plea to make sure that all pagan worship is eliminated from Canaan when they enter it (33:50–56). Seventeen of the names in this list occur only here, and nothing more is known than that Israel camped at those places. Even places that are named elsewhere cannot necessarily be firmly located. Though tradition places Sinai at Jebel Musa in the southern Sinai Peninsula, clues within the narrative may point to a more northerly location. But these geographical uncertainties do not affect the historical and theological point of the passage, namely, God's sovereign and merciful guidance of Israel from Egypt to Canaan. This chapter is a uniform and complete description that reflects the form of a military itinerary. Such military itineraries are widely attested in the countries bordering on the eastern Mediterranean Sea: in ancient Egypt, for example, those of Thutmose III (c. 1479–1425 B.C.), Amenophis II (c. 1427–1401), and Sethos I (c. 1306–1290) provide prime examples of this literary genre.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 33:1–4 These verses summarize Exodus 2–12. On their gods also the LORD executed judgments (Num. 33:4). The defeat of Pharaoh (who was regarded as divine) and the plagues of Egypt demonstrated that the Lord is more powerful than all the gods of Egypt. And as the Lord had treated the Egyptian gods, so Israel was to abolish the worship of rival deities in Canaan (v. 52).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 33:18–29 This section of the wilderness journey is mentioned only here.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 33:30–34 This section of the wilderness journey is also probably mentioned in Deut. 10:6–7, if the similar place names are in fact the same places.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 33:50–56 This stern warning against religious syncretism and cultural assimilation is repeated often in Deuteronomy and Judges. It concludes with a warning that Israel herself will go into exile if she compromises: I will do to you as I thought to do to them (Num. 33:56). Its insistence that the land must be divided among the tribes in proportion to their size and allocated by lot (v. 54) repeats the instruction of 26:53–56. The census had determined the size of the tribes; now the focus is on the land. Its boundaries will be defined in ch. 34, and the chiefs are appointed to oversee the allocation of the land (34:17–29).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 34:1–15 The Boundaries of Canaan. The promise to Abraham was that his descendants would be given "all the land of Canaan" (Gen. 17:8). But hitherto the boundaries of Canaan have never been stated. The definition here, as the Lord gives it, corresponds to that found in Egyptian texts of the fifteenth to thirteenth centuries B.C., which is the era of Moses. In fact, Israel never occupied all this territory—it represents the Promised Land, not the subsequently occupied land, of Israel. The boundary is not always clear. Oversimplifying, Canaan consisted of the land between the Mediterranean and the Jordan plus modern Lebanon and a portion of modern Syria. See map.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 34:1–5 The Southern Border. The southern border of the Promised Land runs from the southern end of the Dead Sea (the Salt Sea), south of Kadesh-barnea, to the Mediterranean coast, west of Gaza (the Brook of Egypt).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 34:6 The Western Border. The western border of the Promised Land is the Mediterranean (the Great Sea).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 34:7–9 The Northern Border. The northern border of the Promised Land runs from the Mediterranean, north of Byblos, to Hazar-enan, perhaps an oasis on the edge of the desert somewhere east of Zedad.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 34:10–15 The Eastern Border. The eastern border of the Promised Land is the hardest to define. From Hazar-enan it apparently runs southward along the edge of the desert before swinging westward to the Sea of Galilee (Sea of Chinnereth). From there it runs south along the Jordan to the Dead Sea.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 34:16–29 The Distributors of the Land. These distributors are the tribal chiefs of the 10 tribes who will settle west of the Jordan. Thus no chiefs of Reuben and Gad are listed, because they are settling in Transjordan. The chiefs are mentioned in the order of the lands they eventually received from south to north. On this principle, Simeon, as the southernmost tribe, ought to precede Judah. But Judah, being the foremost tribe in the book of Numbers (see 2:2–9), actually heads the list. Apart from Caleb, chief of Judah, the other named chiefs are mentioned nowhere else in Scripture; nevertheless, they are important: These are the men whom the LORD commanded to divide the inheritance for the people of Israel in the land of Canaan (34:29).

The Boundaries of the Promised Land

The original boundaries of the Promised Land as defined in Numbers 34 are somewhat different from the boundaries of the land that the Israelites eventually occupied. The original boundaries included the mountainous area north of Sidon and Damascus, but the Israelites never occupied this area during the settlement period. Conversely, the original boundaries did not include land east of the Jordan River, but the Israelites occupied this land after capturing it from Og and Sihon.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 35:1–8 Cities for the Levites. After the censuses for the secular tribes always come the censuses of the Levites (chs. 1–3; 26). The second census was for determining the size of the tribes so as to give them an appropriately sized territory. But the Levites were expressly excluded from inheriting land (26:52–62). Nevertheless, they had to live somewhere and needed land to graze the livestock they received in tithes from the other tribes. Arrangements for the other tribes were discussed in 34:16–29, so now the Levites' needs are broached. Basically the Levites are assigned 48 cities (in reality, little villages) and their immediately surrounding grazing land. The grazing land stretched for a thousand cubits (500 yards [457 m]) from the city wall (35:4). This meant that if the "city" was very small, the grazing lands would stretch two thousand cubits in each direction (v. 5). Commentators assume that in the case of larger settlements, the pasturelands would still stretch 1,000 cubits outward from the city wall, but overall the total size of the settlement would be bigger. Among the Levitical cities are six cities of refuge, whose function is described in vv. 9–34. Forty-two other cities had to be chosen elsewhere, to make a total of 48. Big tribes had to have more Levitical cities, and small tribes had to have fewer cities (v. 8). Joshua 21 reports the fulfillment of this command, but most tribes ended up with four Levitical cities each.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 35:9–34 The Cities of Refuge. The fact that this rule is mentioned at this point is explained by the mention of the cities of refuge in v. 6. The theological reason for the rule is given at the end of the section: "You shall not defile the land in which you live, in the midst of which I dwell" (v. 34). Canaan is the holy land, not because Israel lives there but because God dwells there. He is the preeminently holy one, and sin and death are in absolute opposition to him (see note on 5:1–6:27). If the land is made unclean by violent death, drastic measures have to be taken to make atonement; otherwise the Lord will forsake the land and Israel will be exiled. The cities of refuge and the laws associated with them show how cases of homicide are to be handled, in order to prevent the nation's being forsaken. The Israelite system of justice involved the injured party seeking relief in court from the aggressor. In the case of homicide, the male relative closest to the murder victim was expected to exact retribution. This is the situation envisaged in 35:11–15. In hot anger, the avenger may hunt down the killer and execute him. But the "manslayer" should run to the nearest city of refuge to stand trial "before the congregation," that is, the whole populace (or its representatives). The judges will then decide whether the killer deserves to be executed for his crime. The criteria are set out in vv. 16–24.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 35:9–15 The Selection and Purpose of These Cities. Six cities of refuge were chosen: three … beyond the Jordan (Bezer, Ramoth-gilead, and Golan), and three … in the land of Canaan (Hebron, Shechem, and Kedesh). The law of refuge applied not just to the Israelites but also to the stranger and the sojourner (cf. 9:14; 15:15; 19:10; Lev. 16:29; 17:8, 15; 18:26; 20:2; 24:16).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 35:16–21 Homicide That Warrants the Death Penalty. The common factor that links these examples is planning or premeditation. The killer in these cases had with him a lethal weapon (an iron tool or a stone), or he was known to hate his victim, or he lay in wait for him. These killings all count as murder, and the avenger of blood may execute the killer.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 35:22–29 Homicide That Does Not Deserve Death. These are killings that are not planned but are the result of an accident or impulsive behavior. In these cases the congregation shall rescue the manslayer from the hand of the avenger of blood (v. 25). However, the killer in this case is not deemed totally innocent: he is punished by being confined to one of the cities of refuge. If the avenger of blood finds him outside the boundaries of the city, he may kill him. The manslayer must stay there until the high priest dies.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 35:30–34 Final Points. At least two witnesses are required for a murder conviction (v. 30; see also Deut. 19:15–21). The laws of Ex. 21:28–32 allow for ransom when someone is killed by a bull. In other words, instead of the bull's owner being put to death, the victim's family may accept monetary compensation (ransom) instead. Numbers 35 prohibits such an arrangement in these cases. Ransom is not permitted in the case of murder or less culpable homicide, for as v. 33 puts it, no atonement can be made for the land for the blood that is shed in it, except by the blood of the one who shed it (see also Gen. 9:5–6).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 36:1–13 Zelophehad's Daughters Marry. In 27:1–11 Zelophehad's daughters had requested a change in inheritance rules, where a man had daughters but no sons. In this situation they had asked that daughters be allowed to inherit. This was granted. Now the heads of Zelophehad's clan see a snag: if these daughters marry husbands from another tribe, their land will become the property of that tribe. Then the tribe of Manasseh, to which Zelophehad belonged, will lose that land, because it will not revert to the original tribe in the year of jubilee (36:4). The Jubilee Year occurred every 50 years, and in it, land which had been sold returned to its original owner (Lev. 25:10–28). But this did not apply to land that was transferred through marriage. Normally when men married, there was no transfer of land; it stayed within the man's own tribe. But if a land-owning daughter married, the land would be transferred to her husband's family and tribe. To prevent tribal land being lost through intermarriage, Moses rules that Zelophehad's daughters must marry men from their own tribe (Num. 36:6). In this way tribal lands will be preserved: every one of the people of Israel shall hold on to the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers (v. 7). So important is this principle that it is repeated in v. 9. Happily this all worked out, for the daughters married their cousins (v. 11). This insistence that "every one … shall hold on to" his own inheritance is more than a legal obligation: it is a promise that the tribes will always live in their God-given land. In the words of Gen. 17:8, "I will give to you and to your offspring … all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession." This makes a fitting conclusion to a book whose principal interest is to show how Israel was brought to the verge of the Promised Land. But in another way the book leaves the reader in suspense. The last time the situation of the daughters of Zelophehad was discussed, there immediately followed the command to Moses to go up the mountain to die (Num. 27:12). This command has still not been fulfilled, so Numbers requires a sequel. And that is provided by the book of Deuteronomy.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 36:13 The book closes by reminding the reader that the LORD commanded its content through Moses, i.e., through the preeminent prophet (cf. 12:6–8). Israel's good lies in heeding these instructions. The very last word, in both Hebrew and English, is Jericho, looking forward to the first stage in the conquest (Josh. 2:1).

Introduction to Deuteronomy

Author and Title

The name “Deuteronomy” derives from the Greek for “second law,” an early mistranslation of “copy of this law” in 17:18. In fact, Deuteronomy emphasizes that its laws are not a new law but rather the preaching of the original law given to Israel at Sinai.

Deuteronomy 31:9 records that Moses wrote down “this law,” most likely referring to chapters 1–30. Certainly the bulk of these chapters is the speech of Moses to Israel in the plains of Moab at the end of the 40-year wilderness period and immediately preceding the conquest under Joshua. Later OT and NT statements also assume Mosaic authorship (cf. Josh. 23:6; 1 Kings 2:3; Mal. 4:4; Matt. 19:7–8; Rom. 10:19).

There are two main issues related to the dating of this book. One is the date of the conquest, and hence of Moses’ life. The dating of the conquest is disputed, with the two major positions placing it in the late fifteenth century B.C. (about 1406) or in the thirteenth century (about 1220; for further discussion, see Introduction to the Historical Books).

The second issue is the dating of the book itself. If Moses is the author, then the two issues are more or less the same. However, another widely held view is that the book should be dated long after Moses. Some would date the book to the time of King Josiah in the latter part of the seventh century B.C. (2 Kings 22:8–13). Certainly Josiah’s reforms were advanced by the finding of a book, probably Deuteronomy, in the temple. However, this need not indicate that the book was written then. Others argue that while there may be material in Deuteronomy from the time of Josiah, it was subsequently edited in the exilic period of the sixth century B.C.

The view taken in these notes is that the book substantially dates from Moses himself, in agreement with its internal testimony (cf. Deut. 31:9, 24). The parallels with ancient treaties, especially the Hittite treaties from the second millennium, also point to an early date, thus around the fifteenth or thirteenth century B.C.

Structure

There are a number of similarities between the structure of Deuteronomy and ancient treaty documents. In particular, treaties from the Hittites of the second millennium and treaties from the Assyrians of the eighth century B.C. have clear affinities with the structure of Deuteronomy, though each with differences. Though Deuteronomy does not perfectly match the treaties of the Hittites, it is much closer in structure to them than to the later Assyrian treaties.

Theme

Deuteronomy, the last installment of Moses' biography, contains his last three sermons and two prophetic poems about Israel's future. Reflecting on the nation's past mistakes, he urges the people not to repeat those mistakes when entering the Promised Land. Israel's entry fulfills the promises made to the patriarchs, but if the people fall into idolatry or fail to keep the law, they will be exiled.

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

Deuteronomy is largely a sermon, or set of sermons, preached by Moses to all of Israel shortly before his death and not long before the conquest of the land under the leadership of Joshua. It is a motivational sermon, urging Israel's faithful obedience to the covenant laws of Sinai given 40 years previously.

The circumstance of the sermon carries added significance because of Israel's failure, a generation earlier, to conquer the land starting at Kadesh-barnea on the southern border of Canaan (see 1:19–46). Now that they are back at the eastern border of the Promised Land, Deuteronomy seeks to ensure that such failure does not recur. The rhetorical style of the sermon motivates obedience by constantly reassuring them of God's faithfulness and his power to keep his promise of land. This faithfulness of God remains despite Israel's persistent sin, detailed at length (e.g., 1:19–46; 9:1–29). Thus Deuteronomy demonstrates that God's faithfulness results in mercy to his sinful people, for the sake of his promises to Abraham.

The theology of Deuteronomy is focused on convincing Israel to trust and obey, and to conquer the land. The uniqueness and incomparability of God is clearly argued (e.g., ch. 4). His power over other nations and armies is evident (e.g., 2:1–23). His grace and faithfulness are also stressed, with frequent reminders that the land is sworn by him on oath and is undeserved (9:4–6) and full of good things (e.g., 6:10–12).

The book's emphasis on the continuation of the covenant made at Sinai with the previous generation underscores the abiding significance of God's law for his people (e.g., see 5:1–3). The large central section of Deuteronomy (12:1–26:19) recites the law, consistently urging Israel to keep it. The law is wide-ranging, incorporating all areas of life—economics, family and sexual relationships, religious observance, leadership, justice, guidance, food, property, and warfare. To some extent, the detail of the laws fleshes out the great command of 6:5, that Israel is to love the Lord with all its heart, soul, and strength. Chapters 12–16 show what such total love of God will look like and, in many respects, provide examples of what the Ten Commandments (ch. 5) mean in practice.

Function of Deuteronomy in the Bible

Deuteronomy is an important book. It concludes the Pentateuch (the first five books of the Bible), drawing together many of its key themes. Deuteronomy brings together the patriarchal promises, the history of the exodus and wilderness, and the laws given at Sinai. It also provides a theological foundation for the history books that follow (esp. Joshua–2 Kings). The language of Deuteronomy is often found in these later books, so much so that they are sometimes referred to as the Deuteronomistic History. Deuteronomy is surely the key book undergirding the reforms of Josiah in 2 Kings 23 and is referred to by several of the prophets, especially Jeremiah and Hosea. Deuteronomy is also frequently quoted in the NT, most notably by Jesus in his wilderness temptations and by Paul in his letter to the Romans.

Deuteronomy and Ethics

The ethical application of OT law is a complex issue. There is no one rule that will cover the ethical application of all the laws in Deuteronomy; each law needs to be handled on a case-by-case basis. While many OT laws will not be kept by Christians to the letter, the laws embody important and abiding principles for Christian ethical behavior. Sometimes those OT principles are modified in the NT; often they are reinforced. For instance, the sacrificial system finds its fulfillment in the cross of Christ, but the principles of OT sacrifice are still instructive for Christians.

As a further example, the laws that define sexual morality and the principles underlying those laws are unchanged in the NT. Indeed, Jesus shows the deeper intent of the laws on sexual matters in the Sermon on the Mount (Matt. 5:27–30). However, the laws in Deuteronomy on warfare are not repeated for the NT church because God’s people are no longer a nation and the land to be inherited is now heavenly (1 Pet. 1:4). Nonetheless, the principles of maintaining the holiness of God’s people and of God judging sin remain unchanged.

It is important to recognize that there are different kinds of laws and rules in Deuteronomy. Many of the specific laws, especially those that detail penalties that judges are to impose, do not intend to spell out the ethical ideals for God’s people; their main function is to set the minimum standard of behavior needed to protect Israel's theocracy. The "perfection" (Ps. 19:7) of these laws consists in the way they preserve the social fabric of the theocracy. The ethical ideals for God's people ultimately come from the creation pattern (the "image of God") and from the goal of community holiness. (See the note on Deut. 24:1–4 for an example.) In addition, Deuteronomy constantly addresses the "heart" of its audience: embracing this law, seeking the good of this people, is the right response to God's grace and the embodiment of virtue.

Key Themes

1. The uniqueness of God (4:1–40).
2. The election of Israel (4:5–9; 7:6; 10:14–15; 14:1–2, 21).
3. The goodness of the land that God has promised to give Israel (1:25; 6:10–11; 8:7–13; 11:8–15).
4. The faithfulness of God, despite Israel's sin, to keep his promise of land made originally to Abraham (1:8, 19–46; 7:1–26; 8:1–20; 9:1–10:11).
5. The power of God to defeat the enemies in the land (2:1–3:11; 4:1–40; 7:1–26).
6. Exhortations to Israel to love, serve, fear, and obey God (6:5; 10:12–13; 13:4).
7. Warnings against idolatry and instruction for proper worship of God (4:9–31; 5:6–10; 7:1–5; 8:19–20; 12:1–32; 13:1–18).
8. The comprehensiveness of the laws of God affecting all of life in the land (12:1–27:26).
9. The imminent death of Moses (1:37; 3:26; 4:21; 32:51; 34:1–12).

History of Salvation Summary

Deuteronomy is an important book for understanding not only OT theology but also the theological unity of both Testaments. Deuteronomy recognizes the need for God to act within the heart if Israel is to achieve faithful obedience to God's covenant. The ideal life in the land is for each member of the people, and the body as a whole, to display fervent love to God as their proper response to God's love for them; this is the means by which the rest of the world is to learn of the true God (4:5–8)—the very reason for which Israel exists. Israel's record of failure recounted in Deuteronomy exposes that need. In its projection in 4:29–31 and 30:1–20, Deuteronomy looks forward to the day when God will change Israel's heart. This longing recurs in the OT (e.g., Jer. 31:31–34; Ezek. 36:24–28). It is finally met through the work of Jesus' death and the giving of his Spirit (e.g., Rom. 2:25–29; Col. 2:11–14). (For an explanation of the "History of Salvation," see the Overview of the Bible. See also History of Salvation in the Old Testament: Preparing the Way for Christ.)

Literary Features

The book of Deuteronomy could be subtitled "farewell instructions for a nation." Two major events form the substance of Deuteronomy: (1) the long speech that Moses delivers, effecting a renewal of the covenant, and (2) the passing of the leadership from Moses to Joshua, thereby making the book a succession narrative. The book thus forms the final volume in the biography of Moses, which begins with his birth in Exodus 2 and ends with his death in Deuteronomy 34.

Like the preceding books of the Pentateuch, Deuteronomy mingles narrative with instructions and laws by which God wanted his covenant people to live. Deuteronomy differs from the preceding books because it is cast as a farewell discourse in which Moses is speaking to the nation. The repeated formula in the preceding three books is "the LORD spoke to Moses," but in Deuteronomy the rhetorical stance is that Moses speaks to the people. Because the law-giving is phrased as Moses' words to his nation, the effect is that of an extended exhortation to covenant faithfulness. Moses makes a passionate appeal to his followers as they are about to enter the Promised Land. Deuteronomy contains less narrative material than the three preceding books, but occasionally the speeches of Moses are placed into their narrative context. Late in the book, two formal discourses are cast in poetic form (the "Song of Moses," 31:30–32:47; and Moses' pronouncement of blessing on the nation, 32:48–33:29).

It is likely that the literary form of the suzerainty treaty of the ancient Near East lurks in the background. In a suzerainty treaty, a king or suzerain rehearsed what he had done for his nation and stipulated what he required in response. There is also an incipient note of anticipation, as it is understood that the instructions are given to a people on the verge of setting up a utopia —a good society governed by identifiable institutions and practices—in a promised land.

The Setting of Deuteronomy

c. 1406/1220 B.C.

The book of Deuteronomy recounts Moses' words to the Israelites as they waited on the plains of Moab to enter Canaan. Moses begins by reviewing the events of Israel's journey from Mount Sinai (or Mount Horeb) to the plains of Moab.

Deuteronomy

The Command to Leave Horeb

DEUTERONOMY 1 [†]These are the words that Moses spoke to all Israel beyond the Jordan in the wilderness, in [a]the Arabah opposite [b]Suph, between [c]Paran and Tophel, Laban, Hazeroth, and Dizahab. [2][†]It is eleven days' journey from Horeb by the way of Mount Seir to [d]Kadesh-barnea.
[3][†][e]In the fortieth year, on the first day of the eleventh month, Moses spoke to the people of Israel according to all that the LORD had given him in commandment to them, [4]after [f]he had defeated Sihon the king of the Amorites, who lived in Heshbon, and [g]Og the king of Bashan, who lived in Ashtaroth and in [h]Edrei. [5][†]Beyond the Jordan, [i]in the land of Moab, Moses undertook to explain this law, saying, [6][†]"The LORD our God said to us in Horeb, [j]'You have stayed long enough at this mountain. [7][†]Turn and take your journey, and go to [k]the hill country of the Amorites and to all their neighbors in [a]the Arabah, [l]in the hill country and in the lowland and in the Negeb and [l]by the seacoast, the land of the Canaanites, and Lebanon, as far as the great river, the river Euphrates. [8][†]See, I have set the land before you. Go in and take possession of the land that the LORD swore to your fathers, [m]to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give to them and to their offspring after them.'

Leaders Appointed

[9][†]"At that time [n]I said to you, 'I am not able to bear you by myself.
[10][†]The LORD your God has multiplied you, and behold, [o]you are today as numerous as the stars of heaven. [11][p]May the LORD, the God of your fathers, make you a thousand times as many as you are and bless you, [q]as he has promised you! [12][†][r]How can I bear by myself the weight and burden of you and your strife? [13][†][s]Choose for your tribes wise, understanding, and experienced men, and I will appoint them as your heads.' [14]And you answered me, 'The thing that you have spoken is good for us to do.' [15]So I took the heads of your tribes, wise and experienced men, [t]and set them as heads over you, commanders of thousands, commanders of hundreds, commanders of fifties, commanders of tens, and officers, throughout your tribes. [16][‡]And I charged your judges at that time, ‘Hear the cases between your brothers, and [u]judge righteously between a man and his brother or the alien who is with him. [17][v]You shall not be partial in judgment. You shall hear the small and the great alike. You shall not be intimidated by anyone, for [w]the judgment is God’s. And the case that is too hard for you, you shall [x]bring to me, and I will hear it.’ [18]And I commanded you at that time all the things that you should do.

Israel’s Refusal to Enter the Land

[19][‡]“Then we set out from Horeb and [y]went through all that great and terrifying wilderness that you saw, on the way to the hill country of the Amorites, as the LORD our God commanded us. And [z]we came to Kadesh-barnea. [20][‡]And I said to you, ‘You have come to the hill country of the Amorites, which the LORD our God is giving us. [21]See, the LORD your God has set the land before you. Go up, take possession, as the LORD, the God of your fathers, has told you. [a]Do not fear or be dismayed.’ [22]Then all of you came near me and said, ‘Let us send men before us, that they may explore the land for us and bring us word again of the way by which we must go up and the cities into which we shall come.’ [23][‡]The thing seemed good to me, and [b]I took twelve men from you, one man from each tribe. [24]And [c]they turned and went up into the hill country, and came to the Valley of Eshcol and spied it out. [25]And they took in their hands some of the fruit of the land and brought it down to us, and brought us word again and said, ‘It is a good land that the LORD our God is giving us.’

[26][‡]“Yet you would not go up, but rebelled against the command of the LORD your God. [27][‡]And [d]you murmured in your tents and said, ‘Because the LORD [e]hated us he has brought us out of the land of Egypt, [f]to give us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us. [28]Where are we going up? [g]Our brothers have made our hearts melt, saying, [h]“The people are greater and taller than we. The cities are great and fortified up to heaven. And besides, we have seen [i]the sons of the Anakim there.”’ [29][‡]Then I said to you, 'Do not be in dread or afraid of them. [30]The LORD your God who goes before you [j] will himself fight for you, just as he did for you in Egypt before your eyes, [31]and in the wilderness, where you have seen how the LORD your God [k] carried you, as a man carries his son, all the way that you went until you came to this place.' [32][^][‡]Yet in spite of this word [l] you did not believe the LORD your God, [33] [m] who went before you in the way [n] to seek you out a place to pitch your tents, in fire by night and in the cloud by day, to show you by what way you should go.

[34][‡]"And the LORD heard your words and was angered, and he swore, [35] [o] 'Not one of these men of this evil generation shall see the good land that I swore to give to your fathers, [36] [p] except Caleb the son of Jephunneh. He shall see it, and to him and to his children I will give the land on which he has trodden, because he has wholly followed the LORD!' [37][‡]Even with me [q] the LORD was angry on your account and said, 'You also shall not go in there. [38] [r] Joshua the son of Nun, [r] who stands before you, he shall enter. [s] Encourage him, for he shall cause Israel to inherit it. [39][‡]And as for [t] your little ones, who you said would become a prey, and your children, who today [u] have no knowledge of good or evil, they shall go in there. And to them I will give it, and they shall possess it. [40]But as for you, [v] turn, and journey into the wilderness in the direction of the Red Sea.'

[41]"Then you answered me, [w] 'We have sinned against the LORD. We ourselves will go up and fight, just as the LORD our God commanded us.' And every one of you fastened on his weapons of war and thought it easy to go up into the hill country. [42][‡]And the LORD said to me, [x] 'Say to them, Do not go up or fight, [y] for I am not in your midst, lest you be defeated before your enemies.' [43]So I spoke to you, and you would not listen; but you rebelled against the command of the LORD and [z] presumptuously went up into the hill country. [44] [a] Then the Amorites who lived in that hill country came out against you and chased you [b] as bees do and beat you down in Seir as far as [c] Hormah. [45]And you returned and wept before the LORD, but the LORD did not listen to your voice or give ear to you. [46]So [d] you remained at Kadesh many days, the days that you remained there.

The Wilderness Years

DEUTERONOMY 2 [†]“Then we turned and journeyed into the wilderness in the direction of the Red Sea, [e]as the LORD told me. And for many days we traveled around Mount Seir. [2][†]Then the LORD said to me, [3]‘You have been traveling around this mountain country [f]long enough. Turn northward [4]and command the people, “You are about to pass through the territory of [g]your brothers, the people of Esau, [h]who live in Seir; and [i]they will be afraid of you. So be very careful. [5][†]Do not contend with them, for I will not give you any of their land, no, not so much as for the sole of the foot to tread on, because [h]I have given Mount Seir to Esau as a possession. [6][†][j]You shall purchase food from them with money, that you may eat, and you shall also buy water from them with money, that you may drink. [7]For the LORD your God has blessed you in all the work of your hands. [k]He knows your going through this great wilderness. [l]These forty years the LORD your God has been with you. You have lacked nothing.”’ [8][†]So [m]we went on, away from our brothers, the people of Esau, who live in Seir, away from [n]the Arabah road from [o]Elath and [p]Ezion-geber.

“And we turned and went in the direction of the wilderness of Moab. [9][†]And the LORD said to me, [q]‘Do not harass Moab or contend with them in battle, for I will not give you any of their land for a possession, because I have given [r]Ar to [s]the people of Lot for a possession.’ [10][†]([t]The Emim formerly lived there, [u]a people great and many, and tall [v]as the Anakim. [11]Like the Anakim they are also counted as [w]Rephaim, but the Moabites call them Emim. [12][x]The Horites also lived in Seir formerly, but the people of Esau dispossessed them and destroyed them from before them and settled in their place, [y]as Israel did to the land of their possession, which the LORD gave to them.) [13][†]‘Now rise up and go over [z]the brook Zered.’ So we went over [z]the brook Zered. [14]And the time from our leaving [a]Kadesh-barnea until we crossed [b]the brook Zered was thirty-eight years, [c]until the entire generation, that is, the men of war, had perished from the camp, as the LORD had sworn to them. [15]For indeed the hand of the LORD was against them, to destroy them from the camp, until they had perished.

[16]“So as soon as all the men of war had perished and were dead from among the people, [17]the LORD said to me, [18]‘Today you are to cross the border of Moab at Ar. [19]And when you approach the territory of the people of Ammon, [d]do not harass them or contend with them, for I will not give you any of the land of the people of Ammon as a possession, because I have given it to [e]the sons of Lot for a possession.’ [20][†](It is also counted as a land of [f]Rephaim. Rephaim formerly lived there—but the Ammonites call them Zamzummim— [21][g]a people great and many, and tall as the Anakim; but the LORD destroyed them before the Ammonites, [1] and they dispossessed them and settled in their place, [22]as he did for the people of Esau, who live in Seir, when he destroyed [h]the Horites before them and they dispossessed them and settled in their place even to this day. [23]As for [i]the Avvim, who lived in villages as far as [j]Gaza, [k]the Caphtorim, who came from Caphtor, destroyed them and settled in their place.) [24][^][†]‘Rise up, set out on your journey and [l]go over the Valley of the Arnon. Behold, I have given into your hand Sihon the Amorite, king of [m]Heshbon, and his land. Begin to take possession, and [n]contend with him in battle. [25]This day I will begin to put [o]the dread and fear of you on the peoples who are under the whole heaven, who shall hear the report of you and shall tremble and be in anguish because of you.’

The Defeat of King Sihon

[26][†]“So I sent messengers from the wilderness of [p]Kedemoth to Sihon the king of [m]Heshbon, [q]with words of peace, saying, [27][r]‘Let me pass through your land. I will go only by the road; I will turn aside neither to the right nor to the left. [28][s]You shall sell me food for money, that I may eat, and give me water for money, that I may drink. Only let me pass through on foot, [29][t]as the sons of Esau who live in Seir and the Moabites who live in Ar did for me, until I go over the Jordan into the land that the LORD our God is giving to us.’ [30][†]But [u]Sihon the king of [m]Heshbon would not let us pass by him, for the LORD your God [v]hardened his spirit and made his heart obstinate, that he might give him into your hand, as he is this day. [31]And the LORD said to me, ‘Behold, I have begun to give Sihon and his land over to you. Begin to take possession, that you may occupy his land.’ [32][†]Then [w]Sihon came out against us, he and all his people, to battle at Jahaz. [33]And [x]the LORD our God gave him over to us, and [y]we defeated him and his sons and all his people. 34[†]And we captured all his cities at that time and devoted to destruction [2] every [z] city, men, women, and children. We left no survivors. 35Only the livestock we took as spoil for ourselves, with the plunder of the cities that we captured. 36[†] [a] From Aroer, which is on the edge of the Valley of the Arnon, and from [b] the city that is in the valley, as far as Gilead, there was not a city too high for us. [c] The LORD our God gave all into our hands. 37Only to the land of the sons of Ammon you did not draw near, that is, to all the banks of the river [d] Jabbok and the cities of the hill country, whatever the LORD our God had forbidden us.

The Defeat of King Og

DEUTERONOMY 3 [†]"Then we turned and went up the way to Bashan. And [e] Og the king of Bashan came out against us, he and all his people, to battle at [f] Edrei. 2But the LORD said to me, 'Do not fear him, for I have given him and all his people and his land into your hand. And you shall do to him as you did to [g] Sihon the king of the Amorites, who lived at Heshbon.' 3So the LORD our God gave into our hand Og also, the king of Bashan, and all his people, [h] and we struck him down until he had no survivor left. 4And we took all his cities at that time—there was not a city that we did not take from them—sixty cities, [i] the whole region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Bashan. 5[†]All these were cities fortified with high walls, gates, and bars, besides very many unwalled villages. 6And [j] we devoted them to destruction, [1] as we did to Sihon the king of Heshbon, devoting to destruction every [k] city, men, women, and children. 7But all the livestock and the spoil of the cities we took as our plunder. 8[†]So we took the land at that time out of the hand of the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, from the Valley of the Arnon to Mount Hermon 9(the Sidonians call [l] Hermon [m] Sirion, while the Amorites call it [n] Senir), 10all the cities of the [o] tableland and all Gilead and all Bashan, as far as [p] Salecah and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan. 11[†](For [q] only Og the king of Bashan was left of the remnant of [r] the Rephaim. Behold, his bed was a bed of iron. Is it not in [s] Rabbah of the Ammonites? Nine cubits [2] was its length, and four cubits its breadth, according to the [t] common cubit. [3]) [12][^][†]“When we took possession of this land at that time, I gave to the Reubenites and the Gadites the territory beginning [u] at Aroer, which is on the edge of the Valley of the Arnon, and half the hill country of Gilead with [v] its cities. [13] [w] The rest of Gilead, and all Bashan, the kingdom of Og, that is, [x] all the region of Argob, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh. (All that portion of Bashan is called the land of [r] Rephaim. [14][†] [y] Jair the Manassite took all the region of Argob, that is, Bashan, as far as the border of [z] the Geshurites and the Maacathites, and called the villages [a] after his own name, Havvoth-jair, as it is to this day.) [15][†]To Machir [b] I gave Gilead, [16]and to the Reubenites [c] and the Gadites I gave the territory from Gilead as far as the Valley of the Arnon, with the middle of the valley as a border, as far over as the river Jabbok, [d] the border of the Ammonites; [17][†]the Arabah also, with the Jordan as the border, from [e] Chinnereth as far as [f] the Sea of the Arabah, [g] the Salt Sea, under [h] the slopes of Pisgah on the east.

[18][†]“And I commanded you at that time, saying, ‘The LORD your God has given you this land to possess. [i] All your men of valor shall cross over armed before your brothers, the people of Israel. [19]Only your wives, your little ones, and your livestock [j] (I know that you have much livestock) shall remain in the cities that I have given you, [20][†] [k] until the LORD gives rest to your brothers, as to you, and they also occupy the land that the LORD your God gives them beyond the Jordan. Then each of you may return to his possession which I have given you.’ [21][†]And I commanded [l] Joshua at that time, ‘Your eyes have seen all that the LORD your God has done to these two kings. So will the LORD do to all the kingdoms into which you are crossing. [22]You shall not fear them, for it is [m] the LORD your God who fights for you.’

Moses Forbidden to Enter the Land

[23][†]“And I pleaded with the LORD at that time, saying, [24][†]‘O Lord GOD, you have only begun to show your servant [n] your greatness and your mighty hand. For [o] what god is there in heaven or on earth who can do such works and mighty acts as yours? [25]Please let me go over and see [p] the good land beyond the Jordan, that good hill country and [q] Lebanon.’ [26][^][†]But [r] the LORD was angry with me because of you and would not listen to me.

And the LORD said to me, [s]‘Enough from you; do not speak to me of this matter again. [27][t]Go up to the top of Pisgah and lift up your eyes westward and northward and southward and eastward, and look at it with your eyes, for you shall not go over this Jordan. [28]But [u]charge Joshua, and encourage and strengthen him, for he shall go over at the head of this people, and he shall put them in possession of the land that you shall see.’ [29][†]So we remained in [v]the valley opposite Beth-peor.

Moses Commands Obedience

DEUTERONOMY 4 [†]“And now, O Israel, listen to [w]the statutes and the rules [1] that I am teaching you, and do them, [x]that you may live, and go in and take possession of the land that the LORD, the God of your fathers, is giving you. [2][†][y]You shall not add to the word that I command you, nor take from it, that you may keep the commandments of the LORD your God that I command you. [3][†]Your eyes have seen what the LORD did [z]at Baal-peor, for the LORD your God destroyed from among you all the men who followed the Baal of Peor. [4]But you who held fast to the LORD your God are all alive today. [5]See, I have taught you statutes and rules, as the LORD my God commanded me, that you should do them in the land that you are entering to take possession of it. [6][^][†][a]Keep them and do them, for [b]that will be your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the peoples, who, when they hear all these statutes, will say, ‘Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people.’ [7][†]For [c]what great nation is there that has [d]a god so near to it as the LORD our God is to us, whenever we call upon him? [8]And what great nation is there, that has statutes and rules so [e]righteous as all this law that I set before you today?

[9][†][f]“Only take care, and [g]keep your soul diligently, lest you forget the things that your eyes have seen, and lest they depart from your heart all the days of your life. [h]Make them known to your children and your children’s children— [10]how on [i]the day that you stood before the LORD your God at Horeb, the LORD said to me, [j]‘Gather the people to me, that I may let them hear my words, [k]so that they may learn to fear [l]me all the days that they live on the earth, and that they may teach their children so.’ [11]And [m]you came near and stood at the foot of the mountain, while [n]the mountain burned with fire to the heart of heaven, wrapped in darkness, cloud, and gloom. [12][†]Then [o]the LORD spoke to you out of the midst of the fire. You heard the sound of words, [p]but saw no form; [q]there was only a voice. [13][†] [r]And he declared to you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, that is, [s]the Ten Commandments, [2] [t]and he wrote them on two tablets of stone. [14]And [u]the LORD commanded me at that time to teach you statutes and rules, that you might do them in the land that you are going over to possess.

Idolatry Forbidden

[15][†] [v]“Therefore watch yourselves very carefully. Since [w]you saw no form on the day that the LORD spoke to you at Horeb out of the midst of the fire, [16]beware [x]lest you act corruptly [y]by making a carved image for yourselves, in the form of any figure, [z]the likeness of male or female, [17]the likeness of any animal that is on the earth, the likeness of any winged bird that flies in the air, [18]the likeness of anything that creeps on the ground, the likeness of any fish that is in the water under the earth. [19]And beware lest you raise your eyes to heaven, and when you see [a]the sun and the moon and the stars, [b]all the host of heaven, you be drawn away and bow down to them and serve them, things that the LORD your God has allotted to all the peoples under the whole heaven. [20][†]But the LORD has taken you and [c]brought you out of the iron furnace, out of Egypt, [d]to be a people of his own inheritance, as you are this day. [21][†]Furthermore, [e]the LORD was angry with me because of you, and he swore that I should not cross the Jordan, and that I should not enter the good land that the LORD your God is giving you for an inheritance. [22]For I must die in this land; [f]I must not go over the Jordan. But you shall go over and take possession of [g]that good land. [23][†] [h]Take care, lest you forget the covenant of the LORD your God, which he made with you, and [i]make a carved image, the form of anything that the LORD your God has forbidden you. [24]For [j]the LORD your God is a consuming fire, [k]a jealous God.

so as to provoke him to anger, 26I [n] call heaven and earth to witness against you today, that you will soon utterly perish from the land that you are going over the Jordan to possess. You will not live long in it, but will be utterly destroyed. 27[†]And the LORD [o] will scatter you among the peoples, [p] and you will be left few in number among the nations where the LORD will drive you. 28And [q] there you will serve gods of wood and stone, the work of human hands, [r] that neither see, nor hear, nor eat, nor smell. 29[†] [s] But from there you will seek the LORD your God and you will find him, if you search after him with all your heart and with all your soul. 30When you are in tribulation, and all these things come upon you [t] in the latter days, you will return to the LORD your God and obey his voice. 31[†]For the LORD your God is [u] a merciful God. [v] He will not leave you or destroy you or forget the covenant with your fathers that he swore to them.

The LORD Alone Is God

32[†]"For [w] ask now of the days that are past, which were before you, since the day that God created man on the earth, and ask from one end of heaven to the other, whether such a great thing as this has ever happened or was ever heard of. 33 [x] Did any people ever hear the voice of a god speaking out of the midst of the fire, as you have heard, and still live? 34Or has any god ever attempted to go and take a nation for himself from the midst of another nation, by trials, [y] by signs, by wonders, and [z] by war, [a] by a mighty hand and [b] an outstretched arm, and by great deeds of terror, all of which the LORD your God did for you in Egypt before your eyes? 35[†]To you it was shown, [c] that you might know that the LORD is God; [d] there is no other besides him. 36 [e] Out of heaven he let you hear his voice, that he might discipline you. And on earth he let you see his great fire, and [x] you heard his words out of the midst of the fire. 37[†]And because [f] he loved your fathers and chose their offspring after them [3] and brought you out of Egypt [g] with his own presence, by his great power, 38 [h] driving out before you nations greater and mightier than you, to bring you in, to give you their land for an inheritance, as it is this day, 39know therefore today, and lay it to your heart, that [i] the LORD is God in heaven above and on the earth beneath; [j] there is no other. 40 [k] Therefore you shall keep his statutes and his commandments, which I command you today, [l] that it may go well with you and with your children after you, and that you may prolong your days in the land that the LORD your God is giving you for all time.”

Cities of Refuge

[41][‡]Then Moses [m] set apart three cities in the east beyond the Jordan, [42]that [n] the manslayer might flee there, anyone who kills his neighbor unintentionally, without being at enmity with him in time past; he may flee to one of these cities and save his life: [43] [o] Bezer in the wilderness on the [p] tableland for the Reubenites, Ramoth in Gilead for the Gadites, and Golan in Bashan for the Manassites.

Introduction to the Law

[44][‡]This is the law that Moses set before the people of Israel. [45]These are the testimonies, the statutes, and the rules, which Moses spoke to the people of Israel when they came out of Egypt, [46]beyond the Jordan [q] in the valley opposite Beth-peor, in the land of Sihon the king of the Amorites, who lived at Heshbon, [r] whom Moses and the people of Israel defeated when they came out of Egypt. [47]And they took possession of his land and the land [s] of Og, the king of Bashan, the two kings of the Amorites, who lived to the east beyond the Jordan; [48] [t] from Aroer, which is on the edge of the Valley of the Arnon, as far as Mount [u] Sirion [4] (that is, [v] Hermon), [49]together with all the Arabah on the east side of the Jordan as far as [w] the Sea of the Arabah, under the slopes of Pisgah.

The Ten Commandments

DEUTERONOMY 5 [‡]And Moses summoned all Israel and said to them, “Hear, O Israel, the statutes and the rules that I speak in your hearing today, and you shall learn them and be careful to do them. [2][^] [x] The LORD our God made a covenant with us in Horeb. [3][‡] [y] Not with our fathers did the LORD make this covenant, but with us, who are all of us here alive today. [4]The LORD spoke with you [z] face to face at the mountain, out of the midst of the fire, [5][‡] [a] while I stood between the LORD and you at that time, to declare to you the word of the Lord. For [b] you were afraid because of the fire, and you did not go up into the mountain. He said:

[6][†] [c] “‘I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery.

[7][†]“‘You shall have no other gods before [1] me.

[8][†]“‘You shall not make for yourself a carved image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is on the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth. [9][†]You shall not bow down to them or serve them; for I the Lord your God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers on the children to the third and fourth generation of those who hate me, [10]but showing steadfast love to [d] thousands [2] of those who love me and keep my commandments.

[12][†]“‘Observe the Sabbath day, to keep it holy, as the Lord your God commanded you. [13]Six days you shall labor and do all your work, [14]but [e] the seventh day is a Sabbath to the Lord your God. On it you shall not do any work, you or your son or your daughter or your male servant or your female servant, or your ox or your donkey or any of your livestock, or the sojourner who is within your gates, [f] that your male servant and your female servant may rest as well as you. [15][†] [g] You shall remember that you were a slave [3] in the land of Egypt, and the Lord your God brought you out from there [h] with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm. Therefore the Lord your God commanded you to keep the Sabbath day.

[16][†]“‘Honor your father and your mother, as the Lord your God commanded you, [i] that your days may be long, and that it may go well with you in the land that the Lord your God is giving you.

[18][†] [j] “‘And you shall not commit adultery.

[22][†]“These words the LORD spoke to all your assembly [k]at the mountain out of the midst of the fire, the cloud, and the thick darkness, with a loud voice; and he added no more. And [l]he wrote them on two tablets of stone and gave them to me. [23]And [m]as soon as you heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, while the mountain was burning with fire, you came near to me, all the heads of your tribes, and your elders. [24]And you said, ‘Behold, the LORD our God has shown us his glory and [n]greatness, and [o]we have heard his voice out of the midst of the fire. This day we have seen God speak with man, and man [p]still live. [25]Now therefore why should we die? For this great fire will consume us. [q]If we hear the voice of the LORD our God any more, we shall die. [26][p]For who is there of all flesh, that has heard the voice of the living God speaking out of the midst of fire as we have, and has still lived? [27][†]Go near and hear all that the LORD our God will say, and [r]speak to us all that the LORD our God will speak to you, and we will hear and do it.’

[28]“And the LORD heard your words, when you spoke to me. And the LORD said to me, ‘I have heard the words of this people, which they have spoken to you. [s]They are right in all that they have spoken. [29][†][t]Oh that they had such a heart as this always, to fear me and to keep all my commandments, [u]that it might go well with them and with their descendants [5] forever! [30]Go and say to them, “Return to your tents.” [31]But you, stand here by me, and [v]I will tell you the whole commandment and the statutes and the rules that you shall teach them, that they may do them in the land that I am giving them to possess.’ [32][†]You shall be careful therefore to do as the LORD your God has commanded you. [w]You shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left. [33][x]You shall walk in all the way that the LORD your God has commanded you, that you may live, and [y]that it may go well with you, and that you may live long in the land that you shall possess.

The Greatest Commandment

DEUTERONOMY 6 [†]“Now this is [z]the commandment—the statutes and the rules [1]—that the LORD your God commanded me to teach you, that you may do them in the land to which you are going over, to possess it, [2]that

[a] you may fear the Lord your God, you and your son and your son’s son, by keeping all his statutes and his commandments, which I command you, all the days of your life, and [b] that your days may be long. [3][†]Hear therefore, O Israel, and be careful to do them, that it may go well with you, and that you may multiply greatly, [c] as the Lord, the God of your fathers, has promised you, in a land flowing with milk and honey.

[4][†]“Hear, O Israel: [d] The Lord our God, the Lord is one. [2] [5][^][†]You [e] shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your might. [6][†]And [f] these words that I command you today shall be on your heart. [7][†][g] You shall teach them diligently to your children, and shall talk of them when you sit in your house, and when you walk by the way, and when you lie down, and when you rise. [8] [h] You shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as frontlets between your eyes. [9] [i] You shall write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates.

[10][†]“And when the Lord your God brings you into the land that he swore to your fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give you—with great and good cities [j] that you did not build, [11]and houses full of all good things that you did not fill, and cisterns that you did not dig, and vineyards and olive trees that you did not plant—and when you eat and are full, [12] [k] then take care lest you forget the Lord, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery. [13][†]It is [l] the Lord your God you shall fear. Him you shall serve and [m] by his name you shall swear. [14][^][†]You shall not [n] go after other gods, [o] the gods of the peoples who are around you— [15]for [p] the Lord your God in your midst [q] is a jealous God —[r] lest the anger of the Lord your God be kindled against you, and he destroy you from off the face of the earth.

[16][†][s] “You shall not put the Lord your God to the test, [t] as you tested him at Massah. [17]You shall [u] diligently keep the commandments of the Lord your God, and his testimonies and his statutes, which he has commanded you. [18] [v] And you shall do what is right and good in the sight of the Lord, that it may go well with you, and that you may go in and take possession of the good land that the Lord swore to give to your fathers [19] [w] by thrusting out all your enemies from before you, as the Lord has promised.

[20][†] [x]“When your son asks you in time to come, ‘What is the meaning of the testimonies and the statutes and the rules that the LORD our God has commanded you?’ [21]then you shall say to your son, [y]‘We were Pharaoh’s slaves in Egypt. And the LORD brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand. [22]And [z]the LORD showed signs and wonders, great and grievous, against Egypt and against Pharaoh and all his household, before our eyes. [23]And he brought us out from there, that he might bring us in and give us the land that he swore to give to our fathers. [24]And the LORD commanded us to do all these statutes, [a]to fear the LORD our God, [b]for our good always, that [c]he might preserve us alive, as we are this day. [25][†]And [d]it will be righteousness for us, if we are careful to do all this commandment before the LORD our God, as he has commanded us.’

A Chosen People

DEUTERONOMY 7 [†]“When the [e]LORD your God brings you into the land that you are entering to take possession of it, and clears away many nations before you, [f]the Hittites, the Girgashites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, seven nations [g]more numerous and mightier than you, [2][†] [h]and when the LORD your God gives them over to you, and you defeat them, then you must [i]devote them to complete destruction. [1] [j]You shall make no covenant with them and show no mercy to them. [3][†] [k]You shall not intermarry with them, giving your daughters to their sons or taking their daughters for your sons, [4]for they would turn away your sons from following me, to serve other gods. [l]Then the anger of the LORD would be kindled against you, and he would destroy you [m]quickly. [5][†]But thus shall you deal with them: [n]you shall break down their altars and dash in pieces their [n]pillars and chop down their [n]Asherim and [o]burn their carved images with fire.

[6][†]“For [p]you are a people holy to the LORD your God. The LORD your God has chosen you to be [p]a people for his treasured possession, out of all the peoples who are on the face of the earth. [7][†]It was not because you were more in number than any other people that the LORD set his love on you and chose you, for you were the fewest of all peoples, [8]but [q]it is because the LORD loves you and is keeping [r]the oath that he swore to your fathers, that the LORD has brought you out with a mighty hand and redeemed you from the house of slavery, from the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt. [9][†]Know therefore that the LORD your God is God, [s] the faithful God [t] who keeps covenant and steadfast love with those who love him and keep his commandments, to a thousand generations, [10]and [u] repays to their face those who hate him, by destroying them. [v] He will not be slack with one who hates him. He will repay him to his face. [11] [w] You shall therefore be careful to do the commandment and the statutes and the rules that I command you today.

[12][†] [x] “And because you listen to these rules and keep and do them, the LORD your God will keep with you [y] the covenant and the steadfast love that he swore to your fathers. [13][†]He will [z] love you, bless you, and multiply you. [a] He will also bless the fruit of your womb and the fruit of your ground, your grain and your wine and your oil, the increase of your herds and the young of your flock, in the land that he swore to your fathers to give you. [14]You shall be blessed above all peoples. [b] There shall not be male or female barren among you or among your livestock. [15]And the LORD will take away from you all sickness, and none of the evil [c] diseases of Egypt, which you knew, will he inflict on you, but he will lay them on all who hate you. [16][†]And [d] you shall consume all the peoples that the LORD your God will give over to you. [e] Your eye shall not pity them, neither shall you serve their gods, for that would be [f] a snare to you.

[17][†]“If you say in your heart, ‘These nations are greater than I. How can I dispossess them?’ [18] [g] you shall not be afraid of them but you shall [h] remember what the LORD your God did to Pharaoh and to all Egypt, [19]the great trials that your eyes saw, [i] the signs, the wonders, the mighty hand, and the outstretched arm, by which the LORD your God brought you out. So will the LORD your God do to all the peoples of whom you are afraid. [20][†]Moreover, [j] the LORD your God will send hornets among them, until those who are left and hide themselves from you are destroyed. [21]You shall not be in dread of them, for the LORD your God is [k] in your midst, [l] a great and awesome God. [22][†] [m] The LORD your God will clear away these nations before you little by little. You may not make an end of them at once, [2] lest the wild beasts grow too numerous for you. [23] [n] But the LORD your God will give them over to you and throw them into great confusion, until they are destroyed. [24]And [o]he will give their kings into your hand, and you shall [p]make their name perish from under heaven. [q]No one shall be able to stand against you until you have destroyed them. [25][†]The carved images of their gods [r]you shall burn with fire. You [s]shall not covet the silver or the gold that is on them or take it for yourselves, lest you be [t]ensnared by it, for it is an abomination to the LORD your God. [26]And you shall not bring an abominable thing into your house and become devoted to destruction [3] like it. You shall utterly detest and abhor it, [u]for it is devoted to destruction.

Remember the LORD Your God

DEUTERONOMY 8 [†]"The whole commandment that I command you today [v]you shall be careful to do, that you may live and multiply, and go in and possess the land that the LORD swore to give to your fathers. [2][†]And you shall remember the whole way that the LORD your God has led you [w]these forty years in the wilderness, that he might humble you, [x]testing you [y]to know what was in your heart, [z]whether you would keep his commandments or not. [3]And he humbled you and [a]let you hunger and [b]fed you with manna, which you did not know, nor did your fathers know, that he might make you know that [c]man does not live by bread alone, but man lives by every word [1] that comes from the mouth of the LORD. [4][†] [d]Your clothing did not wear out on you and your foot did not swell these forty years. [5][†]Know then in your heart that, [e]as a man disciplines his son, the LORD your God disciplines you. [6]So you shall keep the commandments of the LORD your God by walking in his ways and by fearing him. [7][†]For the LORD your God is bringing you into a good land, [f]a land of brooks of water, of fountains and springs, flowing out in the valleys and hills, [8]a land of wheat and barley, [g]of vines and fig trees and pomegranates, a land of olive trees and honey, [9]a land in which you will eat bread without scarcity, in which you will lack nothing, a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills you can dig copper. [10][†]And you shall eat and be full, and you shall bless the LORD your God for the good land he has given you.

[11][†]“Take care lest you forget the Lord your God by not keeping his commandments and his rules and his statutes, which I command you today, [12] [h] lest, when you have eaten and are full and have built good houses and live in them, [13]and when your herds and flocks multiply and your silver and gold is multiplied and all that you have is multiplied, [14][†] [i] then your heart be lifted up, and you [j] forget the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery, [15][†]who [k] led you through the great and terrifying wilderness, [l] with its fiery serpents and scorpions [m] and thirsty ground where there was no water, [n] who brought you water out of the flinty rock, [16]who fed you in the wilderness with [o] manna that your fathers did not know, that he might humble you and test you, [p] to do you good in the end. [17][†]Beware [q] lest you say in your heart, ‘My power and the might of my hand have gotten me this wealth.’ [18][^][†]You shall remember the Lord your God, for [r] it is he who gives you power to get wealth, [s] that he may confirm his covenant that he swore to your fathers, as it is this day. [19][†]And if you forget the Lord your God and go after other gods and serve them and worship them, [t] I solemnly warn you today that you shall surely perish. [20]Like the nations that the Lord makes to perish before you, [u] so shall you perish, because you would not obey the voice of the Lord your God.

Not Because of Righteousness

DEUTERONOMY 9 [†]“Hear, O Israel: you are [v] to cross over the Jordan today, to go in to dispossess nations [w] greater and mightier than you, cities great and fortified up to heaven, [2][†]a people great and tall, [x] the sons of the Anakim, [y] whom you know, and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who can stand before the sons of Anak?’ [3][†]Know therefore today that he who [z] goes over before you [a] as a consuming fire is the Lord your God. He will destroy them and subdue them before you. [b] So you shall drive them out and make them perish quickly, as the Lord has promised you.

[4][†] [c] “Do not say in your heart, after the Lord your God has thrust them out before you, ‘It is because of my righteousness that the Lord has brought me in to possess this land,’ whereas it is [d] because of the wickedness of these nations that the LORD is driving them out before you. [5] [e] Not because of your righteousness or the uprightness of your heart are you going in to possess their land, but because of the wickedness of these nations the LORD your God is driving them out from before you, and that he may confirm [f] the word that the LORD swore to your fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

[6][†]“Know, therefore, that the LORD your God is not giving you this good land to possess because of your righteousness, for you are [g] a stubborn people. [7][†]Remember and do not forget how you provoked the LORD your God to wrath in the wilderness. [h] From the day you came out of the land of Egypt until you came to this place, you have been rebellious against the LORD. [8][†]Even [i] at Horeb you provoked the LORD to wrath, and the LORD was so angry with you that he was ready to destroy you. [9][†][j] When I went up the mountain to receive the tablets of stone, the tablets of the covenant that the LORD made with you, I remained on the mountain [k] forty days and forty nights. I neither ate bread nor drank water. [10]And [l] the LORD gave me the two tablets of stone written with the finger of God, and on them were all the words that the LORD had spoken with you on the mountain out of the midst of the fire [m] on the day of the assembly. [11]And at the end of forty days and forty nights the LORD gave me the two tablets of stone, the tablets of the covenant. [12][†]Then the LORD said to me, [n] ‘Arise, go down quickly from here, for your people whom you have brought from Egypt have acted corruptly. They have [o] turned aside quickly out of the way that I commanded them; they have made themselves a metal image.’

The Golden Calf

[13][†][p]“Furthermore, the LORD said to me, ‘I have seen this people, and behold, it is [g] a stubborn people. [14] [q] Let me alone, that I may destroy them and [r] blot out their name from under heaven. And [s] I will make of you a nation mightier and greater than they.’ [15] [t] So I turned and came down from the mountain, and [u] the mountain was burning with fire. And the two tablets of the covenant were in my two hands. [16]And [v] I looked, and behold, you had sinned against the LORD your God. You had made yourselves a golden [1] calf. [w] You had turned aside quickly from the way that the LORD had commanded you. [17][†]So I took hold of the two tablets and threw them out of my two hands and broke them before your eyes. [18][†]Then I [x] lay prostrate before the LORD [y] as before, forty days and forty nights. I neither ate bread nor drank water, because of all the sin that you had committed, [z] in doing what was evil in the sight of the LORD to provoke him to anger. [19][^]For I was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure that the LORD bore against you, so that he was ready to destroy you. [a] But the LORD listened to me that time also. [20]And the LORD was so angry with Aaron that he was ready to destroy him. And I prayed for Aaron also at the same time. [21][†]Then [b] I took the sinful thing, the calf that you had made, and burned it with fire and crushed it, grinding it very small, until it was as fine as dust. And I threw the dust of it into the brook that ran down from the mountain.

[22][†]“At [c] Taberah also, and at [d] Massah and at [e] Kibroth-hattaavah you provoked the LORD to wrath. [23]And [f] when the LORD sent you from Kadesh-barnea, saying, ‘Go up and take possession of the land that I have given you,’ then you rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God and [g] did not believe him or obey his voice. [24] [h] You have been rebellious against the LORD from the day that I knew you.

[25][†] [x] “So I lay prostrate before the LORD for these forty days and forty nights, because the LORD had said he would destroy you. [26][†] [i] And I prayed to the LORD, ‘O Lord GOD, do not destroy your people and your heritage, whom you have redeemed through your greatness, whom you have brought out of Egypt with a mighty hand. [27][†]Remember your servants, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Do not regard the stubbornness of this people, or their wickedness or their sin, [28]lest the land from which you brought us say, [j] “Because the LORD was not able to bring them into the land that he promised them, and because he hated them, he has brought them out to put them to death in the wilderness.” [29] [k] For they are your people and your heritage, whom you brought out by your great power and by your outstretched arm.’

New Tablets of Stone

DEUTERONOMY 10 [†]“At that time the LORD said to me, [l] ‘Cut for yourself two tablets of stone like the first, and come up to me on the mountain and

[m] make an ark of wood. 2And I will write on the tablets the words that were on the first tablets that you broke, and [n] you shall put them in the ark.’ 3So I made an ark [o] of acacia wood, and [p] cut two tablets of stone like the first, and went up the mountain with the two tablets in my hand. 4And [q] he wrote on the tablets, in the same writing as before, the Ten Commandments [1] [r] that the Lord had spoken to you on the mountain out of the midst of the fire [s] on the day of the assembly. And the Lord gave them to me. 5[†]Then I turned and [t] came down from the mountain and [u] put the tablets in the ark that I had made. [v] And there they are, as the Lord commanded me.”

6[†](The people of Israel [w] journeyed from Beeroth Bene-jaakan [2] to Moserah. [x] There Aaron died, and there he was buried. And his son Eleazar ministered as priest in his place. 7 [y] From there they journeyed to Gudgodah, and from Gudgodah to Jotbathah, a land with brooks of water. 8At that time [z] the Lord set apart the tribe of Levi [a] to carry the ark of the covenant of the Lord [b] to stand before the Lord to minister to him and [c] to bless in his name, to this day. 9 [d] Therefore Levi has no portion or inheritance with his brothers. The Lord is his inheritance, as the Lord your God said to him.)

10 [e] “I myself stayed on the mountain, as at the first time, forty days and forty nights, [f] and the Lord listened to me that time also. The Lord was unwilling to destroy you. 11[†] [g] And the Lord said to me, ‘Arise, go on your journey at the head of the people, so that they may go in and possess the land, which I swore to their fathers to give them.’

Circumcise Your Heart

12[†]“And now, Israel, [h] what does the Lord your God require of you, but [i] to fear the Lord your God, [j] to walk in all his ways, [k] to love him, to serve the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul, 13and [l] to keep the commandments and statutes of the Lord, which I am commanding you today [m] for your good? 14[†]Behold, [n] to the Lord your God belong heaven and the heaven of heavens, [o] the earth with all that is in it. 15Yet [p] the Lord set his heart in love on your fathers and chose their offspring after them, you above all peoples, as you are this day. 16[^][†]Circumcise therefore [q] the foreskin of your heart, and be no longer [r] stubborn. 17[†]For the LORD your God is [s] God of gods and [t] Lord of lords, [u] the great, the mighty, and the awesome God, who is [v] not partial and takes no bribe. [18][‡] [w] He executes justice for the fatherless and the widow, and loves the sojourner, giving him food and clothing. [19] [x] Love the sojourner, therefore, for you were sojourners in the land of Egypt. [20][‡] [i] You shall fear the LORD your God. You shall serve him and [y] hold fast to him, and [z] by his name you shall swear. [21] [a] He is your praise. He is your God, [b] who has done for you these great and terrifying things that your eyes have seen. [22][‡]Your fathers went down to Egypt [c] seventy persons, and now the LORD your God has made you [d] as numerous as the stars of heaven.

Love and Serve the LORD

DEUTERONOMY 11 [‡] [e] "You shall therefore love the LORD your God and [f] keep his charge, his statutes, his rules, and his commandments always. [2][‡]And consider today (since I am not speaking to [g] your children who have not known or seen it), consider the discipline [1] of the LORD your God, [h] his greatness, [i] his mighty hand and his outstretched arm, [3] [j] his signs and his deeds that he did in Egypt to Pharaoh the king of Egypt and to all his land, [4]and what he did to the army of Egypt, to their horses and to their chariots, [k] how he made the water of the Red Sea flow over them as they pursued after you, and how the LORD has destroyed them to this day, [5]and [l] what he did to you in the wilderness, until you came to this place, [6][‡]and [m] what he did to Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, son of Reuben, how the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them up, with their households, their tents, and every living thing that followed them, in the midst of all Israel. [7][‡]For your eyes have seen [n] all the great work of the LORD that he did.

[8]"You shall therefore keep the whole commandment that I command you today, that you may [o] be strong, and go in and take possession of the land that you are going over to possess, [9][^][‡]and [p] that you may live long in the land [q] that the LORD swore to your fathers to give to them and to their offspring, [r] a land flowing with milk and honey. [10][‡]For the land that you are entering to take possession of it is not like the land of Egypt, from which you have come, where you sowed your seed and irrigated it, [2] like a garden of vegetables. 11[†] [s] But the land that you are going over to possess is a land of hills and valleys, which drinks water by the rain from heaven, 12a land that the LORD your God cares for. [t] The eyes of the LORD your God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year to the end of the year.

13“And if you will indeed obey my commandments that I command you today, [u] to love the LORD your God, and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul, 14 [v] he [3] will give the rain for your land in its season, [w] the early rain and the later rain, that you may gather in your grain and your wine and your oil. 15 [x] And he will give grass in your fields for your livestock, and [y] you shall eat and be full. 16[†]Take care [z] lest your heart be deceived, and you turn aside and [a] serve other gods and worship them; 17then [b] the anger of the LORD will be kindled against you, and he [c] will shut up the heavens, so that there will be no rain, and the land will yield no fruit, and [d] you will perish quickly off the good land that the LORD is giving you.

18[†] [e] “You shall therefore lay up these words of mine in your heart and in your soul, and [f] you shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as frontlets between your eyes. 19You shall teach them to your children, talking of them when you are sitting in your house, and when you are walking by the way, and when you lie down, and when you rise. 20 [g] You shall write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates, 21 [h] that your days and the days of your children may be multiplied in the land that the LORD swore to your fathers to give them, [i] as long as the heavens are above the earth. 22For if [j] you will be careful to do all this commandment that I command you to do, loving the LORD your God, walking in all his ways, and [k] holding fast to him, 23then the LORD [l] will drive out all these nations before you, and you will [m] dispossess nations greater and mightier than you. 24[†] [n] Every place on which the sole of your foot treads shall be yours. Your territory shall be [o] from the wilderness to [4] the Lebanon and from the River, the river Euphrates, to the western sea. 25 [p] No one shall be able to stand against you. The LORD your God will lay [q] the fear of you and the dread of you on all the land that you shall tread, [r] as he promised you.

26[†] [s] “See, I am setting before you today a blessing and a curse: 27 [t] the blessing, if you obey the commandments of the LORD your God, which I command you today, 28[†]and [u] the curse, if you do not obey the commandments of the LORD your God, but turn aside from the way that I am commanding you today, [v] to go after other gods that you have not known. 29[†]And when the LORD your God brings you into the land that you are entering to take possession of it, you shall set [w] the blessing on Mount Gerizim and the curse on Mount Ebal. 30[†]Are they not beyond the Jordan, west of the road, toward the going down of the sun, in the land of the Canaanites who live in the [x] Arabah, opposite Gilgal, beside [y] the oak [5] of Moreh? 31[†]For you are [z] to cross over the Jordan to go in to take possession of the land that the LORD your God is giving you. And when you possess it and live in it, 32you shall be careful [a] to do all the statutes and the rules that I am setting before you today.

The LORD’s Chosen Place of Worship

DEUTERONOMY 12 [†] [b] “These are the statutes and rules that you shall be careful to do in the land that the LORD, the God of your fathers, has given you to possess, [c] all the days that you live on the earth. 2[†] [d] You shall surely destroy all the places where the nations whom you shall dispossess served their gods, [e] on the high mountains and on the hills and under every green tree. 3You shall tear down their altars and dash in pieces [f] their pillars and burn their [g] Asherim with fire. You shall chop down the carved images of their gods and [h] destroy their name out of that place. 4[†] [i] You shall not worship the LORD your God in that way. 5[^][†]But you shall seek [j] the place that the LORD your God will choose out of all your tribes to put his name and make his habitation [1] there. There you shall go, 6and there you shall bring your burnt offerings and your sacrifices, [k] your tithes and the contribution that you present, your vow offerings, your freewill offerings, and the [l] firstborn of your herd and of your flock. 7[†]And [m] there you shall eat before the LORD your God, and [n] you shall rejoice, you and your households, in all that you undertake, in which the LORD your God has blessed you.

[8][†]“You shall not do according to all that we are doing here today, [o] everyone doing whatever is right in his own eyes, [9]for you have not as yet come to [p] the rest and to the inheritance that the LORD your God is giving you. [10]But when [q] you go over the Jordan and live in the land that the LORD your God is giving you to inherit, [r] and when he gives you rest from all your enemies around, so that you live in safety, [11]then to [j] the place that the LORD your God will choose, to make his name dwell there, there you shall bring all that I command you: your burnt offerings and your sacrifices, [k] your tithes and the contribution that you present, and all your finest vow offerings that you vow to the LORD. [12][†]And [n] you shall rejoice before the LORD your God, you and your sons and your daughters, your male servants and your female servants, and the Levite that is within your towns, since [s] he has no portion or inheritance with you. [13][†] [t] Take care that you do not offer your burnt offerings at any place that you see, [14]but at [j] the place that the LORD will choose in one of your tribes, there you shall offer your burnt offerings, and there you shall do all that I am commanding you.

[15][†]“However, you may slaughter and eat meat within any of your towns, as much as you desire, [u] according to the blessing of the LORD your God that he has given you. [v] The unclean and the clean may eat of it, as of the gazelle and as of the deer. [16][†] [w] Only you shall not eat the blood; you shall pour it out on the earth like water. [17][†]You may not eat within your towns [k] the tithe of your grain or of your wine or of your oil, or the firstborn of your herd or of your flock, or any of your vow offerings that you vow, or your freewill offerings or the contribution that you present, [18]but [m] you shall eat them before the LORD your God in [j] the place that the LORD your God will choose, you and your son and your daughter, your male servant and your female servant, and the Levite who is within your towns. And [n] you shall rejoice before the LORD your God in all that you undertake. [19] [x] Take care that you do not neglect the Levite as long as you live in your land.

[20][†]“When the LORD your God [y] enlarges your territory, [z] as he has promised you, and you say, ‘I will eat meat,’ because you crave meat, you may eat meat whenever you desire. [21]If [a] the place that the LORD your God will choose to put his name there is too far from you, [b] then you may kill any of your herd or your flock, which the LORD has given you, as I have commanded you, and you may eat within your towns whenever you desire. [22]Just [c] as the gazelle or the deer is eaten, so you may eat of it. [c] The unclean and the clean alike may eat of it. [23][†] [d] Only be sure that you do not eat the blood, [e] for the blood is the life, and you shall not eat the life with the flesh. [24]You shall not eat it; you shall pour it out on the earth like water. [25]You shall not eat it, [f] that all may go well with you and with your children after you, [g] when you do what is right in the sight of the LORD. [26][†]But the [h] holy things that are due from you, and [i] your vow offerings, you shall take, and you shall go to [a] the place that the LORD will choose, [27]and [j] offer your burnt offerings, the flesh and the blood, on the altar of the LORD your God. The blood of your sacrifices shall be poured out on the altar of the LORD your God, but the flesh you may eat. [28]Be careful to obey all these words that I command you, [f] that it may go well with you and with your children after you forever, when you do what is good and right in the sight of the LORD your God.

Warning Against Idolatry

[29]“When [k] the LORD your God cuts off before you the nations whom you go in to dispossess, and you dispossess them and dwell in their land, [30][†]take care [l] that you be not ensnared to follow them, after they have been destroyed before you, and that you do not inquire about their gods, saying, ‘How did these nations serve their gods?—that I also may do the same.’ [31][†] [m] You shall not worship the LORD your God in that way, for every [n] abominable thing that the LORD hates they have done for their gods, for [o] they even burn their sons and their daughters in the fire to their gods.

[32][†] [2] “Everything that I command you, you shall be careful to do. [p] You shall not add to it or take from it.

DEUTERONOMY 13 [†]“If a prophet or [q] a dreamer of dreams arises among you and gives you a sign or a wonder, [2][^][†]and [r] the sign or wonder that he tells you comes to pass, and if he says, ‘Let us go after other gods,’ which you have not known, ‘and let us serve them,’ [3][†]you shall not listen to the words of that prophet or that dreamer of dreams. For the LORD your God [s] is testing you, to know whether you love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul. [4][†]You shall [t]walk after the LORD your God and fear him and keep his commandments and obey his voice, and you shall serve him and [u]hold fast to him. [5][†]But [v]that prophet or that dreamer of dreams shall be put to death, because he has taught rebellion against the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt and redeemed you out of the house of slavery, to make you leave the way in which the LORD your God commanded you to walk. [w]So you shall purge the evil [1] from your midst.

[6][†][x]"If your brother, the son of your mother, or your son or your daughter or [y]the wife you embrace [2] or your friend [z]who is as your own soul entices you secretly, saying, 'Let us go and serve other gods,' [a]which neither you nor your fathers have known, [7]some [b]of the gods of the peoples who are around you, whether near you or far off from you, from the one end of the earth to the other, [8][†]you shall [c]not yield to him or listen to him, nor [d]shall your eye pity him, nor shall you spare him, nor shall you conceal him. [9]But you shall kill him. [e]Your hand shall be first against him to put him to death, and afterward the hand of all the people. [10][f]You shall stone him to death with stones, because he sought to draw you away from the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery. [11][†]And [g]all Israel shall hear and fear and never again do any such wickedness as this among you.

[12][†]"If you hear in one of your cities, which the LORD your God is giving you to dwell there, [13]that certain [h]worthless fellows have gone out among you and have drawn away the inhabitants of their city, saying, 'Let us go and serve other gods,' which you have not known, [14][†]then you shall inquire and make search and ask [i]diligently. And behold, if it be true and certain that such an abomination has been done among you, [15][†]you shall surely put the inhabitants of that city to the sword, devoting it to destruction, [3] all who are in it and its cattle, with the edge of the sword. [16]You shall gather all its spoil into the midst of its open square and [j]burn the city and all its spoil with fire, as a whole burnt offering to the LORD your God. It shall be a [k]heap forever. It shall not be built again. [17][l]None of the devoted things shall stick to your hand, [m]that the LORD may turn from the fierceness of his anger and show you mercy and have compassion on you and multiply you, [n] as he swore to your fathers, 18if you obey the voice of the LORD your God, [o] keeping all his commandments that I am commanding you today, and doing what is right in the sight of the LORD your God.

Clean and Unclean Food

DEUTERONOMY 14 [†]“You are [p] the sons of the LORD your God. [q] You shall not cut yourselves or make any [r] baldness on your foreheads for the dead. 2[^]For [s] you are a people holy to the LORD your God, and the LORD has chosen you to be a people for his treasured possession, out of all the peoples who are on the face of the earth.

3[†] [t] “You shall not eat any abomination. 4[†] [u] These are the animals you may eat: the ox, the sheep, the goat, 5the deer, the gazelle, the roebuck, the wild goat, the ibex, [1] the antelope, and the mountain sheep. 6Every animal that parts the hoof and has the hoof cloven in two and chews the cud, among the animals, you may eat. 7Yet of those that chew the cud or have the hoof cloven you shall not eat these: the camel, the hare, and the [v] rock badger, because they chew the cud but do not part the hoof, are unclean for you. 8And the pig, because it parts the hoof but does not chew the cud, is unclean for you. Their flesh you shall not eat, and [w] their carcasses you shall not touch.

9[†]“Of all that are in the waters you may eat these: whatever has fins and scales you may eat. 10And whatever does not have fins and scales you shall not eat; it is unclean for you.

11[†]“You may eat all clean birds. 12But these are the ones that you shall not eat: the eagle, [2] the bearded vulture, the black vulture, 13the kite, the falcon of any kind; 14every raven of any kind; 15the ostrich, the nighthawk, the sea gull, the hawk of any kind; 16the little owl and the short-eared owl, the barn owl 17and the tawny owl, the carrion vulture and the cormorant, 18the stork, the heron of any kind; the hoopoe and the bat. 19And all winged insects are unclean for you; they shall not be eaten. 20All clean winged things you may eat.

21[†] [x] “You shall not eat anything that has died naturally. You may give it to the sojourner who is within your towns, that he may eat it, or you may sell it to a foreigner. For [y]you are a people holy to the Lord your God.

Tithes

[22][†] [a]"You shall tithe all the yield of your seed that comes from the field year by year. [23][†]And before the Lord your God, in the place that he will choose, to make his name dwell there, [b]you shall eat the tithe of your grain, of your wine, and of your oil, [c]and the firstborn of your herd and flock, [d]that you may learn to fear the Lord your God always. [24][†]And if the way is too long for you, so that you are not able to carry the tithe, when the Lord your God blesses you, because [e]the place is too far from you, which the Lord your God chooses, to set his name there, [25]then you shall turn it into money and bind up the money in your hand and go to the place that the Lord your God chooses [26]and spend the money for whatever you desire—oxen or sheep or wine or strong drink, whatever your appetite craves. And [b]you shall eat there before the Lord your God and rejoice, you and your household. [27][†]And you shall not neglect [f]the Levite who is within your towns, for [g]he has no portion or inheritance with you.

[28][†] [h]"At the end of every three years you shall bring out all the tithe of your produce in the same year and lay it up within your towns. [29]And the Levite, because [g]he has no portion or inheritance with you, and the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow, who are within your towns, shall come and eat and be filled, that [i]the Lord your God may bless you in all the work of your hands that you do.

The Sabbatical Year

DEUTERONOMY 15 [†]"At the end of [j]every seven years you shall grant a release. [2][^]And this is the manner of the release: every creditor shall release what he has lent to his neighbor. He shall not exact it of his neighbor, his brother, because the Lord's release has been proclaimed. [3] [k]Of a foreigner you may exact it, but whatever of yours is with your brother your hand shall release. [4][†] [l]But there will be no poor among you; [m]for the Lord will bless you in the land that the Lord your God is giving you for an inheritance to possess— 5 [n] if only you will strictly obey the voice of the LORD your God, being careful to do all this commandment that I command you today. 6For the LORD your God will bless you, [o] as he promised you, and [p] you shall lend to many nations, but you shall not borrow, and [q] you shall rule over many nations, but they shall not rule over you.

7[†]"If among you, one of your brothers should become poor, in any of your towns within your land that the LORD your God is giving you, [r] you shall not harden your heart or shut your hand against your poor brother, 8but [s] you shall open your hand to him and lend him sufficient for his need, whatever it may be. 9[†]Take care lest there be an unworthy thought in your heart and you say, 'The seventh year, the year of release is near,' and your [t] eye look grudgingly [1] on your poor brother, and you give him nothing, and he [u] cry to the LORD against you, and [v] you be guilty of sin. 10You shall give to him freely, and [w] your heart shall not be grudging when you give to him, because [x] for this the LORD your God will bless you in all your work and in all that you undertake. 11For [y] there will never cease to be poor in the land. Therefore I command you, [s] 'You shall open wide your hand to your brother, to the needy and to the poor, in your land.'

12[†] [z] "If your brother, a Hebrew man or a Hebrew woman, is sold [2] to you, he shall serve you six years, and in the seventh year you shall let him go free from you. 13[†]And when you let him go free from you, you shall not let him go empty-handed. 14You shall furnish him liberally out of your flock, out of your threshing floor, and out of your winepress. [a] As the LORD your God has blessed you, you shall give to him. 15 [b] You shall remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt, and the LORD your God redeemed you; therefore I command you this today. 16[†]But [c] if he says to you, 'I will not go out from you,' because he loves you and your household, since he is well-off with you, 17then you shall take an awl, and put it through his ear into the door, and he shall be your slave [3] forever. And to your female slave [4] you shall do the same. 18[†]It shall not seem hard to you when you let him go free from you, for at half the cost of a hired worker he has served you six years. So the LORD your God will bless you in all that you do.

[19][†] [d]“All the firstborn males that are born of your herd and flock you shall dedicate to the LORD your God. You shall do no work with the firstborn of your herd, nor shear the firstborn of your flock. [20] [e]You shall eat it, you and your household, before the LORD your God year by year at the place that the LORD will choose. [21] [f]But if it has any blemish, if it is lame or blind or has any serious blemish whatever, you shall not sacrifice it to the LORD your God. [22]You shall eat it within your towns. [g]The unclean and the clean alike may eat it, as though it were a gazelle or a deer. [23] [h]Only you shall not eat its blood; you shall pour it out on the ground like water.

Passover

DEUTERONOMY 16 [†]“Observe the [i]month of Abib and keep the Passover to the LORD your God, for [j]in the month of Abib the LORD your God brought you out of Egypt by night. [2][†]And you shall offer the Passover sacrifice to the LORD your God, from the flock or [k]the herd, [l]at the place that the LORD will choose, to make his name dwell there. [3][†]You shall eat no leavened bread with it. [m]Seven days you shall eat it with unleavened bread, the bread of affliction—for you came out of the land of Egypt [n]in haste—that all the days of your life you may remember the day when you came out of the land of Egypt. [4] [o]No leaven shall be seen with you in all your territory for seven days, [p]nor shall any of the flesh that you sacrifice on the evening of the first day remain all night until morning. [5][†]You may not offer the Passover sacrifice within any of your towns that the LORD your God is giving you, [6]but at the place that the LORD your God will choose, to make his name dwell in it, there you shall offer the Passover sacrifice, in the evening at sunset, at the time you came out of Egypt. [7][†]And you shall cook it and eat it at the place that the LORD your God will choose. And in the morning you shall turn and go to your tents. [8]For [q]six days you shall eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day there shall be [r]a solemn assembly to the LORD your God. You shall do no work on it.

The Feast of Weeks

[9][‡] [s]“You shall count seven weeks. Begin to count the seven weeks from the time the sickle is first put to the standing grain. [10]Then you shall keep [t]the Feast of Weeks to the LORD your God with [u]the tribute of a freewill offering from your hand, which you shall give [v]as the LORD your God blesses you. [11][‡]And [w]you shall rejoice before the LORD your God, you and your son and your daughter, your male servant and your female servant, the Levite who is within your towns, the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow who are among you, at the place that the LORD your God will choose, to make his name dwell there. [12] [x]You shall remember that you were a slave in Egypt; and you shall be careful to observe these statutes.

The Feast of Booths

[13][‡] [y]“You shall keep the Feast of Booths seven days, when you have gathered in the produce from your threshing floor and your winepress. [14][‡] [z]You shall rejoice in your feast, you and your son and your daughter, your male servant and your female servant, the Levite, the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow who are within your towns. [15]For [a]seven days you shall keep the feast to the LORD your God at the place that the LORD will choose, because the LORD your God will bless you in all your produce and in all the work of your hands, so that you will be altogether joyful.

[16][‡] [b]“Three times a year all your males shall appear before the LORD your God at the place that he will choose: at the Feast of Unleavened Bread, at the Feast of Weeks, and at the Feast of Booths. [c]They shall not appear before the LORD empty-handed. [17]Every man [d]shall give as he is able, [v]according to the blessing of the LORD your God that he has given you.

Justice

[18][‡]“You shall appoint [e]judges and officers in all your towns that the LORD your God is giving you, according to your tribes, and they shall judge the people with righteous judgment. [19][‡] [f]You shall not pervert justice. [g]You shall not show partiality, [h]and you shall not accept a bribe, for a bribe blinds the eyes of the wise and subverts the cause of the righteous.

[20]Justice, and only justice, you shall follow, that you may live and inherit the land that the LORD your God is giving you.

Forbidden Forms of Worship

[21][‡]“You shall not plant any tree as [i] an Asherah beside the altar of the LORD your God that you shall make. [22]And you shall not set up a pillar, which the LORD your God hates.

DEUTERONOMY 17 [‡][j] “You shall not sacrifice to the LORD your God an ox or a sheep in which is a blemish, any defect whatever, for that is an abomination to the LORD your God.

[2][‡] [k] “If there is found among you, within any of your towns that the LORD your God is giving you, a man or woman who does what is evil in the sight of the LORD your God, [l] in transgressing his covenant, [3]and has gone and served other gods and worshiped them, or [m] the sun or the moon or any of the host of heaven, [n] which I have forbidden, [4][‡]and it is told you and you hear of it, then you shall inquire [o] diligently, and if it is true and certain that such an abomination has been done in Israel, [5]then you shall bring out to your gates that man or woman who has done this evil thing, and you [p] shall stone that man or woman to death with stones. [6][‡] [q] On the evidence of two witnesses or of three witnesses the one who is to die shall be put to death; a person shall not be put to death on the evidence of one witness. [7][^] [r] The hand of the witnesses shall be first against him to put him to death, and afterward the hand of all the people. So [s] you shall purge [1] the evil [2] from your midst.

Legal Decisions by Priests and Judges

[8][‡]“If any case arises requiring decision between one kind of homicide and another, one kind of legal right and another, or one kind of assault and another, any case within your towns that is too difficult for you, then you shall arise and go up to [t] the place that the LORD your God will choose. [9] [u] And you shall come to the Levitical priests and to the judge who is in office in those days, and you shall consult them, and [v] they shall declare to you the decision. [10][‡]Then you shall do according to what they declare to you from that place that the LORD will choose. And you shall be careful to do according to all that they direct you. [11]According to the instructions that they give you, and according to the decision which they pronounce to you, you shall do. You shall not turn aside from the verdict that they declare to you, either to the right hand or to the left. [12][†]The man who [w]acts presumptuously by not obeying the priest [x]who stands to minister there before the LORD your God, or the judge, that man shall die. So [s]you shall purge the evil from Israel. [13]And all the people [y]shall hear and fear and not act presumptuously again.

Laws Concerning Israel’s Kings

[14][†]“When you come to the land that the LORD your God is giving you, and you possess it and dwell in it and then say, [z]‘I will set a king over me, like all the nations that are around me,’ [15][^]you may indeed set a king over you [a]whom the LORD your God will choose. One [b]from among your brothers you shall set as king over you. You may not put a foreigner over you, who is not your brother. [16][†]Only he must not acquire many [c]horses for himself or cause the people [d]to return to Egypt in order to acquire many horses, since the LORD has said to you, [e]‘You shall never return that way again.’ [17]And he [f]shall not acquire many wives for himself, lest his heart turn away, [g]nor shall he acquire for himself excessive silver and gold.

[18][†]“And when he sits on the throne of his kingdom, [h]he shall write for himself in a book a copy of this law, [i]approved by [3] the Levitical priests. [19]And [j]it shall be with him, and he shall read in it all the days of his life, [k]that he may learn to fear the LORD his God by keeping all the words of this law and these statutes, and doing them, [20]that his heart may not be lifted up above his brothers, and that he [l]may not turn aside from the commandment, either to the right hand or to the left, [m]so that he may continue long in his kingdom, he and his children, in Israel.

Provision for Priests and Levites

DEUTERONOMY 18 [†]“The Levitical priests, all the tribe of Levi, [n] shall have no portion or inheritance with Israel. They [o] shall eat the LORD’s food offerings [1] as their [2] inheritance. [2]They shall have no inheritance among their brothers; the LORD is their inheritance, as he promised them. [3][†]And this shall be the priests’ due from the people, from those offering a sacrifice, whether an ox or a sheep: [p] they shall give to the priest the shoulder and the two cheeks and the stomach. [4] [q] The firstfruits of your grain, of your wine and of your oil, and the first fleece of your sheep, you shall give him. [5][†]For the LORD your God has chosen him out of all your tribes [r] to stand and minister in the name of the LORD, him and his sons for all time.

[6][†]“And if a Levite comes from any of your towns out of all Israel, [s] where he lives—and he may come when he desires [3]— [t] to the place that the LORD will choose, [7]and ministers in the name of the LORD his God, [u] like all his fellow Levites who stand to minister there before the LORD, [8]then he may have equal [v] portions to eat, besides what he receives from the sale of his patrimony. [4]

Abominable Practices

[9][†]“When you come into the land that the LORD your God is giving you, [w] you shall not learn to follow the abominable practices of those nations. [10]There shall not be found among you anyone [x] who burns his son or his daughter as an offering, [5] anyone who [y] practices divination or [z] tells fortunes or interprets omens, or [a] a sorcerer [11]or a charmer or [b] a medium or a necromancer or [c] one who inquires of the dead, [12][†] [d] for whoever does these things is an abomination to the LORD. And [e] because of these abominations the LORD your God is driving them out before you. [13]You shall be blameless before the LORD your God, [14]for these nations, which you are about to dispossess, listen to fortune-tellers and to diviners. But as for you, the LORD your God has not allowed you to do this.

A New Prophet like Moses

[15][†][f]“The Lord your God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among you, from your brothers—it is to him you shall listen— [16]just as you desired of the Lord your God at Horeb [g]on the day of the assembly, when you said, [h]‘Let me not hear again the voice of the Lord my God or see this great fire any more, lest I die.’ [17]And the Lord said to me, [i]‘They are right in what they have spoken. [18][^][f]I will raise up for them a prophet like you from among their brothers. [j]And I will put my words in his mouth, and [k]he shall speak to them all that I command him. [19][l]And whoever will [m]not listen to my words that he shall speak in my name, I myself will require it of him. [20][†][n]But the prophet who presumes to speak a word in my name that I have not commanded him to speak, or [6] who speaks in the name of other gods, that same prophet shall die.’ [21]And if you say in your heart, ‘How may we know the word that the Lord has not spoken?’— [22][o]when a prophet speaks in the name of the Lord, if the word does not come to pass or come true, that is a word that the Lord has not spoken; [n]the prophet has spoken it presumptuously. You need not be afraid of him.

Laws Concerning Cities of Refuge

DEUTERONOMY 19 [†]“When [p]the Lord your God cuts off the nations whose land the Lord your God is giving you, and you dispossess them and dwell in their cities and in their houses, [2][q]you shall set apart three cities for yourselves in the land that the Lord your God is giving you to possess. [3]You shall measure the distances [1] and divide into three parts the area of the land that the Lord your God gives you as a possession, so that any manslayer can flee to them.

[4][^][†]“This is the provision for [r]the manslayer, who by fleeing there may save his life. If anyone kills his neighbor unintentionally without having hated him in the past— [5]as when someone goes into the forest with his neighbor to cut wood, and his hand swings the axe to cut down a tree, and the head slips from the handle and strikes his neighbor so that he dies—he may flee to one of these cities and live, [6]lest [s]the avenger of blood in hot anger pursue the manslayer and overtake him, because the way is long, and strike him fatally, though the man did not deserve to die, since he had not hated his neighbor in the past. [7]Therefore I command you, You shall set apart three cities. [8][†] [t] And if the Lord your God enlarges your territory, [u] as he has sworn to your fathers, and [v] gives you all the land that he promised to give to your fathers— [9]provided you are careful to keep all this commandment, which I command you today, by loving the Lord your God and by walking ever in his ways— [w] then you shall add three other cities to these three, [10]lest innocent blood be shed in your land that the Lord your God is giving you for an inheritance, and so the guilt of bloodshed be upon you.

[11][†]"But if anyone hates his neighbor and lies in wait for him and attacks him [x] and strikes him fatally so that he dies, and he flees into one of these cities, [12]then the elders of his city shall send and take him from there, and hand him over to the avenger of blood, so that he may die. [13][†] [y] Your eye shall not pity him, [z] but you shall purge the guilt of innocent blood [2] from Israel, so that it may be well with you.

Property Boundaries

[14][†] [a] "You shall not move your neighbor's landmark, which the men of old have set, in the inheritance that you will hold in the land that the Lord your God is giving you to possess.

Laws Concerning Witnesses

[15][†]"A single witness shall not suffice against a person for any crime or for any wrong in connection with any offense that he has committed. [b] Only on the evidence of two witnesses or of three witnesses shall a charge be established. [16][†]If [c] a malicious witness arises to accuse a person of wrongdoing, [17]then both parties to the dispute shall appear before the Lord, [d] before the priests and the judges who are in office in those days. [18]The judges shall [e] inquire diligently, and if the witness is a false witness and has accused his brother falsely, [19][†] [f] then you shall do to him as he had meant to do to his brother. So you shall purge the evil [3] from your midst. [20]And the rest [g] shall hear and fear, and shall never again commit any such evil among you. [21][†] [y]Your eye shall not pity. [h]It shall be life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.

Laws Concerning Warfare

DEUTERONOMY 20 [†]“When you go out to war against your enemies, and see [i]horses and chariots and an army larger than your own, you shall not be afraid of them, for the LORD your God is [j]with you, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt. [2]And when you draw near to the battle, [k]the priest shall come forward and speak to the people [3]and shall say to them, ‘Hear, O Israel, today you are drawing near for battle against your enemies: let not your heart faint. Do not fear or panic or be in dread of them, [4][^]for the LORD your God is he who goes with you [l]to fight for you against your enemies, to give you the victory.’ [5][†]Then the officers shall speak to the people, saying, ‘Is there any man who has built a new house and has not dedicated it? Let him go back to his house, lest he die in the battle and another man dedicate it. [6]And is there any man who has planted a vineyard and has not [m]enjoyed its fruit? Let him go back to his house, lest he die in the battle and another man enjoy its fruit. [7] [n]And is there any man who has betrothed a wife and has not taken her? Let him go back to his house, lest he die in the battle and another man take her.’ [8][†]And the officers shall speak further to the people, and say, [o]‘Is there any man who is fearful and fainthearted? Let him go back to his house, lest he make the heart of his fellows melt like his own.’ [9]And when the officers have finished speaking to the people, then commanders shall be appointed at the head of the people.

[10][†]“When you draw near to a city to fight against it, [p]offer terms of peace to it. [11]And if it responds to you peaceably and it opens to you, then all the people who are found in it shall do forced labor for you and shall serve you. [12]But if it makes no peace with you, but makes war against you, then you shall besiege it. [13]And when the LORD your God gives it into your hand, [q]you shall put all its males to the sword, [14] [r]but the women and the little ones, the livestock, and everything else in the city, all its spoil, you [s]shall take as plunder for yourselves. And [t]you shall enjoy the spoil of your enemies, which the LORD your God has given you. [15]Thus you shall do to all the cities that are very far from you, which are not cities of the nations here. 16[‡]But [u] in the cities of these peoples that the LORD your God is giving you for an inheritance, you shall save alive nothing that breathes, 17but [v] you shall devote them to complete destruction, [1] the Hittites and the Amorites, the Canaanites and the Perizzites, the Hivites and the Jebusites, as the LORD your God has commanded, 18that [w] they may not teach you to do according to all their abominable practices that they have done for their gods, and so you [x] sin against the LORD your God.

19[‡]"When you besiege a city for a long time, making war against it in order to take it, [y] you shall not destroy its trees by wielding an axe against them. You may eat from them, but you shall not cut them down. Are the trees in the field human, that they should be besieged by you? 20Only the trees that you know are not trees for food you may destroy and cut down, that you may build siegeworks against the city that makes war with you, until it falls.

Atonement for Unsolved Murders

DEUTERONOMY 21 [‡]"If in the land that the LORD your God is giving you to possess someone is found slain, lying in the open country, and it is not known who killed him, 2then your elders and your judges shall come out, and they shall measure the distance to the surrounding cities. 3And the elders of the city that is nearest to the slain man shall take a heifer [z] that has never been worked and that has not pulled in a yoke. 4[‡]And the elders of that city shall bring the heifer down to a valley with running water, which is neither plowed nor sown, and shall break the heifer's neck there in the valley. 5Then the priests, the sons of Levi, shall come forward, for the LORD your God has chosen [a] them to minister to him and to bless in the name of the LORD, and [b] by their word every dispute and every assault shall be settled. 6And all the elders of that city nearest to the slain man [c] shall wash their hands over the heifer whose neck was broken in the valley, 7and they shall testify, 'Our hands did not shed this blood, nor did our eyes see it shed. 8Accept atonement, O LORD, for your people Israel, whom you have redeemed, and [d] do not set the guilt of innocent blood in the midst of your people Israel, so that their blood guilt be atoned for.' 9[^][‡]So [e] you shall purge the guilt of innocent blood from your midst, when you do what is right in the sight of the LORD.

Marrying Female Captives

[10][†]“When you go out to war against your enemies, and the LORD your God gives them into your hand and you take them captive, [11]and you see among the captives a beautiful woman, and you desire to take her to be your wife, [12][†]and you bring her home to your house, she shall shave her head and pare her nails. [13]And she shall take off the clothes in which she was captured and shall remain in your house and [f] lament her father and her mother a full month. After that you may go in to her and be her husband, and she shall be your wife. [14]But if you no longer delight in her, you shall [g] let her go where she wants. But you shall not sell her for money, nor shall you [h] treat her as a slave, since you have humiliated her.

Inheritance Rights of the Firstborn

[15][†]“If a man has two wives, [i] the one loved and the other unloved, and both the loved and the unloved have borne him children, and if the firstborn son belongs to the unloved, [1] [16]then on the day when [j] he assigns his possessions as an inheritance to his sons, he may not treat the son of the loved as the firstborn in preference to the son of the unloved, who is the firstborn, [17]but he shall acknowledge the firstborn, the son of the unloved, by giving him a double portion of all that he has, for he is [k] the firstfruits of his strength. [l] The right of the firstborn is his.

A Rebellious Son

[18][†]“If a man has a stubborn and rebellious son who will not obey the voice of his father or the voice of his mother, and, though they discipline him, will not listen to them, [19]then his father and his mother shall take hold of him and bring him out to the elders of his city at the gate of the place where he lives, [20]and they shall say to the elders of his city, ‘This our son is stubborn and rebellious; he will not obey our voice; he is a glutton and a drunkard.’ [21] [m] Then all the men of the city shall stone him to death with stones. [n] So you shall purge the evil from your midst, [o] and all Israel shall hear, and fear.

A Man Hanged on a Tree Is Cursed

22“And if a man has committed a crime punishable by death and he is put to death, and you hang him on a tree, 23[^][†] [p] his body shall not remain all night on the tree, but you shall bury him the same day, for [q] a hanged man is cursed by God. [r] You shall not defile your land that the LORD your God is giving you for an inheritance.

Various Laws

DEUTERONOMY 22 [†]“You [s] shall not see your brother’s ox or his sheep going astray and ignore them. You shall take them back to your brother. 2And if he does not live near you and you do not know who he is, you shall bring it home to your house, and it shall stay with you until your brother seeks it. Then you shall restore it to him. 3And you shall do the same with his donkey or with his garment, or with any lost thing of your brother’s, which he loses and you find; you may not ignore it. 4 [t] You shall not see your brother’s donkey or his ox fallen down by the way and ignore them. You shall help him to lift them up again.

5[†]“A woman shall not wear a man’s garment, nor shall a man put on a woman’s cloak, [u] for whoever does these things is an abomination to the LORD your God.

6[†]“If you come across a bird’s nest in any tree or on the ground, with young ones or eggs and the mother sitting on the young or on the eggs, [v] you shall not take the mother with the young. 7You shall let the mother go, but the young you may take for yourself, [w] that it may go well with you, and that you may live long.

8[†]“When you build a new house, you shall make a parapet for your roof, that you may not bring the guilt of blood upon your house, if anyone should fall from it.

9[†] [x] “You shall not sow your vineyard with two kinds of seed, lest the whole yield be forfeited, [1] the crop that you have sown and the yield of the vineyard. [10]You shall not plow with an ox and a donkey together. [11]You shall not wear cloth of wool and linen mixed together.

[12][‡] [y]“You shall make yourself tassels on the four corners of the garment with which you cover yourself.

Laws Concerning Sexual Immorality

[13][‡]“If any man takes a wife and [z]goes in to her and then hates her [14][‡]and accuses her of misconduct and brings a bad name upon her, saying, ‘I took this woman, and when I came near her, I did not find in her evidence of virginity,’ [15]then the father of the young woman and her mother shall take and bring out the evidence of her virginity to the elders of the city in the gate. [16]And the father of the young woman shall say to the elders, ‘I gave my daughter to this man to marry, and he hates her; [17]and behold, he has accused her of misconduct, saying, “I did not find in your daughter evidence of virginity.” And yet this is the evidence of my daughter’s virginity.’ And they shall spread the cloak before the elders of the city. [18]Then the elders of that city shall take the man and whip [2] him, [19][‡]and they shall fine him a hundred shekels [3] of silver and give them to the father of the young woman, because he has brought a bad name upon a virgin [4] of Israel. And she shall be his wife. [a]He may not divorce her all his days. [20]But if the thing is true, that evidence of virginity was not found in the young woman, [21][‡]then they shall bring out the young woman to the door of her father’s house, and [b]the men of her city shall stone her to death with stones, because she has [c]done an outrageous thing in Israel by whoring in her father’s house. [d]So you shall purge the evil from your midst.

[22][^][‡] [e]“If a man is found lying with the wife of another man, both of them shall die, the man who lay with the woman, and the woman. [d]So you shall purge the evil from Israel.

[23][‡]“If there is a [f]betrothed virgin, and a man meets her in the city and lies with her, [24]then you shall bring them both out to the gate of that city, and you shall stone them to death with stones, the young woman because she did not cry for help though she was in the city, and the man because he violated his neighbor’s wife. [d]So you shall purge the evil from your midst.

[25]“But if in the open country a man meets a young woman who is betrothed, and the man seizes her and lies with her, then only the man who lay with her shall die. [26]But you shall do nothing to the young woman; she has committed no offense punishable by death. For this case is like that of a man attacking and murdering his neighbor, [27]because he met her in the open country, and though the betrothed young woman cried for help there was no one to rescue her.

[28] [g] “If a man meets a virgin who is not betrothed, and seizes her and lies with her, and they are found, [29][†]then the man who lay with her shall give to the father of the young woman fifty shekels of silver, and she shall be his wife, because he has violated her. He may not divorce her all his days.

[30][†] [5] [h] “A man shall not take his father’s wife, so that he does not [i] uncover his father’s nakedness. [6]

Those Excluded from the Assembly

DEUTERONOMY 23 [†]“No one whose testicles are crushed or whose male organ is cut off shall enter the assembly of the LORD.

[2][†] [j] “No one born of a forbidden union may enter the assembly of the LORD. Even to the tenth generation, none of his descendants may enter the assembly of the LORD.

[3] [k] “No Ammonite or Moabite may enter the assembly of the LORD. Even to the tenth generation, none of them may enter the assembly of the LORD forever, [4] [l] because they did not meet you with bread and with water on the way, when you came out of Egypt, and because they [m] hired against you Balaam the son of Beor from Pethor of [n] Mesopotamia, to curse you. [5]But the LORD your God would not listen to Balaam; instead the LORD your God turned [o] the curse into a blessing for you, because the LORD your God loved you. [6]You [p] shall not seek their peace or their prosperity all your days forever.

[7][†]“You shall not abhor an Edomite, for [q] he is your brother. You shall not abhor an Egyptian, because [r] you were a sojourner in his land. [8]Children born to them in the third generation may enter the assembly of the LORD.

Uncleanness in the Camp

[9][^][†]"When you are encamped against your enemies, then you shall keep yourself from every evil thing.

[10]"If any man among you becomes [s] unclean because of a nocturnal emission, then he shall go outside the camp. He shall not come inside the camp, [11]but when evening comes, he shall [t] bathe himself in water, and as the sun sets, he may come inside the camp.

[12]"You shall have a place outside the camp, and you shall go out to it. [13]And you shall have a trowel with your tools, and when you sit down outside, you shall dig a hole with it and turn back and cover up your excrement. [14]Because [u] the LORD your God walks in the midst of your camp, to deliver you and to give up your enemies before you, therefore your camp must be holy, so that he may not see anything indecent among you and turn away from you.

Miscellaneous Laws

[15][†] [v] "You shall not give up to his master a slave [1] who has escaped from his master to you. [16]He shall dwell with you, in your midst, in the place that he shall choose within one of your towns, wherever it suits him. You shall not wrong him.

[17][†]"None of the [w] daughters of Israel shall be a cult prostitute, and none [x] of the sons of Israel shall be a cult prostitute. [18]You shall not bring the fee of a prostitute or the wages of a dog [2] into the house of the LORD your God in payment for any vow, for both of these are an abomination to the LORD your God.

[19][†] [y] "You shall not charge interest on loans to your brother, [z] interest on money, interest on food, interest on anything that is lent for interest. [20] [a] You may charge a foreigner interest, but you may not charge your brother interest, [b] that the LORD your God may bless you in all that you undertake in the land that you are entering to take possession of it.

[21][†] [c] "If you make a vow to the LORD your God, you shall not delay fulfilling it, for the LORD your God will surely require it of you, and you will be guilty of sin. [22]But if you refrain from vowing, you will not be guilty of sin. [23]You shall be careful to do what has passed your lips, for you have voluntarily vowed to the Lord your God what you have promised with your mouth.

[24][†]“If you go into your neighbor’s vineyard, you may eat your fill of grapes, as many as you wish, but you shall not put any in your bag. [25]If you go into your neighbor’s standing grain, [d]you may pluck the ears with your hand, but you shall not put a sickle to your neighbor’s standing grain.

Laws Concerning Divorce

DEUTERONOMY 24 [†]“When a man takes a wife and marries her, if then she finds no favor in his eyes because he has found some indecency in her, and [e]he writes her a certificate of divorce and puts it in her hand and sends her out of his house, and she departs out of his house, [2]and if she goes and becomes another man’s wife, [3]and the latter man hates her and writes her a certificate of divorce and puts it in her hand and sends her out of his house, or if the latter man dies, who took her to be his wife, [4]then [f]her former husband, who sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after she has been defiled, for that is an abomination before the Lord. And you shall not bring sin upon the land that the Lord your God is giving you for an inheritance.

Miscellaneous Laws

[5][†][g]“When a man is newly married, he shall not go out with the army or be liable for any other public duty. He shall be free at home one year [h]to be happy with his wife whom he has taken.

[6][†]“No one shall take a mill or an upper millstone in pledge, for that would be taking a life in pledge.

[7][†][i]“If a man is found stealing one of his brothers of the people of Israel, and if he [j]treats him as a slave or sells him, then that thief shall die. [k]So you shall purge the evil from your midst.

[8][†]“Take care, in [l]a case of leprous [1] disease, to be very careful to do according to all that the Levitical priests shall direct you. As I commanded them, so you shall be careful to do. [9]Remember what the Lord your God did to [m]Miriam [n]on the way as you came out of Egypt.

[10][†]“When you make your neighbor a loan of any sort, you shall not go into his house to collect his pledge. [11]You shall stand outside, and the man to whom you make the loan shall bring the pledge out to you. [12][†]And if he is a poor man, you shall not sleep in his pledge. [13] [o] You shall restore to him the pledge as the sun sets, that he may sleep in his cloak and [p] bless you. And [q] it shall be righteousness for you before the LORD your God.

[14]“You shall not [r] oppress a hired worker who is poor and needy, whether he is one of your brothers or one of the sojourners who are in your land within your towns. [15] [s] You shall give him his wages on the same day, before the sun sets (for he is poor and counts on it), [t] lest he cry against you to the LORD, and you be guilty of sin.

[16] [u] “Fathers shall not be put to death because of their children, nor shall children be put to death because of their fathers. Each one shall be put to death for his own sin.

[17][†] [v] “You shall not pervert the justice due to the sojourner or to the fatherless, [w] or take a widow’s garment in pledge, [18]but [x] you shall remember that you were a slave in Egypt and the LORD your God redeemed you from there; therefore I command you to do this.

[19][†] [y] “When you reap your harvest in your field and forget a sheaf in the field, you shall not go back to get it. It shall be for the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow, [z] that the LORD your God may bless you in all the work of your hands. [20]When you beat your olive trees, you shall not go over them again. It shall be for the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow. [21]When you gather the grapes of your vineyard, you shall not strip it afterward. It shall be for the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow. [22] [x] You shall remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt; therefore I command you to do this.

DEUTERONOMY 25 [†]“If there is a [a] dispute between men and they come into court and the judges decide between them, [b] acquitting the innocent and condemning the guilty, [2]then if the guilty man deserves to be beaten, the judge shall cause him to lie down and be beaten in his presence with a number of stripes in proportion to his offense. [3][†] [c] Forty stripes may be given him, but not more, lest, if one should go on to beat him with more stripes than these, your brother be degraded in your sight.

[4][^][‡] [d]“You shall not muzzle an ox when it is treading out the grain.

Laws Concerning Levirate Marriage

[5][^][‡] [e]“If brothers dwell together, and one of them dies and has no son, the wife of the dead man shall not be married outside the family to a stranger. Her [f]husband’s brother shall go in to her and take her as his wife and perform the duty of a husband’s brother to her. [6]And the first son whom she bears shall succeed to the name of his dead brother, that [g]his name may not be blotted out of Israel. [7][‡]And if the man does not wish to take his brother’s wife, then his brother’s wife shall [h]go up to the gate to the elders and say, ‘My husband’s brother refuses to perpetuate his brother’s name in Israel; he will not perform the duty of a husband’s brother to me.’ [8]Then the elders of his city shall call him and speak to him, and if he persists, saying, [i]‘I do not wish to take her,’ [9][‡]then his brother’s wife shall go up to him in the presence of the elders and [j]pull his sandal off his foot and [k]spit in his face. And she shall answer and say, ‘So shall it be done to the man who does not [l]build up his brother’s house.’ [10]And the name of his house [1] shall be called in Israel, ‘The house of him who had his sandal pulled off.’

[11]“When men fight with one another and the wife of the one draws near to rescue her husband from the hand of him who is beating him and puts out her hand and seizes him by the private parts, [12]then you shall cut off her hand. [m]Your eye shall have no pity.

[13][‡]“You [n]shall not have in your bag two kinds of weights, a large and a small. [14]You shall not have in your house two kinds of measures, a large and a small. [15]A full and fair [2] weight you shall have, a full and fair measure you shall have, [o]that your days may be long in the land that the LORD your God is giving you. [16]For [p]all who do such things, all who act dishonestly, [q]are an abomination to the LORD your God.

[17][‡] [r]“Remember what Amalek did to you [s]on the way as you came out of Egypt, [18]how he attacked you on the way when you were faint and weary, and [t]cut off your tail, those who were lagging behind you, and he did not fear God. [19]Therefore [u]when the LORD your God has given you rest from all your enemies around you, in the land that the LORD your God is giving you for an inheritance to possess, you shall [v]blot out the memory of Amalek from under heaven; you shall not forget.

Offerings of Firstfruits and Tithes

DEUTERONOMY 26 [†]“When you come into the land that the LORD your God is giving you for an inheritance and have taken possession of it and live in it, [2][†] [w]you shall take some of the first of all the fruit of the ground, which you harvest from your land that the LORD your God is giving you, and you shall put it in a basket, and you shall [x]go to the place that the LORD your God will choose, to make his name to dwell there. [3]And you shall go to the priest who is in office at that time and say to him, ‘I declare today to the LORD your God that I have come into the land [y]that the LORD swore to our fathers to give us.’ [4][†]Then the priest shall take the basket from your hand and set it down before the altar of the LORD your God.

[5][†]“And you shall make response before the LORD your God, ‘A [z]wandering Aramean was my father. And he went down into Egypt and sojourned there, [a]few in number, and there he became a nation, great, mighty, and populous. [6]And [b]the Egyptians treated us harshly and humiliated us and laid on us hard labor. [7]Then [c]we cried to the LORD, the God of our fathers, and the LORD heard our voice and saw our affliction, our toil, and our oppression. [8][^]And [d]the LORD brought us out of Egypt [e]with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm, with great deeds of terror, [1] with signs and wonders. [9]And he brought us into this place and gave us this land, [f]a land flowing with milk and honey. [10]And behold, now I bring the first of the fruit of the ground, which you, O LORD, have given me.’ And you shall set it down before the LORD your God and worship before the LORD your God. [11][†]And [g]you shall rejoice in all the good that the LORD your God has given to you and to your house, you, and the Levite, and the sojourner who is among you.

[12][†]“When you have finished paying all [h]the tithe of your produce in the third year, which is [i]the year of tithing, giving it to the Levite, the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow, so that they may eat within your towns and be filled, [13]then you shall say before the LORD your God, ‘I have removed the sacred portion out of my house, and moreover, I have given it to the Levite, the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow, according to all your commandment that you have commanded me. I have not transgressed any of your commandments, [j] nor have I forgotten them. [14][†] [k] I have not eaten of the tithe while I was mourning, or removed any of it while I was unclean, or offered any of it [l] to the dead. I have obeyed the voice of the LORD my God. I have done according to all that you have commanded me. [15][†] [m] Look down from your holy habitation, from heaven, and bless your people Israel and the ground that you have given us, as you swore to our fathers, a land flowing with milk and honey.’

[16][†]“This day the LORD your God commands you to do these statutes and rules. You shall therefore be careful to do them with all your heart and with all your soul. [17] [n] You have declared today that the LORD is your God, and that you will walk in his ways, and keep his statutes and his commandments and his rules, and will obey his voice. [18][†]And the LORD has declared today that you are [o] a people for his treasured possession, as he has promised you, and that you are to keep all his commandments, [19]and that he will set you in praise and in fame and in honor [p] high above all nations [q] that he has made, and that you shall be [r] a people holy to the LORD your God, as he promised.”

The Altar on Mount Ebal

DEUTERONOMY 27 [†]Now Moses and the elders of Israel commanded the people, saying, “Keep the whole commandment that I command you today. [2][†]And on the day [s] you cross over the Jordan to the land that the LORD your God is giving you, you shall set up large stones and plaster them with plaster. [3] [t] And you shall write on them all the words of this law, when you cross over to enter the land that the LORD your God is giving you, [u] a land flowing with milk and honey, as the LORD, the God of your fathers, has promised you. [4][†]And when you have crossed over the Jordan, you shall set up these stones, concerning which I command you today, [v] on Mount Ebal, and you shall plaster them with plaster. [5]And there you shall build an altar to the LORD your God, an altar of stones. [w] You shall wield no iron tool on them; [6][†]you shall build an altar to the LORD your God of uncut [1] stones. And you shall offer burnt offerings on it to the LORD your God, [7]and you shall sacrifice peace offerings and [x]shall eat there, and you [x]shall rejoice before the LORD your God. [8]And [y]you shall write on the stones all the words of this law very plainly.”

Curses from Mount Ebal

[9][†]Then Moses and the Levitical priests said to all Israel, “Keep silence and hear, O Israel: [z]this day you have become the people of the LORD your God. [10]You shall therefore obey the voice of the LORD your God, keeping his commandments and his statutes, which I command you today.”

[11]That day Moses charged the people, saying, [12][†]“When you have crossed over the Jordan, [a]these shall stand on Mount Gerizim to bless the people: Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Joseph, and Benjamin. [13]And these shall stand on Mount Ebal for the curse: Reuben, Gad, Asher, Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali. [14][†]And [b]the Levites shall declare to all the men of Israel in a loud voice:

[15][†][c]“‘Cursed be the man who makes a carved or cast metal image, an abomination to the LORD, a thing made by the hands of a craftsman, and sets it up in secret.’ [d]And all the people shall answer and say, ‘Amen.’

[16][†][e]“‘Cursed be anyone who dishonors his father or his mother.’ And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

[17][†][f]“‘Cursed be anyone who moves his neighbor’s landmark.’ And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

[18][†][g]“‘Cursed be anyone who misleads a blind man on the road.’ And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

[19][†][h]“‘Cursed be anyone who perverts the justice due to the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow.’ And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

[20][†][i]“‘Cursed be anyone who lies with his father’s wife, because he has [j]uncovered his father’s nakedness.’ [2] And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

[21][k]“‘Cursed be anyone who lies with any kind of animal.’ And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

[22][l]“‘Cursed be anyone who lies with his sister, whether the daughter of his father or the daughter of his mother.’ And all the people shall say,

‘Amen.’

[23] [m] “‘Cursed be anyone who lies with his mother-in-law.’ And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

[24][†] [n] “‘Cursed be anyone who strikes down his neighbor in secret.’ And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

[25][†] [o] “‘Cursed be anyone who takes a bribe to shed innocent blood.’ And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

[26][^][†] [p] “‘Cursed be anyone who does not confirm the words of this law by doing them.’ And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

Blessings for Obedience

DEUTERONOMY 28 [†]“And [q] if you faithfully obey the voice of the Lord your God, being careful to do all his commandments that I command you today, the Lord your God will set you [r] high above all the nations of the earth. [2]And all these blessings shall come upon you and [s] overtake you, if you obey the voice of the Lord your God. [3][†]Blessed shall you be in the city, and [t] blessed shall you be in the field. [4]Blessed shall be [u] the fruit of your womb and the fruit of your ground and the fruit of your cattle, the increase of your herds and the young of your flock. [5]Blessed shall be your basket and your [v] kneading bowl. [6]Blessed shall you be [w] when you come in, and blessed shall you be when you go out.

[7][†]“The Lord [x] will cause your enemies who rise against you to be defeated before you. They shall come out against you one way and flee before you seven ways. [8]The Lord [y] will command the blessing on you in your barns and [z] in all that you undertake. [a] And he will bless you in the land that the Lord your God is giving you. [9][†] [b] The Lord will establish you as a people holy to himself, as he has sworn to you, if you keep the commandments of the Lord your God and walk in his ways. [10]And [c] all the peoples of the earth shall see that you are [d] called by the name of the Lord, and they shall be [e] afraid of you. [11]And [f] the Lord will make you abound in prosperity, in [u] the fruit of your womb and in the fruit of your livestock and in the fruit of your ground, within the land that the Lord swore to your fathers to give you. [12][†]The Lord will open to you his good treasury, the heavens, [g] to give the rain to your land in its season and [h] to bless all the work of your hands. And [i] you shall lend to many nations, but you shall not borrow. [13]And the LORD will make you [j] the head and not the tail, and you shall only go up and not down, if you obey the commandments of the LORD your God, which I command you today, being careful to do them, [14] [k] and if you do not turn aside from any of the words that I command you today, to the right hand or to the left, to go after other gods to serve them.

Curses for Disobedience

[15]"But [l] if you will not obey the voice of the LORD your God or be careful to do all his commandments and his statutes that I command you today, then all these curses shall come upon you and [m] overtake you. [16]Cursed shall you be [n] in the city, and cursed shall you be in the field. [17]Cursed shall be your basket and your kneading bowl. [18]Cursed shall be the fruit of your womb and the fruit of your ground, the increase of your herds and the young of your flock. [19]Cursed shall you be when you come in, and cursed shall you be when you go out.

[20]"The LORD [o] will send on you curses, confusion, and [p] frustration in all that you undertake to do, [q] until you are destroyed and perish quickly on account of the evil of your deeds, because you have forsaken me. [21]The LORD will make [r] the pestilence stick to you until he has consumed you off the land that you are entering to take possession of it. [22] [s] The LORD will strike you with wasting disease and with fever, inflammation and fiery heat, and with drought [1] and with [t] blight and with mildew. They shall pursue you until you perish. [23][†]And [u] the heavens over your head shall be bronze, and the earth under you shall be iron. [24]The LORD will make the rain of your land powder. From heaven dust shall come down on you until you are destroyed.

[25] [v] "The LORD will cause you to be defeated before your enemies. You shall go out one way against them and flee seven ways before them. And you [w] shall be a horror to all the kingdoms of the earth. [26]And [x] your dead body shall be food for all birds of the air and for the beasts of the earth, and [y] there shall be no one to frighten them away. [27]The LORD will strike you [z] with the boils of Egypt, and with tumors and [a] scabs and itch, of which you cannot be healed. [28]The LORD will strike you with [b] madness and blindness and confusion of mind, [29]and you shall [c]grope at noonday, as the blind grope in darkness, and you shall not prosper in your ways. [2] And you shall be only oppressed and robbed continually, and there shall be no one to help you. [30][†] [d]You shall betroth a wife, but another man shall ravish her. [e]You shall build a house, but you shall not dwell in it. [f]You shall plant a vineyard, but you shall not enjoy its fruit. [31]Your ox shall be slaughtered before your eyes, but you shall not eat any of it. Your donkey shall be seized before your face, but shall not be restored to you. Your sheep shall be given to your enemies, but there shall be no one to help you. [32] [g]Your sons and your daughters shall be given to another people, while your eyes look on and fail with longing for them all day long, [h]but you shall be helpless. [33]A nation that you have not known shall eat up the fruit of your ground and of all your labors, and you shall be only oppressed and crushed continually, [34]so that you are driven mad [i]by the sights that your eyes see. [35]The LORD will strike you on the knees and on the legs [j]with grievous boils of which you cannot be healed, from the sole of your foot to the crown of your head.

[36]"The LORD will [k]bring you and your king whom you set over you to a nation that neither you [l]nor your fathers have known. And [m]there you shall serve other gods of wood and stone. [37]And you shall become [n]a horror, a proverb, and a byword among all the peoples where the LORD will lead you away. [38] [o]You shall carry much seed into the field and shall gather in little, for [p]the locust shall consume it. [39] [q]You shall plant vineyards and dress them, but you shall neither drink of the wine nor gather the grapes, for the worm shall eat them. [40]You shall have olive trees throughout all your territory, but you [r]shall not anoint yourself with the oil, for your olives shall drop off. [41]You shall father sons and daughters, but they shall not be yours, for [s]they shall go into captivity. [42] [p]The cricket [3] shall possess all your trees and the fruit of your ground. [43] [t]The sojourner who is among you shall rise higher and higher above you, and you shall come down lower and lower. [44][†] [u]He shall lend to you, and you shall not lend to him. [t]He shall be the head, and you shall be the tail.

[45] [v]"All these curses shall come upon you and pursue you and overtake you till you are destroyed, because you did not obey the voice of the LORD your God, to keep his commandments and his statutes that he commanded you. [46][†]They shall be [w]a sign and a wonder against you and your offspring forever. [47] [x]Because you did not serve the LORD your God with joyfulness and gladness of heart, because of the abundance of all things, [48][†]therefore you shall serve your enemies whom the LORD will send against you, in hunger and thirst, in nakedness, and lacking everything. And he [y]will put a yoke of iron on your neck until he has destroyed you. [49] [z]The LORD will bring a nation against you from far away, from the end of the earth, [a]swooping down like the eagle, a nation [b]whose language you do not understand, [50]a hard-faced nation [c]who shall not respect the old or show mercy to the young. [51]It shall [d]eat the offspring of your cattle and the fruit of your ground, until you are destroyed; it also shall not leave you grain, wine, or oil, the increase of your herds or the young of your flock, until they have caused you to perish.

[52]“They shall [e]besiege you in all your towns, until your high and fortified walls, in which you trusted, come down throughout all your land. And they shall besiege you in all your towns throughout all your land, which the LORD your God has given you. [53][†]And [f]you shall eat the fruit of your womb, the flesh of your sons and daughters, whom the LORD your God has given you, [g]in the siege and in the distress with which your enemies shall distress you. [54]The man who is the most tender and refined among you will [h]begrudge food to his brother, to [i]the wife he embraces, [4] and to the last of the children whom he has left, [55]so that he will not give to any of them any of the flesh of his children whom he is eating, because he has nothing else left, [j]in the siege and in the distress with which your enemy shall distress you in all your towns. [56] [k]The most tender and refined woman among you, who would not venture to set the sole of her foot on the ground because she is so delicate and tender, will begrudge to the husband she embraces, [5] to her son and to her daughter, [57]her afterbirth that comes out from between her feet and her children whom she bears, because lacking everything she will eat them secretly, [j]in the siege and in the distress with which your enemy shall distress you in your towns.

[58][†]“If you are not careful to do all the words of this law that are written in this book, that you may fear this glorious and awesome name, [l]the LORD your God, [59]then the LORD will bring on you and your offspring extraordinary afflictions, afflictions severe and lasting, and sicknesses grievous and lasting. [60][†]And he will bring upon you again all [m]the diseases of Egypt, of which you were afraid, and they shall cling to you. [61][†]Every sickness also and every affliction that is not recorded in the book of this law, the LORD will bring upon you, until you are destroyed. [62][†]Whereas [n]you were as numerous [o]as the stars of heaven, you shall be left few in number, because you did not obey the voice of the LORD your God. [63]And as the LORD [p]took delight in doing you good and multiplying you, so the LORD will [q]take delight in bringing ruin upon you and destroying you. And you shall be plucked off the land that you are entering to take possession of it.

[64][†]“And the LORD [r]will scatter you among all peoples, from one end of the earth to the other, and [s]there you shall serve other gods [t]of wood and stone, [u]which neither you nor your fathers have known. [65]And [v]among these nations you shall find no respite, and there shall be no resting place for the sole of your foot, but [w]the LORD will give you there a trembling heart and failing eyes and [x]a languishing soul. [66]Your life shall hang in doubt before you. Night and day you shall be in dread and have no assurance of your life. [67][y]In the morning you shall say, ‘If only it were evening!’ and at evening you shall say, ‘If only it were morning!’ because of the dread that your heart shall feel, and [z]the sights that your eyes shall see. [68]And the LORD [a]will bring you back in ships to Egypt, a journey that I promised that [b]you should never make again; and there you shall offer yourselves for sale to your enemies as male and female slaves, but there will be no buyer.”

The Covenant Renewed in Moab

DEUTERONOMY 29 [†] [1] These are the words of the covenant that the LORD commanded Moses to make with the people of Israel [c]in the land of Moab, besides [d]the covenant that he had made with them at Horeb.

[2][†] [2] And Moses summoned all Israel and said to them: [e]“You have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt, to Pharaoh and to all his servants and to all his land, [3]the great [f]trials that your eyes saw, the signs, and those great wonders. [4][^][†]But to this day [g]the LORD has not given you a heart to understand or eyes to see or ears to hear. [5][†] [h]I have led you forty years in the wilderness. Your clothes have not worn out on you, and your sandals have not worn off your feet. [6] [i] You have not eaten bread, and you have not drunk wine or strong drink, that you may know that I am the LORD your God. [7][†]And when you came to this place, [j] Sihon the king of Heshbon and Og the king of Bashan came out against us to battle, but we defeated them. [8]We took their land and [k] gave it for an inheritance to the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of the Manassites. [9] [l] Therefore keep the words of this covenant and do them, that you may prosper [3] in all that you do.

[10]"You are standing today all of you before the LORD your God: the heads of your tribes, [4] your elders, and your officers, all the men of Israel, [11]your little ones, your wives, and the [m] sojourner who is in your camp, from [n] the one who chops your wood to the one who draws your water, [12][†]so that you may enter into the [o] sworn covenant of the LORD your God, which the LORD your God is making with you today, [13]that he may [p] establish you today as his people, and that [q] he may be your God, as he promised you, and [r] as he swore to your fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. [14]It is not with you alone [s] that I am making this sworn covenant, [15][†]but with whoever is standing here with us today before the LORD our God, [t] and with whoever is not here with us today.

[16]"You know how we lived in the land of Egypt, and how we came through the midst of the nations through which you passed. [17]And you have seen their detestable things, their idols of wood and stone, of silver and gold, which were among them. [18][†]Beware lest there be among you a man or woman or clan or tribe whose heart is turning away today from the LORD our God to go and serve the gods of those nations. Beware lest there be among you [u] a root bearing poisonous and bitter fruit, [19][†]one who, when he hears the words of this sworn covenant, blesses himself in his heart, saying, 'I shall be safe, though I walk in the stubbornness of my heart.' This will lead to the sweeping away of moist and dry alike. [20][†]The LORD will not be willing to forgive him, but rather [v] the anger of the LORD and [w] his jealousy will smoke against that man, and the curses written in this book will settle upon him, and the LORD [x] will blot out his name from under heaven. [21]And the LORD will single him out from all the tribes of Israel for calamity, in accordance with all the curses of the covenant written in this Book of the Law. [22]And the next generation, your children who rise up after you, and the foreigner who comes from a far land, [y] will say, when they see the afflictions of that land and the sicknesses with which the LORD has made it sick— [23][†]the whole land burned out with brimstone and [z] salt, nothing sown and nothing growing, where no plant can sprout, [a] an overthrow like that of Sodom and Gomorrah, [b] Admah, and Zeboiim, which the LORD overthrew in his anger and wrath— [24][†]all the nations [c] will say, [d] ‘Why has the LORD done thus to this land? What caused the heat of this great anger?’ [25]Then people will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of the LORD, the God of their fathers, which he made with them when he brought them out of the land of Egypt, [26]and went and served other gods and worshiped them, gods whom they had not known and whom he had not allotted to them. [27]Therefore the anger of the LORD was kindled against this land, [e] bringing upon it all the curses written in this book, [28]and the LORD [f] uprooted them from their land in anger and fury and great wrath, and [g] cast them into another land, as they are this day.’

[29][†]“The secret things belong to the LORD our God, but the things that are revealed belong to us and to our children forever, that we may do all the words of this law.

Repentance and Forgiveness

DEUTERONOMY 30 [†] [h] “And [i] when all these things come upon you, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before you, and [j] you call them to mind among all the nations where the LORD your God has driven you, [2]and [k] return to the LORD your God, you and your children, and obey his voice in all that I command you today, with all your heart and with all your soul, [3][†]then the LORD your God [l] will restore your fortunes and have mercy on you, and he will [m] gather you again from all the peoples where the LORD your God has scattered you. [4] [n] If your outcasts are in the uttermost parts of heaven, from there the LORD your God will gather you, and from there he will take you. [5][†]And the LORD your God will bring you into the land that your fathers possessed, that you may possess it. [o] And he will make you more prosperous and numerous than your fathers. [6][†]And [p] the LORD your God will circumcise your heart and the heart of your offspring, [q] so that you will love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul, that you may live. [7]And the LORD your God will put all these curses on your foes and enemies who persecuted you. [8]And you shall again obey the voice of the LORD and keep all his commandments that I command you today. [9][†] [r] The LORD your God will make you abundantly prosperous in all the work of your hand, in the fruit of your womb and in the fruit of your cattle and in the fruit of your ground. [s] For the LORD will again take delight in prospering you, as he took delight in your fathers, [10]when you obey the voice of the LORD your God, to keep his commandments and his statutes that are written in this Book of the Law, when you turn to the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul.

[11][†]"For this commandment that I command you today [t] is not too hard for you, neither is it far off. [12][^][†] [u] It is not in heaven, that you should say, 'Who will ascend to heaven for us and bring it to us, that we may hear it and do it?' [13]Neither is it beyond the sea, that you should say, 'Who will go over the sea for us and bring it to us, that we may hear it and do it?' [14]But the word is very near you. It is in your mouth and in your heart, so that you can do it.

[15][†]"See, [v] I have set before you today life and good, death and evil. [16]If you obey the commandments of the LORD your God [1] that I command you today, [w] by loving the LORD your God, by walking in his ways, and by keeping his commandments and his statutes and his rules, [2] then you shall live and multiply, and the LORD your God will bless you in the land that you are entering to take possession of it. [17]But if [x] your heart turns away, and you will not hear, but are drawn away to worship other gods and serve them, [18] [y] I declare to you today, that you shall surely perish. You shall not live long in the land that you are going over the Jordan to enter and possess. [19][†]I call heaven and earth to witness against you today, that I have set before you life and death, [z] blessing and curse. Therefore choose life, that you and your offspring may live, [20]loving the LORD your God, obeying his voice [a] and holding fast to him, for [b] he is your life and length of days, that you may dwell in [c]the land that the LORD swore to your fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give them.”

Joshua to Succeed Moses

DEUTERONOMY 31 [†]So Moses continued to speak these words to all Israel. [2][†]And he said to them, “I am [d]120 years old today. I am no longer able to [e]go out and come in. The LORD has said to me, [f]‘You shall not go over this Jordan.’ [3]The LORD your God [g]himself will go over before you. He will destroy these nations before you, so that you shall dispossess them, and Joshua will go over at your head, [h]as the LORD has spoken. [4][†]And the LORD will do to them [i]as he did to Sihon [j]and Og, the kings of the Amorites, and to their land, when he destroyed them. [5]And the LORD will give them over to you, and you shall do to them [k]according to the whole commandment that I have commanded you. [6][†][l]Be strong and courageous. Do not fear or be in dread of them, [m]for it is the LORD your God who goes with you. [n]He will not leave you or forsake you.”

[7][†]Then [o]Moses summoned Joshua and said to him in the sight of all Israel, [l]“Be strong and courageous, for you shall go with this people into the land that the LORD has sworn to their fathers to give them, and you shall put them in possession of it. [8]It is the LORD [p]who goes before you. He will be with you; [n]he will not leave you or forsake you. [q]Do not fear or be dismayed.”

The Reading of the Law

[9][†]Then Moses [r]wrote this law and gave it to the priests, the sons of Levi, [s]who carried the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and to all the elders of Israel. [10][†]And Moses commanded them, [t]“At the end of every seven years, at the set time in the year of release, at [u]the Feast of Booths, [11]when all Israel comes [v]to appear before the LORD your God at the place that he will choose, [w]you shall read this law before all Israel in their hearing. [12][†][x]Assemble the people, men, women, and little ones, and the sojourner within your towns, that they may hear and learn to fear the LORD your God, and be careful to do all the words of this law, [13]and that their children,

[y] who have not known it, [z] may hear and learn to fear the LORD your God, [a] as long as you live in the land that you are going over the Jordan to possess."

Joshua Commissioned to Lead Israel

[14][†]And the LORD said to Moses, [b] "Behold, the days approach when you must die. Call Joshua and present yourselves in the tent of meeting, that [c] I may commission him." And Moses and Joshua went and presented themselves in the tent of meeting. [15]And [d] the LORD appeared in the tent in a pillar of cloud. And the pillar of cloud stood over the entrance of the tent.

[16][†]And the LORD said to Moses, [b] "Behold, you are about to lie down with your fathers. Then this people will rise and [e] whore after the foreign gods among them in the land that they are entering, and they will [f] forsake me and [g] break my covenant that I have made with them. [17]Then my anger will be kindled against them in that day, and [h] I will forsake them and [i] hide my face from them, and they will be devoured. And many evils and troubles will come upon them, so that they will say in that day, [j] 'Have not these evils come upon us because [k] our God is not among us?' [18]And I will surely hide my face in that day because of all the evil that they have done, because [l] they have turned to other gods.

[19][†]"Now therefore write [m] this song and [n] teach it to the people of Israel. Put it in their mouths, that this song may be [o] a witness for me against the people of Israel. [20]For when I have brought them into the land [p] flowing with milk and honey, which I swore to give to their fathers, and they have eaten and are full and [q] grown fat, [r] they will turn to other gods and serve them, and [s] despise me and [g] break my covenant. [21][†]And when many evils and troubles have come upon them, this song shall confront them as [t] a witness (for it will live unforgotten in the mouths of their offspring). For [u] I know what they are inclined to do even today, before I have brought them into the land that I swore to give." [22]So Moses wrote this song the same day and taught it to the people of Israel.

[23][†] [v] And the LORD [1] commissioned Joshua the son of Nun and said, [w] "Be strong and courageous, for you shall bring the people of Israel into the land that I swore to give them. [x] I will be with you."

[24][†]When Moses had finished [y] writing the words of this law in a book to the very end, [25]Moses commanded [z] the Levites who carried the ark of the covenant of the LORD, [26][^][†]“Take this Book of the Law [a] and put it by the side of the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, that it may be there for [b] a witness against you. [27]For I know how rebellious and [c] stubborn you are. Behold, even today while I am yet alive with you, [d] you have been rebellious against the LORD. How much more after my death! [28][†]Assemble to me all the elders of your tribes and your officers, that I may speak [e] these words in their ears and [f] call heaven and earth to witness against them. [29][†]For I know that after my death [g] you will surely act corruptly and turn aside from the way that I have commanded you. And [h] in the days to come [i] evil will befall you, because you will do what is evil in the sight of the LORD, [j] provoking him to anger through the work of your hands.”

The Song of Moses

[30][†]Then Moses spoke the words of this song until they were finished, in the ears of all the assembly of Israel:

DEUTERONOMY 32 “Give ear, [k] O heavens, and I will speak, and let [l] the earth hear the words of my mouth.
[2] May [m] my teaching drop as the rain, my speech distill as the dew,
like gentle rain upon the tender grass, and [n] like showers upon the herb.
[3] For I will proclaim the name of the LORD;
ascribe [o] greatness to our God!

[4][†] [p] “The Rock, [q] his work is perfect, for [r] all his ways are justice.
A God of faithfulness and [s] without iniquity, just and upright is he.
[5][^][†] They have dealt corruptly with him;
they are no longer his children [t] because they are blemished;

they are [u] a crooked and twisted generation.
6[^][†] Do you thus repay the LORD,
you foolish and senseless people?
Is not he [v] your father, who [w] created you,
who [x] made you and established you?
7[†] [y] Remember the days of old;
consider the years of many generations;
[z] ask your father, and he will show you,
your elders, and they will tell you.
8[†] When the Most High [a] gave to the nations their inheritance, when he [b] divided mankind, he fixed the borders [1] of the peoples
according to the number of the sons of God. [2] 9 But the LORD's portion is his people,
Jacob his allotted heritage.

10 "He found him [c] in a desert land, and in the howling waste of the wilderness;
he [d] encircled him, he cared for him,
he [e] kept him as the apple of his eye.
11[†] [f] Like an eagle that stirs up its nest, that flutters over its young,
spreading out its wings, catching them, bearing them on its pinions,
12 [g] the LORD alone guided him,
[h] no foreign god was with him.
13 [i] He made him ride on the high places of the land, and he ate the produce of the field, and he suckled him with [j] honey out of the rock,
and [k] oil out of [l] the flinty rock.
14[†] Curds from the herd, and milk from the flock, with fat [3] of lambs,
rams of Bashan and goats, with the very finest [4] of the wheat—and you drank foaming wine made from [m]the blood of the grape.

15[†] “But [n]Jeshurun grew fat, and [o]kicked;
[p]you grew fat, stout, and sleek;
[q]then he forsook God [r]who made him and scoffed at [s]the Rock of his salvation.
16 [t]They stirred him to jealousy with strange gods;
with abominations they provoked him to anger.
17 [u]They sacrificed to demons that were no gods, to gods they had never known,
to [v]new gods that had come recently,
whom your fathers had never dreaded.
18 You were unmindful of [w]the Rock that bore [5] you, and you [x]forgot the God who gave you birth.

19 [y]“The LORD saw it and spurned them, because of the provocation of [z]his sons and his daughters.
20[†] And he said, [a]‘I will hide my face from them;
I will see what their end will be,
for they are a perverse generation, children in whom is no faithfulness.
21[^][†] [b]They have made me jealous with what is no god;
they have provoked me to anger [c]with their idols.
So [d]I will make them jealous with those who are no people;
I will provoke them to anger with [e]a foolish nation.
22[†] For [f]a fire is kindled by my anger, and it burns to [g]the depths of Sheol, devours the earth and its increase,
and sets on fire the foundations of the mountains.

23 “‘And I will heap disasters upon them;
[h]I will spend my arrows on them;
24 they shall be wasted with hunger, and devoured by plague
and poisonous pestilence;

I will send [i] the teeth of beasts against them, with the venom of [j] things that crawl in the dust.
25 [k] Outdoors the sword shall bereave, and indoors terror,
for young man and woman alike,
the nursing child with the man of gray hairs.
26 [l] I would have said, “I will cut them to pieces;
[m] I will wipe them from human memory,” 27[†] had I not feared provocation by the enemy, lest their adversaries should misunderstand, lest they should say, [n] “Our hand is triumphant, it was not the Lord who did all this.”’

28 “For they are a nation void of counsel, and there is [o] no understanding in them.
29[†] [p] If they were wise, they would understand this;
they would [q] discern their latter end!
30[†] How could [r] one have chased a thousand, and two have put ten thousand to flight, unless their Rock [s] had sold them, and the Lord had given them up?
31 For [t] their rock is not as our Rock;
[u] our enemies are by themselves.
32 For their vine [v] comes from the vine of Sodom and from the fields of Gomorrah; their grapes are grapes of [w] poison;
their clusters are bitter;
33 their wine is the poison of [x] serpents and the cruel venom of asps.

34 “‘Is not this laid up in store with me,
[y] sealed up in my treasuries?
35[†] [z] Vengeance is mine, and recompense, [6]
[a] for the time when their foot shall slip;
for [b] the day of their calamity is at hand, and their doom comes swiftly.’

36 For [c] the Lord will vindicate [7] his people
[d] and have compassion on his servants, when he sees that their power is gone and there is none remaining, [e] bond or free.
37 Then he will say, [f] ‘Where are their gods,
[g] the rock in which they took refuge,
38 who ate the fat of their sacrifices and drank the wine of their drink offering?
Let them rise up and help you;
let them be your protection!

39[†] “‘See now that [h] I, even I, am he,
and there is no god beside me;
[i] I kill and I make alive;
[j] I wound and I heal;
and there is none that can deliver out of my hand.
40 For [k] I lift up my hand to heaven and swear, As I live forever, 41 if I [l] sharpen my flashing sword [8] and my hand takes hold on judgment,
I will take vengeance on my adversaries and will repay those who hate me.
42 I will make my arrows drunk with blood, and [m] my sword shall devour flesh—with the blood of the slain and the captives, from the [n] long-haired heads of the enemy.’

43[†] [o] “Rejoice with him, O heavens; [9] bow down to him, all gods, [10] for he [p] avenges the blood of his children [11] and takes vengeance on his adversaries.
He repays those who hate him [12] and cleanses [13] his people’s land.” [14]

[44]Moses came and recited all the words of this song in the hearing of the people, he and [q]Joshua [15] the son of Nun. [45]And when Moses had finished speaking all these words to all Israel, [46][†]he said to them, [r]“Take to heart all the words by which I am warning you today, [s]that you may command them to your children, that they may be careful to do all the words of this law. [47]For it is no empty word for you, [t]but your very life, and by this word you shall live long in the land that you are going over the Jordan to possess.”

Moses’ Death Foretold

[48][†]That very day the LORD spoke to Moses, [49][†]“Go up [u]this mountain of the Abarim, Mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab, opposite Jericho, and view the land of Canaan, which I am giving to the people of Israel for a possession. [50]And die on the mountain which you go up, and be gathered to your people, as [v]Aaron your brother died in Mount Hor and was gathered to his people, [51] [w]because you broke faith with me in the midst of the people of Israel at the waters of Meribah-kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin, and because you did not treat me as holy in the midst of the people of Israel. [52]For [x]you shall see the land before you, but you shall not go there, into the land that I am giving to the people of Israel.”

Moses’ Final Blessing on Israel

DEUTERONOMY 33 [†]This is the blessing with which Moses [y]the man of God blessed the people of Israel before his death. [2][†]He said,

[z]“The LORD came from Sinai and dawned from Seir upon us; [1]
he shone forth from Mount Paran;
he came [a]from the ten thousands of holy ones,
with flaming fire [2] at his right hand.
[3] Yes, [b]he loved his people, [3]
[c]all his holy ones were in his [4] hand;
[d]so they followed [5] in your steps, receiving direction from you,

4 when [e]Moses commanded us a law,
as a possession for the assembly of Jacob.
5[†] Thus the Lord [6] [f]became king in [g]Jeshurun, when the heads of the people were gathered,
all the tribes of Israel together.

6[†] [h]“Let Reuben live, and not die, but let his men be few.”

7And this he said of Judah:

“Hear, O Lord, the voice of Judah, and bring him in to his people.
With your hands contend [7] for him, and be a help against his adversaries.”

8[†]And [i]of Levi he said,

“Give to Levi [8] [j]your Thummim, and your Urim to your godly one,
[k]whom you tested at Massah, with whom you quarreled at the waters of Meribah;
9 who said of his father and mother,
‘I regard them not’;
[l]he disowned his brothers and ignored his children.
For [m]they observed your word and kept your covenant.
10[†] [n]They shall teach Jacob your rules and Israel your law;
[o]they shall put incense before you and [p]whole burnt offerings on your altar.
11 Bless, O Lord, his substance, and [q]accept the work of his hands;
crush the loins of his adversaries, of those who hate him, that they rise not again.”

12[†] [r] Of Benjamin he said,

“The beloved of the LORD dwells in safety.
The High God [9] surrounds him all day long,
and dwells between his shoulders.”

13[†]And [s] of Joseph he said,

[t] “Blessed by the LORD be his land, with the choicest gifts of heaven [u] above, [10] and of the deep that crouches beneath, 14 with the choicest fruits of the sun and the rich yield of the months, 15[†] with the finest produce of the ancient mountains and the abundance of [v] the everlasting hills, 16 with the best gifts of the earth and [w] its fullness and the favor of [x] him who dwells in the bush.
May these rest on the head of Joseph,
on the pate of him who is prince among his brothers.
17 [y] A firstborn bull [11]—he has majesty, and his horns are the horns of a [z] wild ox;
with them [a] he shall gore the peoples,
all of them, to the ends of the earth;
[b] they are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh.”

18And of Zebulun he said,

[c] “Rejoice, Zebulun, in your going out, and Issachar, in your tents.
19 They shall call peoples [d] to their mountain;
there they offer [e] right sacrifices;
for they draw from the abundance of the seas and the hidden treasures of the sand.”

20And [f] of Gad he said,

“Blessed be he who enlarges Gad!
Gad crouches [g] like a lion;
he tears off arm and scalp.
[21][†] [h] He chose the best of the land for himself, for there a commander’s portion was reserved;
and [i] he came with the heads of the people, with Israel he executed the justice of the LORD, and his judgments for Israel.”

[22][†]And [j] of Dan he said,

[k] “Dan is a lion’s cub

[23][†]And [m] of Naphtali he said,

“O Naphtali, sated with favor, and full of the blessing of the LORD,
[n] possess the lake [12] and the south.”

[24][†]And [o] of Asher he said,

“Most blessed of sons be Asher;
let him be the favorite of his brothers, and let him [p] dip his foot in oil.
[25] Your bars shall be iron and bronze, and as your days, so shall your strength be.

[26][†] [q] “There is none like God, O [r] Jeshurun, [s] who rides through the heavens to your help, through the skies in his majesty.
[27] The eternal God is your [t] dwelling place, [13] and underneath are the everlasting arms. [14]
And he thrust out the enemy before you and said, ‘Destroy.’
[28] So Israel lived in safety,

[u]Jacob lived [v]alone,[15]
in a land of grain and wine, whose heavens drop down dew.
29[†] Happy are you, O Israel! [w]Who is like you, a people [x]saved by the LORD,
[y]the shield of your help,
and the sword of your triumph!
Your enemies shall come fawning to you, and you shall tread upon their backs.”

The Death of Moses

DEUTERONOMY 34 [†]Then Moses went up from the plains of Moab [a]to Mount Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, which is opposite Jericho. And the LORD showed him all the land, Gilead as far as Dan, 2all Naphtali, the land of Ephraim and Manasseh, all the land of Judah [b]as far as the western sea, 3[c]the Negeb, and [d]the Plain, that is, the Valley of Jericho [e]the city of palm trees, as far as [f]Zoar. 4[†]And the LORD said to him, [g]“This is the land of which I swore to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, ‘I will give it to your offspring.’ [h]I have let you see it with your eyes, but [i]you shall not go over there.” 5[†]So Moses the servant of the LORD died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the LORD, 6[†]and he buried him in the valley in the land of Moab opposite Beth-peor; but [j]no one knows the place of his burial to this day. 7[k]Moses was 120 years old when he died. [l]His eye was undimmed, and his vigor unabated. 8And the people of Israel [m]wept for Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days. Then the days of weeping and mourning for Moses were ended.

9[†]And Joshua the son of Nun was full of [n]the spirit of wisdom, for [o]Moses had laid his hands on him. So [p]the people of Israel obeyed him and did as the LORD had commanded Moses. 10[^][†]And there has not [q]arisen a prophet since in Israel like Moses, [r]whom the LORD knew face to face, 11none like him for all [s]the signs and the wonders that the LORD sent him to do in the land of Egypt, to Pharaoh and to all his servants and to all his land, 12and for all the mighty power and all the great deeds of terror that Moses did in the sight of all Israel.

Study Notes for Deuteronomy

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:1–5 Prologue. This first, brief section provides the chronological and geographical setting of Deuteronomy, identifying the speaker and audience as well as summarizing that the book is an exposition of the law. It parallels the preamble sections of ancient covenant treaties.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:1 The Hebrew name of Deuteronomy (Debarim; lit., "The words") is taken from the opening phrase, These are the words. This opening informs the reader that the bulk of Deuteronomy, up to the end of ch. 30, is the spoken words of Moses. Moses has been the leader of Israel since early in the book of Exodus, called by God to that role at the burning bush (Exodus 3). Deuteronomy is Moses' final speech before his death. all Israel. Deuteronomy emphasizes the unity of the people. beyond the Jordan. That is, east of the Jordan River, on the north end of the Dead Sea. Since leaving Egypt and crossing the Red Sea, Israel has been in the wilderness for 40 years (Exodus 14–15; see Ex. 15:22). Arabah. The low Jordan Valley and area surrounding the Dead Sea. Suph … Dizahab. These are places that Israel passed through en route to Moab. Numbers 12:16 mentions Paran and Hazeroth. Suph, Tophel, Laban, and Dizahab are not mentioned elsewhere in the OT.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:2 Horeb is the name used in Deuteronomy for Mount Sinai (except see 33:2), where Israel received the commandments (Ex. 19:1–Num. 10:12). Kadesh-barnea. A town on the southern border of the Promised Land where Israel camped (Num. 13:26).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:3–4 The juxtaposition of "eleven days" (v. 2) with fortieth year highlights the time lost in reaching the border of the Promised Land. The 40-year delay was God's punishment for Israel's failure to enter the land (Num. 14:33–34). As in Deut. 1:1, Moses spoke, here stressing his faithfulness in speaking according to all that the LORD had given him in commandment to them. Deuteronomy rarely distinguishes between God's words and Moses' words. defeated Sihon. See Num. 21:21–35. Heshbon and Bashan were east of the Jordan, north of where Deuteronomy is set (see Deut. 1:1, 5).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:5 The repeated mention of beyond the Jordan (also v. 1) underscores that Israel is not yet in the Promised Land. (Moab is "beyond" the Jordan, i.e., on the east side, from the perspective of Canaan.) Unlike their fighting against Sihon and Og (v. 4), Israel had not fought against Moab en route to the Promised Land. This law refers to the entire law given to Israel at Sinai (Ex. 19:1–Num. 10:12). Moses' task is not simply to repeat that law but to expound it (in effect, to preach it) so that Israel will newly accept the law before crossing the Jordan to conquer the land. At Sinai, Israel verbally agreed to the covenant law's obligations (Ex. 24:3) but did not behave accordingly. Hence in Deuteronomy Moses exhorts Israel to a covenant renewal with God.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:6–4:43 Moses' First Speech: Historical Prologue. Moses' first speech rehearses Israel's past failure at Kadesh near the beginning of the 40-year wilderness period as well as its passing through Edom, Moab, and Ammon without fighting, its successes over Heshbon and Bashan, and the distribution of those two lands. Chapter 4 is an exhortation that functions as a transition from the history in chs. 1–3 to the rehearsal of the Ten Commandments in ch. 5. The purpose of chs. 1–3 is not simply to retell history but to use history to persuade Israel to trust God so the land will be conquered. Deuteronomy 1:6–3:29 parallels the historical prologue of ancient covenant treaties (see Introduction: Structure). Chapter 4 does not readily parallel such treaties.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:6–8 Introduction to First Speech. Moses' first speech, or sermon, begins by focusing on the land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:6 Deuteronomy typically names God as the Lord our (or your) God. "Lord" is Yahweh, the personal and covenantal name for God revealed to Moses (Ex. 3:14–15; see note on Gen. 2:4).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:7 Turn. Israel left Sinai in Num. 10:11ff. Amorites. A general term for the occupants of the land. The descriptions of the land reflect its geography, roughly east to west. Arabah. See note on Deut. 1:1. The hill country is the ridge of higher mountains overlooking the Jordan Valley from the west. The lowland is the next strip of land to the west, with low, undulating hills. The Negeb is the arid land across the south, which becomes desert. Seacoast refers to the flat Mediterranean coastline. In general terms, the land is occupied by Canaanites (a term virtually synonymous at this time with "Amorites," mentioned earlier in the verse). Lebanon lies to the north. The river Euphrates lies even farther north and east. Cf. the description of the land in the promise to Abraham (Gen. 15:18–21).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:8 See has a sense of urgency, for it is a time of decision: from the plains of Moab Israel can now survey the land before it. Take possession of the land is a common command in Deuteronomy (e.g., 1:21, 39; 2:24, 31; 3:18; 4:1, 5, 14, 22, etc.). fathers. See 1:11, 21; 4:1; 6:3; 10:11; 12:1; 26:7; 27:3; 29:25. The promise of land was made first to Abraham (Gen. 12:7; 15:18–21), reiterated to Isaac (Gen. 26:4), and then to Jacob (Gen. 28:13; 35:12; cf. Deut. 6:10; 9:5; 29:13; 30:20; 34:4). The promises to the three patriarchs included land for their offspring after them. Moses is emphasizing that the current generation of Israel is included in the promises and God intends to keep his promise of the land. Thus the patriarchal reference functions rhetorically to persuade Israel to go in and possess the land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:9–18 Encouragement to Trust in the Land of Promise. Before rehearsing the departure from Horeb as v. 6 anticipated, Moses recalls the appointment of tribal heads to help Moses judge and lead the people (Ex. 18:18–26; cf. Num. 11:14ff.). Rather than digressing from the theme of the land, this section reminds Israel that God has already been faithful to another part of the Abrahamic promises, namely, offspring.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:10 numerous as the stars of heaven. Cf. the promise to Abraham of offspring (Gen. 15:5). Having just exhorted Israel regarding the promise of land in Gen. 15:18–21 (a promise yet to be fulfilled), Moses refers to a promise already fulfilled in order to stir up Israel's faith that God will keep the land promise.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:12–18 The need for leaders to help Moses is tangible evidence that the promise to Abraham of offspring has been fulfilled. In the Exodus parallel (Ex. 18:13–26), Moses' father-in-law, Jethro, encourages Moses to appoint tribal heads to share in judging between disputants.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:13 The process to appoint leaders involved the people nominating the judges and Moses confirming them; Ex. 18:25 simply summarizes that Moses chose them.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:16–17 alien. Aliens were non-Israelites who resided in the land and accepted Israelite rule and law but did not own land and were hence vulnerable to oppression. Deuteronomy consistently upholds the equal rights of aliens and Israelites (e.g., 10:19; 14:29; 16:11, 14; 24:14, 17, 19–21; 26:11–13; 27:19). You shall not be partial in judgment. Impartiality is a prerequisite for good judgment as well as a characteristic of God himself (10:17).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:19–46 Israel's Failure at Kadesh Recalled. This section rehearses Israel's failure to enter the land at Kadesh some 38 years previously (already alluded to in vv. 3–4; cf. Numbers 13–14) in order to warn the current generation not to repeat the sins of their parents. Israel is theologically at the same point as they were at Kadesh, namely, on the border of the Promised Land. The question is whether or not they will repeat the same mistake.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:20–21 to you. Strictly speaking, the addressees at Kadesh were the parents of the current generation, who were either children at that time or were born afterward. However, the repetition of "you" throughout Deuteronomy (cf. 4:15; 5:3) treats the current generation as having been present through their parents and thus incorporates the current generation in their parents' sin. This pessimistically suggests that the current generation is no different from their predecessors (cf. 1:3). Do not fear is a common command in the Scriptures; God alone is to be feared (10:12; 13:4).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:23–25 twelve men. See Num. 13:4–15. The Valley of Eshcol is close to Hebron and still renowned for its fruit. good land. See also Deut. 1:35; 3:25; 4:21–22; 6:18; 8:7, 10; 9:6; 11:17. Moses does not repeat all the details of what the spies said, particularly their "bad report" (Num. 13:32), or describe Caleb's positive minority report.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:26 Yet. The positive report of the spies in v. 25 is sharply juxtaposed with the people's rebellion in v. 26. Deuteronomy highlights Israel's culpability, reinforcing the warning for the current generation not to follow in their parents' footsteps.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:27–28 murmured. See Num. 14:1–4. This was not the only time Israel murmured in complaint during the 40-year wilderness period, though the word used here (Hb. ragan) is rare (cf. Ps. 106:25). Because the LORD hated us. In their sin, Israel attributed to God the opposite motive for his action (cf. Deut. 9:28, and the attitude of the people in Num. 14:1–4). The words attributed to the spies in Numbers (cf. Num. 13:28–29) are repeated by the people in Deuteronomy. Anakim were reputed to be giants (Num. 13:22, 28, 33; cf. Deut. 2:10, 11, 21; 9:2). Israel's fear expressed here is addressed by Moses in chs. 2–3.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:29–31 Do not be … afraid. See v. 21. This exhortation is grounded in past experience of the plagues and the exodus from Egypt (see Exodus 7–14) and the wilderness provision (see also Deut. 1:33). before your eyes … you have seen. Even though this is the next generation (see note on vv. 20–21), Moses sees the nation as a unity and addresses his audience as though they were there with the previous generation. carried you, as a man carries his son. The image is tender and loving, repudiating the false claim of v. 27.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:32–33 you did not believe. Unbelief parallels rebellion (v. 26). fire by night and in the cloud by day. See Ex. 13:21.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:34–36 God's anger at Israel's sin resulted in the 40-year wilderness period, preventing the first generation from entering the land. God's mention of good land makes it clear that he agrees with the spies' report (v. 25) and rejects the people's ill-founded fear and unbelief. Caleb was one of the 12 spies who gave the minority report (Num. 13:30) and advocated entry into the land. wholly followed. See Num. 14:24.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:37–38 Even with me. Moses' failure, which prevented his entry into the land, was not related to the spies' incident but occurred when he struck the rock in self-exalting anger at Meribah (see note on Num. 20:2–13). on your account. Moses says that his own sin was provoked by Israel. See also Deut. 3:26; 4:21; 32:51. Joshua the son of Nun is first mentioned in Ex. 17:9–14. He was Moses' assistant (Ex. 24:13) and one of the 12 spies (Num. 13:8). With Caleb, he advocated entry into the land (Num. 14:6–9). Joshua succeeded Moses as leader of Israel (Num. 27:18; Deut. 31:3).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:39 have no knowledge of good or evil. The expression suggests very young children before they are old enough to distinguish between right and wrong. The need for discernment between good and evil is enforced in 30:15–20.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 1:42–44 If God does not fight for Israel, defeat is assured (cf. v. 30). you would not listen. Israel stubbornly continues to refuse to heed God's word (see 9:6–7). chased you as bees do. Cf. Ex. 23:28. Instead of fighting for Israel, God now fights against it.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:1–23 Israel Passes through Edom, Moab, and Ammon. Moses continues to recount past history, jumping to near the end of the 40-year wilderness period and recalling Israel's peaceful passage through three nations distantly related to it (see Num. 20:14–21:20). This passage reminds Israel of God's care in bringing them so far and counters their fear of the inhabitants of the land (see Deut. 1:28) so that they now may enter the land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:1 Red Sea. This probably includes the Gulf of Aqaba, the northeastern arm of the Red Sea. Mount Seir is south of the Dead Sea, in the land of Edom (see 1:2).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:2–4 the LORD said to me. This expression occurs seven times in chs. 1–3, giving Moses a prophetic role (i.e., as God's authorized spokesman). long enough. See also 1:6. This formally announces the end of the 40-year wilderness wandering. your brothers. The nation of Edom was descended from Jacob's twin brother, Esau (Gen. 25:30; 32:3; 36:1). Deuteronomy does not call the nation "Edom," instead referring either to Seir or Esau, perhaps to stress the blood relationship. The Israelites need to be very careful not to provoke Edom against them (see Num. 20:18–21).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:5 as a possession. This rare expression also occurs in vv. 9, 19 with respect to Moab and Ammon (and in v. 12 with respect to Israel's future possession). God has given land to Edom, Moab, and Ammon and forbids Israel to attempt taking that land, presumably because of the blood relationships through Esau and Lot. The point is God's ability to give and protect land, thus encouraging Israel to trust him.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:6–7 Israel is not to be indebted to anyone other than God. This is a frequent theme in Deuteronomy (see 14:29; 15:10; 16:15; 24:19; 30:9). Israel lacked nothing, for God provided food and water when they ran short (Exodus 16–17; Numbers 11).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:8 Elath and Ezion-geber were seaports on the Red Sea at the Gulf of Aqaba (see v. 1). The Arabah road ran from these towns northward to the Dead Sea. Israel is now heading in a northeasterly direction.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:9 Moab, like Ammon (v. 19), was descended from Lot, Abraham's nephew (Gen. 19:37).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:10–12 This section, like vv. 20–23, is very important in Moses' argument. The people whom God dispossessed in order to give Moab its land included the Anakim (also v. 21), the very people Israel feared (see 1:28). The point is that Israel has no reason to fear them. God is more powerful. Rephaim, like Anakim, were so tall that the people of Israel thought of them as "giants" (cf. Num. 13:32–33; see also Deut. 2:20; 3:11, 13). Both Emim and Rephaim are mentioned in Gen. 14:5. Edom's possession is a model to encourage Israel. The land of their possession may refer only to the Transjordanian land Israel possessed already (Deut. 2:24–3:17). Horites. See Gen. 14:6; 36:20–30.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:13–15 The wadi (or brook) Zered (a wadi is a river that usually flows only after rain) was the border between Edom and Moab. thirty-eight years. God's decree after the spies incident, that the adult generation of Israel then living would die in the wilderness (Num. 14:22–23, 35), has been fulfilled. The hand of the LORD suggests pestilence (e.g., Ex. 9:3, 15; 1 Sam. 5:6–11).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:20–23 See note on vv. 10–12. The Zamzummim are probably the same as the Zuzim (Gen. 14:5). Avvim. See Josh. 13:3 and 18:23. Caphtorim. See Gen. 10:14 and Jer. 47:4. Possibly Caphtor was Crete, the original home of the Philistines.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:24–37 Israel Defeats Heshbon. Moses recounts Israel's first conquest (see Num. 21:21–30).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:24–25 The wadi Arnon (see note on vv. 13–15) flowed into the Dead Sea and marked the border between Moab to the south and Amorite territory and Ammon to the north. Begin to take possession. See 1:21. Even though Heshbon lies in Transjordan, in a sense its conquest marks the beginning of possessing the Promised Land (see Josh. 12:1–6). Sihon the Amorite. See note on Deut. 1:3–4. According to Gen. 15:16, the land would be given to Israel when the iniquity of the Amorites was complete, and now that time has come. Thus the defeat of various nations represents God's punishment for their iniquity (Deut. 18:12). (See Introduction to Joshua: The Destruction of the Canaanites.) In holy war, enemies tremble before the Lord (Ex. 15:14; see also Josh. 4:24–5:1).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:26 Heshbon was a fertile land (Song 7:4), north of Moab and Ammon on the east of the Jordan River. The offer of words of peace does not seem to match the instruction to fight in Deut. 2:24. Perhaps Israel was reluctant to obey and fight.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:30 God hardened his spirit and made his heart obstinate just as with Pharaoh during the series of plagues (Ex. 9:12; 10:1–2, 20, 27; 11:9–10; 14:4, 8, 17–18). as he is this day. Expressions like this occur regularly in Deuteronomy (Deut. 4:20, 38; 6:24; 8:18; 10:15; 29:28) to give Israel confidence in God's power and faithfulness.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:32 Jahaz is mentioned in Josh. 13:18 and 21:36–37, along with Kedemoth (Deut. 2:26).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:34–35 devoted to destruction. The total destruction of Sihon's cities and people reflects God's instructions for battle within the Promised Land (see note on 20:16–18). This emphasis is absent in the parallel account in Numbers 21. Since God is the victor, the spoils of battle belong to him and not to Israel, hence their destruction as an act of devotion to God.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 2:36–37 Aroer was on the northern bank of the Arnon. Gilead is the name given generally to the Transjordanian territory. The Jabbok River (cf. Gen. 32:22) in part marked the border of Ammon and Gilead.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:1–11 Israel Defeats Bashan. This section recounts Israel's second Transjordanian victory (see Num. 21:31–35). Like Sihon, Og was also an Amorite (Deut. 3:8).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:1 Bashan is the area northeast of the Sea of Galilee. Edrei was a town on the southern border of Bashan (see map).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:5–7 cities fortified. See 1:28. In recounting these victories, Moses seeks to persuade Israel to cross the Jordan, not fearing the enemy but trusting in God's power. devoted them to destruction. See note on 2:34–35.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:8–10 Mount Hermon (9,232 feet/2,814 m) is a snowcapped mountain at Israel's northern border with Lebanon and Syria (see Ps. 42:6; 89:12; 133:3). The alternative names Sirion and Senir are also found in ancient Ugaritic, Hittite, and Assyrian documents. Salecah lay on the southeastern edge of Bashan (Josh. 12:5; 13:11).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:11 Rephaim. See note on 2:10–12. Rabbah, capital of Ammon (2 Sam. 11:1; Amos 1:13–14), is modern-day Amman, Jordan. Og's bed of iron was over 13 feet (4 m) long and 6 feet (1.8 m) wide. This may refer to his coffin. The reference reminds Israel that the "giant" Rephaim have been killed and that Israel's fear of them (see Deut. 1:28) is unfounded. The common cubit (different from a royal cubit) was approximately 18 inches (46 cm).

Deuteronomy reviews how the Israelites defeated King Sihon when he refused them passage through his land and attacked them at Jahaz. Soon afterward, the Israelites spied out Jazer and captured it. As they headed north from Jazer, the Israelites were attacked by King Og's forces at Edrei, but they defeated him and took control of his land as well.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:12–17 Distribution of Transjordanian Land. These verses recapitulate the distribution of the lands of Sihon and Og to the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh (Num. 32:1–42; 34:13–15). The repeat of this in Deuteronomy underscores that the possession of the Promised Land has begun, which should make Israel more confident to cross the Jordan and conquer the remaining land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:14 Cf. Num. 32:41, which implies Jair's villages were in Gilead, not Bashan (also Judg. 10:4). The Geshurites and Maacathites were separate kingdoms bordering Bashan to the west. They were not conquered by Joshua (Josh. 13:13) and remained independent in David's time (2 Sam. 3:3; 10:6).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:15 Machir was the son of Manasseh (Gen. 50:23). Here it refers to his descendants, a subsection of the tribe of Manasseh (see also Josh. 17:1).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:17 Chinnereth is another name for the Sea of Galilee. Pisgah is the peak of Mount Nebo, overlooking Jericho and the north end of the Dead Sea, the place where Moses dies (v. 27; 34:1–4).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:18–22 Command to All Israelites to Fight. Two and a half tribes already possess their land, but they are commanded here to join the remaining tribes to conquer the land west of the Jordan and only then return to inhabit their Transjordanian land. Wives and children of all tribes are to stay in Transjordan and await the completed conquest.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:18 men of valor. A military term, suggesting warriors or troops.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:20 Though rest here conveys simply peace after warfare, it is a theologically rich term, suggesting the well-being of God's people in God's place under his rule. Thus the notion hints back to the seventh day of creation (cf. Ex. 20:11) and forward to a permanent rest (Ps. 95:7–11; Heb. 3:7–4:11). Cf. Deut. 12:10; 25:19; Josh. 1:13, 15; 21:44; 22:4; 23:1.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:21–22 The conquests of Sihon and Og give the Israelites a model of the future conquest under Joshua. Unlike its experience 38 years previously at Kadesh, Israel is not to fear the enemy. If God fights, victory is assured (1:30, 42; see also 31:6, 8).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:23–29 Reiteration of Moses Being Denied Entry into the Land. As already mentioned in 1:37–38, it is reiterated that the Lord had denied Moses entry into the land and that Joshua would succeed him. In light of the significant cloud that Moses' death would cast over Israel's enthusiasm for entry into the land, the emphasis here lies more on encouraging Joshua so that he is well-equipped to continue on from Moses' leadership.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:24 O Lord GOD is a standard form for beginning a prayer (cf. 9:26).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:26–28 because of you. See 1:37 and notes on 1:37–38; 4:21–22. Pisgah. See 3:17 and note. Joshua (see 1:38 and note on 1:37–38) is commissioned by Moses in 31:7–8 and by the Lord in 31:23. See also Josh. 1:1–9.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 3:29 Beth-peor was the location of another act of rebellion in Israel's wilderness years, when Israel worshiped the Baal of Peor (Num. 25:1–5). "Beth-peor" means "house or temple of Peor," perhaps referring to the altars Balaam had built there (Num. 23:28–29).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:1–40 Exhortation to Israel. Chapter 4 is more obviously exhortation than chs. 1–3, though they were also seeking to persuade and convince Israel to enter the land. Chapter 4 provides a transition into the legal section of Deuteronomy.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:1 And now. The speech turns from recounting the past to exhortation. Listen is a common injunction in Deuteronomy (5:1; 6:3, 4; 9:1; etc.) and means "heed and obey." As is often the case, the command to listen and obey carries a motive clause to encourage that behavior: that you may live, and go in and take possession. Land possession is not linked to military strategy or strength but to comprehensive obedience of the statutes and the rules that govern all aspects of life. As is common in Deuteronomy, mention of the land is qualified by reference to the patriarchs (fathers) in order to stimulate Israel's trust in God's faithfulness (see note on 1:8).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:2 The authority and sufficiency of God's word is implied in the command not add … nor take from. Israel is to submit to God's entire word (see also 12:32). Such a command is necessary because of their persistent rebellion in the previous 40 years. For similar commands, see Prov. 30:6; Eccles. 3:14; Rev. 22:18–19.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:3–4 Your eyes have seen. See also 3:21. Baal-peor. See 3:29 and note. Held fast describes faithfulness to a covenant, as in marriage (Gen. 2:24), and is commanded of all Israel (e.g., Deut. 10:20; 13:4). Those who held fast rejected pagan worship and are therefore alive today as an example of the promise of 4:1 (that those who obey will live) being fulfilled.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:6 Part of the incentive to keep the commandments is missiological. Obedience will show to other nations Israel's wisdom and understanding, akin to the moral wisdom encouraged in Proverbs. Such wisdom will draw attention not only to Israel but ultimately to Israel's God (as epitomized by the queen of Sheba's visit with Solomon; 1 Kings 10), a pattern intended by the Abrahamic covenant (Gen. 12:3).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:7–8 so near. In the verses following, the Lord's nearness at Mount Horeb is recalled, though v. 7 has in mind an ongoing nearness, notably in answering prayer. In Deuteronomy that nearness comes through God's word (30:14) and his presence in the midst of the people. See also 1 Kings 8:52. In comparison with other nations, Israel's law is emphasized as righteous in order to encourage Israel to keep the laws of the following chapters and not to regard them as unduly onerous.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:9 take care. Like all fallen humans, Israel's natural tendency is to ignore, forget, or disobey. Their failure in the past 40 years adds testimony to this warning. Make them known to your children. See 6:7; 11:19. Each generation has the responsibility of instructing the next generation in the faith.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:12 saw no form; there was only a voice. The emphasis here, and in the second commandment (5:8–9), is that worship of an image is prohibited, since God's self-revelation was audible, not visible. Despite this, notice "your eyes have seen" in 4:3, 9, and "before your eyes" in v. 34.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:13–14 Though not the entirety of the Sinai covenant, the Ten Commandments (lit., “Ten Words”) sum it up. They alone of God’s commands were spoken audibly to all Israel and were written by God on the two stone tablets (Ex. 20:1, 18–19; 24:12). The emphasis on covenant stresses the relational nature of the law (cf. Ex. 19:5; 20:2). The statutes and rules are the other laws given at Sinai, spoken only to Moses, who was instructed to teach them to Israel (Exodus 21–Leviticus 27).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:15–19 The absence of a visible form for God now gives reason for prohibiting the worship of idols and images (cf. the second commandment, 5:8–9).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:20 The Lord’s saving acts in bringing Israel out from slavery (iron furnace; see also 1 Kings 8:51; Jer. 11:4) in Egypt give cause to worship. His own inheritance suggests privilege and intimacy (see Deut. 9:26, 29). Israel is the Lord’s inheritance; the land is Israel’s inheritance (4:21, etc.), though the landless tribe of Levi has the Lord as their inheritance (10:9; 12:12; 18:1).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:21–22 because of you. See notes on 1:37–38; 3:26–28. good land. The land was described as “good” by the spies (1:25; cf. 1:35). The repeated emphasis serves as encouragement to Israel to enter.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:23–24 A return to the prohibition of idolatry. Take care again suggests the ease with which people fall into idolatry (see v. 19 and note on v. 9). From the iron furnace of Egypt (v. 20) to a consuming fire (cf. 5:25; 9:3): Israel’s covenant relationship with the Lord is to be exclusive. God is jealous for his people’s unqualified allegiance. This is in fact the language of love (see also 5:9; 6:15; 9:3; cf. Heb. 12:29).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:25–26 Calling on elements of nature to testify to an oath is a common feature of ancient Near Eastern covenant documents. See also 30:19 and 31:28.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:27–28 scatter. See 28:64–68. few in number. See 28:62. The punishment for idolatry is exile to a pagan land; God will hand Israel over to an idolatrous nation to continue the sinful practice (cf.

Rom. 1:24, 26, 28). Sarcasm is expressed here that other gods neither see, nor hear, nor eat, nor smell (see Ps. 115:4–7; 135:15–17).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:29–30 Exile is not the end. There remains hope of repentance and return (see 30:1–10). with all your heart and with all your soul. See note on 6:5. obey his voice. Returning to the Lord means forsaking the worship of visible forms and obeying his commands. See note on 4:12.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:31 merciful. God's mercy does not compromise his jealous anger (v. 24; cf. 5:9–10; Ex. 34:6–7). In Deuteronomy, mercy is grounded in the Lord's faithfulness to the Abrahamic promises (9:27; 30:5, 20). God will maintain his covenant with Abraham, even if Israel forgets it (4:23; see Rom. 3:3–4). God also swore those promises under oath (Gen. 22:16; Heb. 6:13, 17–18). Cf. note on Deut. 1:8.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:32–34 The Lord's approach to Israel at Sinai is the greatest event in any time (since the day that God created man) or any place (one end of heaven to the other). The theme of Israel's uniqueness resumes from vv. 5–20. By a mighty hand and an outstretched arm represents God's power (see 5:15; 7:19; 9:29; 11:2; 26:8; Ex. 3:19–20).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:35–36 that you might know. The plagues were revelatory, so that Israel, as well as Pharaoh and Egypt, might know the Lord (Ex. 6:7). there is no other. See also Deut. 4:39; cf. 5:7; 6:4; 32:39. Deuteronomy asserts clear monotheism (belief in only one true God; see Mark 12:32). God is sovereign both in heaven and on earth.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:37–39 Juxtaposed with God's universal sovereignty is his love of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (see notes on 1:8; 4:31). loved. A key, and unique, theme of Deuteronomy is the love of God for the patriarchs (here and 10:15), or for his people in general (5:10; 7:9, 12–13; 23:5), and Israel's reciprocal love for God (6:5; 7:9; 10:12; 11:1, 13, 22; 13:3; 19:9; 30:6, 16, 20). as it is this day. See note on 2:30. know … and lay it to your heart. Deuteronomy is constantly concerned with the state of Israel's heart (see 6:4–5; 7:17; 8:2, 17; 9:4; 10:16).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:41–43 Setting Apart Cities of Refuge. Three cities, Bezer, Ramoth, and Golan, are set apart in Transjordan as places to which a person guilty of manslaughter can flee to evade revenge from the dead person's family (see also Num. 35:9–28). In Deut. 19:1–13, three more cities west of the Jordan are set apart for the same purpose.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:44–11:32 Moses' Second Speech: General Covenant Stipulations. The first part of Moses' second speech largely consists of general covenant stipulations. More specific stipulations follow in chs. 12–16.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 4:44–49 Introduction to Moses' Second Speech. These verses provide the geographical and historical setting of the second speech. See 2:24–3:29.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:1–21 The Ten Commandments. As in Exodus 20–24, the Ten Commandments stand at the head of the law given at Sinai (see Ex. 20:1–17). In many respects, the detailed laws of Deuteronomy 12–26 follow the general pattern of the Ten Commandments, suggesting that the Ten Commandments function as a summary of God's requirements for his people. All but the Sabbath commandment (5:12–15) and the commandment against carved images (vv. 8–10) are explicitly reinforced in the NT.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:1 Hear, O Israel often introduces new and important sections; cf. 4:1; 6:4; 9:1; 20:3. Statutes and the rules covers all the ethical teaching of Deuteronomy.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:3 Not with our fathers … but with us. In reality, the Horeb covenant (Exodus 19–24) was made with the previous generation. However, generations are conflated to make a rhetorical point: the current generation is just as bound by the covenant at Horeb as their parents were. See notes on Deut. 1:20–21 and 1:29–31. See also 4:10; 11:2–9; 29:13–15.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:5 you were afraid. See vv. 22–27.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:6 The Ten Commandments begin with a statement of a preexisting relationship with the Lord (your God) and recognition of his prior action in saving Israel. Obedience to the Ten Commandments and laws in general therefore does not earn the relationship but is a response of faith to God’s grace.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:7 no other gods. Exclusive worship of the Lord is an obvious corollary of his incomparability (4:35, 39). The Israelites were not the only monotheists in antiquity. The Egyptian Pharaoh Akhenaton (Amenophis IV, ruled c. 1350–1334 B.C.) worshiped the Aton, i.e., the sun god, as the only God. But this brand of monotheism is distinctly different: the Aton is personified in the sun, and he is impersonal and mechanistic. Yahweh is not part of creation; he is personal, ethical, and is in covenant with his people.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:8 a carved image. The prohibition of images and likenesses derives from the argument of 4:12, 15–19, 23 that at Horeb, God’s revelation was audible but not visible.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:9–10 jealous. See 4:24 and note on 4:23–24. visiting the iniquity. This is not God punishing innocent children for up to four generations (see 7:10). Rather, up to four generations of those who hate God may suffer the effects of their ancestors’ sins or even continue in the same sins. See also Ex. 34:6–7. The view that innocent children suffer for their parents’ sins is opposed in Jer. 31:29–30 and Ezek. 18:2–4. But contrasts God’s treatment of those who hate him with his treatment of those who love him. God’s steadfast love far outlasts the effects of sin on subsequent generations.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:11 To take the name is to utter it, as in an oath (cf. Ps. 16:4); in vain indicates “for a worthless purpose” (e.g., deceitfully). This commandment thus prohibits using God’s name when making a vow or oath that is intentionally left unfulfilled. It also prohibits perjury, as well as the wrong attribution of character or motive to God (such as in Deut. 1:27).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:12–14 Sabbath rest also applies to domestic animals and to the sojourner who is within your gates (v. 14), i.e., foreigners who take up permanent residence in Israel and accept its rules but cannot own land (see note on 1:16–17). The work prohibited is not defined here, but see Ex. 34:21; 35:3; Num. 15:32–36.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:15 Unlike the parallel in Ex. 20:11 (which presents Sabbath keeping as imitating God's rest after the creation, cf. Gen. 2:1–3), the motivation for the Sabbath rest here is Israel's liberation from slavery. (Cf. Ex. 31:12–17, which brings together the themes of creation and Israel as God's special covenant people as the grounds for Sabbath observance.) Israel is frequently urged in Deuteronomy to remember their slavery in the land of Egypt as a spur to keeping the law (Deut. 15:15; 16:12; 24:18, 22). Remembering is often linked to obedience (7:18; 8:2, 18; 9:7; 11:2; 16:3; 24:9; 25:17; 32:7).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:16 that your days may be long. See also 4:40; 5:33; 6:2; 11:9; 25:15; 30:18. This did not merely mean a long life, but one that experienced God's presence and favor: that it may go well with you. This motivation is absent in Ex. 20:12; see note on Deut. 1:5. (See also 4:40; 5:29, 33; 6:3, 18; etc.)

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:17 You shall not murder. The verb used here (Hb. ratsakh) includes both the unlawful or immoral killing of another human being (the specific meaning of the English word "murder") and also (see esv footnote at Ex. 20:13) causing the death of another human being through careless or negligent behavior (as in Deut. 19:4–6; cf. Num. 35:22–25). This verb is never used in the OT of killing in war. The exact opposite of murder is commanded in Lev. 19:18, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:18 you shall not commit adultery. This specific prohibition is against having sexual relations with a person who is married to someone else, but it implies a broader concern for sexual purity shown in the detailed laws about other kinds of sexual sin (21:10–23:14). Both 5:21 and Matt. 5:28 show that God was concerned not only with outward conformity to this law but also with purity of heart.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:19 you shall not steal. This command requires each Israelite to respect a neighbor's property (thus promoting honest labor as the means of earning wealth). A right to personal ownership of property is implied: the obligation not to steal a neighbor's animal (see v. 21) indicates that the neighbor has a right to keep the animal as personal property.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:20 you shall not bear false witness. “Bearing witness” suggests a legal trial in which false testimony could lead to punishment for the neighbor, so the command prohibits a hateful lie. For detailed laws concerning false witness, see 19:16–21; 25:1–16; for a more general directive about truth-telling, see Lev. 19:11.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:21 Unlike the parallel in Ex. 20:17, the neighbor’s wife is listed first and with a different verb (covet) from the possessions of the husband (desire), setting her apart as no mere possession. God requires purity of heart with regard to the seventh (Deut. 5:18) and the eighth (5:19) commandments, and, by implication, all 10 (cf. Matt. 5:21–30).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:22–33 Israel Requests Moses to Mediate God’s Law. Having heard the Ten Commandments audibly, Israel fears continuing to hear the Lord’s voice and requests Moses to relay to them all the following laws, a request to which the Lord consents.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:22 Each of the two tablets of stone probably contained the full Ten Commandments, following ancient Near Eastern treaty practice. Both copies were later placed inside the ark of the covenant. The remainder of Israel’s law was written by Moses in a book and kept beside the ark (31:24–26).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:27 we will hear and do it. Israel’s fear at hearing God’s voice (see also Ex. 20:18–21) is accompanied by their pledge of obedience.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:29 God’s wish is that their holy and appropriate fear at the theophany of Horeb would become a permanent fear of the Lord in their hearts (see note on 1:20–21).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 5:32–33 not turn aside to the right hand or to the left. God’s way is likened to a straight path. See also 2:27; 17:11, 20; 28:14. walk in all the way. See also 8:6; 9:16; 10:12; 11:22; 19:9; 26:17; 28:9; 30:16; 31:29.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:1–25 The Greatest Commandment. These verses contain one of the great commandments, namely, to love God with all of one’s power (v. 5), which follows the famous statement of the uniqueness of God (v. 4). The section comprises general exhortations to obey and warnings not to disobey.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:1–2 commandment … statutes … rules. See 5:31. fear the LORD. A common command in Deuteronomy. See 4:10; 5:29; 6:13, 24; 8:6; 10:12, 20; 13:4; 14:23; 17:19; 28:58; 31:12, 13. Cf. note on Prov. 1:7.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:3 milk and honey. This description of the land is added incentive to obedience. See also 11:9; 26:9, 15; 27:3; 31:20.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:4 Hear, O Israel. This verse is called the Shema from the Hebrew word for "Hear." The LORD our God, the LORD is one (see ESV footnote). The Lord alone is Israel's God, "the only one." It is a statement of exclusivity, not of the internal unity of God. This point arises from the argument of ch. 4 and the first commandment. While Deuteronomy does not argue theoretically for monotheism, it requires Israel to observe a practical monotheism (cf. 4:35). This stands in sharp contrast to the polytheistic Canaanites.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:5 love. See 4:37. all. That the Lord alone is Israel's God leads to the demand for Israel's exclusive and total devotion to him. heart … soul … might. All Israelites in their total being are to love the Lord; "this is the great and first commandment" (Matt. 22:38). In Matt. 22:37, Mark 12:30, and Luke 10:27, Jesus also includes "mind." In early Hebrew, "heart" included what we call the "mind". "Might" indicates energy and ability.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:6 on your heart. Cf. 4:39. The demand is for a heart that totally loves the Lord. Deuteronomy anticipates the new covenant, when God's words will be truly and effectively written on the heart (Jer. 31:31–34; also Deut. 30:6–8).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:7–9 The two pairs of opposites (sit/walk, lie down/rise) suggest any and every time, place, and activity. bind them … write them. Many Jews have fulfilled these commands literally with phylacteries (v. 8) and mezuzot (v. 9), i.e., boxes bound on the arm and forehead or attached to doorposts containing vv. 4–5 and other Scripture verses. See also 11:18–20.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:10–12 that you did not. This repetition stresses the nature of the land as a good gift of God. All these things took time, effort, or a waiting period before they were finished or bore fruit. eat and are full. The land will be bountiful and satisfying. But such a gift is not without its risks, notably forgetfulness. To forget is less a memory problem than a moral one, a parallel to disobedience (8:11).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:13 fear. See v. 2 and note on vv. 1–2. Jesus quotes this verse in his refusal to bow down to Satan in the wilderness (Matt. 4:10; Luke 4:8), demonstrating that he was God's perfect Son, whereas Israel had failed its wilderness tests. See also Deut. 6:16 and 8:3.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:14–15 other gods. Deuteronomy's great fear—Israel's potential apostasy—is reiterated (cf. 4:16–19; 8:11–20). jealous. See 4:24 and note on 4:23–24.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:16 You shall not put the LORD your God to the test. Testing God is an act of disobedience and a lack of trust in him. Israel's behavior at Massah (see Ex. 17:7) was a constant pattern in the wilderness (Num. 14:22). Jesus quoted this verse in his wilderness temptations (Matt. 4:7; Luke 4:12).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:20–24 What is the meaning … ? This hypothetical question (cf. Ex. 12:26) elicits an answer that the law is set in the context of salvation from Egypt (see also the preface to the Ten Commandments, Deut. 5:6).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 6:25 be righteousness for us. See also 24:13. This need not mean "righteousness as merited legal status," which would clash with God's gracious initiative (6:20–24; cf. 7:6–8). In context, the words mean "righteousness as the right response of obedience to God's covenant."

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:1–26 Exclusive Relationship Worked Out in Conquest and Worship. The emphases on the incomparability of the Lord and the demand for exclusive allegiance to him are now applied to Israel’s conquest. See parallels in Ex. 23:20–33.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:1 The Hittites (not the same group as those in Anatolia [Turkey]) are descended from Ham, like the other peoples listed in this verse (cf. Gen. 10:15–17). On Amorites and Canaanites, see Deut. 1:7. The Perizzites are associated with Canaanites in Gen. 13:7 and Judg. 1:4–5. The Hivites lived around Shechem, in Gibeonite territory and in the north, near Mount Hermon. The Jebusites were based in Jerusalem. Compare the lists in Deut. 20:17 (which omits the Girgashites); Josh. 3:10; 24:11. For a parallel to Deut. 7:1–6, see Ex. 34:11–16.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:2 devote them to complete destruction. See 2:34–35; 20:10–18; and note on 20:16–18. no covenant. Israel’s covenant with God is exclusive, and thus covenants with other nations are prohibited (cf. Joshua 9). no mercy. The listed nations (see Deut. 7:1) inhabit Israel’s land promised by God. They are being punished for their sins (Gen. 15:16); the God of justice is using Israel as his executioner; and any mercy shown to those whom God is judging will not only compromise God’s punishment but will also make Israel vulnerable to follow their evil ways (Deut. 7:16).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:3–4 The prohibition of intermarriage would be unnecessary if all the Canaanites were destroyed. Intermarriage with those of other religions is the issue, not interracial marriage or ethnic cleansing. Israel is vulnerable to turn away from God (see esp. Solomon in 1 Kings 11:1–8). That is far more likely than Israelites converting their non-Israelite spouses to the Lord (cf. 2 Cor. 6:14–15).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:5 All the paraphernalia of Canaanite religion is to be totally destroyed or it will be a snare to Israel (see v. 16 and note on 12:2–3). The pillars were made of stone. Asherim were wooden poles adorned with female fertility symbols (see note on Judg. 6:25–26).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:6 For. This verse provides the reason for the preceding commands. holy to the LORD. At its heart, holiness means being exclusively separated to God. Hence Israel must have no association with pagan religion. chosen. See 4:37; 10:15; 14:2. treasured possession. See Ex. 19:5; Deut. 14:2; 26:18.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:7–8 The Lord's love for Israel derives from his love for their fathers, the patriarchs (4:37), and not from their own merits. See also 9:4–5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:9–10 Unlike 5:9–10, there is no mention here of visiting iniquity to the third or fourth generations. Rather, God repays to their face those who hate him.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:12 Though the covenant God made with Abraham had few conditions, Israel is obligated to keep the Sinai covenant laws for the Abrahamic covenant to remain in force. See Gen. 12:2–3; Deut. 28:4, 11–13.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:13–15 The fulfillment of the Abrahamic covenant is described in terms of blessing. Grain … wine and … oil represent the three main crops (see also 11:14; 12:17; 14:23; 18:4; 28:51). Evil diseases may refer to the plagues against Egypt (Exodus 7–14), or more generally the diseases that were common afflictions in Egypt.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:16 snare. See Ex. 10:7; 23:33; 34:12; Judg. 2:3; 8:27; 1 Sam. 18:21; Ps. 106:36.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:17–18 Israel is warned three times (here, 8:17, and 9:4) not to say in your heart certain things that express fear (7:17) or pride (8:17; 9:4). The state of Israel's heart is a key issue in Deuteronomy (see 4:39; 6:6; and notes on 4:37–39; 6:6). The answer to each warning is "remember" (7:18; 8:18; 9:7). The antidote to wrong fear is to remember what the LORD your God did. Right fear means fearing God (see note on 5:29).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:20 The hornets are either literal, or figuratively represent the "panic" of those chased by hornets; see Ex. 23:28, and note on Josh. 24:12 (cf. "bees" in Deut. 1:44).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:22–23 little by little. See Ex. 23:29–30. This verse gives some theological interpretation to the book of Joshua. While Josh. 10:42 envisages a rapid conquest, Josh. 11:18 acknowledges that Joshua's wars took a long time. Confusion is a common feature of holy war (see Deut. 28:20; also Ex. 14:24; Josh. 10:10; 1 Sam. 5:9, 11; 14:20).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 7:25–26 See note on v. 5. Abomination is an important word in Deuteronomy (see 12:31; 13:14; 14:3; 17:1, 4; 18:9, 12; 20:18; 22:5; 23:18; 24:4; 25:16; 27:15; 32:16). It denotes a significant sin, often with the sense of social or theological hypocrisy, and God's increased anger against it. devoted to destruction. See note on 2:34–35.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:1–20 Learning the Lessons of the Wilderness. This chapter makes clear that the wilderness period was not only a punishment but also a test. While contrasting the deprivation of the wilderness with the abundance of the land, this chapter implies that the land itself is also a test. If the wilderness lesson is learned, it can be applied in the new situation of the land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:2–3 Remember is a key word in this chapter (also v. 18), along with its antonym "forget": vv. 11, 14, 19. Remembrance is demonstrated in obedience (see 5:15 and note). testing you. The wilderness test was to reveal the state of Israel's heart. This does not imply that God did not know but rather that he desired for Israel's heart to produce evidence of obedience. Manna literally means "What is it?" (Ex. 16:15); it was not to their liking (Num. 11:6; 21:5). The testing was also to teach Israel that man does not live by bread alone, but man lives by every word that comes from the mouth of the LORD. Real life derives directly from God and trusting his word ("word" could also be translated "thing spoken of"; see also esv footnote). This was the learning that Israel needed in its heart (Deut. 8:2) if it was to pass the test in the land (e.g., v. 17). This is the first of three verses from Deuteronomy quoted by Jesus in his temptation, affirming his confidence and determined faithfulness toward God (Matt. 4:4; Luke 4:4; see also Deut. 6:13, 16).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:4 clothing … foot. Cf. 29:5; Neh. 9:21.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:5 Again the emphasis is on Israel's heart. The wilderness test was punishment for the generation that perished, but a loving act of discipline for the current generation. disciplines. See Prov. 3:11–12; Heb. 12:5–11.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:7 The purpose of passing the test of v. 3 is because (For) Israel is entering an especially abundant land (vv. 7–10). Though the antithesis of the good land, the wilderness is the testing ground for life in the land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:10 The culmination of this hymn-like praise of the land is complete satisfaction. For that, Israel is to bless the LORD, i.e., praise him.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:11 Satisfaction carries a warning: Take care (see 4:9, 23), the command that 8:7–10 has been working toward. forget. See note on vv. 2–3. For a parallel of vv. 7–11, see 6:10–12.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:14 The danger is a heart … lifted up, namely, pride (see note on 7:17–18). In the land of plenty, pride comes from forgetting the wilderness (8:14–16) and failing to apply its lessons in the good land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:15 water out of the flinty rock. See Ex. 17:6 and Num. 20:8, 11. Massah is where Israel tested God (Deut. 6:16). In reality, Israel was being tested by God.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:17 say in your heart. See 7:17 and note on 7:17–18. This verse puts into words the pride alluded to in 8:14 and is the climax of vv. 12–17.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:18 Instead of forgetfulness (vv. 11, 14), Israel is to remember. See v. 2 and note on vv. 2–3; 5:15 and note. it is he who gives you power. This is an explicit corrective to the proud words in 8:17. Israel's future wealth will be evidence of God's faithfulness to keep covenant. as it is this day. See 2:30 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 8:19–20 The path of forgetfulness leads not only to pride (vv. 14, 17) but also to idolatry. When Israel commits idolatry, it acts like a pagan nation and so its destiny at God's hands will be like that of the nations.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:1–10:11 Recounting the Golden Calf Incident. Continuing the theme of Israel's "heart" problem, this section speaks of Israel’s stubbornness in sin and gives extended evidence of that stubbornness.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:2 Anakim. See 1:28 and note on 1:27–28.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:3 consuming fire. Cf. 4:24, where this expression was used of potential judgment against Israel. Here, the nations will be the object of God’s consuming fire. Quickly contrasts with 7:22. Compared with their long settlement in the land, the Canaanites will disappear quickly, but by the timescale of the conquest it will be a slow process.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:4–5 Do not say in your heart (see 7:17 and note on 7:17–18) alludes to Israel’s pride and the heart as its source (cf. 8:17). In the ancient world, victory in battle was regarded as a reward for one’s righteousness in the eyes of the gods. Israel is warned away from such thinking. While victory in the Promised Land is God’s punishment of the nations’ wickedness, that does not imply Israel’s righteousness. Israel’s possession of the land is due solely to God’s faithfulness to the Abrahamic promises.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:6 Yet again, the point is made (cf. vv. 4–5) that Israel’s righteousness is not the cause of its being given the land. Israel is in fact stubborn, literally, “stiff-necked” (see also vv. 13, 27). The account of the golden calf is retold at length (vv. 7–21) to demonstrate Israel’s stubbornness.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:7 As with 7:17–18 and 8:17–20, the way to avoid saying wrong things in the heart (cf. 9:4) is to remember. Remembering their history of moral failure in the wilderness is humbling, countering Israel’s potential pride. wrath. Various Hebrew words translated “wrath,” “anger,” “angry,” and “hot displeasure” are used in ch. 9 (vv. 8, 18, 19, 20, 22). Verses 7–8 and 20–22 bracket the account of the golden calf. From the day. Israel’s provocation of God began even before the people crossed the Red Sea (Ex. 14:11).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:8 Even at Horeb, where they heard God’s voice directly, Israel misbehaved. The retelling of the golden calf incident follows (cf. Exodus 32–34).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:9–10 When I went up. See Ex. 24:12–18. finger of God. See Ex. 31:18. all the words … spoken with you. That is, the Ten Commandments (see Deut. 5:22).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:12 your people whom you have brought. God disowns Israel and passes them over to Moses (cf., e.g., 5:6, "I am the LORD your God, who brought you out …"). quickly. This heightens the contrast of Israel's sin with having so recently received the Ten Commandments.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:13–15 This people is almost a contemptuous description of Israel, continuing God's disassociation from Israel (see v. 12). Moses' intercession for the makers of the golden calf is not described until v. 25, though it is alluded to in v. 19, in order to keep the theme of Israel's stubbornness uninterrupted through v. 24 (cf. Ex. 32:9–10, 15).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:17 broke them. Breaking the tablets indicates the deliberate ending of the covenant relationship: an impulsive gesture of fury and despair, following God's words in vv. 12–14. A treaty of Esarhaddon, an Assyrian king (681–669 B.C.), forbids his vassal to destroy the treaty text, as this would be tantamount to rebellion.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:18–20 This is the second period of forty days and forty nights (see vv. 9, 11). the LORD listened to me. This alludes to Moses' intercession (see vv. 25–29). Aaron was Moses' brother, the priest of Israel. Exodus 32–34 does not mention any intercession for Aaron.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:21 sinful thing. Deuteronomy emphasizes Israel's act of sin (see also vv. 16, 18, 27). No mention is made here of forcing Israel to drink the water with the ground-up golden calf (cf. Ex. 32:20).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:22–24 Horeb was not the only location where the Lord was provoked to anger. As v. 7 suggests, this is far from a complete list. Taberah. See Num. 11:1–3. Massah. See Ex. 17:7 and Deut. 6:16. Kibroth-hattaavah. See Num. 11:34–35; 33:16–17. Kadesh-barnea.

See Deut. 1:19–32. From the day brackets the account beginning with v. 7. Being rebellious is the same as being stubborn.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:25 forty days and forty nights. Given its placement in Ex. 32:11–14, it is unclear if this is the same period as in Deut. 9:18, or earlier (see vv. 9–11), as the following prayer implies.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:26 O Lord God. See 3:24 and note. your people … whom you have brought out (see also 9:29). Moses counters the Lord's disowning of Israel in vv. 12–14 (see note on v. 12).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 9:27–28 The primary basis of intercession for mercy is the Abrahamic promise (see 4:31 and note). No excuse for Israel's sin is given, for there is none. A second basis of intercession is God's reputation among the nations, not the least being Egypt. Two wrong statements might be made if Israel is destroyed. The first is that God is impotent to save; the second is that he hated Israel. Both are untrue (cf. 1:27; Ex. 32:12).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:1 Rather than an explicit reply, the Lord's answer is demonstrated in the command to replace the two tablets of stone broken in 9:17. The new tablets are like the first, with the same words, writing, and commandments (10:2–4). Deuteronomy first mentions the ark here (see also 31:9, 25–26) as simply a chest or box made of wood; it is not described as the footstool of God's throne. The ark was constructed (Ex. 37:1–9) soon after the writing of the replacement tablets (Ex. 34:1–4; see Deut. 10:1–5; for instructions to build the ark, see Exodus 25). It was a common practice in the ancient Near East to deposit covenant documents in religious shrines, one copy for each party.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:5 there they are. The covenant is still in place, despite Israel's persistent provocations to anger the Lord over the past 40 years.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:6–9 Even though Aaron eventually died, Moses' prayer for him was answered (9:20). Moreover, Aaron's death did not end the priesthood. God continued to provide priests through Aaron's son, Eleazar, and the tribe of Levi (see Ex. 32:26–29; Num. 3:6–14; Deut.

21:5). Since this tribe owned no land (18:1–2), it is singled out for specific care and provision by the other tribes (e.g., 12:12, 18; 14:27). Beeroth Bene-jaakan … Moserah. See Num. 33:30–31. The location of Moserah is uncertain, but presumably it was close to Mount Hor (cf. Num. 20:27–28). Gudgodah is the same as Hor-haggidgad (Num. 33:32–33). Jotbathah. See Num. 33:33–34.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:11 The command to arise and go on your journey indicates that with the tablets replaced and the ark built, Moses' intercession has been answered fully.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:12–11:32 Exhortation. Having focused on the key commandments and Shema (6:4–5; see note on 6:4), and having repeatedly expressed concern at Israel's record of failure and its heart of fear and pride, Moses now exhorts the Israelites to get their hearts right.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:12–13 And now marks a transition from history to exhortation. what does the LORD your God require of you. Cf. Mic. 6:8. Five commands follow, the central one of which is love (see Deut. 4:37; 6:5; and note on 4:37–39; also 11:1, 13, 22). fear. See note on 6:1–2. walk in all his ways. See 5:33 and note on 5:32–33. serve. See 6:13; 10:20; 11:13; 13:4. keep. See 4:40; 5:29; 6:24. for your good. Obedience is for the people's benefit in the end.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:14–15 The contrast between heaven of heavens, the earth with all that is in it and Israel's fathers heightens the sense of astonishment at election and grace. love on your fathers. See 4:37 and 7:7–8; note on 4:37–39; cf. 10:12.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:16 Circumcise therefore the foreskin of your heart. The mention of "offspring" (v. 15) recalls Genesis 17, where God instituted circumcision as his covenant sign for Abraham and his descendants (cf. Gen. 17:9–14). This verse explicitly recognizes Israel's need to change its heart (cf. Deut. 29:4; see also Jer. 4:4; 9:25–26; Rom. 2:25–29). Here, circumcision symbolizes removing the stubbornness that prevents the heart from properly loving God (cf. Ex. 6:12, where "uncircumcised lips" do not speak well; Jer. 6:10, where "uncircumcised ears" do not hear clearly). This is a command beyond any human's competence to fulfill (see Deut. 30:6). stubborn. See 9:6 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:17 Israel's heart needs correction because (for) God is the awesome God. not partial. See 1:17. The election of Israel (10:15) does not mean God will cut moral corners in showing special favors to Israel. He is a just God (v. 18).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:18–19 The fatherless, the widow, and the sojourner are the main categories of landless people (in addition to the Levites). Deuteronomy commands special care for such people (e.g., 14:29; 16:11, 14; 24:17, 19–21; 27:19). you were sojourners. Israel's own experience in Egypt is a motivation for several laws in Deuteronomy (e.g., 15:15; 24:18, 22).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:20 fear the LORD your God. Cf. 10:12–13. hold fast. See 4:4 and note on 4:3–4.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 10:22 down to Egypt seventy persons. See Gen. 46:27 and Ex. 1:5. numerous as the stars of heaven. Having referred to the election of Abraham in Deut. 10:15, Moses now speaks of the fulfillment of part of the Abrahamic promise (Gen. 15:5). See Deut. 1:10 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:1 therefore. The command to love is grounded in God's gracious rescue of Israel from Egypt (10:21–22). love. See 4:37; 6:5; and note on 4:37–39.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:2 Moses addresses the adults of Israel on the basis that all had experienced the exodus and wilderness events, even though the adults who left Egypt had died in the wilderness. See 5:3 and note. discipline. See 8:5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:6 Dathan and Abiram, along with Korah who is unnamed here, rebelled against Moses' leadership in the wilderness (Num. 16:1–35).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:7 your eyes have seen. See notes on v. 2 and 1:29–31. See also 3:21; 4:3, 9, 12; 7:19; 10:21; 29:2.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:9 milk and honey. See 6:3. Again, both the goodness of the land as well as God's faithfulness to the Abrahamic promise provide incentives for Israel to enter and conquer.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:10 irrigated it. Lit., "watered it with your feet" (see esv footnote). The need for irrigation in Egypt implies lack of rain. The use of feet, possibly to turn water wheels, implies hard work.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:11–15 The idyllic picture of the land (cf. 6:10–11; 8:7–10) recalls the description of Eden (Gen. 2:5–13) and is an added incentive to conquer it. The eyes of the LORD your God are always upon it suggests care and protection as well as bounty. if you will indeed obey. This command lies in the center of idyllic land descriptions, highlighting the centrality of obedience. early rain and the later rain. Both October/November and March/April rains are needed for good crops. eat and be full. See Deut. 6:10–11 and 8:12.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:16–17 Take care lest. Abundance always carries warnings (6:12; 8:11–12), often expressed in terms of the heart (8:11–17). The deception here is probably wrongly thinking that the Canaanite fertility gods are the source of the rain, crops, and animals. anger. The warnings also lead to the threat of punishment (see chs. 6; 8). Here, if the Lord is not acknowledged as the provider of rain (11:14), he will cause the rain to stop (see 28:23–24; cf. 1 Kings 17:1).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:18–21 On remembering and imparting these words to the next generation, see note on 6:7–9. as long as the heavens are above the earth. That is, forever.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:24–25 on which the sole of your foot treads. See Josh. 1:3; cf. Deut. 2:5; 28:65. territory. See 1:7; Gen. 15:18; Josh. 1:3–4. fear of you and the dread of you. See Deut. 2:25, though the expression is not identical in Hebrew. The promise assumes Israel's faithfulness.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:26 I am setting before you today. This expression, repeated in v. 32, brackets these verses and gives them an urgency for making the right decision. Though the conquest is the immediate concern, general obedience is the ultimate goal. The two options are summarized as a blessing and a curse (see chs. 27–28). On the decision, see 30:15, 19.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:28 that you have not known. There has been no personal relationship with the Canaanite Baals, unlike with the Lord, who has entered a covenant relationship with Israel.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:29 See 27:1–14 for details on this ceremony and the two mountains.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:30 Arabah. See 1:1 and note; 1:7. Gilgal. See Josh. 4:19. The oak of Moreh is where the promise of land was first made to Abraham (Gen. 12:6). The ceremony will implicitly acknowledge fulfillment of that promise.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 11:31–32 These verses conclude the general exhortations from chs. 5–11.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:1–26:19 Moses' Second Speech: Specific Covenant Stipulations. Following the general stipulations of chs. 5–11, the commands and laws become more specific. The order of the stipulations in these chapters seems to purposely follow the order of categories in the Ten Commandments.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:1–32 Proper Worship. Chapter 12 deals with proper worship, expanding the understanding of the first commandment about having no other gods ahead of the Lord.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:1 statutes and rules. This exact expression occurs in 5:1; 11:32; 26:16, at the beginning and ending of the two main sections of stipulations.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:2–3 destroy all the places where the nations … served their gods. In the conquest, most cities still stood, except for Jericho, Ai, and Hazor (Josh. 6:24; 8:28; 10:1; 11:12–14). The places that are to be destroyed are the worship centers. Canaanite religion, focused on fertility, set up its shrines on mountains and hills and under significant trees. Archaeological excavations at Hazor provide an example of a Late Bronze Age Canaanite temple. Within a central niche (or "holy of holies”), a male deity sat on a throne. Next to him was a row of standing stones, or stelae, one of which had a carving of upraised hands stretched in worship toward the sun god. tear … dash … burn … chop. See Deut. 7:5. Asherim. See note on 7:5. destroy their name out of that place. The name indicated the presence of the god. See 12:5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:4 Not only Canaanite worship practices are prohibited but also the syncretism of using such places and paraphernalia to worship the Lord.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:5–6 the place. It is a single “place,” in contrast to “places” in v. 2 (also vv. 13–14). Contrast Ex. 20:24–25. This place is unnamed, though centuries later it was clearly identified with Jerusalem. Until then, the “place” was where the tabernacle resided, which for much of that time was Shiloh (Josh. 18:1, 10; 22:12; Judg. 18:31; 1 Sam. 1:3, 24; 3:21; 4:3; Jer. 7:12, 14). the LORD your God will choose. See Deut. 12:11, 14, 18, 21, 26; 14:23, 24; 16:2, 6–7, 11; 26:2. In Deuteronomy, the Lord chooses Israel (7:6), the king (17:15), and the priests (18:5). Put his name and make his habitation anticipates the realized presence of God, though God is not limited to such a place (e.g., 1 Kings 8:27–30). There you shall go (also Deut. 12:6, 7, 14), rather than to the Canaanite places. bring. Israel’s worship of “bringing” is in response to God’s bringing Israel into the land. offerings … sacrifices (also v. 11). See Leviticus 1–7.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:7 eat. The “peace offering” sacrifices were not totally burned up on the altar. Part of the animal was to be eaten by the offerer, the offerer’s household, and the priests. before the LORD your God. That is, in his presence, where his name dwells (also vv. 12, 18). rejoice (also vv. 12, 18). Unlike other ancient religions, which attempted to win the gods’ favor or to appease them, Israelite worship was marked by rejoicing in response to grace and blessing.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:8–9 according to all that we are doing here today. Once the land is entered, the laws of worship, especially regarding its place, are to be stricter. everyone doing whatever is right in his own eyes. See Judg. 17:6; 21:25. rest. See Deut. 3:20 and note. In a sense, this anticipated place of worship will reflect the abiding rest of Israel in the land, which finally occurs only under David (2 Sam. 7:1).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:12 rejoice. See v. 7, which included households in general. Now specific members of the households are mentioned, notably servants and the Levite (landless categories of people). Levites were scattered in various towns to serve each of the other tribes. They owned no land (portion or inheritance) and relied on the offerings and sacrifices for their survival (v. 19; Num. 26:62). In this way worship was to be corporate and caring.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:13–14 Take care implies the ease with which Israel will disobey this command, as their subsequent history shows. The repetition of the command to offer sacrifices only at the place that the LORD will choose (see v. 5) underscores its seriousness. in one of your tribes. While this phrase could mean one place per tribal territory, v. 5 has already specified one place for the entire nation.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:15 you may slaughter and eat meat within any of your towns. Possibly up to this point, any meat eaten was ordinarily sacrificial. Now, partly because of the distances that people would be from the central place for sacrifice (vv. 20–21), provision is made for non-sacrificial eating of meat. as much as you desire. On abundance in the land, see 6:10–11; 8:7–10; 11:11–15. unclean and the clean. This is a ceremonial distinction, not a moral one. Leviticus 12–15 defines certain people as unclean and therefore forbidden to eat sacrificial meat, but this would not apply to meat from non-sacrificial animals.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:16 you shall not eat the blood. See Gen. 9:4 and Lev. 3:17. The blood is the life (Deut. 12:23–24) and is divinely earmarked for atonement for sin (Lev. 17:10–12). See also Acts 15:20.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:17–19 tithe … offerings. See v. 11. servant … and the Levite. See note on v. 12.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:20–22 you may eat meat. See v. 15 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:23–24 do not eat the blood. See v. 16 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:26–27 Holy things are things set apart for God: sacrifices, offerings, tithes, objects of vows. See vv. 17–18. The blood of your sacrifices shall be poured out on the altar. E.g., Lev. 1:5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:30 take care that you be not ensnared. See 7:2; and notes on 7:5; 7:16.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:31 You shall not worship … in that way (see v. 4). Canaanite worship is not only wrong, it is accompanied by abominable moral practices (see 7:25, and note on 7:25–26), not the least of which is child sacrifice. See 2 Kings 3:27; 16:3; 23:10; Jer. 7:31; 19:5; 32:35.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 12:32 not add to it or take from it. See note on 4:2.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:1–18 Threats of Idolatry. Three scenarios (vv. 1–5, 6–11, 12–18) are addressed in which people are encouraged to worship other gods.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:1 Much of OT law is "case law," supposing a particular situation and its right response. Here, each situation is introduced with if (vv. 1, 6, 12). prophet or a dreamer of dreams. Both would lay claim to divine revelatory authority.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:2 Two things must occur in this scenario. First, the sign or wonder that he tells you comes to pass. A miracle or sign in itself is not, however, proof of God's direction since these can be performed other than under God's power (see the Egyptian magicians [e.g., Ex. 7:22] and Simon the Sorcerer [Acts 8:9]). But a word that did not come to pass was a clear indication that the Lord did not give it and that its speaker was not the Lord's spokesman (Deut. 18:21–22). The second condition is that the oracle-monger says, Let us go after other gods. This theological test is essential.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:3 For the Lord your God is testing you. The Lord is testing faithfulness to himself by allowing false prophets to appear among his people. The warning is that fulfilled signs and wonders can be deceptive, and when accompanied by false teaching, they are not from the Lord. love. See 4:37–39 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:4 walk … fear. See 10:12–13, 20 and notes there. hold fast. See note on 4:3–4.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:5 Israel must not only refuse to listen to the prophet or dreamer, they must put that person to death. He has broken the first commandment, a breach made clearer by the phrase who brought you out of the land of Egypt (see 5:6–7). Even though the prophet or dreamer of dreams is used by God to test Israel, that person is not innocent. purge the evil from your midst. See 17:7, 12; 19:19; 21:21; 22:21; 24:7 (the death penalty is implied in these cases). Just as Israel is to destroy all pagans from the land, so are they to purge any apostate Israelites, like they would a contagious infection (cf. excommunication in 1 Cor. 5:13). Capital punishment therefore is not only retributive but also protective of the community.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:6 In this second scenario, the stakes are higher in that the rebellious person may be a relative, spouse, or your friend who is as your own soul. Allegiance to the Lord is to take priority even over such close and beloved personal relations (cf. Luke 14:26–33).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:8 The command you shall not yield to him suggests strong pressure being exerted by the person inviting to apostasy. nor shall your eye pity him. Cf. 7:2, where Israel is to show no mercy to Canaanite pagans; this treacherous Israelite is to be treated the same way. nor shall you conceal him. Loving the Lord with all one's heart and soul precludes protecting such a loved one.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:11 Capital punishment is also a deterrent so that other Israelites do not act likewise (see note on v. 5).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:12–13 The first two scenarios above assume a lack of success in the attempts to lead Israelites astray. The third scenario is when certain worthless fellows have succeeded in drawing inhabitants of their city away from the Lord.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:14 you shall inquire and make search and ask diligently. The hearsay of v. 12 must be checked carefully to ensure it is true and certain, not mere rumor.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 13:15–17 Not only the instigator but the whole city must be treated as if it were a Canaanite city within the land, for the city allowed the "worthless fellows" (v. 13) to continue leading people astray. devoting it to destruction. See 2:34–35; 7:2, and note on 20:16–18. The city is also to be burned, which in the land-conquest happened only to Hazor (Josh. 11:13). This law was carried out in the case of Gibeah's rebellion (Judg. 20:37–40). An open square or piazza was a common feature in Israelite cities. A good example is at Beersheba (Iron Age II), where the square measured 258 sq. yards (216 sq. m) and could have held hundreds of people and tons of material. devoted things. Israel was not to keep any of the spoil for themselves. Cf. Achan's sin (Josh. 7:10–15).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:1–21 Clean and Unclean Foods. Israel's diet was to be distinctive, reflecting its own distinctiveness in God's election from among all nations (cf. Leviticus 11).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:1–2 For a parallel, see Lev. 21:5–6. To call the people of God sons or "children of God" in the OT is rare, but not unknown (see Deut. 1:31; 8:5). Israel as a whole is God's "son" (Ex. 4:22–23; Hos. 11:1), and its members are also "sons" or "children" (cf. Isa. 1:2). cut yourselves or make any baldness on your foreheads for the dead. Probably both of these activities relate to pagan practices, the latter for mourning (Lev. 19:27–28; see also 1 Kings 18:28). Such practices are therefore forbidden to Israelites, who are holy to the LORD. See Deut. 7:6 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:3 Unclean animals are regarded as an abomination (see Leviticus 11; Deut. 7:25–26 and note; 12:15 and note). Clean and unclean animals are separated to illustrate the separation of Israel from other nations (14:2). The distinctions are not related to hygiene, nor are unclean animals hateful to God (cf. Ps. 104:17–18; 147:9 for God's care for them). When the gospel breaks down the separation between Israel and the Gentiles, all foods are declared clean (Mark 7:19; Acts 10:9–16, 28; cf. 1 Tim. 4:3–5).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:4–8 Clean animals both have a cloven hoof and chew the cud. If only one criterion is met, the animal is unclean. Cleanness cannot be based on the animals' vegetarian diet, as the camel, hare, and rock badger are vegetarian as well.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:9–10 For seafood to be clean, it needs both fins and scales.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:11–20 While no summary criteria are given to distinguish clean birds from unclean, the unclean seem to be birds of prey. These eat carrion and blood, which are forbidden to Israelites (v. 21).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:21 This verse shows the three levels of people in Israelite society. Israelites cannot eat anything that has died naturally, probably because the blood is still in the animal (see note on 12:16).

However, a sojourner (see notes on 5:12–14; 10:18–19) can eat that dead animal, and it can also be sold to a foreigner. holy to the LORD. See 7:6; 14:2. You shall not boil a young goat in its mother's milk (also Ex. 23:19; 34:26). This prohibition may be a polemic against Canaanite magical practices. It is also an affront to God's creative design: kids (young goats) should be given life by drinking their mothers' milk, not be cooked in it (cf. Deut. 22:6–7).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:22–29 Tithes. Giving a tithe (10 percent) was a practice as early as Abram (Gen. 14:20). See Lev. 27:30–33; Num. 18:8–32 for more specific aspects of the tithing laws. Moses stresses what to do with these tithes. By NT times, Jews gave a tithe to the Levites as well as a tithe for a feast.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:23 in the place that he will choose. See 12:5–6 and note. you shall eat. Deuteronomy's emphasis on festive celebration of the land's blessing is seen here with an annual tithe party. The whole household (14:26) plus the Levites (v. 27) are to be included. The dedication of the firstborn child or animal is a common OT principle (see Ex. 13:1–2; 1 Sam. 1:11). learn to fear. Tithing does not mean the giving of the surplus. Tithing would teach Israel to fear or trust God that the remaining 90 percent was sufficient and that God would provide each year. Israel should have learned this fear through the provision of manna in the wilderness (Deut. 8:3).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:24–26 if the way is too long for you. Distance from the central sanctuary is no excuse for not tithing, but to make the travel easier, converting the tithe into money is allowed. when the LORD your God blesses you. Underlining this whole legislation is a clear expectation of blessing. wine or strong drink. While condemning drunkenness, and forbidding priests to drink while in the sanctuary (Lev. 10:9), the Bible expects drinking at celebratory occasions such as weddings and worship (Gen. 9:21; Luke 22:17–18; John 2:1–10). rejoice. See Deut. 12:7 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:27 you shall not neglect the Levite. See notes on 10:6–9 and 12:12.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 14:28–29 An additional tithe every third year is for the benefit of the landless, who are (potentially) poor. It is to be given to them within your towns and not at the central sanctuary (cf. v. 23). In a chapter emphasizing the holiness of Israel apart from other nations, the inclusion of the sojourner (cf. v. 21) shows the inclusiveness of Deuteronomy.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 15:1–18 The Sabbatical Year. The laws in these verses relate to the sabbatical year. See Ex. 23:10–11 and Lev. 25:1–7.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 15:1–3 All debts between Israelites are to be cancelled (or merely deferred for one year) at the end of every seventh year regardless of the amount of debt or its term. Debts owed by foreigners are not subject to this release (cf. 14:21).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 15:4–6 there will be no poor among you. Cf. v. 11. The ideal in v. 4 is in effect a command to be generous: “Let there be no poor among you.” Since the land will be sufficiently blessed by God (v. 6), provided the economic laws are upheld (v. 5), there should be no one who is poor. Verse 11 perhaps expresses the reality that Israel will fail to fulfill the law and thus there will always be poor and the need for generosity. you shall lend to many nations, but you shall not borrow. Israel will be rich in blessing, if there is obedience (v. 5). See 28:43–44 for when there is disobedience.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 15:7–8 one of your brothers. This law does not apply to the poor outside Israel. The cause of the fellow Israelite’s poverty is not the issue, even if it is the result of squandering or foolishness. The command is internal: you shall not harden your heart or shut your hand. True obedience stems from the heart, and it may be costly to the Israelite in giving what is needed. The verbs open and lend are emphatic. Christians are also to be generous toward one another (cf. 1 John 3:17).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 15:9–11 unworthy thought in your heart. See note on 4:37–39. If the sabbatical year is close, then any money lent is less likely to be repaid. So the command is to lend what is needed, regardless of the date of the next sabbatical year. You shall give to him freely, and your heart shall not be grudging. This reiterates 15:8, emphasizing a heart of generosity. there will never cease to be poor. See v. 4 and note on vv. 4–6. Cf. Matt. 26:11.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 15:12 This section assumes that some Israelites might fall into desperate poverty and become, within Israel, slaves or "bondservants." This may suggest a failure by Israelites to be generous as commanded in vv. 1–11. The sabbatical year provides a limit to such slavery (cf. Ex. 21:2–6; Lev. 25:39–46). Slavery in Israel was therefore a short-term measure to help self-employed peasant farmers who could not pay their debts. Thus a rich landowner who offered a bankrupt peasant guaranteed employment and support until the sabbatical year was valued. Taking on such a "slave" was viewed as an act of charity (Gen. 47:21–25). Some "slaves" might find the secure status of employee so attractive that they became permanent slaves; see Deut. 15:16–17.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 15:13–15 To prevent immediate return to being a slave, the slave owner is not to let him go empty-handed but to furnish him liberally. As the LORD your God has blessed you. Throughout this chapter, the blessing of God on Israel motivates obedience to these laws. You shall remember that you were a slave. The second motivation comes from Israel's experience of oppression in Egypt (see 5:15 and note).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 15:16–17 In some cases, the slave may decide not to leave his master. In such a case, piercing with an awl marks permanent ownership. See Ex. 21:5–6; and note on Deut. 15:12.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 15:18 It shall not seem hard to you. This is a warning against greed.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 15:19–23 Firstborn Animals. These verses deal with firstborn animals, which are to be dedicated to the Lord (see Ex. 13:2; Num. 18:15–18). Giving the firstborn is an expression of thanks and trust that more animals are to come. The animal is to be eaten in the central place (before the LORD; Deut. 15:20). However, the animal must be unblemished, like any sacrificial animal (e.g., Lev. 1:3). If blemished in any way, it is to be eaten for a normal, non-sacrificial meal (cf. Deut. 12:15–16 and notes there).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:1–17 Feasts. This section deals with the three main Israelite feasts (see Ex. 23:14–17). If Deuteronomy's detailed laws are arranged in the order of the Ten Commandments, this section corresponds to the Sabbath law in Deut. 5:12 (cf. Lev. 23:3 for the Sabbath as the weekly day of public worship). On Passover, see Ex. 12:2–39; 34:18–25; Lev. 23:4–8; Num. 28:16–25. On the Feast of Weeks, see Lev. 23:15–22; Num. 28:26–31. On the Feast of Booths, see Lev. 23:33–43; Num. 29:12–40. All the feasts occur at the central place, a point repeatedly made in Deuteronomy 16 (see vv. 2, 6, 7, 11, 15, 16; also 12:5). For those who lived outside of Jerusalem, attendance at the feasts entailed several days of pilgrimage (Luke 2:41–52).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:1 Abib. The first month (Ex. 12:2; Lev. 23:5), corresponding to March/April. On Jesus' crucifixion at Passover, see John 13:1; 19:31; 1 Cor. 5:7–8.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:2 flock or the herd. In Deuteronomy, the Passover sacrifice need not be a lamb (cf. Ex. 12:3, 21).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:3 eat no leavened bread. Unleavened Bread is the name of the seven-day feast after Passover (Ex. 23:15; cf. 12:15–20). remember. Remembrance leads to obedience (see Deut. 8:2–3 and note there).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:5–6 You may not offer the Passover sacrifice within any of your towns. See note on 16:1–17. This may seem to reverse the provision of Ex. 12:21–24, which envisages the Passover being celebrated in homes. Deuteronomy, however, anticipates settlement in the land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:7 cook. The Passover sacrifice was to be roasted, not boiled (Ex. 12:8–9). tents. See Deut. 5:30. For this pilgrimage festival, Israelites needed to stay in temporary accommodations near the central sanctuary.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:9–10 The Feast of Weeks is called the Feast of Harvest in Ex. 23:16. The seven weeks are counted from the time the sickle is first put to the standing grain, thus marking the end of the grain harvest. The Greek name for this festival is Pentecost, meaning 50 days, counting inclusively, or seven weeks (see Acts 2). A freewill offering is an expression of thankfulness for the blessing of harvest.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:11–12 rejoice. See 12:7 and note. Landless people are again included (see 12:12 and note). The Israelites are called to remember their slavery in Egypt, a time when they were also landless (see 8:2–3 and note).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:13 The Feast of Booths or Tabernacles is called the Feast of Ingathering in Ex. 23:16 and 34:22. Occurring in September/October, it focuses on the harvest of summer fruits such as dates, grapes, and olives. This is the feast in which the law was to be read every seventh year (Deut. 31:9–13).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:14–15 rejoice. See v. 11 and notes on 12:7; 12:12. altogether joyful. The superabundance of the land is again anticipated.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:16–17 all your males. Presumably females were free to journey for the feast (vv. 11, 14), but it was obligatory only for males. the place that he will choose. See vv. 2, 6–7 and note on 12:5–6–6. The repeated mention of anticipated blessing provides incentive for Israel to enter the land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:18–18:22 Leaders. These laws mainly concern various leaders for the people of Israel: judges, priests, kings, and prophets. As in the NT, all leaders of God's people are under the authority of God's word. Leaders, like parents, exercise God's authority toward those under them, so again the sequence of the Ten Commandments is observable, as this section reflects the fifth commandment, "Honor your father and your mother" (5:16).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:18 The appointment of judges in towns for judicial purposes recognizes the size of the population and the spread of the land (cf. 1:9–18).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:19 You shall not pervert justice. You shall not show partiality, and you shall not accept a bribe. Justice derives from the character of God. See 1:17 and note on 1:16–17; 10:17; Ex. 23:3, 6–8.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 16:21–22 tree as an Asherah … pillar. See note on 7:5. Canaanite worship items were to be destroyed (7:5; 12:3). This law prohibits syncretistic practices at the central place. Cf. Manasseh in 2 Kings 21:7.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 17:1 sacrifice … blemish. See Lev. 22:17–25; Mal. 1:6–8; and note on Deut. 15:19–23. abomination. See note on 7:25–26.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 17:2–3 does what is evil. More specifically, commits idolatry. See 4:19.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 17:4–5 inquire diligently. Cf. 13:14. In 13:12–18, the city has been enticed to idolatry; here, it is a person. In 13:15 the city is put to the sword; here the person is stoned (see 13:10). Because idolatry breaks the first commandment, it is a capital offense. out to your gates. Capital punishment, as in the case of Jesus' crucifixion, was usually outside the walls or camp (Lev. 24:14; Num. 15:35; Heb. 13:11–13).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 17:6–7 On the evidence of two witnesses or of three witnesses. The standard biblical requirement to find someone guilty of a capital offense is two witnesses (Num. 35:30; cf. 1 Kings 21:13; Heb. 10:28). In the case of one witness, the situation becomes one person's word against another and thus no conviction can be made. See Deut. 19:16–21 on penalties for false witnesses. Insisting that the hand of the witnesses shall be first to stone the guilty helps prevent false witness and adds seriousness to their testimony (cf. 13:9). purge the evil. See 13:5 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 17:8–9 Straightforward judicial cases are dealt with in local courts. The difficult cases are to be taken to the central sanctuary. The place that the LORD your God will choose indicates the integration of worship with justice, deriving from the character of God as just and implying that ultimately God himself is the judge (see note on 12:5–6).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 17:10–11 These verses are the emphasis of this section. The decision of the central sanctuary court is final.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 17:12–13 that man shall die. To ignore or pervert justice is a capital offense, for it is a rejection of God's justice and rule. purge the evil. See 13:5 and note. hear and fear and not act presumptuously again. See 13:11 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 17:14–15 I will set a king over me, like all the nations. See 1 Sam. 8:5, 20. Even though it will be several centuries before Israel has a king, Deuteronomy provides legislation for that eventuality, in language that suggests time elapsing: you possess it and dwell in it and then say. Kings descended from Abraham were anticipated in Gen. 17:6. whom the LORD your God will choose. To counter the people's request to have a king like the nations, God insists that their king will be his choice. Yet God seems to allow the people some role in setting up a king. The king must be from among your brothers, that is, a fellow Israelite.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 17:16–17 The warnings about too many horses and wives and too much wealth—which reflect the standard prerogatives of ancient kings in military, personal, and economic spheres—are precisely the pitfalls of Solomon (1 Kings 4:26; 10:14; 11:3–4). Here God is warning that governmental leaders will constantly face the temptation to abuse their power for the sake of personal gain, which is contrary to his will. Since Egypt was the place of slavery from which the Lord had just rescued Israel, it was prohibited for Israel to return to Egypt for help (e.g., Isa. 31:1; cf. Deut. 28:68).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 17:18–20 a copy of this law. This refers probably to chs. 1–30 (see 31:9). Even the king is to be under the authority of God's word or law (see Josh. 1:7–9). Reading and obeying the word of God trains people to fear the LORD (see note on Deut. 6:1–2). heart. See notes on 4:37–39; 6:5; 6:6. to the right hand or to the left. See Josh. 1:7 and note on Deut. 5:32–33.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 18:1–2 The Levitical priests are the adult males within the tribe of Levi as a whole. shall have no portion or inheritance. See 12:12 and note. the LORD is their inheritance. See Num. 18:20. This indicates the privilege of serving the Lord in the central sanctuary, with the implied blessing of perpetual nearness to the Lord's presence.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 18:3–4 Parts of the sacrifices and firstfruits are for the upkeep of the Levites. Cf. Lev. 7:28–34 and Num. 18:9–24, where the portions for the priests are slightly different.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 18:5 The Levites are chosen by the Lord, just like the central sanctuary (e.g., 12:5), the king (17:15), and Israel itself (7:6).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 18:6–8 Levites who minister in the country have the right to come from time to time to minister in the central sanctuary. sale of his patrimony. Apart from their share of offerings, Levites may also make money from their personal property.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 18:9–11 the abominable practices of those nations. Cf. notes on 7:5; 12:2–3. burns his son or his daughter as an offering. See 12:31 and note. A thorough list is given of people and practices seeking divine help, guidance, or revelation apart from the Lord. No such practices are to be tolerated (e.g., Lev. 19:26; 1 Samuel 28; 2 Kings 17:17; Isa. 2:6; 21:6; Mic. 5:12). All are abominable (Deut. 18:9, 12). Even child sacrifice was for some pagan religions an act of seeking divine guidance or help (2 Kings 3:26–27). Deliberately juxtaposed with this section are instructions about God's prophets (Deut. 18:15–19), the avenue for true revelation.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 18:12 because of these abominations the LORD your God is driving them out. The destruction of the Canaanites is not an attack on an innocent people. It is God's judgment against abominable sin (Gen. 15:16; see note on Deut. 7:2).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 18:15–19 God promises a line of prophets who will speak to Israel on his behalf (cf. Jer. 1:7, 9, pertaining to Jeremiah's ministry). Moses speaks of himself as a prophet, the instrument of communicating God's word to Israel (cf. Deut. 18:19; Ex. 7:1). Nations listen (Deut. 18:14) to magicians, etc.; Israel is to listen to God's prophet (vv. 15, 19) rather than pagan means of revelation and guidance. On the voice of the LORD, see 5:23–28. a prophet like you. Now God speaks of Moses as a prophet and promises a future prophet like him for Israel. In the first century A.D., Jews expected a final prophet, whom NT writers identified as Jesus (Acts 3:22–24; 7:37; cf. John 1:21).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 18:20–22 False prophets, whether speaking in God's name or the name of other gods, are to be put to death (13:1–5). One test of false prophecy is, if a prophet's words do not come to pass, then they are not the Lord's words. However, if a prophet's words do come to pass, that does not automatically mean that person is God's prophet (see 13:1–5 and notes).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:1–21:14 Protecting Life. This section corresponds to the sixth commandment, "You shall not murder" (5:17).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:1–13 These verses complement the setting apart of cities of refuge in Transjordan (see 4:41–43) and relate to post-conquest settlement in the land (cf. 12:29).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:1–3 dwell in their cities and in their houses. See 6:10–11. The three cities of refuge are to be evenly located throughout the land to provide reasonable access. See Ex. 21:12–13 and Num. 35:9–34. Joshua 20:1–9 names these three cities as Kedesh, Shechem, and Hebron.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:4–6 The purpose and accessibility of the cities of refuge is to ensure justice for a manslayer who might otherwise be vulnerable to vengeance from the avenger of blood, that is, someone from the victim's family. Verse 5 gives one example of manslaughter for which this provision applies. The law clearly distinguishes between manslaughter (which is unpremeditated) and murder. did not deserve to die. The death penalty does not apply for manslaughter.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:8–10 The law anticipates the enlargement of Israel's land (see 12:20) and thus the need for further cities of refuge to ensure accessibility. Moses takes every opportunity to remind the people that God's promises of land obligate Israel to obedience (19:9). That these further three cities were never appointed in the OT indicates Israel's lack of obedience. innocent blood. A manslayer is innocent of murder.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:11–12 Murder, unlike manslaughter, stems from hatred and is intentional (cf. v. 4). For a murderer, a city of refuge is not a permitted haven. In this case the man is handed over to the avenger of blood for capital punishment.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:13 purge the guilt. Cf. 13:5 (and note), where the expression is "purge the evil."

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:14 Moving the landmark, or boundary stone, of a neighbor is tantamount to theft of land (see also 27:17). The law emphasizes keeping land in families, since inheritance rights are basic to Israel's life in the land. See the Jubilee laws in Lev. 25:8–34; also Prov. 23:10–11 and Hos. 5:10.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:15 On witnesses, see Num. 35:30; Deut. 17:6 and note on 17:6–7. For NT application, see Matt. 18:16; 1 Tim. 5:19; cf. John 8:17; 2 Cor. 13:1.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:16–18 In disputed legal cases, the issue is taken to the central sanctuary, before the LORD (17:8–9). Careful questioning is required to determine if a witness is malicious and false. Giving false testimony breaks the ninth commandment (5:20) and damages the community (cf. Ps. 27:12; Prov. 6:19; 12:17, 19; 14:5; 19:5, 9; 25:18).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:19–20 purge the evil. See 13:5 and note. Proper justice and punishment acts as a deterrent for the people. See 13:11 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 19:21 eye shall not pity. See 13:8. life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot. This expression expands the idea that the punishment for the false witness is to be the same as would have been imposed on the accused (19:19) and makes punishment proportionate to the crime. See Ex. 21:23–25 and Matt. 5:38. It cannot involve multiple acts of revenge (cf. Lamech, Gen. 4:24).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 20:1–20 Whereas the OT usually describes war through narrative, this chapter legislates what ought to happen in warfare. This law limits the conduct of warfare and occurs in a section that could be headed “You shall not murder,” devoted to ensuring no unnecessary loss of life. The concern is to minimize casualties in war. This law also distinguishes between enemy cities outside the boundaries of the Promised Land (vv. 10–15) and those within the boundaries (vv. 16–18). Even the latter case, however, need not result in total annihilation (see note on vv. 16–18). These laws on warfare (esp. vv. 16–18) create an ethical dilemma for Christians. But three things should be considered: (1) the limits and restraint of these laws; (2) their context in securing the Promised Land; and (3) the priority of offering terms of peace to cities before attacking them (see v. 10). See Gen. 15:16; and notes on Deut. 7:2; 18:12. In the NT, the Christian inheritance is a heavenly land (1 Pet. 1:4), not an earthly one, and the language of warfare is used spiritually (cf. Eph. 6:10–17).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 20:1–4 The first command regarding warfare is you shall not be afraid of them if the enemy’s army is larger than Israel’s. The reason for not fearing is the presence of God (see 1:19–45). Rather, the enemy’s strength highlights God’s greater power in defeating them. The priest reinforces the command not to fear and reflects the presence of God in the midst of Israel’s army.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 20:5–7 Exemption from military service is extended to three groups of people. See the parallel covenant curses in 28:30. The priority is on enjoying the blessings from God in housing, crops, and marriage. The exemptions show that Israel did not need to depend on every last man fighting and that warfare was not to be an end in itself but a means to a greater end. Those who fight serve the interests of the whole community.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 20:8 A fourth exemption from military service is extended to any who are fearful and fainthearted (cf. Gideon’s army in Judg. 7:2–3). Psychologically, fearfulness could be contagious throughout the army. More significantly, fear is disobedience and God does not allow such disobedient warriors to fight.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 20:10–15 The application of vv. 10–14 is limited to cities that are very far from you (v. 15), i.e., outside the boundaries of the Promised Land. If the city rejects the terms of peace and initiates war against Israel, victory over the city is assured because God gives it into Israel's hand.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 20:16–18 These verses concern cities within the boundaries of the Promised Land and may presuppose that these cities have refused the invitation to surrender (see v. 10). Israel's action is much more severe in these cases, as they are to save alive nothing that breathes (v. 16). To devote them to complete destruction (v. 17) acknowledges that God is the victor and that to him belong the spoils of war (see 2:34–35; 7:2); it also is a precursor of final judgment (see Introduction to Joshua: The Destruction of the Canaanites). Such a drastic threat could encourage surrender rather than resistance. Joshua's application of these principles made room for such Gentiles to surrender and survive (e.g., Josh. 6:22–25; 9:26–27). On the nations listed in Deut. 20:17, cf. 7:1. Cohabiting in the Promised Land with pagan nations makes Israel vulnerable to fall into their abominable practices, referring to idolatry as well as immorality. See 7:2–4 and 8:9–14.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 20:19–20 The law of protection of fruit trees acknowledges that Israel is to inherit trees that it did not plant (see 6:11). This law also puts a brake on human shortsightedness: the ultimate end of the land is to be a fruitful garden for God's people to enjoy.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 21:1 in the land. These laws are given to keep the Promised Land free from desecration.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 21:4 break the heifer's neck. This animal is not burned, as in the usual sacrifices. However, its death is a sacrifice to atone for sin committed by an unknown person.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 21:9 purge the guilt. Cf. 13:5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 21:10 This law must apply for conquests of cities far away (20:10–15), otherwise the women would have been destroyed (20:17). It both ends the discussion of topics under the heading "you shall not murder" and introduces the section on "you shall not commit adultery" (5:18; see note on 21:15–23:14).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 21:12–13 shave her head and pare her nails … take off the clothes. These actions indicate a departure from her former life, no doubt including its religious practices.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 21:15–23:14 Protecting Sexual Morality. Many of the laws in this section address protecting the sexual integrity of God's people, corresponding to the seventh commandment, "You shall not commit adultery" (5:18).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 21:15–17 This law presupposes the practice of polygamy but does not condone it. (The ethical ideal for marriage comes from Gen. 2:24; the law protects the community by setting a minimum standard of behavior that preserves civility. On polygamy, see notes on 1 Cor. 7:2; 1 Tim. 3:2–3.) The law protects the rights of the firstborn even if he is the son of the unloved wife. double portion. The OT, in line with ancient Near Eastern practice, gave a double share of inheritance to the oldest son.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 21:18–21 Breaking the fifth commandment (5:16) attracted the death penalty. Notice that the parents take the initiative in this penalty. purge the evil. See 13:5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 21:23 This law restricts the exposure of a dead criminal hanging on a tree, hence the concern to bury Jesus immediately after his death (see also Gal. 3:13).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:1–4 Helping to protect a neighbor's property fulfills the command to love your neighbor as yourself (Lev. 19:18).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:5 This law most likely prohibits transvestitism. The strong word abomination may also suggest transvestite practices associated with pagan temple prostitution. As with vv. 9–11 below, the law seeks to uphold the order and distinction in God's creation.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:6–7 Like the treatment of trees in 20:19–20, this law preserves the means of life and seeks to prevent shortsightedness, requiring wise and respectful use of the creation.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:8 Builders and homeowners must take adequate safety measures in building houses. Flat roofs were used for various household activities, including sleeping in hot weather.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:9–11 These laws prohibit mixing various items, reflecting God's ordering of creation "according to its kind" (e.g., Gen. 1:25). They also reminded Israelites that God had separated them from other peoples to be distinct and holy (Deut. 14:2).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:12 tassels. See Num. 15:38–41.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:13–30 This group of laws deals with infringements to proper moral sexual conduct. All these laws begin with "If …" and deal with the response to the criminal. Behind this selection is the seventh commandment, "You shall not commit adultery" (5:18).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:14–15 The text does not specify what constitutes evidence of virginity. This may be a garment stained with menstrual blood (v. 17), which demonstrates that she is not pregnant, or a stain of hymenal blood, showing that the girl's first intercourse took place on her wedding night. The gate was where legal matters were heard and resolved.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:19 A hundred shekels is a very hefty fine, much more than a bride-price (cf. v. 29). Workers in old Babylonian times earned half a shekel per month. Along with the rule that he may not divorce her, this law sought to deter men from making false allegations and pursuing easy divorce.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:21 purge the evil. See 13:5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:22 Adultery was a capital offense throughout the ancient world. To be convicted, the couple must be caught in the act (found lying) and they were both punished equally. If the circumstances suggested that the woman had not consented, then only the man was punished (vv. 25–27).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:23–24 betrothed … wife. Betrothal was much more binding than modern engagement, hence the woman is called “wife” in v. 24. purge the evil. See 13:5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:29 Fifty shekels appears to be the bride-price (see Ex. 22:16). The law seeks to protect the woman, who is less likely to be married because she has been violated.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 22:30 uncover his father’s nakedness. As the esv footnote explains, this is lit., “uncover his father’s skirt” (i.e., the corner of his garment). See also 27:20. It is probably an idiom meaning to bring dishonor to the father. The father’s wife would presumably be a woman other than the man’s mother, such as in the case of polygamy.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 23:1 assembly. Generally the term is used in Deuteronomy to refer to Israel gathered at Horeb/Sinai. In this chapter it anticipates Israel gathered in the land at worship. testicles are crushed. This probably refers to men made eunuchs in the context of pagan worship. cut off. In Gal. 5:12 (“emasculate themselves”) Paul uses the same verb as appears in the Greek translation of Deuteronomy, perhaps to imply that his opponents are acting like pagans; by this action the ancient Israelites would disqualify themselves from entry into the assembly.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 23:2–4 Tenth generation is possibly an idiom meaning forever (see v. 6). no Ammonite or Moabite. The story of Ruth indicates that there were exceptions (see note on Ruth 1:4). Balaam. See Numbers 22–24.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 23:7–8 You shall not abhor an Edomite. Israel’s kinship with Edom is closer than that with Moab and Ammon (cf. v. 3). Edom is descended from Esau, Jacob’s twin (Gen. 25:19–26). third generation. The possibility of foreigners becoming worshiping Israelites shows that, with God, faith is the issue more than race.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 23:9–14 Israel’s army fighting against the enemy was a religious gathering in the midst of which God was present. Hence laws of cleanness applied.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 23:15–24:22 Various Laws Protecting Property. The specific stipulations conclude with an assortment of laws, many of which seem to be property offenses related to the eighth commandment, “You shall not steal” (5:19).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 23:15 The refugee slave is most likely a foreigner, not an Israelite slave.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 23:17 cult prostitute. Cultic prostitution was practiced by Canaanite religion as a fertility rite. It was strictly prohibited for ancient Israel.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 23:19–20 charge interest. A distinction is made between a fellow Israelite (brother) and a foreigner. To take a loan in ancient times was an act of desperation, often caused by crop failure. Cruelly high interest rates made situations worse. The prohibition of interest among Israelites protected the poor (see Ex. 22:25). may bless you. Wealth comes from obedience to God, not from selfish economics.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 23:21–23 Vows were voluntary but, once made, were binding (see Numbers 30; Eccles. 5:2–6; for the problem of Jephthah’s vow, see note on Judg. 11:35). Vows must be kept because God keeps his promises and desires that his people imitate his moral character.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 23:24–25 you may eat your fill. These laws benefit the poor and are not an excuse for theft. The economics of ancient Israel included generosity toward fellow Israelites (see notes on 15:4–6; 15:7–8).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 24:1–4 This is a good example of “case law,” where vv. 1–3 present the situation (“When …”) and v. 4 is the actual law (“then …”). The law forbids the first husband taking back the wife he found no favor with after she is subsequently divorced or widowed. By charging his wife with some indecency, the first husband acquired her dowry—her father’s marriage present to her—when he divorced her. Remarrying, she was given a second dowry. This example then implies that, when her second marriage ended (either through death or through more trivial grounds of divorce), she was able to keep her second dowry. The first husband is forbidden to remarry her to acquire her second dowry. This law protects the woman from exploitation by her first husband. This is the only OT law about divorce. Elsewhere divorce is presupposed (e.g., Lev. 21:7, 14; Num. 30:9). See Jesus' comments on this law in Matt. 5:31–32. In Matt. 19:7, Pharisees defend their position on divorce by appeal to this law; Jesus, however, appeals to the creation account (Gen. 1:27; 2:24) to show God's ethical ideal. This law is a concession to hardness of hearts, preserving a minimum level of civility for the theocracy.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 24:5 one year. This may give the couple time to have at least one child and develop their relationship. Cf. note on 20:5–7.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 24:6 mill or an upper millstone. These were basic utensils for food preparation; if taken as a pledge or security for a loan, they would deprive the poor person of the means for grinding grain.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 24:7 that thief shall die. Kidnapping is regarded as theft and is the only type of theft for which the death penalty applies; these laws place a higher value on persons than on property. purge the evil. See 13:5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 24:8–9 leprous disease. The priests were the ones to rule on leprous diseases, as leprosy (a general term for skin diseases) made a person unclean. See Leviticus 13 and note on Lev. 13:1–59. Miriam, Moses' sister, suffered from leprosy (see Numbers 12).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 24:10 not go into his house. The dignity of the poor person, who is forced into a loan, is preserved, and violence or theft is guarded against.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 24:12 not sleep in his pledge. This forbids a person's cloak, which doubled as a blanket, to be taken to secure a loan. The basic rights of a vulnerable person are protected (see v. 13). Amos 2:8 scourges those who blatantly flout this law.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 24:17–18 sojourner … fatherless … widow's garment. These three groups, as landless people, represented the most vulnerable in the land (see 10:18–19 and note). Israel's own time spent in Egypt as slaves was to motivate their proper treatment of landless people. See also v. 22.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 24:19–22 These laws make provision for the poor. The blessings of the land are for the people as a whole to share. Cf. 23:24–25, and see Lev. 19:9–10. See also this law in practice in Ruth 2.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 25:1–16 Laws on Justice, Marriage, and Business. The laws in this section relate to things such as the administration of justice, provision for widows, and honesty in business (cf. the ninth commandment, "You shall not bear false witness" (5:20; cf. 25:1, 13–15).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 25:3 The limit of forty stripes was to prevent the guilty man from being degraded or abused, presumably anticipating his restoration to the community. For fear of miscounting and going beyond 40, later Jews limited flogging to 39, as in the case of Paul (2 Cor. 11:24).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 25:4 Even an animal was entitled to food while it worked. Paul applied this principle to the work of evangelism and disciple-making (1 Cor. 9:9; 1 Tim. 5:18).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 25:5 husband's brother. In Latin, brother-in-law is levir, hence the term "levirate marriage" is applied to this law. Its purpose was protection for the widow and is a case where polygamy was allowed (i.e., the brother-in-law may have already been married). See also Gen. 38:8–10. The law reflects the strong sense of obligation placed on family, as well as a desire to preserve the family line (see Deut. 25:9). Ruth 4:1–12 seems to combine this institution with redemption by the closest kinsman (see Introduction to Ruth: Key Themes). In Matt. 22:23–33 the Sadducees use this law in an effort to disprove the idea of resurrection, and Jesus reveals their faulty reasoning. It is possible that Paul's advice in 1 Cor. 7:39, allowing a widow to marry "whom she wishes," was addressed to Christians who thought this law was still applicable.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 25:7 gate. See 22:15 and note on 22:14–15.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 25:9 pull his sandal off his foot and spit in his face. This public event brings shame on the brother-in-law (Num. 12:14; Job 30:10). He is not, however, forced into taking the widow as his wife—which would have protected her from a reluctant husband.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 25:13–16 two kinds of weights … two kinds of measures. A dishonest person could use one set of weights or measures for selling and another for buying, in order to buy more goods for the set price or to sell less produce for the price. See Lev. 19:35–36. See also Prov. 11:1; 16:11; Amos 8:5. days may be long. See Deut. 5:16 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 25:17–19 Amalek. See Ex. 17:8–16 for the account of the Amalekites' opposition to Israel. The Amalekites remained a thorn in Israel's side. Notably, Saul failed to destroy them (1 Sam. 15:1–9), though David later defeated them (1 Sam. 30:1–20). rest from all your enemies. See Deut. 3:20 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 26:1–19 Firstfruits and Tithes. The final section of specific laws deals with the offering of firstfruits and tithes in the land. This is a fitting conclusion, as it focuses on responding to God's gracious gift of the land, a key theme in the book. As God gives the land, so Israel is to give back to him in response.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 26:2 first of all the fruit. This law commands a regular offering of firstfruits of the harvest, season by season. It acknowledges the goodness of the land promised by God and his faithfulness in keeping his promise (v. 3). place that the LORD your God will choose, to make his name to dwell there. See 12:5 and note on 12:5–6.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 26:4 the priest shall take. See note on 18:3–4.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 26:5–10 These verses are often regarded as an early Israelite creed, liturgically recounting God's faithfulness to his promises as the grounds of thanksgiving. Aramean. This refers to Jacob, who married the daughters of his uncle Laban, an Aramean (Gen. 28:5). down into Egypt. See Ex. 1:1–7. treated us harshly. See Exodus 1–2. cried to the LORD. See Ex. 2:23–24. signs and wonders. The plagues of Egypt (Ex. 7:14–12:32). milk and honey. See Deut. 6:3.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 26:11 rejoice. See 12:7 and note. Levite, and the sojourner. The landless are included in the celebrations of the land (see 12:12 and note).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 26:12 in the third year, which is the year of tithing. See 14:28–29 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 26:14 The three disclaimers in this verse underscore the worshiper's claim to have been fully obedient. offered any of it to the dead. This is a pagan practice.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 26:15 Look down from your holy habitation. God dwells in heaven, though on earth his name and presence also dwell in the central place of worship. See 4:36 and note on 12:5–6; cf. 1 Kings 8:27–30.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 26:16 with all your heart and with all your soul. See 4:29; 6:5 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 26:18–19 treasured possession … holy to the LORD. See 7:6.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:1–28:68 Moses' Third Speech: Blessings and Curses. A new section begins here, the laws having been completed. Along with 11:26–32, this passage brackets the laws of chs. 12–26. Ancient covenant treaties had sections of blessings (the consequences of keeping the treaty stipulations) and curses (the consequences of not keeping the covenant stipulations). Chapter 27 details a ceremony and the fact of curses for lawbreakers. Chapter 28 details the content of the blessings and curses.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:1–8 Moses looks ahead to a covenant ceremony upon arrival in the land. Significantly, this ceremony is conducted at Shechem (see note on vv. 4–5), the place where God first made the promise of land to Abram (Gen. 12:6–7).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:2–3 on the day. Not necessarily the precise day but simply meaning "when." plaster them with plaster. White plaster provides a backdrop against which the writing may be seen clearly and distinctly. write on them all the words of this law. The writing of the law is in addition to the permanent written record (31:24–26).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:4–5 today. See note on vv. 2–3. Mount Ebal is on the north side of Shechem (see 11:29 and note on 27:1–8). This ceremony occurs on the mountain of curse (see v. 13) to show that the law functions as a witness against Israel because of its inevitable sin. wield no iron tool. Israel's altars were to be of unhewn stone (Ex. 20:25). Excavations at Mount Ebal have uncovered a worship site with a large altar (30 x 23 feet/9.1 x 7 m) constructed of unhewn stones, accessed by a gently sloping ramp. The pottery dates to the Israelite settlement (cf. Josh. 8:30–32). This perhaps is the altar that Joshua built or is built on top of Joshua's altar.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:6–7 Burnt offerings were the basic sacrifices dealing with sin (Leviticus 1). The law written on the plastered stones exposes Israel's sin, so that burnt offerings are required. After their sins are atoned for, peace offerings celebrate fellowship with God (Leviticus 3).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:9 this day you have become the people of the LORD your God. Cf. Ex. 19:5–6; Deut. 7:6; 14:2. The covenant relationship is being renewed rather than initiated. The covenant of Horeb is renewed at Moab through the words of Deuteronomy, especially chs. 29–30. Then, after the conquest, it will be renewed at Shechem (Joshua 24).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:12–13 Mount Gerizim is to the south side of Shechem, Shechem being on the shoulder of the two mountains, Gerizim and Ebal (see 11:29; note on 27:4–5; and map). These verses describe a ceremony in which Israel hears blessings and curses concerning the law. In this chapter, however, there are only curses read by the Levites (cf. ch. 28). See Josh. 8:30–35 for the carrying out of these instructions (cf. Joshua 24). On Gerizim, see John 4:20.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:14 Levites must refer to the Levitical priests, since the rest of the tribe of Levi are on Mount Gerizim (see v. 12).

Renewing the Covenant at Mount Ebal

c. 1406/1220 B.C.

Looking ahead to the day when the Israelites would occupy Canaan, Moses commanded the people to renew the covenant after they entered the land by placing a new copy of the terms of the covenant on Mount Ebal and reciting the blessings and curses to each other on Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:15 On images, see 5:8–10. in secret. This list of 12 curses lifts the level of punishment for disobedience to the law from human to divine jurisdiction. The theme of secrecy (27:24) shows that even if a person's crime may be undetected, that person remains under God's curse. "Amen." All the people express their acceptance of the justice and judgment of God.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:16 On dishonoring father and mother, see 5:16.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:17 On one's neighbor's landmark, see 19:14.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:18 On misleading the blind, see Lev. 19:14.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:19 On perverting justice, see 24:17–18.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:20–22 On uncovering one's father's nakedness, see 22:30 and Lev. 18:8. On lying with an animal, see Lev. 18:23. On lying with one's sister, see Lev. 18:9.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:24 On striking down one's neighbor, see 19:11.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:25 On taking a bribe, see 16:19.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 27:26 The list of 12 curses is not comprehensive; it is a sample of the law, not a summary of it. Cf. Paul's use of this verse in Gal. 3:10 to argue that the law requires perfect, and humanly unattainable, obedience.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:1–68 The focus shifts from the specific sins that warrant curses to the content of the curses, preceded by a shorter list of blessings. The blessings of vv. 1–14 are the converse of the curses in vv. 15–68. The greater length devoted to the curses (54 verses compared to 14 verses for blessings) is suggestive of Israel's future.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:1 high above all the nations. See 26:19.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:3–6 For parallel curses, see vv. 16–19. city … field … come in … go out. The coupling of opposites implies comprehensiveness (cf. note on 6:7–9). fruit. The emphasis on fertility challenges the Canaanite view that Baal was the fertility god.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:7 your enemies … to be defeated. Cf. v. 25.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:9 a people holy. See 7:6 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:12 lend to many nations. Israel will be wealthy as a result of God's blessing; cf. 15:6. According to 23:20 these loans to other nations would be loans at interest (cf. note on 23:19–20). Cf. 28:44.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:23 bronze. Unable to bring rain. iron. Unable to be tilled.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:30 betroth a wife. Cf. 24:5. build a house … plant a vineyard. Cf. 20:5–7.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:44 lend … head … tail. Cf. vv. 12–13.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:46 sign and a wonder. Signs and wonders usually refer to Israel's salvation (e.g., 4:34; 7:19; 26:8). Here the term is heavily ironic.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:48 Yoke of iron suggests a return to slavery (see also v. 68) and a reversal of Israel's redemption, when God brought them out of Egypt (e.g., 5:6). See Jer. 28:14.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:53 eat the fruit of your womb. The siege from the future enemy will be so dire that Israelites will resort to cannibalism in order to stay alive. See 2 Kings 6:28–29 for the horrors of suffering siege, and Lam. 2:20 and 4:10 for what happened when Jerusalem was besieged by Babylon.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:58 glorious and awesome name, the LORD your God. The name is YHWH (Yahweh), revealed to Moses at the burning bush (Ex. 3:14; see note there).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:60 all the diseases of Egypt. See 7:15 and note on 7:13–15.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:61 the book of this law. Similarly, v. 58. This refers to Deuteronomy 1–30. See 31:9, 24, 26.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:62 numerous as the stars of heaven. See 1:10 and note there. This threatens a reversal or annulment of the promises to Abraham.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 28:64–66 scatter. See 4:27. The curse of exile eventually comes for the northern kingdom under Assyria (2 Kings 17) and for the southern kingdom of Judah under Babylon (2 Kings 25). serve other gods of wood and stone. See Deut. 4:28. no resting place. Contrast 3:20; 12:9–10. The dread of Israel expressed by other nations in 2:25 and 11:25 is reversed.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:1–30:20 Moses' Third Speech: Final Exhortation. These chapters have no close parallel in ancient treaties. They are the climax of the preaching of Deuteronomy, urging Israel to accept the covenant.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:1 besides the covenant. The covenant in the land of Moab is a reiteration of the covenant at Horeb (i.e., Sinai), and the laws are the same as were given to Israel through Moses at Horeb. The Moab covenant constitutes all the spoken words of Moses in Deuteronomy.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:2–3 You have seen … before your eyes … your eyes saw. There is a strong emphasis on having seen God's past actions, even though the addressees are the next generation. See 1:30–31 and note on 1:29–31.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:4 not given you a heart to understand or eyes to see or ears to hear. The heart is the organ of understanding and will in the OT; Deuteronomy focuses on the heart as the center of morality. Despite the emphasis on physical sight (vv. 2–3), real "sight" is with the eyes of faithful obedience. The heart must respond correctly to God (e.g., 6:5), but Israel’s heart is unlikely to respond to God in the right way (e.g., 5:29; 8:17; 9:4). Israel needs God to correct its lack of right heart, eyes, and ears. See 30:6 and note. In Rom. 11:8 Paul combines this text with Isa. 29:10 to explain why many of his Jewish contemporaries do not believe in Jesus.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:5–6 clothes … feet. See 8:4. that you may know. See 8:3.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:7–8 Sihon … Og. See 2:24–3:17.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:12–13 enter into the sworn covenant. The language of this verse has the style of a formal acceptance of the covenant and its consequences. establish you today as his people. See 27:9 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:15 Whoever is not here with us today refers to future generations. The covenant with God is not simply for one generation, just as the Horeb covenant was also for this current generation (5:2–3).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:18 Beware lest. The repeated warning here shows the vulnerability of Israel’s heart to go astray to idolatry. root bearing poisonous and bitter fruit. If one Israelite goes astray, the sin is regarded as contagious, infecting other Israelites (v. 19). Hence the need to “purge the evil” from your midst (see 13:5 and note). Cf. “root of bitterness” in Heb. 12:15, which comes from the Greek translation of this phrase.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:19 blesses himself in his heart. An expression of pride (cf. 8:17 and note on 4:37–39).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:20–21 jealousy. See 4:24 and note on 4:23–24. Book of the Law. See 28:61 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:23 The destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah is used several times in the Bible as the paradigmatic act of God’s judgment

(Gen. 19:24–25; see, e.g., Amos 4:11; Matt. 10:14; 2 Pet. 2:6). Admah, and Zeboiim. See Gen. 10:19 and 14:2, 8.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:24–28 The expectation in these verses is of future idolatry (the worst sin, in Deuteronomy) and the receipt of God's curses. While ch. 28 held out blessings and curses as alternatives, it is again clear that the author of Deuteronomy expects Israel to sin because they lack correct hearts, eyes, and ears toward God (29:4). See also 27:4 and note on 27:4–5; 30:1 and note on 30:1–2; 31:16–18.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 29:29 secret things belong to the LORD our God. Not everything that is true of God has been revealed. That there are secret things anticipates the need to trust, obey, and be humble before God. What God has revealed is for the sake of obedience (see 30:11–14).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 30:1–2 The context is exile, following from 29:28. The word for mind (Hb. lebab) can also be rendered "heart" (see 6:5 and note). This verse anticipates that God's words (all these things) will enter the exiles' hearts, leading them to return to God, or repent, which means to change their thinking and behavior completely. all your heart and with all your soul. Also 30:6, 10. See 6:5 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 30:3 restore your fortunes. This expression uses the Hebrew word "return." As Israel returns to God (v. 2), so he will "return" to them. gather. The reverse of 28:64; 29:28.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 30:5 fathers. Either referring to the patriarchs—Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (as in v. 20)—or to earlier generations living in the land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 30:6 circumcise your heart. This is a key promise in Deuteronomy, looking forward to genuine covenant participation (see Jer. 31:33; Ezek. 36:26–27; Rom. 2:25–29; Col. 2:11). See note on Deut. 10:16. so that you will love. God's changing of the heart enables obedience (6:5).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 30:9 abundantly prosperous. Also v. 5. The blessings promised in 28:1–14 will now be realized. fathers. See note on

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 30:11 not too hard for you. When the heart is circumcised (see note on v. 6), keeping the law is possible.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 30:12–14 in your mouth and in your heart. This is the result of the circumcised heart that enables obedience (see note on v. 6). Paul quotes from these verses in Rom. 10:6–8 to show that the Jews already had the message of faith through the Scriptures.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 30:15 I have set before you. See also v. 19. The climax of Moses' preaching is to seek a commitment from Israel to trust in God's grace and thus obey his commands.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 30:19–20 I call heaven and earth. Ancient treaties had witnesses to their ratification. Often those witnesses were the gods. In Deuteronomy, since God himself is a partner to the covenant, heaven and earth are called as witnesses. See 4:25–26 and note. Life, and living, is a key theme in ch. 30 (see vv. 6, 15, 16, 18, 19, 20). To choose life is to choose God himself, to trust in God's grace and circumcision of the heart. holding fast. See 4:4 and note on 4:3–4 on 4:3–4.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:1–34:12 Succession of Leadership. The final chapters of Deuteronomy concern the succession of leadership from Moses to Joshua and the writing down of the covenant for its perpetuity and ongoing authority in Israel's life.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:1–29 The Commissioning of Joshua and the Writing of the Law. It has been clear throughout Deuteronomy that Moses will die before entry into the land. Now his successor, Joshua, is commissioned.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:2 No longer able to go out and come in refers to Moses' old age. You shall not go over this Jordan. Moses' exclusion from the Promised Land was due to his sin (1:37; 3:27; 4:21–22; 32:51–52; Num. 20:2–12).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:4 Sihon and Og. See 2:24–3:11.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:6 Be strong and courageous. This command to all Israel is also made directly to Joshua (vv. 7, 23; Josh. 1:6, 7, 9). Do not fear. See Deut. 1:28. He will not leave you or forsake you. In 1 Chron. 28:20, David applies this to Solomon; cf. Heb. 13:5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:7–8 Here Moses commissions Joshua, which God himself then does in v. 23.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:9 wrote this law. The writing of Deuteronomy 1–30 by Moses indicates that God's law had ongoing validity for future generations. From now on, the mediation of God's word to Israel, given orally through Moses, will be through the written text.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:10–11 end of every seven years, at the set time in the year of release. See 15:1. Feast of Booths. See 16:13–15. This passage gives one of the clearest pictures of how people were taught the law. The priests had the responsibility to read this law aloud to the people at the great fall festival. at the place that he will choose. See 12:5.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:12 men, women, and little ones, and the sojourner. According to 16:16, only the men were required to make the pilgrimage for the feast each year. Here, that obligation is extended to everyone in the seventh year, when the law is read.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:14–15 tent of meeting. See Ex. 33:7–11 and Num. 1:1. I may commission him. See Deut. 31:23. pillar of cloud. See Ex. 33:9.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:16–18 The clear expectation is that Israel will disobey, end up in idolatry, and become the object of God's wrath (see 30:1). whore. Idolatry is often described in the OT in language of whoredom and adultery (e.g., Ezekiel 16).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:19 write this song. See v. 22 and 31:30–32:44. The anticipation is that Israel will disobey and that the song will therefore be a witness to Israel's disobedience (31:21).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:21 As Deuteronomy often suggests, Israel's heart was inclined to faithless disobedience, not faithful obedience.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:23 Be strong and courageous. See v. 6. I will be with you. The same promise was made by God to Moses in Ex. 3:12.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:24 the words of this law in a book. See v. 9 and note there.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:26–27 Book of the Law. I.e., chs. 1–30. See 31:9 and note there. by the side of the ark of the covenant. The tablets of the Ten Commandments were placed inside the ark; the Book of the Law was to be alongside the ark in the Most Holy Place of the tabernacle. One function of the law (cf. v. 19) was to witness against Israel, exposing its sinfulness. stubborn. See 9:6 and 10:16.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:28 Heaven and earth are called to witness against Israel (cf. note on 30:19–20), anticipating their future faithlessness. So the three witnesses are the song (31:19), the Book of the Law (v. 26), and heaven and earth.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:29 the work of your hands. I.e., the making of idols.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:30–32:47 The Song of Moses. In addition to the writing of the law and its recital every seven years (31:9–13), the Song of Moses also acts as a witness against Israel.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 31:30 song. See vv. 19, 22.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:4 On God as the Rock, see vv. 15, 18, 30–31; see also Ps. 18:2; 19:14.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:5 no longer his children. Cf. Hos. 1:9. See note on Deut. 14:1–2. crooked and twisted generation. See Phil. 2:15.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:6 your father. See v. 5. Though rare in the OT, the notion of God as father of his people is not totally new in the NT.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:7 Remember. See 5:15 and note.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:8–9 gave to the nations their inheritance. For example, Edom, Moab, and Ammon in 2:1–23, as well as Israel throughout the book. According to the number of the sons of God may suggest that certain angels ("sons of God"; see Job 1:6) are responsible for specific nations, whereas the Lord himself cares for Israel. See also the second esv footnote on v. 8. the LORD's portion. A term of special affection. See notes on Deut. 4:20 and 18:1–2.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:11 Like an eagle. See Ex. 19:4.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:14 Bashan was a particularly fertile area, where Og had been king (3:1–11; cf. Amos 4:1).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:15–16 Jeshurun means the upright one, a poetic name for Israel used sarcastically here (cf. Isa. 44:2). jealousy with strange gods. See Deut. 4:24 and note on 4:23–24. As throughout Deuteronomy, idolatry is the key sin of and threat to Israel (see also 32:21). God, the Rock, has redeemed and provided for Israel, whereas idols or false gods have no real existence or track record (v. 17).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:20 hide my face. Often God's punishment of sin is his withdrawal (v. 18; see also Rom. 1:24, 26, 28).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:21 In Rom. 10:19 Paul quotes from this verse to show that Israel will need a remedy for their unbelief regarding Jesus (in Rom. 11:11, 14, Gentile faith is the remedy).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:22 depths of Sheol. The place of the dead. See Ps. 86:13.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:27 lest their adversaries should misunderstand. The reputation of God is the driving force behind the switch from punishment of Israel to salvation for Israel. See 9:28; also Ezek. 36:21–38.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:29 wise. Cf. 4:6. The ideal of 4:5–8 is far from realized in this song.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:30–31 Israel's Rock is God; the rock of the enemies refers to the so-called gods of other nations. Their gods are impotent and nothing, hence the enemies are by themselves. Therefore any victory over Israel must be attributed to God's giving up Israel into their hands.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:35–36 Vengeance is mine, and recompense. Romans 12:19 and Heb. 10:30 quote the Septuagint (Gk. OT) version, "and I will repay." For the LORD will vindicate his people. Beyond defeat and exile, God will restore his people (Deut. 30:1–3). Cf. Heb. 10:30 and ESV footnote on Deut. 32:36.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:39 I, even I, am he. The emphasis on "I" highlights the sovereignty of God (cf. Ex. 3:14). no god beside me. See Deut. 4:35; 5:7; and note on 4:35–36.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:43 The Hebrew Masoretic text, which the ESV usually follows, presents problems in this verse. So here the Dead Sea Scrolls and Septuagint variants have been followed, as they represent an earlier stage of textual transmission (see ESV footnotes). The verse brings the song to a triumphant conclusion affirming that, despite Israel's sin and exile, God will ultimately restore them. The quotation from this verse in Rom. 15:10 uses a phrase found only in the Septuagint, "Rejoice O Gentiles, with his people," to convey the expectation that God would one day bring the light to the entire Gentile world.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:46–47 I am warning you. The song was a witness against Israel. See 31:19 and note there. your very life, and by this word you shall live. Cf. 30:19–20.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:48–33:29 The Blessing of Moses. Like a patriarch, Moses blesses Israel before his death. Cf. Jacob blessing his sons (Gen. 49:3–27).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 32:49–51 Abarim, Mount Nebo. See 34:1. Aaron your brother died in Mount Hor. See 10:6 and Num. 20:24–28.

you broke faith with me. See Num. 20:11–13. Cf. Deut. 1:37; 3:26; 4:21.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:1–29 There is no mention of Simeon in the list of tribes, perhaps because the tribe was going to be dispersed (Gen. 49:7) and absorbed by Judah. The blessings are bracketed by statements praising God's uniqueness (Deut. 33:1–5, 26–29).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:1 Man of God shows the high esteem in which Moses was held. See also Josh. 14:6. The term is most frequently used in the OT of Elijah and Elisha.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:2 Sinai (in Deuteronomy, usually called Horeb) was the mountain of God, where he appeared. Seir is another name for Edom, in whose territory Sinai was situated (see Judg. 5:4–5). Mount Paran was in the same vicinity (Deut. 1:1–2). holy ones. Angels or heavenly beings.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:5 The real king of Israel was God, despite the later development of a monarchy. Jeshurun. See v. 26 and 32:15. when the heads of the people were gathered. Refers to the covenant renewal in Moab.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:6 Reuben was the eldest son of Jacob, and hence is listed first (as in Gen. 49:3).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:8 The Thummim and Urim were possibly two flat stones, like two-sided dice, used to determine guidance (see Ex. 28:30). Massah. See Ex. 17:7. The blessing of Levi (Deut. 33:8–11) acknowledges the tribe's uprightness in the golden calf incident (Ex. 32:26–29).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:10 The two main roles of the priestly tribe of Levi were to teach the law (31:11) and to oversee the sacrificial system.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:12 The beloved of the LORD. Cf. Gen. 49:27.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:13 Joseph here includes the two tribes of Manasseh and Ephraim, the sons of Joseph (see v. 17).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:15–16 Cf. the blessing by Jacob on Joseph in Gen. 49:26. who dwells in the bush. See Ex. 3:1–6.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:21 chose the best of the land for himself. See Num. 32:1–5, where Gad and Reuben request land across the Jordan that is ideal for cattle.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:22 Bashan. This blessing seems to locate Dan in the north of the land, predicting its migration to the north (see Judges 18).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:23 the lake. Naphtali's land bordered the Sea of Galilee.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:24 let him dip his foot in oil. Olive oil was a symbol of wealth.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:26 There is none like God. Cf. 4:35. Jeshurun. See 32:15 and note on 32:15–16. who rides through the heavens. Cf. Ps. 18:10.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 33:29 God promised to be a shield for Abram (Gen. 15:1).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 34:1–12 The Death of Moses. Moses dies and is buried on Mount Nebo, overlooking the Promised Land.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 34:1–3 Mount Nebo, to the top of Pisgah. See 3:17, 27. Gilead. See 2:36 and note on 2:36–37. Dan. See 33:22 and note there. western sea. The Mediterranean. the Negeb. See 1:7 and note there.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 34:4 the land of which I swore. See 1:7–8. Deuteronomy begins and ends with the theme of the land promised by God. I have let you see it with your eyes, but you shall not go over there. See 1:37 and note on 1:37–38.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 34:5 servant of the LORD. Cf. Ex. 14:31; Josh. 1:1, 7, 13. This title is reserved for special leaders or others in the service of God: e.g., Abraham (Gen. 26:24), Joshua (Josh. 24:29), David (2 Sam. 3:18), Israel (Isa. 41:8–9), and a foreign king (Jer. 25:9).

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 34:6–7 he buried him. Unlike Joseph, whose remains were eventually buried in the land (Josh. 24:32), Moses is buried (by God himself) outside the land. Beth-peor. See Deut. 3:29 and note there. vigor unabated. Cf. 31:2.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 34:9 On the commissioning of Joshua to succeed Moses, see 31:7–8, 14, 23. On his being full of the spirit, see Ex. 28:3; 31:3; 35:31; Mic. 3:8; Luke 1:15; Acts 6:3. wisdom. See Deut. 1:13.

DEUTERONOMY—NOTE ON 34:10 there has not arisen a prophet since in Israel like Moses. See 18:15–19 for the expectation that God will raise up a prophet like Moses. Ultimately Jesus fulfills this prophecy (cf. John 1:21; Acts 3:22–24; 7:37). face to face. See Ex. 33:11.

Introduction to Joshua

Author and Title

The book of Joshua is named for its leading character. (For more on Joshua, see note on 1:1.) The book's author, however, is not explicitly mentioned. The Talmud—a collection of ancient writings by rabbis on Jewish law and tradition—ascribes the book, with the exception of the account of Joshua's death, to Joshua himself (Baba Bathra 15a). While the book depicts Joshua writing (Josh. 8:32; 24:26), it does not claim he wrote the book. Indeed, the repeated references to something existing "to this day" (see 4:9; 5:9; 6:25; etc.) seem to suggest a significant lapse of time between the events and the book's final form. Also, the narrator in Joshua 10:13 cites what may be an earlier record of Joshua's deeds.

Date

Determining the date of the book of Joshua is difficult because, as with many other OT books, it may have been edited as it became part of the growing corpus of OT texts. Its final editing may well have taken place in the exilic period (post-587 B.C.), but its original composition was likely much earlier. A number of features point to a date of origin in the late second millennium B.C.

Theme

Joshua recounts part two of God's grandest work of redemption in the OT period. In part one (the Pentateuch), under the leadership of Moses, the Lord redeemed his people out of bondage in Egypt and formalized his covenantal love for them at Sinai. Now in part two, under the leadership of Joshua, the Lord as divine Warrior brings his people into the Land of Promise and gives them "rest."

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

From the evidence in the book itself, it appears that the purpose of the book of Joshua was to recount, from a theological perspective, the events surrounding Israel's capture and settlement of the land of Canaan—with particular emphasis on God's faithfulness in fulfilling his promise to the patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Such an account would have been relevant to ancient Israel from its earliest arrival in Canaan and to every subsequent generation of God's people to the present day.

Literary background. Joshua comes immediately after the Pentateuch and in many ways completes its story. The theme of the first five books of the Bible is the progressive fulfillment of the "patriarchal promise," made first to Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3) and reiterated to him, his son Isaac (Gen. 26:2–4), and his grandson Jacob (Gen. 28:13–15; etc.). Simply stated, the Lord promised Abraham and his descendants that they would be blessed and become a blessing, that they would grow to become a great nation, and that they would be given a land of their own. In addition, these blessings would be enjoyed in the context of a close covenant relationship with God.

By the end of the Pentateuch, Israel has been brought into the blessing of covenant relationship with the Lord and has become a great people. But they remain outside the Land of Promise, on the plains of Moab. Forty years before, the Lord had raised up Moses to lead his people out of bondage in Egypt and to bring them to the land he had promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (Ex. 3:6–8; 6:2–8). Now, after so many years of wandering, Joshua, the "new Moses" (Josh. 1:1–9), is to lead God's people into the land, take it, and divide it among them as their inheritance from the Lord.

Historical background. (See also Introduction to the Historical Books.) The dates of the exodus and the conquest of the Promised Land are interrelated, since the conquest occurred about 40 years after the exodus. Whether the exodus occurred in the fifteenth century (about 1446) or thirteenth century (about 1260) B.C. is a matter of long-standing debate among biblical scholars. (See The Date of the Exodus.)

Were the pharaoh of the exodus explicitly named in the biblical text, this problem would be solved, but as was the custom in Egyptian records until about the tenth century B.C., he is simply called "Pharaoh." Deciding the date of the exodus and conquest does not materially affect the interpretation of the book of Joshua. Continuing archaeological work (both excavations and surface surveys) is providing helpful data, but this data requires interpretation and can often be correlated with either date of the conquest.

With regard to the manner in which Israel came to be present in Canaan, several "models" have been suggested. According to the older conquest model, associated with W. F. Albright, the text of Joshua describes a rapid and highly destructive conquest. Advocates of this view were convinced that the thirteenth century provided the best archaeological confirmation. Subsequent work undermined Albright's model and its archaeological support. The unfortunate result of the collapse of Albright's conquest model was that many scholars wrongly assumed that the biblical testimony to a conquest was also discredited. More careful reading of the biblical text, however, reveals a conquest that is protracted and not necessarily very destructive of property, except in the case of those few cities burned: Jericho, Ai, and Hazor (see note on 11:10–15). Other proposed models of Israel's emergence include the peaceful infiltration model (pioneered by A. Alt), the peasant revolt model (of G. Mendenhall), and various more recent endogenous models (which assume Israel to have emerged from within Canaan, rather than having entered from without).

None of the standard "models" does full justice to the biblical evidence, but each may capture an aspect of the biblical portrayal. Military conquest certainly played a part in Israel's entry into Canaan, and archaeology provides at least some interesting correlations (see notes on 6:5; 11:10–15). Further, archaeological surface surveys indicate a rapid proliferation of small settlements in the central hill country, beginning in the late thirteenth century B.C., whose inhabitants appear to have avoided eating pork. It is tempting to associate these new villages with the settling down of Israelites, perhaps after a longer or shorter period of existence as nomadic herdsmen in Canaan. Peaceful infiltration may have played some part in the settlement; Gibeon came under Israelite control without a fight (ch. 9), as did perhaps Shechem (see note on 8:30–33) and other sites. Revolt and realignment by disaffected Canaanites such as Rahab (ch. 2) almost certainly contributed to Israel's "mixed multitude" (cf. Ex. 12:38), so some degree of "endogenous" origin need not be ruled out.

The Destruction of the Canaanites

The account in Joshua presents the sensitive reader with a deep problem, namely, the apparently wholesale slaughter of the indigenous Canaanite population in order to allow the people of Israel to occupy their land. How did Israel have any right to seize that land? And how can it be God's will for them to spare none of those who resisted them in defense of their own land? Could this be a level of barbarism that God tolerated in the OT but now forbids in the NT?

Certainly people hostile to the Bible decry ancient Israel for its "ethnic cleansing," and many sensitive Christians find this deeply troubling as well. To handle the topic thoroughly would take a longer essay, but the discussion here can guide thoughts for fuller reflection.

One must begin by acknowledging that the questions are legitimate. Christians rightly condemn this kind of behavior in other circumstances, and there is no warrant today for nations to destroy other nations in order to take their land. But there are special features of the command to Israel that both make it unique (and therefore not open to be imitated) and allow it to be seen in a moral light. This command is one reason why Exodus records the call of Moses in such detail (Ex. 3:1–4:17; cf. Num. 12:1–15): Moses is God's unique choice to be the lawgiver for his people, and the commands given through Moses come from God's own mind (cf. Deut. 18:15–20). Believers accept God's appointment of Moses to speak his will. Without this command from God as delivered through Moses, Israel would have had no right to the land.

A second point to clarify is that the Pentateuch sets out laws of warfare, distinguishing between battles fought against cities outside the Promised Land (Deut. 20:10–15) and those fought against cities inside the land (Deut. 20:16–18). It is only the latter case that requires Israel to spare no one ("you shall devote them to complete destruction"); see the notes on Deuteronomy 20:1–20 and 20:16–18. The law appears to be unconditional and implacable. With these clarifications, one can now outline why this command is not an unsolvable "problem."

(1) A fundamental OT conviction is that Yahweh, the God of Israel, is the Creator of all there is, and therefore the owner of all lands. He has the right to distribute territories according to his good and holy will (cf. Ex. 19:5; Ps. 24:1). As the universal Creator, he is also the universal Judge, to whom all people everywhere are accountable: cf. Genesis 6–8 (the flood story affects all kinds of people); Genesis 11:1–9 (the Tower of Babel); Exodus 12:12 (judgment on the gods of Egypt); the prophetic oracles about the nations (see chart). The NT shares this basic conviction: cf. Acts 14:15–16; 17:24–31. This means that God has the ultimate rights over the land of Canaan, and that he has the right to bring the Canaanites to judgment for their moral condition and deeds.

(2) Since all people are sinners, all are rightly subject to God's judgment. The Pentateuch gives a moral rationale for the removal of the Canaanites, seeing it as divine judgment for their iniquities (see note on Gen. 15:13–16; cf. Lev. 18:24–30; Deut. 9:5). This action against these peoples, then, is an expression of God's judgment on them through the agency of Israel. This judgment therefore announces the moral nature of God to the whole world for their instruction (that announcement in all its clarity is itself part of the blessing that Israel is to bring to the whole world). In ways that are not entirely clear, the faithful will participate with God in carrying out the final judgment (1 Cor. 6:2; cf. Ps. 149:6–7), and Israel's bringing of judgment on the Canaanites foreshadows that great responsibility as well (see note on Josh. 6:17).

God's judgment allows no double standard: he did not base his choice of Israel on any merit of theirs (Deut. 7:6–9), and he calls them to embrace his love faithfully. Unfaithfulness will lead to judgment upon Israel itself, whether at the level of the individual (Ex. 22:20) or the whole people (Josh. 7:11–12; Mal. 4:6; cf. Lev. 18:28). This cannot be called "ethnic cleansing," since the treatment is just, regardless of ethnicity.

(3) Further, the Sinai covenant sets Israel up to be a "theocracy," a unique combination of what is now called "church" and "state." Membership in the people is both political and religious, and thus "citizens" are under obligation to be faithful in observing the covenant. Those who carry out egregious violations must be removed (e.g., Deut. 13:5; 17:7; etc.), and if Israel were to allow unrepentant Canaanites to remain in the land, they would drag the whole people down into idolatry, injustice, and evil (e.g., Deut. 7:4; 12:29–31), which, sadly, is just what happened. Christians are not to carry out this kind of warfare, because the people of God are no longer identified with a particular nation-state.

(4) Finally, even though the laws about destroying the Canaanites are stated in an uncompromising and unconditional way (in keeping with the rhetoric of ancient Near Eastern conquest accounts, which allows for this kind of unqualified statement), the way Israel applied those laws apparently made room for some of the Canaanites to surrender and survive, particularly if they professed faith in the one true God (see note on Josh. 2:9 for Rahab and her whole family; see note on 9:1–27 for the Gibeonites; cf. 11:19). This means that the appearance of implacability in these laws is just that, an appearance, and there is an implied allowance for exceptions. This is another point showing that, strictly speaking, the command given to Israel is nothing like "ethnic cleansing," since ethnicity itself is not the reason for the action.

These factors—God's right to allocate land and judge the world with perfect justice; the need to protect the purity of the Israelite theocracy; and the provisions for even Canaanites to be saved—all illustrate the justice that lies behind these provisions. At the same time, it is also clear that the practices known as genocide and ethnic cleansing are indeed evil, and the Israelites were not commanded to commit them. These factors were a unique part of Israel's mission; no people today have any right to use them as a warrant to support injustice.

Key Themes

The book of Joshua is fascinating not only in respect to literary and historical questions but perhaps especially in regard to several theological topics: land, leadership, the Book of the Law, covenant, Yahweh's war (Hb. kherem), judgment and mercy, divine sovereignty and human responsibility, promised rest, God's faithfulness and his people's response, and so forth. The theological lessons to glean from the pages of Joshua are many:

I. The Lord's abiding presence as the key to strength and courage (e.g., 1:5, 9).
II. The centrality of the Lord's instructions for succeeding in one's mission and acting with insight; land and rest as divine gifts (1:7–8).
III. The ability of the Lord to save the "outsider" (Rahab), and the danger of the "insider" falling away (Achan; see chs. 2 and 7).
IV. The Lord as divine Warrior and the reality of judgment when iniquity is full (e.g., 10:42; 11:19–20).
V. The danger of presumption and failure to inquire of the Lord (e.g., 9:14).
VI. The Lord as protector of the covenant (e.g., 10:1–15, esp. v. 11).

VII. The unity of the people of God (18:1–10; 22:34).
VIII. The sovereignty of God in giving his people place and rest (1:13; 11:23; 21:43–45).
IX. The faithfulness of God in fulfilling all his good promises (1:2; 21:43–45).
X. The necessity of removing false gods and worshiping God alone (ch. 24).

The list could continue. Given the virtual identity of the names Joshua and Jesus (both are rendered "Jesus" [Gk. 'Iēsous] in the Gk. of the Septuagint and the NT), and in light of passages such as Hebrews 4:8–11, it is not surprising that the leader Joshua has been interpreted as a "type" of Christ.

History of Salvation Summary

The story of Joshua continues on from the Pentateuch, as God uses Joshua's leadership of his people to give them what he had promised to the patriarchs. In such circumstances, there is even (in a limited way) blessing coming to Gentiles. In order to flourish and to fulfill their calling, the people of God require faithful leadership and faithful members. In Joshua, this mostly does happen (with a notable lapse, 9:14). The book closes with the people pledging continued faithfulness. The story of Israel after this time shows that their heirs did not remain faithful to this pledge, and the book warns all subsequent generations that each of them must renew this commitment. (For an explanation of the "History of Salvation," see the Overview of the Bible. See also History of Salvation in the Old Testament: Preparing the Way for Christ.)

Literary Features

In the Hebrew canon, the book of Joshua is included (along with Judges, 1–2 Samuel, and 1–2 Kings) in the "Former Prophets." In English Bibles, these same books are often called the "Historical Books." Both designations are apt. The book of Joshua qualifies as historiography (history writing), but it is not like the ostensibly disinterested, largely political histories that modern secular historians write. It is, rather, a didactic history written from a prophetic (that is, theological) point of view.

Multiple genres converge in the book of Joshua. The overall format is narrative or story. The specific type of story is epic—the story of a nation engaged in matters of state, including warfare. A feature of epics is the inclusion of epic catalogs (lists), and in the book of Joshua they are so extensive that the book becomes a historical chronicle in addition to an epic story.

To read the book of Joshua in keeping with its literary purpose, one needs to place oneself in the narrative world of the text. Readers need to imagine themselves present at the events, and take the literal, physical details seriously. They need to relish the suspense, the danger, and the plot conflicts that the storyteller puts forward. An epic presents heightened images of good and evil, and all the more so with the implied holy war motif encountered in the OT. Along with the images of good and evil, there are images of heroism to admire and emulate. Finally, the reader should look not only at the world of the story and its characters but through that world to life as it is now. Having relived the events in the story, one must ponder the recognizable human experiences and the underlying principles, especially in leadership, community, and spiritual warfare.

c. 1406/1220 B.C.

The book of Joshua recounts the Israelite conquest of the land of Canaan under the command of Joshua. The book opens at Shittim with Joshua’s commission from the Lord as the leader of the Israelites, progresses through his victories over the Canaanite kings and the allotment of the land, and ends with Joshua’s charge to the people to remain faithful to the Lord.

Outline

The book of Joshua divides logically in the middle, with the first half focusing on Israel's conquest of the land of Canaan and the second half on the distribution of the conquered territories among the Israelite tribes. Better, however, is an analysis of the book as four sections, each characterized by a key Hebrew word. The sound similarities between the Hebrew words yield the following pattern:

- 'abar Cross the Jordan into the land (chs. 1–5)
- laqakh Take the land (chs. 6–12)
- khalaq Divide the land (chs. 13–21)
- 'abad Serve the Lord in the land (chs. 22–24)

I. Crossing into the Land (1:1–5:15)
    A. Joshua's charge (1:1–18)
    B. Joshua, the spies, and Rahab (2:1–24)
    C. Crossing the Jordan (3:1–4:24)
    D. Ritual renewal and divine encounter (5:1–15)
II. Taking the Land (6:1–12:24)
    A. Jericho's fall: firstfruits of war (6:1–27)
    B. Israel's failure: Achan's sin; corporate guilt (7:1–26)
    C. Israel's renewal: Ai's defeat (8:1–35)
    D. Israel's Canaanite covenant: the Gibeonite ruse (9:1–27)
    E. Defense of Gibeon, conquest of the south (10:1–43)
    F. Conquest of the north and a list of defeated kings (11:1–12:24)
III. Dividing the Land (13:1–21:45)
    A. It's yours, now take it! (13:1–33)
    B. Western territories (14:1–19:51)
    C. A land of justice and worship (20:1–21:45)
IV. Serving the Lord in the Land (22:1–24:33)
    A. One nation, under God (22:1–34)
    B. Joshua's charge to Israel's leaders (23:1–16)
    C. Covenant renewal at Shechem (24:1–33)

God Commissions Joshua

JOSHUA 1 [†]After the death of Moses the [a]servant of the LORD, the LORD said to Joshua the son of Nun, Moses’ [b]assistant, [2][†]“Moses my servant is dead. Now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, you and all this people, into the land that I am giving to them, to the people of Israel. [3][†][c]Every place that the sole of your foot will tread upon I have given to you, just as I promised to Moses. [4][†][d]From the wilderness and this Lebanon as far as the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites to the Great Sea toward the going down of the sun shall be your territory. [5][†][e]No man shall be able to stand before you all the days of your life. Just [f]as I was with Moses, so [g]I will be with you. [h]I will not leave you or forsake you. [6][^][i]Be strong and courageous, for you shall cause this people to inherit the land that I swore to their fathers to give them. [7]Only be strong and [j]very courageous, being careful to do according to all the law [k]that Moses my servant commanded you. [l]Do not turn from it to the right hand or to the left, that you may have good success [1] wherever you go. [8]This Book of the Law shall not depart from your mouth, but [m]you shall meditate on it day and night, so that you may be careful to do according to all that is written in it. For then you will make your way prosperous, and then you will have good success. [9]Have I not commanded you? [n]Be strong and courageous. [o]Do not be frightened, and do not be dismayed, for the LORD your God is with you wherever you go.”

Joshua Assumes Command

[10]And Joshua commanded the [p]officers of the people, [11]“Pass through the midst of the camp and command the people, ‘Prepare your provisions, for [q]within three days [r]you are to pass over this Jordan to go in to take possession of the land that the LORD your God is giving you to possess.’”

[12][†]And to the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh Joshua said, [13][†]“Remember the word that [s]Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, saying, 'The LORD your God is providing you a place of rest and will give you this land.' 14[†]Your wives, your little ones, and your livestock shall remain in the land that Moses gave you beyond the Jordan, but all the men of valor among you shall pass over armed before your brothers and shall help them, 15 [t]until the LORD gives rest to your brothers as he has to you, and they also take possession of the land that the LORD your God is giving them. [u]Then you shall return to the land of your possession and shall possess it, the land that Moses the servant of the LORD gave you beyond the Jordan toward the sunrise."

16And they answered Joshua, "All that you have commanded us we will do, and wherever you send us we will go. 17[†]Just as we obeyed Moses in all things, so we will obey you. Only may the LORD your God [v]be with you, as he was with Moses! 18Whoever rebels against your commandment and disobeys your words, whatever you command him, shall be put to death. [w]Only be strong and courageous."

Rahab Hides the Spies

JOSHUA 2 [†]And Joshua the son of Nun [x]sent [1] two men secretly from Shittim as spies, saying, "Go, view the land, especially Jericho." And they went and came into the house of [y]a prostitute whose name was [z]Rahab and lodged there. 2[†]And it was told to the king of Jericho, "Behold, men of Israel have come here tonight to search out the land." 3Then the king of Jericho sent to Rahab, saying, "Bring out the men who have come to you, who entered your house, for they have come to search out all the land." 4[†]But the woman had taken the two men and hidden them. And she said, "True, the men came to me, but I did not know where they were from. 5And when the gate was about to be closed at dark, the men went out. I do not know where the men went. Pursue them quickly, for you will overtake them." 6[†]But she had brought them up to the roof and hid them with the stalks of flax that she had laid in order on the roof. 7[†]So the men pursued after them on the way to the Jordan [a]as far as the fords. And the gate was shut as soon as the pursuers had gone out.

8Before the men [2] lay down, she came up to them on the roof 9[^][†]and said to the men, "I know that the LORD has given you the land, [b]and that the fear of you has fallen upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land [c] melt away before you. [10][†]For we have heard how the LORD [d] dried up the water of the Red Sea before you when you came out of Egypt, and [e] what you did to the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, to [f] Sihon and Og, whom you devoted to destruction. [3] [11][†]And [g] as soon as we heard it, [h] our hearts melted, and there was no spirit left in any man because of you, for [i] the LORD your God, he is God in the heavens above and on the earth beneath. [12][†]Now then, please swear to me by the LORD that, as I have dealt kindly with you, you also will deal kindly with my father's house, and [j] give me a sure sign [13]that you will save alive my father and mother, my brothers and sisters, and all who belong to them, and deliver our lives from death." [14]And the men said to her, "Our life for yours even to death! If you do not tell this business of ours, then when the LORD gives us the land [k] we will deal kindly and faithfully with you."

[15][†]Then she [l] let them down by a rope through the window, for her house was built into the city wall, so that she lived in the wall. [16]And she said [4] to them, "Go into the hills, or the pursuers will encounter you, and hide there three days until the pursuers have returned. Then afterward you may go your way." [17]The men said to her, "We will be guiltless with respect to this oath of yours that you have made us swear. [18][†] [m] Behold, when we come into the land, you shall tie this scarlet cord in the window through which you let us down, [n] and you shall gather into your house your father and mother, your brothers, and all your father's household. [19]Then if anyone goes out of the doors of your house into the street, [o] his blood shall be on his own head, and we shall be guiltless. But if a hand is laid on anyone who is with you in the house, his blood shall be on our head. [20]But if you [p] tell this business of ours, then we shall be guiltless with respect to your oath that you have made us swear." [21]And she said, "According to your words, so be it." Then she sent them away, and they departed. And she tied the scarlet cord in the window.

[22]They departed and went into the hills and remained there three days until the pursuers returned, and the pursuers searched all along the way and found nothing. [23]Then the two men returned. They came down from the hills and [q] passed over and came to Joshua the son of Nun, and they told him all that had happened to them. [24][†]And they said to Joshua, “Truly [r]the LORD has given all the land into our hands. And also, all the inhabitants of the land [s]melt away because of us.”

Israel Crosses the Jordan

JOSHUA 3 [†]Then Joshua rose early in the morning and they set out [t]from Shittim. And they came to the Jordan, he and all the people of Israel, and lodged there before they passed over. [2][†] [u]At the end of three days the officers went through the camp [3][†]and commanded the people, “As soon as you see the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God being carried by [v]the Levitical priests, then you shall set out from your place and follow it. [4][†] [w]Yet there shall be a distance between you and it, about 2,000 cubits [1] in length. Do not come near it, in order that you may know the way you shall go, for you have not passed this way before.” [5][†]Then Joshua said to the people, [x]“Consecrate yourselves, for tomorrow the LORD will do wonders among you.” [6]And Joshua said to the priests, [y]“Take up the ark of the covenant and pass on before the people.” So they took up the ark of the covenant and went before the people.

[7][†]The LORD said to Joshua, “Today I will begin to [z]exalt you in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, [a]as I was with Moses, so I will be with you. [8]And as for you, command [b]the priests who bear the ark of the covenant, ‘When you come to the brink of the waters of the Jordan, [c]you shall stand still in the Jordan.’” [9]And Joshua said to the people of Israel, “Come here and listen to the words of the LORD your God.” [10][†]And Joshua said, “Here is how you shall know that [d]the living God is among you and that he will without fail [e]drive out from before you the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Hivites, the Perizzites, the Girgashites, the Amorites, and the Jebusites. [11][^]Behold, the ark of the covenant of [f]the Lord of all the earth [2] [g]is passing over before you into the Jordan. [12][†]Now therefore [h]take twelve men from the tribes of Israel, [i]from each tribe a man. [13]And [j]when the soles of the feet of the priests bearing the ark of the LORD, [f]the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of the Jordan, the waters of the Jordan shall be cut off from flowing, and the waters coming down from above shall [k]stand in one heap.”

[14]So when the people set out from their tents to pass over the Jordan with the priests bearing [l]the ark of the covenant before the people, [15][‡]and as soon as those bearing the ark had come as far as the Jordan, and [m]the feet of the priests bearing the ark were dipped in the brink of the water (now [n]the Jordan overflows all its banks [o]throughout the time of harvest), [16][‡]the waters coming down from above stood and rose up in a heap very far away, at Adam, the city that is beside [p]Zarethan, and those flowing down toward the Sea of [q]the Arabah, [r]the Salt Sea, were completely cut off. And the people passed over opposite Jericho. [17][‡]Now the priests bearing the ark of the covenant of the LORD stood firmly on dry ground in the midst of the Jordan, [s]and all Israel was passing over on dry ground until all the nation finished passing over the Jordan.

Twelve Memorial Stones from the Jordan

JOSHUA 4 When all the nation had finished passing [t]over the Jordan, the LORD said to Joshua, [2][‡] [u]"Take twelve men from the people, from each tribe a man, [3]and command them, saying, 'Take [v]twelve stones from here out of the midst of the Jordan, from the very place [w]where the priests' feet stood firmly, and bring them over with you and lay them down in [x]the place where you lodge tonight.'" [4]Then Joshua called the twelve men from the people of Israel, whom he had appointed, a man from each tribe. [5]And Joshua said to them, "Pass on before the ark of the LORD your God into the midst of the Jordan, and take up each of you a stone upon his shoulder, according to the number of the tribes of the people of Israel, [6][^]that this may be a sign among you. [y]When your children ask in time to come, 'What do those stones mean to you?' [7]then you shall tell them that [z]the waters of the Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD. When it passed over the Jordan, the waters of the Jordan were cut off. So these stones shall be to the people of Israel [a]a memorial forever."

[8]And the people of Israel did just as Joshua commanded and took up twelve stones out of the midst of the Jordan, according to the number of the tribes of the people of Israel, just as the LORD told Joshua. And they carried them over with them to the place where they lodged and laid them down [1] there. [9][‡]And Joshua set up [2] twelve stones in the midst of the Jordan, [b]in the place where the feet of the priests bearing the ark of the covenant had stood; and they are there to this day. [10]For the priests bearing the ark stood in the midst of the Jordan until everything was finished that the LORD commanded Joshua to tell the people, according to all that Moses had commanded Joshua.

The people passed over in haste. [11]And when all the people had finished passing over, the ark of the LORD and the priests passed over before the people. [12]The sons of Reuben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh [c]passed over armed before the people of Israel, as Moses had told them. [13][†]About 40,000 ready for war passed over before the LORD for battle, to the plains of Jericho. [14][†]On that day the LORD [d]exalted Joshua in the sight of all Israel, and they stood in awe of him just as they had stood in awe of Moses, all the days of his life.

[15]And the LORD said to Joshua, [16]“Command the priests bearing [e]the ark of the testimony to come up out of the Jordan.” [17]So Joshua commanded the priests, “Come up out of the Jordan.” [18]And when the priests bearing the ark of the covenant of the LORD came up from the midst of the Jordan, and the soles of the priests’ feet were lifted up on dry ground, the waters of the Jordan returned to their place and overflowed all its banks, [f]as before.

[19][†]The people came up out of the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month, and they encamped at [g]Gilgal on the east border of Jericho. [20][†]And [h]those twelve stones, which they took out of the Jordan, Joshua set up at Gilgal. [21][†]And he said to the people of Israel, [i]“When your children ask their fathers in times to come, ‘What do these stones mean?’ [22]then you shall let your children know, [j]‘Israel passed over this Jordan on dry ground.’ [23]For the LORD your God dried up the waters of the Jordan for you until you passed over, as the LORD your God did to the Red Sea, [k]which he dried up for us until we passed over, [24][†][l]so that all the peoples of the earth may know that the hand of the LORD is [m]mighty, that you may [n]fear the LORD your God forever.”[3]

The New Generation Circumcised

JOSHUA 5 [†]As soon as all the kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan to the west, and all the kings of the Canaanites [o]who were by the sea, [p] heard that the LORD had dried up the waters of the Jordan for the people of Israel until they had crossed over, their hearts [q] melted and [r] there was no longer any spirit in them because of the people of Israel.

[2][†]At that time the LORD said to Joshua, "Make [s] flint knives and circumcise the sons of Israel a second time." [3]So Joshua made flint knives and circumcised the sons of Israel at Gibeath-haaraloth. [1] [4]And this is the reason why Joshua circumcised them: [t] all the males of the people who came out of Egypt, all the men of war, had died in the wilderness on the way after they had come out of Egypt. [5]Though all the people who came out had been circumcised, yet all the people who were born on the way in the wilderness after they had come out of Egypt had not been circumcised. [6][†]For the people of Israel walked [u] forty years in the wilderness, until all the nation, the men of war who came out of Egypt, perished, because they did not obey the voice of the LORD; the LORD [v] swore to them that he would not let them see the land that the LORD had sworn to their fathers to give to us, [w] a land flowing with milk and honey. [7]So it was [x] their children, whom he raised up in their place, that Joshua circumcised. For they were uncircumcised, because they had not been circumcised on the way.

[8]When the circumcising of the whole nation was finished, they remained in their places in the camp until they were healed. [9][†]And the LORD said to Joshua, "Today I have rolled away the [y] reproach of Egypt from you." And so the name of that place is called [z] Gilgal [2] to this day.

First Passover in Canaan

[10][†]While the people of Israel were encamped at Gilgal, they kept the Passover [a] on the fourteenth day of the month in the evening on the plains of Jericho. [11]And the day after the Passover, on that very day, they ate of the produce of the land, unleavened cakes and parched grain. [12][†]And [b] the manna ceased the day after they ate of the produce of the land. And there was no longer manna for the people of Israel, but they ate of the fruit of the land of Canaan that year.

The Commander of the Lord’s Army

[13][†]When Joshua was by Jericho, he lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, [c]a man was standing before him [d]with his drawn sword in his hand. And Joshua went to him and said to him, “Are you for us, or for our adversaries?” [14][^]And he said, “No; but I am the commander of the army of the Lord. Now I have come.” And Joshua [e]fell on his face to the earth and worshiped and said to him, “What does my lord say to his servant?” [15][†]And the commander of the Lord’s army said to Joshua, [f]“Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy.” And Joshua did so.

The Fall of Jericho

JOSHUA 6 [†]Now Jericho was shut up inside and outside because of the people of Israel. None went out, and none came in. [2][^]And the Lord said to Joshua, “See, [g]I have given Jericho into your hand, with its king and mighty men of valor. [3][†]You shall march around the city, all the men of war going around the city once. Thus shall you do for six days. [4][†]Seven priests shall bear seven [h]trumpets of [i]rams’ horns before the ark. On the seventh day you shall march around the city seven times, and [j]the priests shall blow the trumpets. [5][†]And when they make a long blast with the ram’s horn, when you hear the sound of the trumpet, then all the people shall shout with a great shout, and the wall of the city will fall down flat, [1] and the people shall go up, everyone straight before him.” [6]So Joshua the son of Nun called the priests and said to them, “Take up the ark of the covenant and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of rams’ horns before the ark of the Lord.” [7]And he said to the people, “Go forward. March around the city and let [k]the armed men pass on before the ark of the Lord.”

[8]And just as Joshua had commanded the people, the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of rams’ horns before the Lord went forward, blowing the trumpets, with the ark of the covenant of the Lord following them. [9]The armed men were walking before the priests who were blowing the trumpets, and the [l]rear guard was walking after the ark, while the trumpets blew continually. [10]But Joshua commanded the people, “You shall not shout or make your voice heard, neither shall any word go out of your mouth, until the day I tell you to shout. Then you shall shout.” [11]So he caused the ark of the LORD to circle the city, going about it once. And they came into the camp and spent the night in the camp.

[12]Then Joshua rose early in the morning, and [m]the priests took up the ark of the LORD. [13]And the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of rams’ horns before the ark of the LORD walked on, and they blew the trumpets continually. And the armed men were walking before them, and the rear guard was walking after the ark of the LORD, while the trumpets blew continually. [14]And the second day they marched around the city once, and returned into the camp. So they did for six days.

[15]On the seventh day they rose early, at the dawn of day, and marched around the city in the same manner seven times. It was only on that day that they marched around the city seven times. [16]And at the seventh time, when the priests had blown the trumpets, Joshua said to the people, “Shout, for the LORD has given you the city. [17][†]And the city and all that is within it shall be [n]devoted to the LORD for destruction. [2] Only Rahab the prostitute and all who are with her in her house shall live, because she [o]hid the messengers whom we sent. [18][†]But you, keep yourselves from the things devoted to destruction, lest when you have devoted them you take any of the devoted things and make the camp of Israel [p]a thing for destruction and [q]bring trouble upon it. [19][†]But all silver and gold, and every vessel of bronze and iron, are holy to the LORD; they shall go into the treasury of the LORD.” [20][†]So the people shouted, and the trumpets were blown. As soon as the people heard the sound of the trumpet, the people shouted a great shout, and [r]the wall fell down flat, so that the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they captured the city. [21][†]Then they [s]devoted all in the city to destruction, both men and women, young and old, oxen, sheep, and donkeys, with the edge of the sword.

[22]But to the two men who had spied out the land, Joshua said, “Go into the prostitute’s house and bring out from there the woman and all who belong to her, [t]as you swore to her.” [23][†]So the young men who had been spies went in and brought out Rahab and [u]her father and mother and brothers and all who belonged to her. And they brought all her relatives and put them outside the camp of Israel. [24]And they burned the city with fire, and everything in it. [v]Only the silver and gold, and the vessels of bronze and of iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the LORD. [25]But Rahab the prostitute and her father's household and all who belonged to her, Joshua saved alive. And [w]she has lived in Israel to this day, because she hid the messengers whom Joshua sent to spy out Jericho.

[26][†]Joshua laid an oath on them at that time, saying, [x]"Cursed before the LORD be the man who rises up and rebuilds this city, Jericho.

"At the cost of his firstborn shall he lay its foundation, and at the cost of his youngest son shall he set up its gates."

[27][y]So the LORD was with Joshua, and [z]his fame was in all the land.

Israel Defeated at Ai

JOSHUA 7 [†]But the people of Israel broke faith in regard to the devoted things, for [a]Achan the son of Carmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, took some of the devoted things. And the anger of the LORD burned against the people of Israel.

[2][†]Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is near [b]Beth-aven, east of Bethel, and said to them, "Go up and spy out the land." And the men went up and spied out Ai. [3]And they returned to Joshua and said to him, "Do not have all the people go up, but let about two or three thousand men go up and attack Ai. Do not make the whole people toil up there, for they are few." [4]So about three thousand men went up there from the people. And [c]they fled before the men of Ai, [5]and the men of Ai killed about thirty-six of their men and chased them before the gate as far as Shebarim and struck them at the descent. And the hearts of the people [d]melted and became as water.

[6][†]Then Joshua [e]tore his clothes and [f]fell to the earth on his face before the ark of the LORD until the evening, he and the elders of Israel. And they put [g]dust on their heads. [7]And Joshua said, "Alas, O Lord GOD, [h]why have you brought this people over the Jordan at all, to give us into the hands of the Amorites, to destroy us? Would that we had been content to dwell beyond the Jordan! [8]O Lord, what can I say, when Israel has turned their backs before their enemies! [9]For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land will hear of it and will surround us and [i] cut off our name from the earth. And what will you do for your great name?”

The Sin of Achan

[10][†]The LORD said to Joshua, “Get up! Why have you fallen on your face? [11][^]Israel has sinned; they have [j] transgressed my covenant that I commanded them; they have taken some of the [k] devoted things; they have stolen and lied and put them among their own belongings. [12] [l] Therefore the people of Israel cannot stand before their enemies. They [m] turn their backs before their enemies, because they have become [n] devoted for destruction. [1] I will be with you no more, unless you destroy [o] the devoted things from among you. [13][†]Get up! Consecrate the people and say, [p] ‘Consecrate yourselves for tomorrow; for thus says the LORD, God of Israel, “There are devoted things in your midst, O Israel. You cannot stand before your enemies until you take away the devoted things from among you.” [14][†]In the morning therefore you shall be brought near [q] by your tribes. And the tribe that the LORD takes by lot shall come near by clans. And the clan that the LORD takes shall come near by households. And the household that the LORD takes shall come near man by man. [15][†] [r] And he who is taken with the devoted things shall be burned with fire, he and all that he has, because he has [s] transgressed the covenant of the LORD, and because he has done [t] an outrageous thing in Israel.’”

[16]So Joshua rose early in the morning and brought Israel near tribe by tribe, and the tribe of Judah was taken. [17]And he brought near the clans of Judah, and the clan of the [u] Zerahites was taken. And he brought near the clan of the Zerahites man by man, and Zabdi was taken. [18]And he brought near his household man by man, and Achan the son of Carmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, was taken. [19][†]Then Joshua said to Achan, “My son, [v] give glory to the LORD God of Israel and [w] give praise [2] to him. And [x] tell me now what you have done; do not hide it from me.” [20]And Achan answered Joshua, “Truly [y] I have sinned against the LORD God of Israel, and this is what I did: [21][†]when I saw among the spoil a beautiful cloak from Shinar, and 200 shekels of silver, and a bar of gold weighing 50 shekels, [3] then I coveted them and took them. And see, they are hidden in the earth inside my tent, with the silver underneath."

[22]So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran to the tent; and behold, it was hidden in his tent with the silver underneath. [23]And they took them out of the tent and brought them to Joshua and to all the people of Israel. And they laid them down before the LORD. [24][†]And Joshua and all Israel with him took Achan the son of Zerah, and the silver and the cloak and the bar of gold, and his sons and daughters and his oxen and donkeys and sheep and his tent and all that he had. And they brought them up to the [z] Valley of Achor. [25]And Joshua said, "Why did you [a] bring trouble on us? The LORD brings trouble on you today." And all Israel [b] stoned him with stones. [c] They burned them with fire and stoned them with stones. [26]And they raised over him [d] a great heap of stones that remains to this day. Then [e] the LORD turned from his burning anger. Therefore, to this day the name of that place is called the Valley of Achor. [4]

The Fall of Ai

JOSHUA 8 [†]And the LORD said to Joshua, [f]"Do not fear and do not be dismayed. Take all the fighting men with you, and arise, go up to Ai. See, [g] I have given into your hand the king of Ai, and his people, his city, and his land. [2][†]And you shall do to Ai and its king as you did [h] to Jericho and its king. Only [i] its spoil and its livestock you shall take as plunder for yourselves. Lay an ambush against the city, behind it."

[3][†]So Joshua and all the fighting men arose to go up to Ai. And Joshua chose 30,000 mighty men of valor and sent them out by night. [4]And he commanded them, "Behold, [j] you shall lie in ambush against the city, behind it. Do not go very far from the city, but all of you remain ready. [5]And I and all the people who are with me will approach the city. And when they come out against us [k] just as before, we shall flee before them. [6]And they will come out after us, until we have [l] drawn them away from the city. For they will say, 'They are fleeing from us, just as before.' So we will flee before them. [7]Then you shall rise up from the ambush and seize the city, for the LORD your God will give it into your hand. [8][†]And as soon as you have taken the city, you shall set the city on fire. You shall do according to the word of the LORD. [m] See, I have commanded you." [9]So Joshua sent them out. And they went to the place of ambush and lay between Bethel and Ai, to the west of Ai, but Joshua spent that night among the people.

[10]Joshua arose early in the morning and mustered the people and went up, he and the elders of Israel, before the people to Ai. [11]And [n] all the fighting men who were with him went up and drew near before the city and encamped on the north side of Ai, with a ravine between them and Ai. [12][†]He took about 5,000 men and set them in ambush between Bethel and Ai, to the west of the city. [13]So they stationed the forces, the main encampment that was north of the city and its rear guard west of the city. But Joshua spent that night in the valley. [14]And as soon as the king of Ai saw this, he and all his people, the men of the city, hurried and went out early to the appointed place [1] toward [o] the Arabah to meet Israel in battle. [p] But he did not know that there was an ambush against him behind the city. [15]And Joshua and all Israel [q] pretended to be beaten before them and fled in the direction of the wilderness. [16]So all the people who were in the city were called together to pursue them, and as they pursued Joshua they [r] were drawn away from the city. [17]Not a man was left in Ai or Bethel who did not go out after Israel. They left the city open and pursued Israel.

[18][†]Then the LORD said to Joshua, [s] "Stretch out the javelin that is in your hand toward Ai, for I will give it into your hand." And Joshua stretched out the javelin that was in his hand toward the city. [19]And the men in the ambush rose quickly out of their place, and as soon as he had stretched out his hand, they ran and entered the city and captured it. And they hurried to set the city on fire. [20]So when the men of Ai looked back, behold, the smoke of the city went up to heaven, and they had no power to flee this way or that, for the people who fled to the wilderness turned back against the pursuers. [21]And when Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had captured the city, and that the smoke of the city went up, then they turned back and struck down the men of Ai. [22]And the others came out from the city against them, so they were in the midst of Israel, some on this side, and some on that side. And Israel struck them down, until there was [t] left none that survived or escaped. [23]But the king of Ai they took alive, and brought him near to Joshua.

[24]When Israel had finished killing all the inhabitants of Ai in the open wilderness where they pursued them, and all of them to the very last had fallen by the edge of the sword, all Israel returned to Ai and struck it down with the edge of the sword. [25]And all who fell that day, both men and women, were 12,000, all the people of Ai. [26]But Joshua did not draw back his hand with which he [u]stretched out the javelin until he had devoted all the inhabitants of Ai to destruction. [2] [27]Only the livestock and the spoil of that city Israel took as their plunder, according to the word of the LORD that he [v]commanded Joshua. [28][†]So Joshua burned Ai and made it forever a [w]heap of ruins, as it is to this day. [29] [x]And he hanged the king of Ai on a tree until evening. [y]And at sunset Joshua commanded, and they took his body down from the tree and threw it at the entrance of the gate of the city and [z]raised over it a great heap of stones, which stands there to this day.

Joshua Renews the Covenant

[30][†]At that time Joshua built an altar to the LORD, the God of Israel, [a]on Mount Ebal, [31]just as Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded the people of Israel, as it is written in the Book of the Law of Moses, “an altar of uncut stones, upon which no man has wielded an iron tool.” And they offered on it burnt offerings to the LORD and sacrificed peace offerings. [32][^][†]And there, in the presence of the people of Israel, he wrote on [b]the stones a copy of the law of Moses, which he had written. [33]And all Israel, [c]sojourner as well as native born, with their elders and officers and their judges, stood on opposite sides of the ark before the Levitical priests [d]who carried the ark of the covenant of the LORD, half of them in front of Mount Gerizim and half of them in front of Mount Ebal, [e]just as Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded at the first, to bless the people of Israel. [34][†]And afterward [f]he read all the words of the law, [g]the blessing and the curse, according to all that is written in the Book of the Law. [35]There was not a word of all that Moses commanded that Joshua did not read before all the assembly of Israel, [h]and the women, and the little ones, and [i]the sojourners who lived [3] among them.

The Gibeonite Deception

JOSHUA 9 [†]As soon as all the kings who were beyond the Jordan [j] in the hill country and in the lowland all along the coast [k] of the Great Sea toward Lebanon, [l] the Hittites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, heard of this, [2]they gathered together as one to fight against Joshua and Israel.

[3][^][†]But when the inhabitants of [m] Gibeon heard what Joshua had done [n] to Jericho and [o] to Ai, [4][†]they on their part acted with cunning and went and made ready provisions and took worn-out sacks for their donkeys, and wineskins, worn-out and torn and mended, [5]with worn-out, patched sandals on their feet, and worn-out clothes. And all their provisions were dry and crumbly. [6][†]And they went to Joshua in [p] the camp at Gilgal and said to him and to the men of Israel, "We have come from a distant country, so now make a covenant with us." [7][†]But the men of Israel said to [q] the Hivites, "Perhaps you live among us; then [r] how can we make a covenant with you?" [8]They said to Joshua, [s] "We are your servants." And Joshua said to them, "Who are you? And where do you come from?" [9]They said to him, [t] "From a very distant country your servants have come, because of the name of the LORD your God. [u] For we have heard a report of him, and all that he did in Egypt, [10] [v] and all that he did to the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, to Sihon the king of Heshbon, and to Og king of Bashan, who lived in [w] Ashtaroth. [11]So our elders and all the inhabitants of our country said to us, 'Take provisions in your hand for the journey and go to meet them and say to them, "We are your servants. Come now, make a covenant with us."' [12]Here is our bread. It was still warm when we took it from our houses as our food for the journey on the day we set out to come to you, but now, behold, it is dry and crumbly. [13]These wineskins were new when we filled them, and behold, they have burst. And these garments and sandals of ours are worn out from the very long journey." [14][†]So the men took some of their provisions, but [x] did not ask counsel from the LORD. [15]And Joshua [y] made peace with them and made a covenant with them, to let them live, and the leaders of the congregation swore to them.

[16]At the end of three days after they had made a covenant with them, they heard that they were their neighbors [z] and that they lived among them.

[17]And the people of Israel set out and reached their cities on the third day. [a]Now their cities were Gibeon, Chephirah, Beeroth, and Kiriath-jearim. [18][†]But the people of Israel did not attack them, because the leaders of the congregation had sworn to them by the Lord, the God of Israel. Then all the congregation murmured against the leaders. [19]But all the leaders said to all the congregation, “We have sworn to them by the Lord, the God of Israel, and now we may not touch them. [20]This we will do to them: let them live, lest [b]wrath be upon us, [c]because of the oath that we swore to them.” [21]And the leaders said to them, “Let them live.” So they became [d]cutters of wood and drawers of water for all the congregation, just as the leaders [e]had said of them.

[22]Joshua summoned them, and he said to them, “Why did you deceive us, saying, [f]‘We are very far from you,’ when [g]you dwell among us? [23][†]Now therefore you are cursed, and some of you shall never be anything but servants, [h]cutters of wood and drawers of water for the house of my God.” [24]They answered Joshua, “Because it was told to your servants for a certainty that the Lord your God had [i]commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you—so [j]we feared greatly for our lives because of you and did this thing. [25]And now, behold, we are in your hand. Whatever seems good and right in your sight to do to us, do it.” [26]So he did this to them and delivered them out of the hand of the people of Israel, and they did not kill them. [27][†]But Joshua made them that day [k]cutters of wood and drawers of water for the congregation and for the altar of the Lord, to this day, [l]in the place that he should choose.

The Sun Stands Still

JOSHUA 10 [†]As soon as Adoni-zedek, king of Jerusalem, heard how Joshua had captured Ai and had devoted it to destruction,[1] [m]doing to Ai and its king [n]as he had done to Jericho and its king, and [o]how the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel and were among them, [2][†][p]he[2] feared greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, like one of the royal cities, and because it was greater than Ai, and all its men were warriors. [3]So Adoni-zedek king of Jerusalem sent to Hoham king of Hebron, to Piram king of Jarmuth, to Japhia king of Lachish, and to Debir king of Eglon, saying, 4"Come up to me and help me, and let us strike Gibeon. For [q] it has made peace with Joshua and with the people of Israel." 5[†]Then the five kings of the Amorites, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon, [r] gathered their forces and went up with all their armies and encamped against Gibeon and made war against it.

6And the men of Gibeon sent to Joshua [s] at the camp in Gilgal, saying, "Do not relax your hand from your servants. Come up to us quickly and save us and help us, for all the kings of the Amorites who dwell in the hill country are gathered against us." 7So Joshua went up from Gilgal, he and [t] all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valor. 8[†]And the LORD said to Joshua, [u] "Do not fear them, for I have given them into your hands. [v] Not a man of them shall stand before you." 9[†]So Joshua came upon them suddenly, having marched up all night from Gilgal. 10[†] [w] And the LORD threw them into a panic before Israel, who [3] struck them with a great blow at Gibeon and chased them by the way of [x] the ascent of Beth-horon and struck them as far as Azekah and Makkedah. 11[†]And as they fled before Israel, while they were [x] going down the ascent of Beth-horon, [y] the LORD threw down large stones from heaven on them as far as Azekah, and they died. There were more who died because of the hailstones than the sons of Israel killed with the sword.

12[†]At that time Joshua spoke to the LORD in the day when the LORD gave the Amorites over to the sons of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel,

[z] "Sun, stand still at Gibeon, and moon, in the Valley of Aijalon."
13 And the sun stood still, and the moon stopped, until the nation took vengeance on their enemies.

Is this not written in the Book of Jashar? The sun stopped in the midst of heaven and did not hurry to set for about a whole day. 14[^] [a] There has been no day like it before or since, when the LORD heeded the voice of a man, for [b] the LORD fought for Israel.

[15][†]So [c]Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to the camp at Gilgal.

Five Amorite Kings Executed

[16]These five kings fled and hid themselves in the cave at [d]Makkedah. [17]And it was told to Joshua, “The five kings have been found, hidden in the cave at Makkedah.” [18]And Joshua said, “Roll large stones against the mouth of the cave and set men by it to guard them, [19]but do not stay there yourselves. Pursue your enemies; [e]attack their rear guard. Do not let them enter their cities, for the LORD your God has given them into your hand.” [20]When Joshua and the sons of Israel had finished striking them with a great blow [f]until they were wiped out, and when the remnant that remained of them had entered into the fortified cities, [21][†]then all the people returned safe to Joshua in the camp at Makkedah. [g]Not a man moved his tongue against any of the people of Israel.

[22]Then Joshua said, “Open the mouth of the cave and bring those five kings out to me from the cave.” [23]And they did so, and brought those five kings out to him from the cave, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon. [24][†]And when they brought those kings out to Joshua, Joshua summoned all the men of Israel and said to the chiefs of the men of war who had gone with him, “Come near; put your feet on the necks of these kings.” Then they came near and put their feet on their necks. [25][†]And Joshua said to them, [h]“Do not be afraid or dismayed; be strong and courageous. [i]For thus the LORD will do to all your enemies against whom you fight.” [26][†]And afterward Joshua struck them and put them to death, and he hanged them on five trees. And [j]they hung on the trees until evening. [27][†]But at the time of the going down of the sun, Joshua commanded, and [k]they took them down from the trees and threw them into the cave where they had hidden themselves, and they set large stones against the mouth of the cave, which remain to this very day.

[28][†]As for [l]Makkedah, Joshua captured it on that day and struck it, and its king, with the edge of the sword. He devoted to destruction every person in it; he left none remaining. And he did to the king of Makkedah [m]just as he had done to the king of Jericho.

Conquest of Southern Canaan

[29]Then Joshua and all Israel with him passed on from Makkedah to [n] Libnah and fought against Libnah. [30]And the LORD gave it also and its king into the hand of Israel. And he struck it with the edge of the sword, and every person in it; he left none remaining in it. And he did to its king [m] as he had done to the king of Jericho.

[31]Then Joshua and all Israel with him passed on from Libnah to [o] Lachish and laid siege to it and fought against it. [32]And the LORD gave Lachish into the hand of Israel, and he captured it on the second day and struck it with the edge of the sword, and every person in it, as he had done to Libnah.

[33]Then Horam king of [p] Gezer came up to help Lachish. And Joshua struck him and his people, until he left none remaining.

[34]Then Joshua and all Israel with him passed on from Lachish to [q] Eglon. And they laid siege to it and fought against it. [35]And they captured it on that day, and struck it with the edge of the sword. And he devoted every person in it to destruction that day, as he had done to Lachish.

[36]Then Joshua and all Israel with him went up from Eglon to [r] Hebron. And they fought against it [37]and captured it and struck it with the edge of the sword, and its king and its towns, and every person in it. He left none remaining, as he had done to Eglon, and devoted it to destruction and every person in it.

[38]Then Joshua and all Israel with him turned back to [s] Debir and fought against it [39]and he captured it with its king and all its towns. And they struck them with the edge of the sword and devoted to destruction every person in it; he left none remaining. Just as he had done to Hebron and to Libnah and its king, so he did to Debir and to its king.

[40][†]So Joshua struck the whole land, the hill country and the Negeb and the lowland [t] and the slopes, and all their kings. He left none remaining, [u] but devoted to destruction all that breathed, just as the LORD God of Israel commanded. [41]And Joshua struck them from [v] Kadesh-barnea as far as Gaza, and all the country of [w] Goshen, as far as Gibeon. [42]And Joshua captured all these kings and their land at one time, [x] because the LORD God of Israel fought for Israel. [43][†] [y] Then Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to the camp at Gilgal.

Conquests in Northern Canaan

JOSHUA 11 [†]When Jabin, king of Hazor, heard of this, he [z]sent to Jobab king of Madon, and to the king of Shimron, and to the king of Achshaph, [2]and to the kings who were in the northern hill country, and in the [a]Arabah south of [b]Chinneroth, and in the lowland, and [c]in Naphoth-dor on the [d]west, [3]to the Canaanites in the east and the west, the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, and the [e]Jebusites in the hill country, and the [f]Hivites under [g]Hermon in the land of [h]Mizpah. [4][†]And they came out with all their troops, a great horde, in number [i]like the sand that is on the seashore, with very many horses and chariots. [5][†]And all these kings joined their forces and came and encamped together at the waters of Merom to fight against Israel.

[6][†]And the LORD said to Joshua, [j]"Do not be afraid of them, for tomorrow at this time I will give over all of them, slain, to Israel. You shall [k]hamstring their horses and burn their [l]chariots with fire." [7]So Joshua and all his warriors came [m]suddenly against them by the waters of Merom and fell upon them. [8]And the LORD gave them into the hand of Israel, who struck them and chased them as far as [n]Great Sidon and [o]Misrephoth-maim, and eastward as far as the Valley of [p]Mizpeh. And they struck them until he left none remaining. [9]And Joshua did to them [q]just as the LORD said to him: he hamstrung their horses and burned their chariots with fire.

[10][†]And Joshua turned back at that time and captured [r]Hazor and struck its king with the sword, for Hazor formerly was the head of all those kingdoms. [11]And they struck with the sword all who were in it, devoting them to destruction; [1] [s]there was none left that breathed. And he burned Hazor with fire. [12]And all the cities of those kings, and all their kings, Joshua captured, and struck them with the edge of the sword, devoting them to destruction, [t]just as Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded. [13]But none of the cities that stood on mounds did Israel burn, except Hazor alone; that Joshua burned. [14]And all the spoil of these cities and the livestock, the people of Israel took for their plunder. But every person they struck with the edge of the sword until they had destroyed them, and they did not leave any who breathed. [15] [u]Just as the LORD had commanded Moses his servant, [v]so Moses commanded Joshua, [w]and so Joshua did. He left nothing undone of all that the LORD had commanded Moses.

[16][‡]So Joshua took all that land, [x]the hill country and all the Negeb and [y]all the land of Goshen [z]and the lowland [z]and the Arabah [a]and the hill country of Israel and its lowland [17][b]from Mount Halak, which rises toward Seir, as far as [c]Baal-gad in the Valley of Lebanon below [d]Mount Hermon. And he captured [e]all their kings and struck them and put them to death. [18]Joshua made war [f]a long time with all those kings. [19]There was not a city that made peace with the people of Israel except [g]the Hivites, the inhabitants of Gibeon. They took them all in battle. [20]For it was the LORD's doing [h]to harden their hearts that they should come against Israel in battle, in order that they should be devoted to destruction and should receive no mercy but be destroyed, [i]just as the LORD commanded Moses.

[21][‡]And Joshua came at that time and cut off [j]the Anakim from the hill country, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel. Joshua devoted them to destruction with their cities. [22]There was none of the Anakim left in the land of the people of Israel. Only in Gaza, [k]in Gath, and in Ashdod did some remain. [23][^][‡]So Joshua took the whole land, [l]according to all that the LORD had spoken to Moses. [m]And Joshua gave it for an inheritance to Israel [n]according to their tribal allotments. And the land had rest from war.

Kings Defeated by Moses

JOSHUA 12 [‡]Now these are the kings of the land whom the people of Israel defeated and took possession of their land beyond the Jordan toward the sunrise, from [o]the Valley of the Arnon to Mount Hermon, with all [p]the Arabah eastward: [2][q]Sihon king of the Amorites who lived at Heshbon and ruled from Aroer, which is on the edge of the Valley of the Arnon, and [r]from the middle of the valley as far as the [s]river Jabbok, the boundary of the Ammonites, that is, half of Gilead, [3]and [p]the Arabah [t]to the Sea of Chinneroth eastward, and in the direction of Beth-jeshimoth, to the Sea of the Arabah, the Salt Sea, southward to the foot of [u]the slopes of Pisgah; [4]and [v]Og [1] king of Bashan, one of the remnant of [w]the Rephaim, [x]who lived at Ashtaroth and at Edrei [5]and ruled over [y]Mount Hermon and [z]Salecah and all Bashan [a]to the boundary of the Geshurites and the Maacathites, and over half of Gilead to the boundary of Sihon king of Heshbon. [6] [b]Moses, the servant of the LORD, and the people of Israel defeated them. And Moses the servant of the LORD [c]gave their land for a possession to the Reubenites and the Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh.

Kings Defeated by Joshua

[7]And these are the kings of the land whom Joshua and the people of Israel defeated on the west side of the Jordan, from Baal-gad in the Valley of Lebanon to [d]Mount Halak, that rises toward Seir (and Joshua gave their land to the tribes of Israel as a possession [e]according to their allotments, [8] [f]in the hill country, in the lowland, in the Arabah, in the slopes, in the wilderness, and in the Negeb, the land of [g]the Hittites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites): [9][‡] [h]the king of Jericho, one; [i]the king of Ai, which is beside Bethel, one; [10] [j]the king of Jerusalem, one; [j]the king of Hebron, one; [11] [j]the king of Jarmuth, one; [j]the king of Lachish, one; [12] [j]the king of Eglon, one; [k]the king of Gezer, one; [13] [l]the king of Debir, one; the king of Geder, one; [14]the king of Hormah, one; the king of Arad, one; [15] [m]the king of Libnah, one; the king of Adullam, one; [16] [n]the king of Makkedah, one; [o]the king of Bethel, one; [17]the king of Tappuah, one; the king of Hepher, one; [18]the king of Aphek, one; the king of Lasharon, one; [19] [p]the king of Madon, one; [q]the king of Hazor, one; [20] [p]the king of Shimron-meron, one; [p]the king of Achshaph, one; [21] [r]the king of Taanach, one; [r]the king of Megiddo, one; [22]the king of Kedesh, one; the king of Jokneam in Carmel, one; [23] [r]the king of Dor in [s]Naphath-dor, one; the king of Goiim in Galilee, [2] one; [24][‡]the king of Tirzah, one: in all, thirty-one kings.

Land Still to Be Conquered

JOSHUA 13 [‡]Now Joshua [t]was old and advanced in years, and the LORD said to him, “You are old and advanced in years, and there remains yet very much land [u]to possess. [2] [v]This is the land that yet remains: all the [w]regions of the Philistines, and all those of the Geshurites [3](from the [x]Shihor, which is east of Egypt, northward to the boundary of Ekron, it is counted as Canaanite; [y]there are five rulers of the Philistines, those of Gaza, Ashdod, Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron), and those of [z]the Avvim, [4]in the south, all the land of the Canaanites, and Mearah that belongs to the Sidonians, to Aphek, to the boundary of [a]the Amorites, [5]and the land of the [b]Gebalites, and all Lebanon, toward the sunrise, from [c]Baal-gad below Mount Hermon to [d]Lebo-hamath, [6][†]all the inhabitants of the hill country from Lebanon to [e]Misrephoth-maim, even all the Sidonians. I myself will drive [f]them out from before the people of Israel. Only [g]allot the land to Israel [h]for an inheritance, as I have commanded you. [7]Now therefore [i]divide this land for an inheritance to the nine tribes and half the tribe of Manasseh."

The Inheritance East of the Jordan

[8][^][†]With the other half of the tribe of Manasseh [1] the Reubenites and the Gadites received their inheritance, [j]which Moses gave them, beyond the Jordan eastward, as Moses the servant of the LORD gave them: [9] [k]from Aroer, which is on the edge of the Valley of the Arnon, and the city that is in the middle of the valley, and [l]all the tableland of Medeba as far as Dibon; [10] [m]and all the cities of Sihon king of the Amorites, who reigned in Heshbon, as far as the boundary of the Ammonites; [11][†]and Gilead, and the [n]region of the Geshurites and Maacathites, and all Mount Hermon, and [n]all Bashan to Salecah; [12] [n]all the kingdom of Og in Bashan, who reigned in Ashtaroth and in Edrei (he alone was left of [n]the remnant of the Rephaim); [o]these Moses had struck and driven out. [13][†] [p]Yet the people of Israel did not drive out the Geshurites or the Maacathites, but Geshur and Maacath dwell in the midst of Israel to this day.

[14][†] [q]To the tribe of Levi alone Moses gave no inheritance. The offerings by fire to the LORD God of Israel are their inheritance, as he said to him.

[15]And Moses gave an inheritance to the tribe of the people of Reuben according to their clans. [16]So their territory was from Aroer, [r]which is on the edge of the Valley of the Arnon, and the city that is in the middle of the valley, and all the tableland by [s] Medeba; [17]with Heshbon, and all its cities that are in the tableland; [s] Dibon, and Bamoth-baal, and Beth-baal-meon, [18] [t] and Jahaz, and Kedemoth, and Mephaath, [19]and [u] Kiriathaim, and [u] Sibmah, and Zereth-shahar on the hill of the valley, [20]and [v] Beth-peor, and [w] the slopes of Pisgah, and [w] Beth-jeshimoth, [21]that is, [x] all the cities of the tableland, and all the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, who reigned in Heshbon, [y] whom Moses defeated with [z] the leaders of Midian, Evi and Rekem and Zur and Hur and Reba, the princes of Sihon, who lived in the land. [22][†] [z] Balaam also, the son of Beor, the one who practiced divination, was killed with the sword by the people of Israel among the rest of their slain. [23]And the border of the people of Reuben was the Jordan as a boundary. This was the inheritance of the people of Reuben, according to their clans with their cities and villages.

[24]Moses gave an inheritance also to the tribe of Gad, to the people of Gad, according to their clans. [25] [a] Their territory was Jazer, and all the cities of Gilead, and half the land of the Ammonites, to Aroer, which is east of [b] Rabbah, [26]and from Heshbon to Ramath-mizpeh and Betonim, and from [c] Mahanaim to the territory of Debir, [2] [27]and in the valley Beth-haram, Beth-nimrah, [d] Succoth, and Zaphon, the rest of the kingdom of Sihon king of Heshbon, having the Jordan as a boundary, to the lower end of the Sea of [e] Chinnereth, eastward beyond the Jordan. [28]This is the inheritance of the people of Gad according to their clans, with their cities and villages.

[29]And Moses gave an inheritance to the half-tribe of Manasseh. It was allotted to the half-tribe of the people of Manasseh according to their clans.
[30]Their region extended from [f] Mahanaim, through all Bashan, the whole kingdom of Og king of Bashan, and all [g] the towns of Jair, which are in Bashan, sixty cities, [31]and half Gilead, and [h] Ashtaroth, and Edrei, the cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan. These were allotted to the people of [i] Machir the son of Manasseh for the half of the people of Machir according to their clans.

[32]These are the inheritances that Moses distributed [j] in the plains of Moab, beyond the Jordan east of Jericho. [33] [k] But to the tribe of Levi Moses gave no inheritance; the LORD God of Israel is their inheritance, [k] just as he said to them.

The Inheritance West of the Jordan

JOSHUA 14 [‡]These are the inheritances that the people of Israel received in the land of Canaan, which [l] Eleazar the priest and Joshua the son of Nun and the heads of the fathers' houses of the tribes of the people of Israel gave them to inherit. [2][^][‡]Their inheritance was [m] by lot, just as the LORD had commanded by the hand of Moses for the nine and one-half tribes. [3][‡] [n] For Moses had given an inheritance to the two and one-half tribes beyond the Jordan, [o] but to the Levites he gave no inheritance among them. [4]For [p] the people of Joseph were two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim. And no portion was given to the Levites in the land, but only cities to dwell in, with their pasturelands for their livestock and their substance. [5]The people of Israel did [q] as the LORD commanded Moses; they allotted the land.

Caleb's Request and Inheritance

[6][^][‡]Then the people of Judah came to Joshua at Gilgal. And Caleb the son of Jephunneh the [r] Kenizzite said to him, "You know [s] what the LORD said to Moses the man of God in Kadesh-barnea concerning you and me. [7]I was forty years old when Moses the servant of the LORD [t] sent me from Kadesh-barnea to spy out the land, and I brought him word again as it was in my heart. [8][‡]But [u] my brothers who went up with me made the heart of the people melt; yet I wholly followed the LORD my God. [9]And Moses swore on that day, saying, [v] 'Surely the land [w] on which your foot has trodden shall be an inheritance for you and your children forever, because you have wholly followed the LORD my God.' [10]And now, behold, the LORD has kept me alive, [x] just as he said, these [y] forty-five years since the time that the LORD spoke this word to Moses, while Israel walked in the wilderness. And now, behold, I am this day [y] eighty-five years old. [11] [z] I am still as strong today as I was in the day that Moses sent me; my strength now is as my strength was then, for war and [a] for going and coming. [12]So now give me this hill country of which the LORD spoke on that day, for you heard on that day how the [b] Anakim were there, with great fortified cities. It may be that the LORD will be with me, and I shall drive them out just as the LORD said."

[13]Then Joshua [c] blessed him, and he gave [d] Hebron to Caleb the son of Jephunneh for an inheritance. [14]Therefore Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, [e] because he wholly followed the LORD, the God of Israel. [15][f] Now the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath-arba. [1] (Arba [2] was the greatest man among the Anakim.) [g] And the land had rest from war.

The Allotment for Judah

JOSHUA 15 [†]The allotment for the tribe of the people of Judah according to their clans reached southward [h] to the boundary of Edom, to [i] the wilderness of Zin at the farthest south. [2]And their south boundary ran from the end of the [h] Salt Sea, from the bay that faces southward. [3]It goes out southward of [j] the ascent of Akrabbim, passes along to Zin, and goes up south of Kadesh-barnea, along by Hezron, up to Addar, turns about to Karka, [4]passes along to Azmon, goes out by [k] the Brook of Egypt, and comes to its end at the sea. This shall be your south boundary. [5]And the east boundary is the [h] Salt Sea, to the mouth of the Jordan. And the boundary on the north side runs from the bay of the sea at the mouth of the Jordan. [6]And the boundary goes up to [l] Beth-hoglah and passes along north of [m] Beth-arabah. And the boundary goes up to [n] the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben. [7]And the boundary goes up to Debir from [o] the Valley of Achor, and so northward, turning toward Gilgal, which is opposite [p] the ascent of Adummim, which is on the south side of the valley. And the boundary passes along to the waters of [p] En-shemesh and ends at [q] En-rogel. [8][†]Then the boundary goes up by [r] the Valley of the Son of Hinnom at the southern shoulder of the Jebusite ([s] that is, Jerusalem). And the boundary goes up to the top of the mountain that lies over against the Valley of Hinnom, on the west, at the northern end of the Valley [t] of Rephaim. [9]Then the boundary extends from the top of the mountain [u] to the spring of the waters of Nephtoah, and from there to the cities of Mount Ephron. Then the boundary bends around to Baalah ([v] that is, Kiriath-jearim). [10]And the boundary circles west of Baalah to Mount Seir, passes along to the northern shoulder of Mount Jearim (that is, Chesalon), and goes down to [w] Beth-shemesh and passes along by [x]Timnah. [11]The boundary goes out [y]to the shoulder of the hill north of Ekron, then the boundary bends around to Shikkeron and passes along to Mount [z]Baalah and goes out to Jabneel. Then the boundary comes to an end at the sea. [12]And the west boundary was [a]the Great Sea with its coastline. This is the boundary around the people of Judah according to their clans.

[13][†]According to the commandment of the LORD to Joshua, he gave to Caleb the son of Jephunneh a portion among the people of Judah, [b]Kiriath-arba, that is, [b]Hebron (Arba was the father of Anak). [14]And Caleb drove out from there the three sons of Anak, [c]Sheshai and Ahiman and Talmai, the descendants of Anak. [15]And he went up from there against the inhabitants of Debir. [d]Now the name of Debir formerly was Kiriath-sepher. [16]And Caleb said, “Whoever strikes Kiriath-sepher and captures it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter as wife.” [17][e]And Othniel the son of Kenaz, [f]the brother of Caleb, captured it. And he gave him Achsah his daughter as wife. [18]When she came to him, she urged him to ask her father for a field. And she got off her donkey, and Caleb said to her, “What do you want?” [19]She said to him, “Give me a blessing. Since you have given me the land of the Negeb, give me also springs of water.” And he gave her the upper springs and the lower springs.

[20]This is the inheritance of the tribe of the people of Judah according to their clans. [21]The cities belonging to the tribe of the people of Judah in the extreme south, toward the boundary of Edom, were Kabzeel, [g]Eder, Jagur, [22]Kinah, Dimonah, Adadah, [23]Kedesh, Hazor, Ithnan, [24][h]Ziph, Telem, Bealoth, [25]Hazor-hadattah, Kerioth-hezron (that is, Hazor), [26]Amam, Shema, Moladah, [27]Hazar-gaddah, Heshmon, Beth-pelet, [28]Hazar-shual, [i]Beersheba, Biziothiah, [29]Baalah, Iim, Ezem, [30]Eltolad, Chesil, Hormah, [31][j]Ziklag, Madmannah, Sansannah, [32]Lebaoth, Shilhim, Ain, and Rimmon: in all, twenty-nine cities with their villages.

Naamah, and [q] Makkedah: sixteen cities with their villages.

[42] [r] Libnah, Ether, Ashan, [43]Iphtah, Ashnah, Nezib, [44] [s] Keilah, Achzib, and Mareshah: nine cities with their villages.

[45] [t] Ekron, with its towns and its villages; [46]from Ekron to the sea, all that were by the side of Ashdod, with their villages.

[47] [t] Ashdod, its towns and its villages; [t] Gaza, its towns and its villages; to [u] the Brook of Egypt, and [v] the Great Sea with its coastline.

[48]And in the hill country, Shamir, Jattir, Socoh, [49]Dannah, Kiriath-sannah ([w] that is, Debir), [50]Anab, Eshtemoh, Anim, [51] [x] Goshen, Holon, and [y] Giloh: eleven cities with their villages.

[52]Arab, Dumah, Eshan, [53]Janim, Beth-tappuah, Aphekah, [54]Humtah, [z] Kiriath-arba (that is, [z] Hebron), and Zior: nine cities with their villages.

[58]Halhul, Beth-zur, Gedor, [59]Maarath, Beth-anoth, and Eltekon: six cities with their villages.

[60] [d] Kiriath-baal (that is, Kiriath-jearim), and Rabbah: two cities with their villages.

[61]In the wilderness, [e] Beth-arabah, Middin, Secacah, [62]Nibshan, the City of Salt, and [f] Engedi: six cities with their villages.

[63][‡]But the [g] Jebusites, the inhabitants of Jerusalem, [h] the people of Judah could not drive out, [h] so the Jebusites dwell with the people of Judah at Jerusalem to this day.

The Allotment for Ephraim and Manasseh

JOSHUA 16 [‡]The allotment of the people of Joseph went from the Jordan by Jericho, east of the waters of Jericho, [i] into the wilderness, going up from Jericho into the hill country to Bethel. [2]Then [j] going from Bethel to Luz, it passes along to Ataroth, the territory of the Archites. [3]Then it goes down westward to the territory of the Japhletites, as far as the territory of Lower [k] Beth-horon, then to [l] Gezer, and it ends at the sea.

[4] [m] The people of Joseph, Manasseh and Ephraim, received their inheritance.

[5]The territory of the people of Ephraim by their clans was as follows: the boundary of their inheritance on the east was [n]Ataroth-addar as far as Upper Beth-horon, [6]and the boundary goes from there to the sea. On the north is [o]Michmethath. Then on the east the boundary turns around toward Taanath-shiloh and passes along beyond it on the east to Janoah, [7]then it goes down from Janoah to Ataroth and [p]to Naarah, and touches Jericho, ending at the Jordan. [8]From [q]Tappuah the boundary goes westward to the brook Kanah and ends at the sea. Such is the inheritance of the tribe of the people of Ephraim by their clans, [9]together with [q]the towns that were set apart for the people of Ephraim within the inheritance of the Manassites, all those towns with their villages. [10][†]However, [r]they did not drive out the Canaanites who lived in Gezer, so the Canaanites have lived in the midst of Ephraim to this day but have been made [s]to do forced labor.

JOSHUA 17 Then allotment was made to the people of Manasseh, for he was [t]the firstborn of Joseph. To [u]Machir the firstborn of Manasseh, the father of Gilead, [v]were allotted Gilead and Bashan, because he was a man of war. [2]And allotments were made [w]to the rest of the people of Manasseh by their clans, Abiezer, Helek, Asriel, Shechem, Hepher, and Shemida. These were the male descendants of Manasseh the son of Joseph, by their clans.

[3][†]Now [x]Zelophehad the son of Hepher, son of Gilead, son of Machir, son of Manasseh, had no sons, but only daughters, and these are the names of his daughters: [x]Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. [4]They approached [y]Eleazar the priest and Joshua the son of Nun and the leaders and said, [z]“The LORD commanded Moses to give us an inheritance along with our brothers.” So according to the mouth of the LORD he gave them an inheritance among the brothers of their father. [5]Thus there fell to Manasseh ten portions, besides [a]the land of Gilead and Bashan, which is on the other side of the Jordan, [6]because the daughters of Manasseh received an inheritance along with his sons. The land of Gilead was allotted to the rest of the people of Manasseh.

[7]The territory of Manasseh reached from Asher to [b]Michmethath, which is east of Shechem. Then the boundary goes along southward to the inhabitants of En-tappuah. [8]The land of [c]Tappuah belonged to Manasseh, but the town of Tappuah on the boundary of Manasseh belonged to the people of Ephraim. [9] [c]Then the boundary went down to the brook Kanah. These cities, to the south of the brook, among the cities of Manasseh, belong to Ephraim. Then the boundary of Manasseh goes on the north side of the brook and ends at the sea, [10]the land to the south being Ephraim's and that to the north being Manasseh's, with the sea forming its boundary. On the north Asher is reached, and on the east Issachar. [11]Also in Issachar and in Asher [d]Manasseh had Beth-shean and its villages, and Ibleam and its villages, and the inhabitants of [d]Dor and its villages, and the inhabitants of En-dor and its villages, and the inhabitants of [d]Taanach and its villages, and the inhabitants of [d]Megiddo and its villages; [e]the third is Naphath. [1] [12][†][f]Yet the people of Manasseh could not take possession of those cities, but the Canaanites persisted in dwelling in that land. [13]Now when the people of Israel grew strong, they put the Canaanites [g]to forced labor, but did not utterly drive them out.

[14][†]Then [h]the people of Joseph spoke to Joshua, saying, "Why have you given me but [i]one lot and one portion as an inheritance, although I am [j]a numerous people, since all along the LORD has blessed me?" [15]And Joshua said to them, "If you are a numerous people, go up by yourselves to the forest, and there clear ground for yourselves in the land of the Perizzites and [k]the Rephaim, since [l]the hill country of Ephraim is too narrow for you." [16][†]The people of Joseph said, "The hill country is not enough for us. Yet all the Canaanites who dwell in the plain have [m]chariots of iron, both those in Beth-shean and its villages and those in [n]the Valley of Jezreel." [17]Then Joshua said to the house of Joseph, to Ephraim and Manasseh, "You are a numerous people and have great power. You shall not have one allotment only, [18]but the hill country shall be yours, for though it is a forest, you shall clear it and possess it to its farthest borders. For you shall drive out the Canaanites, [o]though they have chariots of iron, and though they are strong."

Allotment of the Remaining Land

JOSHUA 18 [†]Then the whole congregation of the people of Israel assembled at [p]Shiloh and set up [q]the tent of meeting there. The land lay subdued before them.

[2]There remained among the people of Israel seven tribes whose inheritance had not yet been apportioned. [3]So Joshua said to the people of Israel, [r]“How long will you put off going in to take possession of the land, which the Lord, the God of your fathers, has given you? [4][^]Provide three men from each tribe, and I will send them out that they may set out and go up and down the land. They shall write a description of it with a view to their inheritances, and then come to me. [5]They shall divide it into seven portions. [s]Judah shall continue in his territory on the south, [t]and the house of Joseph shall continue in their territory on the north. [6]And you shall describe the land in seven divisions and bring the description here to me. [u]And I will cast lots for you here before the Lord our God. [7][†][v]The Levites have no portion among you, for the priesthood of the Lord is their heritage. [w]And Gad and Reuben and half the tribe of Manasseh have received their inheritance beyond the Jordan eastward, which Moses the servant of the Lord gave them.”

[8]So the men arose and went, and Joshua charged those who went to write the description of the land, saying, “Go up and down in the land and write a description and return to me. And I will cast lots for you here before the Lord in Shiloh.” [9][†]So the men went and passed up and down in the land and wrote in a book a description of it by towns in seven divisions. Then they came to Joshua to the camp at Shiloh, [10]and Joshua [x]cast lots for them in Shiloh before the Lord. And there Joshua apportioned the land to the people of Israel, [y]to each his portion.

The Inheritance for Benjamin

[11][†]The lot of the tribe of the people of Benjamin according to its clans came up, and the territory allotted to it fell between the people of Judah and the people of Joseph. [12][z]On the north side their boundary began at the Jordan. [a]Then the boundary goes up to the shoulder north of Jericho, then up through the hill country westward, and it ends at the wilderness of [b]Beth-aven. [13]From there the boundary passes along southward in the direction of Luz, to the shoulder of [c]Luz (that is, Bethel), then the boundary goes down to [d]Ataroth-addar, on the mountain that lies south of Lower [e] Beth-horon. [14]Then the boundary goes in another direction, turning on the [f] western side southward from the mountain that lies to the south, opposite Beth-horon, and it ends at Kiriath-baal ([g] that is, Kiriath-jearim), a city belonging to the people of Judah. This forms the western side. [15]And the southern side begins at the outskirts of Kiriath-jearim. And the boundary goes from there to Ephron, [1] [g] to the spring of the waters of Nephtoah. [16]Then the boundary goes down to the border of the mountain that overlooks [h] the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, which is at the north end of the Valley of [i] Rephaim. And it then goes down the [h] Valley of Hinnom, south of the shoulder of the Jebusites, and downward to [j] En-rogel. [17]Then it bends in a northerly direction going on to En-shemesh, and from there goes to Geliloth, which is opposite the ascent of Adummim. Then it goes down to [k] the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben, [18]and passing on to the north of [l] the shoulder of Beth-arabah [2] it goes down to [l] the Arabah. [19]Then the boundary passes on to the north of the shoulder of [k] Beth-hoglah. And the boundary ends at the northern bay of [m] the Salt Sea, at the south end of the Jordan: this is the southern border. [20]The Jordan forms its boundary on the eastern side. This is the inheritance of the people of Benjamin, according to their clans, boundary by boundary all around.

[21]Now the cities of the tribe of the people of Benjamin according to their clans were [n] Jericho, Beth-hoglah, Emek-keziz, [22]Beth-arabah, Zemaraim, Bethel, [23]Avvim, Parah, Ophrah, [24]Chephar-ammoni, Ophni, Geba—twelve cities with their villages: [25]Gibeon, Ramah, Beeroth, [26]Mizpeh, Chephirah, Mozah, [27]Rekem, Irpeel, Taralah, [28]Zela, Haeleph, [o] Jebus [3] (that is, Jerusalem), Gibeah [4] and Kiriath-jearim [5]—fourteen cities with their villages. This is the inheritance of the people of Benjamin according to its clans.

The Inheritance for Simeon

JOSHUA 19 [†]The second lot came out for Simeon, for the tribe of the people of Simeon, according to their clans, [p] and their inheritance was in the midst of the inheritance of the people of Judah. [2] [q] And they had for their inheritance Beersheba, Sheba, Moladah, [3]Hazar-shual, Balah, Ezem, [4]Eltolad, Bethul, Hormah, [5]Ziklag, Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susah, [6]Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuhen—thirteen cities with their villages; [7]Ain, Rimmon, Ether, and Ashan—four cities with their villages, [8]together with all the villages around these cities as far as Baalath-beer, Ramah of the Negeb. This was the inheritance of the tribe of the people of Simeon according to their clans. [9] [r] The inheritance of the people of Simeon formed part of the territory of the people of Judah. Because the portion of the people of Judah was too large for them, the people of Simeon obtained an inheritance in the midst of their inheritance.

The Inheritance for Zebulun

[10]The third lot came up for the people of Zebulun, according to their clans. And the territory of their inheritance reached as far as Sarid. [11]Then their boundary goes up [s] westward and on to Mareal and touches Dabbesheth, then the brook that is east of [t] Jokneam. [12]From Sarid it goes in the other direction eastward toward the sunrise to the boundary of Chisloth-tabor. From there it goes to Daberath, then up to Japhia. [13]From there it passes along on the east toward the sunrise to Gath-hepher, to Eth-kazin, and going on to Rimmon it bends toward Neah, [14]then on the north the boundary turns about to Hannathon, and it ends at the Valley of Iphtahel; [15][†]and Kattath, Nahalal, [u] Shimron, Idalah, and Bethlehem—twelve cities with their villages. [16]This is the inheritance of the people of Zebulun, according to their clans—these cities with their villages.

The Inheritance for Issachar

[17]The fourth lot came out for Issachar, for the people of Issachar, according to their clans. [18]Their territory included Jezreel, Chesulloth, [v] Shunem, [19]Hapharaim, Shion, Anaharath, [20]Rabbith, Kishion, Ebez, [21]Remeth, En-gannim, En-haddah, Beth-pazzez. [22]The boundary also touches Tabor, Shahazumah, and Beth-shemesh, and its boundary ends at the Jordan—sixteen cities with their villages. [23]This is the inheritance of the tribe of the people of Issachar, according to their clans—the cities with their villages.

The Inheritance for Asher

[24]The fifth lot came out for the tribe of the people of Asher according to their clans. [25]Their territory included Helkath, Hali, Beten, Achshaph, [26]Allammelech, Amad, and Mishal. On the west it touches [w]Carmel and Shihor-libnath, [27]then it turns eastward, it goes to Beth-dagon, and touches
Zebulun and the Valley of Iphtahel northward to Beth-emek and Neiel.
Then it continues in the north to [x]Cabul, [28]Ebron, Rehob, Hammon, Kanah, as far as [y]Sidon the Great. [29]Then the boundary turns to Ramah, reaching to the fortified city of Tyre. Then the boundary turns to Hosah, and it ends at the sea; Mahalab, [1] Achzib, [30]Ummah, Aphek and Rehob—twenty-two cities with their villages. [31]This is the inheritance of the tribe of the people of Asher according to their clans—these cities with their villages.

The Inheritance for Naphtali

[32]The sixth lot came out for the people of Naphtali, for the people of Naphtali, according to their clans. [33]And their boundary ran from Heleph, from [z]the oak in Zaanannim, and Adami-nekeb, and Jabneel, as far as Lakkum, and it ended at the Jordan. [34]Then the boundary turns [a]westward to Aznoth-tabor and goes from there to Hukkok, touching Zebulun at the south and Asher on the west and Judah on the east at the Jordan. [35]The fortified cities are Ziddim, Zer, Hammath, Rakkath, [b]Chinnereth, [36]Adamah, Ramah, [c]Hazor, [37]Kedesh, Edrei, En-hazor, [38]Yiron, Migdal-el, Horem, Beth-anath, and Beth-shemesh—nineteen cities with their villages.
[39]This is the inheritance of the tribe of the people of Naphtali according to their clans—the cities with their villages.

The Inheritance for Dan

[40]The seventh lot came out for the tribe of the people of Dan, according to their clans. [41]And the territory of its inheritance included Zorah, Eshtaol, Ir-shemesh, [42] [d]Shaalabbin, [d]Aijalon, Ithlah, [43]Elon, Timnah, Ekron, [44]Eltekeh, Gibbethon, Baalath, [45]Jehud, Bene-berak, Gath-rimmon, [46]and Me-jarkon and Rakkon with the territory over against [e]Joppa. [47][‡]When [f]the territory of the people of Dan was lost to them, the people of Dan went up and fought against Leshem, and after capturing it and striking it with the sword they took possession of it and settled in it, calling Leshem, Dan, after the name of Dan their ancestor. [48]This is the inheritance of the tribe of the people of Dan, according to their clans—these cities with their villages.

The Inheritance for Joshua

[49][†]When they had finished distributing the several territories of the land as inheritances, the people of Israel gave an inheritance among them to Joshua the son of Nun. [50]By command of the LORD they gave him the city that he asked, [g] Timnath-serah in the hill country of Ephraim. And he rebuilt the city and settled in it.

[51][†] [h] These are the inheritances that Eleazar the priest and Joshua the son of Nun and the heads of the fathers' houses of the tribes of the people of Israel distributed by lot [i] at Shiloh before the LORD, at the entrance of the tent of meeting. So they finished dividing the land.

The Cities of Refuge

JOSHUA 20 [†]Then the LORD said to Joshua, [2]"Say to the people of Israel, [j] 'Appoint the cities of refuge, of which I spoke to you through Moses, [3][†]that the manslayer who strikes any person without intent or unknowingly may flee there. They shall be for you a refuge from the avenger of blood. [4]He shall flee to one of these cities and shall stand [k] at the entrance of the gate of the city and explain his case to the elders of that city. Then they shall take him into the city and give him a place, and he shall remain with them. [5]And if the avenger of blood pursues him, they shall not give up the manslayer into his hand, because he struck his neighbor unknowingly, and did not hate him in the past. [6][†]And he shall remain in that city [l] until he has stood before the congregation for judgment, until the death of him who is high priest at the time. Then the manslayer may return to his own town and his own home, to the town from which he fled.'"

[7]So they set apart [m] Kedesh in Galilee in the hill country of Naphtali, and [n] Shechem in the hill country of Ephraim, and [o] Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron) [p] in the hill country of Judah. [8]And beyond the Jordan east of Jericho, they appointed [q] Bezer in the wilderness on the tableland, from the tribe of Reuben, and [r] Ramoth in Gilead, from the tribe of Gad, and [s] Golan in Bashan, from the tribe of Manasseh. [9]These were the cities designated for all the people of Israel and [t] for the stranger sojourning among them, that anyone who killed a person without intent could flee there, so that he might not die by the hand of the avenger of blood, till he stood before the congregation.

Cities and Pasturelands Allotted to Levi

JOSHUA 21 [†]Then the heads of the fathers' houses of the Levites came [u] to Eleazar the priest and to Joshua the son of Nun and to the heads of the fathers' houses of the tribes of the people of Israel. [2][^]And they said to them [v] at Shiloh in the land of Canaan, [w] "The LORD commanded through Moses that we be given cities to dwell in, along with their pasturelands for our livestock." [3]So by command of the LORD the people of Israel gave to the Levites the following cities and pasturelands out of their inheritance.

[4]The lot came out for the clans of the Kohathites. So those Levites who were descendants of Aaron the priest [x] received by lot from the tribes of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin, thirteen cities.

[5]And the rest of the Kohathites received by lot [y] from the clans of the tribe of Ephraim, from the tribe of Dan and the half-tribe of Manasseh, ten cities.

[6]The [z] Gershonites received by lot from the clans of the tribe of Issachar, from the tribe of Asher, from the tribe of Naphtali, and from the half-tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities.

[7]The [a] Merarites according to their clans received from the tribe of Reuben, the tribe of Gad, and the tribe of Zebulun, twelve cities.

[8]These cities and their pasturelands the people of Israel [b] gave by lot to the Levites, [c] as the LORD had commanded through Moses.

[9]Out of the tribe of the people of Judah and the tribe of the people of Simeon they gave the following cities mentioned by name, [10]which went to [d] the descendants of Aaron, one of the clans of the Kohathites who belonged to the people of Levi; since the lot fell to them first. [11] [e] They gave them [f] Kiriath-arba (Arba being the father of Anak), that is Hebron, [g] in the hill country of Judah, along with the pasturelands around it. [12]But the fields of the city and its villages had been given to Caleb the son of Jephunneh as his possession.

[13]And to the descendants of Aaron the priest they gave Hebron, [h]the city of refuge for the manslayer, with its pasturelands, [i]Libnah with its pasturelands, [14]Jattir with its pasturelands, Eshtemoa with its pasturelands, [15]Holon with its pasturelands, Debir with its pasturelands, [16]Ain with its pasturelands, Juttah with its pasturelands, Beth-shemesh with its pasturelands—nine cities out of these two tribes; [17]then out of the tribe of Benjamin, [j]Gibeon with its pasturelands, Geba with its pasturelands, [18][†]Anathoth with its pasturelands, and Almon with its pasturelands—four cities. [19]The cities of the descendants of Aaron, the priests, were in all thirteen cities with their pasturelands.

[20][k]As to the rest of the Kohathites belonging to the Kohathite clans of the Levites, the cities allotted to them were out of the tribe of Ephraim. [21]To them were given Shechem, [l]the city of refuge for the manslayer, with its pasturelands in the hill country of Ephraim, Gezer with its pasturelands, [22]Kibzaim with its pasturelands, Beth-horon with its pasturelands—four cities; [23]and out of the tribe of Dan, Elteke with its pasturelands, Gibbethon with its pasturelands, [24]Aijalon with its pasturelands, Gath-rimmon with its pasturelands—four cities; [25]and out of the half-tribe of Manasseh, Taanach with its pasturelands, and Gath-rimmon with its pasturelands—two cities. [26]The cities of the clans of the rest of the Kohathites were ten in all with their pasturelands.

[27][m]And to the Gershonites, one of the clans of the Levites, were given out of the half-tribe of Manasseh, Golan in Bashan with its pasturelands, [l]the city of refuge for the manslayer, and Beeshterah with its pasturelands—two cities; [28]and out of the tribe of Issachar, Kishion with its pasturelands, Daberath with its pasturelands, [29]Jarmuth with its pasturelands, En-gannim with its pasturelands—four cities; [30]and out of the tribe of Asher, Mishal with its pasturelands, Abdon with its pasturelands, [31]Helkath with its pasturelands, and Rehob with its pasturelands—four cities; [32]and out of the tribe of Naphtali, Kedesh in Galilee with its pasturelands, [l]the city of refuge for the manslayer, Hammoth-dor with its pasturelands, and Kartan with its pasturelands—three cities. [33]The cities of the several clans of the Gershonites were in all thirteen cities with their pasturelands.

34 [n] And to the rest of the Levites, the Merarite clans, were given out of the tribe of Zebulun, Jokneam with its pasturelands, Kartah with its pasturelands, 35 Dimnah with its pasturelands, Nahalal with its pasturelands—four cities; 36 and out of the tribe of Reuben, [o] Bezer with its pasturelands, Jahaz with its pasturelands, 37 Kedemoth with its pasturelands, and Mephaath with its pasturelands—four cities; 38 and out of the tribe of Gad, [o] Ramoth in Gilead with its pasturelands, the city of refuge for the manslayer, [p] Mahanaim with its pasturelands, 39 [p] Heshbon with its pasturelands, Jazer with its pasturelands—four cities in all. 40 As for the cities of the several Merarite clans, that is, the remainder of the clans of the Levites, those allotted to them were in all twelve cities.

41 [q] The cities of the Levites in the midst of the possession of the people of Israel were in all forty-eight cities with their pasturelands. 42 These cities each had its pasturelands around it. So it was with all these cities.

43 [‡] [r] Thus the LORD gave to Israel all the land that he swore to give to their fathers. And they took possession of it, and they settled there. 44 [s] And the LORD gave them rest on every side just as he had sworn to their fathers. [t] Not one of all their enemies had withstood them, for [u] the LORD had given all their enemies into their hands. 45 [v] Not one word of all the good promises that the LORD had made to the house of Israel had failed; all came to pass.

The Eastern Tribes Return Home

JOSHUA 22 [‡]At that time Joshua summoned the Reubenites and the Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh, 2 and said to them, “You have kept [w] all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you [x] and have obeyed my voice in all that I have commanded you. 3 You have not forsaken your brothers these many days, down to this day, but have been careful to keep the charge of the LORD your God. 4 [‡] [y] And now the LORD your God has given rest to your brothers, as he promised them. Therefore turn and go to your tents in the land where your possession lies, [z] which Moses the servant of the LORD gave you on the other side of the Jordan. 5 [a] Only be very careful to observe the commandment and the law that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, [b]to love the LORD your God, and to walk in all his ways and to keep his commandments and to cling to him and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul." [6]So Joshua [c]blessed them and sent them away, and they went to their tents.

[7]Now to the one half of the tribe of Manasseh Moses had given a possession in Bashan, [d]but to the other half Joshua had given a possession beside their brothers in the land west of the Jordan. And when Joshua sent them away to their homes and blessed them, [8][‡]he said to them, "Go back to your tents with much wealth and with very much livestock, with silver, gold, bronze, and iron, and with much clothing. [e]Divide the spoil of your enemies with your brothers." [9]So the people of Reuben and the people of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh returned home, parting from the people of Israel at Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan, to go [f]to the land of Gilead, their own land of which they had possessed themselves by command of the LORD through Moses.

The Eastern Tribes' Altar of Witness

[10][‡]And when they came to the region of the Jordan that is in the land of Canaan, the people of Reuben and the people of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh built there an altar by the Jordan, an altar of imposing size. [11]And the people of Israel [g]heard it said, "Behold, the people of Reuben and the people of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh have built the altar at the frontier of the land of Canaan, in the region about the Jordan, on the side that belongs to the people of Israel." [12]And when the people of Israel heard of it, [h]the whole assembly of the people of Israel gathered at Shiloh to make war against them.

[13][‡]Then the people of Israel sent to the people of Reuben and the people of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh, in the land of Gilead, [i]Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, [14]and with him ten chiefs, one from each of the tribal families of Israel, [j]every one of them the head of a family among the clans of Israel. [15]And they came to the people of Reuben, the people of Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, in the land of Gilead, and they said to them, [16]"Thus says the whole congregation of the LORD, 'What is this breach of faith that you have committed against the God of Israel in turning away this day from following the LORD by building yourselves an altar this day [k] in rebellion against the LORD? [17]Have we not had enough of [l] the sin at Peor from which even yet we have not cleansed ourselves, and for which there came a plague upon the congregation of the LORD, [18]that you too must turn away this day from following the LORD? And if [k] you too rebel against the LORD today then tomorrow [m] he will be angry with the whole congregation of Israel. [19]But now, if the land of your possession is unclean, pass over into the LORD's land [n] where the LORD's tabernacle stands, and take for yourselves a possession among us. [o] Only do not rebel against the LORD or make us as rebels by building for yourselves an altar other than the altar of the LORD our God. [20] [p] Did not Achan the son of Zerah break faith in the matter of the devoted things, and [m] wrath fell upon all the congregation of Israel? And he did not perish alone for his iniquity.'"

[21][†]Then the people of Reuben, the people of Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh said in answer to the heads of the families of Israel, [22]"The Mighty One, [q] God, the LORD! The Mighty One, God, the LORD! [r] He knows; and let Israel itself know! If it was in rebellion or in breach of faith against the LORD, do not spare us today [23]for building an altar to turn away from following the LORD. Or if we did so to offer burnt offerings or grain offerings or peace offerings on it, may the LORD himself [s] take vengeance.
[24]No, but we did it from fear that [t] in time to come your children might say to our children, 'What have you to do with the LORD, the God of Israel?
[25]For the LORD has made the Jordan a boundary between us and you, you people of Reuben and people of Gad. You have no portion in the LORD.' So your children might make our children cease to worship the LORD.
[26][^]Therefore we said, 'Let us now build an altar, not for burnt offering, nor for sacrifice, [27]but to be [u] a witness between us and you, and between our generations after us, that we [v] do perform the service of the LORD in his presence with our burnt offerings and sacrifices and peace offerings, so your children will not say to our children in time to come, "You have no portion in the LORD."' [28]And we thought, 'If this should be said to us or to our descendants in time to come, we should say, "Behold, the copy of the altar of the LORD, which our fathers made, not for burnt offerings, nor for sacrifice, but to be [u] a witness between us and you."' [29]Far be it from us that we should [w] rebel against the LORD and turn away this day from following the LORD [w] by building an altar for burnt offering, grain offering, or sacrifice, other than the altar of the LORD our God that stands before his tabernacle!”

[30]When [x] Phinehas the priest and the chiefs of the congregation, the heads of the families of Israel who were with him, heard the words that the people of Reuben and the people of Gad and the people of Manasseh spoke, [y] it was good in their eyes. [31]And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest said to the people of Reuben and the people of Gad and the people of Manasseh, “Today we know that [z] the LORD is in our midst, because you have not committed this breach of faith against the LORD. Now you have delivered the people of Israel from the hand of the LORD.”

[32]Then Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, and the chiefs, returned from the people of Reuben and the people of Gad [a] in the land of Gilead to the land of Canaan, to the people of Israel, and brought back word to them. [33]And the report [b] was good in the eyes of the people of Israel. And the people of Israel [c] blessed God and spoke no more of making war against them to destroy the land where the people of Reuben and the people of Gad were settled. [34][†]The people of Reuben and the people of Gad called the altar Witness, “For,” they said, [d] “it is a witness between us that the LORD is God.”

Joshua’s Charge to Israel’s Leaders

JOSHUA 23 [†]A long time afterward, when the LORD had given [e] rest to Israel from all their surrounding enemies, and Joshua [f] was old and well advanced in years, [2]Joshua [g] summoned all Israel, its elders and heads, its judges and officers, and said to them, “I am now old and well advanced in years. [3]And you have seen all that the LORD your God has done to all these nations for your sake, [h] for it is the LORD your God who has fought for you. [4][†]Behold, [i] I have allotted to you as an inheritance for your tribes those nations that remain, along with all the nations that I have already cut off, from the Jordan to the Great Sea in the west. [5]The LORD your God [j] will push them back before you and drive them out of your sight. And you shall possess their land, [k] just as the LORD your God promised you. [6][^]

[†]Therefore, [l] be very strong to keep and to do all that is written in the Book of the Law of Moses, [m] turning aside from it neither to the right hand nor to the left, [7][†] [n] that you may not mix with these nations remaining among you [o] or make mention of the names of their gods [p] or swear by them or serve them or bow down to them, [8] [q] but you shall cling to the LORD your God just as you have done to this day. [9] [r] For the LORD has driven out before you great and strong nations. And as for you, [s] no man has been able to stand before you to this day. [10] [t] One man of you puts to flight a thousand, since it is the LORD your God [u] who fights for you, just as he promised you. [11] [v] Be very careful, therefore, to love the LORD your God. [12]For if you turn back and cling to the remnant of these nations remaining among you [w] and make marriages with them, so that you associate with them and they with you, [13]know for certain that [x] the LORD your God will no longer drive out these nations before you, [y] but they shall be a snare and a trap for you, a whip on your sides and thorns in your eyes, until you perish from off this good ground that the LORD your God has given you.

[14]"And now [z] I am about to go the way of all the earth, and you know in your hearts and souls, all of you, that [a] not one word has failed of all the good things [1] that the LORD your God promised concerning you. All have come to pass for you; not one of them has failed. [15][†]But just as all the good things that the LORD your God promised concerning you have been fulfilled for you, so the LORD will bring upon you [b] all the evil things, until he has destroyed you from off this good land that the LORD your God has given you, [16]if you transgress the covenant of the LORD your God, which he commanded you, and go and serve other gods and bow down to them. Then the anger of the LORD will be kindled against you, and you shall perish quickly from off the good land that he has given to you."

The Covenant Renewal at Shechem

JOSHUA 24 [†]Joshua gathered all the tribes of Israel [c] to Shechem and [d] summoned the elders, the heads, the judges, and the officers of Israel. And [e] they presented themselves before God. [2][†]And Joshua said to all the people, "Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, 'Long ago, [f] your fathers lived beyond the Euphrates, [1] Terah, the father of Abraham and of Nahor;

and [g] they served other gods. [3] [h] Then I took your father Abraham from beyond the River and [i] led him through all the land of Canaan, and made his offspring many. [j] I gave him Isaac. [4]And to Isaac I gave [k] Jacob and Esau. [l] And I gave Esau the hill country of Seir to possess, [m] but Jacob and his children went down to Egypt. [5] [n] And I sent Moses and Aaron, [o] and I plagued Egypt with what I did in the midst of it, and [p] afterward I brought you out.

[6]“‘Then [p] I brought your fathers out of Egypt, and [q] you came to the sea. [r] And the Egyptians pursued your fathers with chariots and horsemen to the Red Sea. [7] [s] And when they cried to the Lord, [t] he put darkness between you and the Egyptians [u] and made the sea come upon them and cover them; [v] and your eyes saw what I did in Egypt. [w] And you lived in the wilderness a long time. [8]Then I brought you to the land of the Amorites, who lived on the other side of the Jordan. [x] They fought with you, and I gave them into your hand, and you took possession of their land, and I destroyed them before you. [9] [y] Then Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, arose and fought against Israel. [z] And he sent and invited Balaam the son of Beor to curse you, [10] [a] but I would not listen to Balaam. [a] Indeed, he blessed you. So I delivered you out of his hand. [11] [b] And you went over the Jordan and came to Jericho, [c] and the leaders of Jericho fought against you, and also [c] the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. And I gave them into your hand. [12][†]And I sent [d] the hornet before you, which drove them out before you, the two kings of the Amorites; it was [e] not by your sword or by your bow. [13]I gave you a land on which you had not labored [f] and cities that you had not built, and you dwell in them. You eat the fruit of vineyards and olive orchards that you did not plant.’

Choose Whom You Will Serve

[14][†] [g] “Now therefore fear the Lord and serve him in sincerity and in faithfulness. [h] Put away the gods that your fathers served beyond the River and in Egypt, and serve the Lord. [15][^][†] [i] And if it is evil in your eyes to serve the Lord, [j] choose this day whom you will serve, whether [h] the gods your fathers served in the region beyond the River, or [k] the gods of the Amorites in whose land you dwell. [l] But as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD."

16 Then the people answered, "Far be it from us that we should forsake the LORD to serve other gods, 17 for it is the LORD our God who brought us and our fathers up from the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery, and who did those great signs in our sight and preserved us in all the way that we went, and among all the peoples through whom we passed. 18 And the LORD drove out before us all the peoples, the Amorites who lived in the land. Therefore we also will serve the LORD, for he is our God."

19 [†]But Joshua said to the people, "You are not able to serve the LORD, for he is [m] a holy God. He is [n] a jealous God; [o] he will not forgive your transgressions or your sins. 20 [p] If you forsake the LORD and serve foreign gods, then [q] he will turn and do you harm and consume you, after having done you good." 21 And the people said to Joshua, "No, but we will serve the LORD." 22 Then Joshua said to the people, "You are witnesses against yourselves that [r] you have chosen the LORD, to serve him." And they said, "We are witnesses." 23 [†]He said, "Then [s] put away the foreign gods that are among you, and incline your heart to the LORD, the God of Israel." 24 [†]And the people said to Joshua, "The LORD our God we will serve, and his voice we will obey." 25 So Joshua [t] made a covenant with the people that day, and put in place [u] statutes and rules for them at Shechem. 26 [†]And Joshua [v] wrote these words in the Book of the Law of God. And [w] he took a large stone and set it up there [x] under the terebinth that was by the sanctuary of the LORD. 27 And Joshua said to all the people, "Behold, [y] this stone shall be a witness against us, for [z] it has heard all the words of the LORD that he spoke to us. Therefore it shall be a witness against you, lest you deal falsely with your God." 28 So Joshua [a] sent the people away, every man to his inheritance.

Joshua's Death and Burial

29 [†] [b] After these things Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being 110 years old. 30 And they buried him in his own inheritance at

[c] Timnath-serah, which is in the hill country of Ephraim, north of the mountain of Gaash.

31[†] [d] Israel served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders who outlived Joshua [e] and had known all the work that the LORD did for Israel.

32[†] [f] As for the bones of Joseph, which the people of Israel brought up from Egypt, they buried them at Shechem, in the piece of land [g] that Jacob bought from the sons of Hamor the father of Shechem for a hundred pieces of money. [2] It became an inheritance of the descendants of Joseph.

33[†]And Eleazar the son of Aaron died, and they buried him at Gibeah, the town of [h] Phinehas his son, which had been given him in [i] the hill country of Ephraim.

Study Notes for Joshua

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:1–5:15 Crossing into the Land. The Lord speaks first in the book of Joshua. His first initiative is to pass the mantle of leadership from Moses to Joshua, who has been groomed for this very task (see Deut. 31:1–8). Joshua is to lead the people to their inheritance in the Land of Promise, but first barriers must be crossed and relationships restored.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:1–18 Joshua's Charge. The first chapter of Joshua divides into three sections and consists largely of speeches. The first section (vv. 1–9) contains the Lord's words to Joshua, charging him to assume the leadership position opened up by Moses' death. The second section (vv. 10–15) recounts Joshua's initial response, charging the "officers of the people" and the Transjordanian tribes to prepare to cross the Jordan into Canaan. The final section records the people's resolve to follow Joshua as they had followed Moses (vv. 16–18).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:1 After the death of Moses. While beginning a book with a death notice may strike a modern reader as odd, this notice effectively links the book of Joshua to the preceding "five books of Moses" (the Pentateuch), the last of which ends with a description of Moses' death (Deuteronomy 34). In similar fashion, the book of Joshua will end and the book of Judges will begin with references to the death of Joshua (Josh. 24:29; Judg. 1:1; 2:8). These notices link the books together in a continuous chain and suggest the continuity of the Lord's dealing with his people Israel through key leaders. Moreover, just as Moses is called the servant of the LORD here (also Josh. 1:7, 13, 15; 8:31, 33; 11:12; 12:6; 13:8; 14:7; 18:7; 22:2, 4, 5) and in the record of his death (Deut. 34:5), Joshua will receive the same title of honor at the end of his life (Josh. 24:29; Judg. 2:8). That the son of Nun was an Ephraimite is clear from Num. 13:8, but little else is known of Nun. Joshua himself is mentioned some 30 times in the Pentateuch, three times under his original name Hoshea ("salvation") and the remainder under the name Joshua ("Yahweh saves"), given him by Moses in Num. 13:16. His first appearance is as a military commander, fighting the malevolent Amalekites shortly after Israel's exodus from Egypt while Moses sat atop a nearby hill with his hands lifted toward heaven (Ex. 17:8–13). The Amalekite battle not only tested Joshua's military mettle but also underscored a fundamental principle with respect to Israel's wars—namely, that the battle is the Lord's (cf. 1 Sam. 17:47).

That the Lord should explicitly instruct Moses to record the Amalekite battle in a book and "recite it in the ears of Joshua" (Ex. 17:14) anticipates Joshua's future importance. As Moses' assistant, Joshua accompanied him at least partway up Mount Sinai (Ex. 24:13; 32:17), and he also assisted Moses at the tent of meeting, where the Lord would "speak to Moses face to face" (Ex. 33:11). Joshua was among the 12 men sent to explore the land of Canaan (Num. 13:8). He alone joined Caleb in exhorting the people to trust God for victory (Num. 14:6–9)—an act of faith for which only he and Caleb, among their generation, were allowed to enter the Promised Land. More than a mere assistant, Joshua was prepared by these and other experiences to become Moses' successor. Near the time of his death, when Moses requested that a successor be appointed, the Lord instructed him to commission Joshua the son of Nun, "a man in whom is the Spirit," before "all the congregation" (Num. 27:18–19). Joshua was to be the one to lead Israel into the Promised Land (Deut. 1:38; 3:28; 31:23) and to apportion it among the tribes (Num. 34:17). As the book of Joshua opens, Moses has died and the time has finally come for Joshua—"full of the spirit of wisdom, for Moses had laid his hands on him" (Deut. 34:9)—to take the lead.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:2 the land that I am giving to them. The "patriarchal promise," first uttered to Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3), entailed three key elements: progeny (Abraham's descendants would become a great nation), blessing (Abraham's descendants would enjoy the blessings of living in covenant relationship with Yahweh—and were in turn to be a blessing to the nations), and land (Gen. 12:1, 5–7; 15:18). The Pentateuch ends with the first two elements beginning to be realized, but with Abraham's descendants still on the plains of Moab, east of the Jordan River, outside the Land of Promise (Num. 22:1; Deut. 34:8). The dominant theme of the book of Joshua is the Lord's faithfulness in fulfilling all his "good promises" (Josh. 21:45), especially the third element—the promise of land, which he "swore to their fathers to give them" (1:6; 21:43). Scores of references to the Lord giving the land appear throughout the book, eight in ch. 1 alone.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:3 Every place that the sole of your foot will tread upon I have given to you. The fact that the Lord is sovereignly giving Israel the land does not negate their responsibility to step out in faith and take what is given (cf. vv. 9, 18).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:4 The Land of Promise is to stretch from the wilderness in the south to Lebanon in the north, and from the river Euphrates in the (north) east to the Great Sea (the Mediterranean) in the west. This broad-brush description recalls Num. 34:1–12, where the Lord provides Moses a more detailed delineation of the boundaries of Israel's "inheritance" in the land of Canaan (see map; cf. also Gen. 10:19; 15:18; Num. 13:17–22; Deut. 1:7).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:5–9 Three times the Lord charges Joshua to be strong and courageous, words reminiscent of Joshua's earlier commissioning under Moses (see Deut. 31:6–8, 23). Joshua will need strength and courage to accept his task (you shall cause this people to inherit the land; Josh. 1:6); to obey the Torah (Book of the Law [v. 8]; most likely this would have included at least the book of Deuteronomy or portions thereof [see Deut. 31:26, "this law"]); and to resist being terrified (do not be frightened, and do not be dismayed; Josh. 1:9). Most difficult of all will be the middle responsibility—namely, to make the Lord's instructions (Hb. Torah) integral to who he is and what he does (v. 8a), meditating on them constantly so as to do them (v. 8b). Thus the middle exhortation is made emphatic by the addition of two small words: "only be strong and very courageous." Given Joshua's leadership responsibilities, this charge to be strong and courageous would be daunting were it not for the framing promises: I will be with you. I will not leave you or forsake you (v. 5); and the LORD your God is with you wherever you go (v. 9). Fortified by these assurances of the Lord's abiding presence, Joshua is empowered to receive his commission with courage. The Hebrew terminology used in these assurances has nothing to do with worldly wealth or worldly success, but has everything to do with accomplishing one's mission and acting with keen insight in any circumstance that presents itself. Only when one fails to "ask counsel from the LORD" (9:14) is such insight lacking.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:12 For Moses' instructions to the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, see Num. 32:6–7, 16–18, 28; Deut. 3:18–20. "All Israel" was to be involved in the conquest.

Joshua 1:1–9 as a "Table of Contents" for the Rest of the Book

View this chart online at http://kindle.esvsb.org/c62

“arise, go over this Jordan … into the land that I am giving … to the people of Israel” (1:2–5)	Israel conquers Canaan (1:10–12:24)
“you shall cause this people to inherit the land” (1:6)	Israel’s inheritance distributed (chs. 13–21)
“be strong and very courageous, being careful to do according to all the law …” (1:7–9)	Covenant renewal (chs. 22–24)

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:13 Like the OT notion of shalom (“peace, well-being”), rest (Hb. nuakh) suggests freedom from threat, the enjoyment of one’s inheritance, security within the borders of the land, and a state of all-around well-being. Rest is typically preceded by work, as in the creation account (Gen. 2:2–3) or in the celebration of the Sabbath (Ex. 20:8–11; Deut. 5:12–15), or even by warfare (Josh. 21:44; 23:1). The author of Hebrews weaves these OT threads together in expectation of a present spiritual and future rest (Hebrews 4) and urges his readers to “strive to enter that rest” (Heb. 4:11).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:14 Your wives … shall remain in the land. Only the men were expected to participate in combat (cf. note on Jer. 50:37).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 1:17 as we obeyed Moses … so we will obey you. In the ancient Near East, a change of leadership would typically involve a pledge of loyalty to the new leader.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:1–24 Joshua, the Spies, and Rahab. In ch. 1, Joshua received his charge. In ch. 2, he begins to “take charge.” The adventures of the spies provide the central thread around which the chapter is woven. But at least as important is the story of Rahab’s escape from the coming judgment.

Preparing to Enter Canaan

c. 1406/1220 B.C.

Joshua prepared to enter Canaan by sending two spies from Shittim to scout out the land and the city of Jericho. The spies spent the first night in Jericho at the house of Rahab the prostitute, who hid the men and sent away the soldiers sent by the king of Jericho to capture them. After traveling deeper into the hills and hiding for three days, the spies headed back across the Jordan River to report to Joshua at Shittim.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:1 Joshua … sent two men … as spies. The sending of the two spies, to gather intelligence about the hostile territory, underscores Joshua's skill as a leader and his concern for prudent preparation. In the wider context, the story of the initial conquest and defeat of Jericho stands in stark contrast to the narrative describing Israel's failure to take possession of the land 40 years earlier (see Numbers 13–14 and Deuteronomy 1). It also shows the stark contrast between the bad report of the 10 spies (Num. 13:25–33) as compared to the good report of the two spies ("Truly the LORD has given all the land into our hands," Josh. 2:24). Shittim, which means "the Acacia trees," was east of the Jordan River, though its exact location is unknown. Two potential sites have been proposed: Tell el-Kefrein, 6 miles (9.7 km) northeast of the Dead Sea, and the much larger Tell el-Hamman, 2 miles (3.2 km) farther east of the Jordan. Shittim was the site of an earlier instance of Israelite prostitution, both physical and spiritual (Num. 25:1–3). into the house of a prostitute. The narrative carefully avoids any suggestion of a sexual relation between the spies and Rahab. The house most likely was a kind of inn or way station, which would be a logical place to stay and to gather information. Although a prostitute, Rahab was spared judgment by the mercy of God, and she is remembered as one of the ancestors of Christ (Matt. 1:5), for her faith (Heb. 11:31) and for her good works (James 2:25).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:2 it was told to the king of Jericho. The spies' intent to remain "undercover" was singularly unsuccessful! Canaan at that time consisted of various city-states, each with a central (often walled) city surrounded by villages and farmland and each with its own "king."

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:4 I did not know. Rahab's deceptive response has been alternatively condemned as a lie or defended as justified in the context of (impending) warfare. The narrative, in fact, does not address this ethical issue, and the NT, while commending Rahab for protecting the spies, offers no explicit comment regarding her methods (Heb. 11:31; James 2:25). Similar instances of "deception" are found in Ex. 1:15–21; 1 Sam. 16:2; 1 Kings 22:19–23. Given that this is a descriptive narrative, rather than prescriptive instruction, no general ethical principles can be drawn from her actions. It is also possible, however, to say that Rahab's profession of faith (see Josh. 2:9–14) implies her new allegiance to the Lord and to his people. Thus she helps them in their warfare, and she expresses her new allegiance by protecting the spies with a ruse. (Cf. 8:5–8, where Joshua uses a ruse to win a battle.) Rahab is one of four women mentioned in the genealogy of Jesus in the first chapter of Matthew; the other three are Tamar (Matt. 1:3), Ruth the Moabitess (Matt. 1:5), and the "wife of Uriah" (Matt. 1:6).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:6 Flax is the plant from which linen is made by a process of alternately drying and soaking the flax fibers. The flat rooftops of houses were convenient places for drying the stalks.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:7 The Jordan River forms a large natural boundary between Transjordan on the east and Cisjordan on the west. As it lacked any bridges in antiquity, the Jordan was generally impassable except by swimming, or it could be waded at shallow areas (or fords) under appropriate water conditions. Between the Sea of Galilee in the north and the Dead Sea in the south, there were few places where the Jordan could be crossed. One such place, however, was near Jericho (on Jericho, see note on 6:1–2), and the king's men probably hoped to cut off the fleeing spies at that crossing point. (See map.)

Israel Enters Canaan

c. 1406/1220 B.C.

After crossing the Jordan River and entering Canaan, the Israelites set up camp at Gilgal. From there they continued to move westward, first destroying the imposing city of Jericho and then defeating the smaller town of Ai. Later the Gibeonites (also called Hivites) deceived the Israelites into signing a peace treaty with them.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:9 I know that the LORD has given you the land. Rahab shows a remarkable awareness of Israel's history and of the Lord's intention to give Israel the land of Canaan (cf. 1:2). Her confession is filled with the language and theology of the Pentateuch, especially Deuteronomy, and echoes Josh. 1:2. The narration itself does not clarify whether her confession implies spiritual conversion or simply recognition of the supreme power of Israel's God, but her later integration into Israel (6:17, 25) favors a genuine conversion.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:10 In Genesis 15 the Lord promised Abraham that his descendants would one day inherit the land of Canaan, but not until the iniquity of the Amorites was full. Outside the Bible the Amorites are referred to as Martu (Sumerian for "westerner") and Amurru (Akkadian). They are attested as early as the beginning of the third millennium B.C. Migrating westward and southward into Canaan, they were at their strongest in the middle of the second millennium B.C. and faded quickly thereafter. In biblical parlance, the term "Amorite" is variously used to connote the inhabitants of Canaan generally, and the inhabitants of the hill country specifically. Sihon and Og are not mentioned outside the Bible (see Numbers 21; Deuteronomy 3).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:11 as soon as we heard … our hearts melted.. Cf. Ex. 15:14–15. On Rahab's apparent faith here, see note on Josh. 2:9.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:12–14 we will deal kindly and faithfully with you. The response of the spies (v. 14) comes as a surprise, given that Israel was to dispossess and destroy the inhabitants of the land God had promised to Israel (see Num. 33:50–52; Deut. 7:1–2). This underscores the gracious character of the God of Israel and the fact that the boundary between Israel and Canaan was not drawn along ethnic lines but in terms of allegiance to the Lord. It also shows that there was room for exceptions in the general instruction to destroy the Canaanites, for people who came to genuine faith in the God of Israel.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:15 her house was built into the city wall. This interesting architectural note explains how Rahab lowered the spies through a window to the outside of the city. Archaeological exploration at the site of Jericho (for more, see note on 6:5) suggests that the city probably enjoyed a double wall structure, with houses particularly of poorer individuals built between the inner and outer wall. Those houses abutting the outer wall may well have had a window in the wall.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:18 scarlet cord. The instructions that Rahab should gather and retain her entire family in her house recall the procedure prescribed at the time of the first Passover (Ex. 12:22 and context). The cord's color would enable it to stand out clearly against the wall.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 2:24 The spies' report echoes what Rahab herself said (v. 9).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:1–4:24 Crossing the Jordan. Chapters 3 and 4 form a unit, bound together by the common theme of the Jordan crossing (see map). The Hebrew verb meaning "cross (over)" (Hb. 'abar) occurs more than 20 times in these chapters alone (more than a third of the total occurrences in the book of Joshua). References to God exalting Joshua (3:7; 4:14) also indicate that the chapters are to be read together. The apparently repetitive layout of this material relates to the literary structure: the crossing and its commemoration with memorial stones are first anticipated briefly and then described from various angles, in much the same way that a film director sometimes repeats a significant event first from one angle, then from another. In a historical narrative, even simultaneous events must be described sequentially. The actual historical sequence would have involved (1) the blockage and crossing of the Jordan and then (2) the setting up of memorial stones, taken from the river bed, at Gilgal.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:1 Shittim. See note on 2:1.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:2 three days. In 1:11, the officers alerted the people that they would cross over the Jordan "within three days." Now at the end of three days, the officers appear to give more specific instructions. But how does this sequence fit with the fact that the spies who were sent out in ch. 2 found it necessary to hide in the hills for "three days" (2:22) before returning to Joshua (2:24)? One possible solution is that the three-day periods mentioned in 1:11 and 3:2 are distinct, in which case the crossing of the Jordan would have taken place on the seventh day. Another solution is that Joshua had sent the spies prior to his words in 1:11 (see esv footnote on 2:1, "had sent").

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:3 On the construction of the ark of the covenant and its significance as symbolizing and mediating the Lord's presence, see Ex. 25:10–22. When not accompanying the Israelites into battle or preceding them through the Jordan, the ark was normally kept in the Most Holy Place of the tabernacle (later the temple). As passages such as 1 Samuel 4–6 and 2 Samuel 6 dramatically demonstrate, the ark was not a magical object and was not to be trifled with.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:4 Two thousand cubits is just over half a mile (0.8 km). The explicitly stated reason that the Israelites were to maintain this distance between themselves and the ark is in order that you may know the way you shall go. From a distance of half a mile, more people would have been able to see the ark and thus follow its path. The sacrosanct nature of the ark may also have prompted this safe distance, but this is not stated.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:5 Consecrate yourselves. Compare the Lord's instructions through Moses at Mount Sinai (Ex. 19:10–15). Sanctifying, or "separating," oneself included washing one's clothes and temporarily abstaining from sexual relations (Ex. 19:14–15). The notice that the Lord is about to perform wonders (anticipated in Ex. 34:10–11) among the people further underscores Joshua's role as Moses' successor. The plagues visited on the Egyptians at the time of the exodus under Moses' leadership were described as "wonders" (Ex. 3:20).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:7 Today I will begin to exalt you. Through Joshua's leading the people safely through the Jordan River, the Lord exalts Joshua so that the people "stood in awe of him just as they had stood in awe of Moses" (4:14).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:10–11 God will drive out the seven peoples listed (described in Deut. 7:1 as "seven nations more numerous and mightier than you"; several of these nations are attested in sources outside the Bible). God's presence with his people is also seen in the expression translated the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth. The literal Hebrew (see esv footnote) strongly connects the Lord to his ark (cf. Josh. 3:13).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:12 take twelve men. Anticipating the Lord's instructions in 4:2, this notice alerts the reader that the 12 chosen men will likely have an important role to play as events unfold.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:15 At the appropriate dramatic moment, the biblical narrator notifies the reader that the Jordan overflows all its banks—caused by spring rains and snowmelt from the Mount Hermon region and the Jordan's headwaters—throughout the time of harvest, the grain harvest of March–April. The Jordan's swollen waters would have been considerably more daunting than the river at its normal 3- to 10-foot (0.9- to 3.0-m) depth and 90- to 100-foot (27- to 31-m) width. Crossing such water would be no less miraculous than crossing the Red Sea (see 4:23).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:16 "Heap" is the same term used in the poetic celebrations of the miraculous crossing of the Red Sea (Ex. 15:8; Ps. 78:13; cf. "dry ground" in Josh. 3:17 with Ex. 14:21). It is particularly appropriate in the present passage, which adds the detail that the "heap" of water was very far away, at Adam. This apparently means that the water was stopped as far upriver as Adam, identified with modern Damiya, east of the Jordan and just south of the confluence with the Jabbok River (about 18 miles [29 km] north of the fords of the Jordan). It is a place where mudslides have occasionally completely blocked the Jordan's southward flow, most recently in 1927 for some 20 hours. When the text says that the waters coming down from above stood and rose up in a heap, the implication is a supernatural act: either the waters stopped with no visible physical obstruction holding them back, or else a mudslide blocked the river, supernaturally timed to coincide with the priests' dipping their feet in the brink of the water (Josh. 3:15).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 3:17 all Israel … the nation. Apart from anticipations such as Ex. 19:6, "you shall be to me a kingdom of priests and a holy nation," and the promise to Abram that God would make him "a great nation" (Gen. 12:2), Israel is not called a "nation" until now. In Egypt and in the wilderness, Israel was a "people"; now, with their having entered the Promised Land, the term "nation" begins to apply.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 4:2 The Lord's instruction that Joshua should take twelve men … from each tribe a man was apparently already anticipated by Joshua in 3:12 (cf. 4:4, "the twelve men … whom he had appointed"). Each of the 12 tribes is represented, which signifies the importance of the Jordan crossing for all Israel.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 4:9 Joshua set up twelve stones in the midst of the Jordan. Commentators are divided over whether or not this represents a second group of stones in addition to those set up in Gilgal (vv. 8, 20). A face-value reading of the Hebrew text could suggest a second memorial, but the larger context suggests only one set of stones. Further, some read the Hebrew to the effect that Joshua had already set up 12 stones in the midst of the Jordan. to this day. The first occurrence of a phrase that appears frequently in the book of Joshua. The "day" in question is the day either of the biblical narrator or of his source materials (cf. 2 Chron. 5:9).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 4:13 plains of Jericho. The troops passed over a broad plain between Jericho and the Jordan River, some 5 miles (8 km) east of Jericho.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 4:14 exalted. Cf. 3:7.

Joshua's Leadership Is Established

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 4:19 tenth day of the first month. See note on 5:10. Gilgal is described as lying on the east border of Jericho, thus in its near vicinity. Several site identifications have been considered, but none is yet certain.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 4:20 The twelve stones that Joshua set up at Gilgal represent the first of seven stone memorials described in Joshua (see also 7:26; 8:28–29; 8:32; 10:27; 22:34; 24:26–27). See chart. This first one is a reminder of God’s faithfulness in bringing Israel safely across the Jordan into the Promised Land.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 4:21–23 The narrator so tells the account as to echo Israel’s crossing of the Red Sea: the God who led Israel out of Egypt has brought them into Canaan and will fulfill his purpose through them (cf. Gen. 12:3). Psalm 114:3 brings together the crossings of the Red Sea and the Jordan.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 4:24 The dramatic manner in which the Lord brought Israel into the land was intended to alert the peoples of the earth to the fact that the hand of the LORD is mighty and to engender true devotion—which is what fear of the LORD connotes—in the hearts of God’s people forever, that is, through all the generations that would hear of the river passage.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 5:1–15 Ritual Renewal and Divine Encounter. With Israel now finally in the Land of Promise, after so many years of living in the desert, the urge to begin the conquest must have been powerful. But Joshua 5 underscores matters of even greater importance. The reinstitution of the covenant sign of circumcision (vv. 2–9) and the celebration of Passover (vv. 10–12) remind God’s people of their privileged covenant relationship with him (signified by circumcision) and of their redemption out of bondage by him (signified by the Passover). These two fundamentally important rites are paralleled in the NT by baptism (the sign of covenant relationship; Col. 2:11–12) and the Lord’s Supper (celebration of redemption from the bondage of sin through the sacrificial death of the Lamb of God; Matt. 26:18–19). Observing circumcision and the Passover at this occasion requires that Israel act by faith: both to trust God for protection while they are vulnerable (Josh. 5:8) and to commit themselves afresh to basing their life in the land on their identity as God’s people (i.e., not simply as a political entity). Fittingly, an encounter with the “commander of the army of the LORD” reminds Joshua of his reliance on the Lord (vv. 13–15) and, with its militaristic overtones, anticipates the commencement of the conquest in ch. 6.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 5:1 Even before Israel did anything to take the land, the Lord went before and demoralized the enemy so that there was no longer any spirit in them. This verse is transitional: (1) it completes the account of the Jordan crossing by noting its effects on those whom the Lord would drive out of the land, and (2) it explains how it is possible for Israel to exist unopposed in enemy territory long enough for the events of ch. 5 to take place.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 5:2 Make flint knives … circumcise … a second time. Circumcision was widely practiced in the ancient Near East (see Jer. 9:25–26) but not universally. The Philistines were not circumcised (1 Sam. 14:6), nor, apparently, were some inhabitants of Canaan (Gen. 34:14). Unlike its significance in Egypt, for instance, where circumcision marked a rite of passage, in Israel circumcision was a sign of the covenant instituted by Yahweh in Gen. 17:10–14 and was to be administered to all males when they were eight days old. The need to circumcise the Israelite men under Joshua’s command a second time is explained in Josh. 5:4–5, 7. The use of flint knives, even in a time period when metal instruments had been developed, may attest to the antiquity of the practice (cf. Ex. 4:25), or it may have to do with the need for many instruments at one time. Flint, or obsidian, was readily available and was particularly well suited. An Egyptian text, dated to the twenty-third century B.C., speaks of 120 young men being circumcised at one time. The inscription on a similarly dated Egyptian tomb relief depicting circumcision indicates that flint knives were used.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 5:6 land flowing with milk and honey. A land particularly suited to agrarian existence, Israel’s new home would flow with milk (from goatherding) and honey (perhaps, in addition to naturally occurring bee’s honey, also the syrup derived from boiling down figs or grapes). See Ex. 3:17; 13:5; Lev. 20:24; Num. 13:27; Deut. 6:3.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 5:9 The name Gilgal sounds similar to a Hebrew verb meaning “to roll” (Hb. galal) and a noun meaning “wheel” (Hb. galgal), and thus is aptly associated with the Lord having rolled away the reproach of Egypt. The “reproach” may have been the aspersions the Egyptians would have cast on Israel had the Lord not succeeded in bringing them into the land (Ex. 32:12; Num. 14:13–16; Deut. 9:28), or it may refer to the reproach represented in the disobedient generation that has now died (see Josh. 5:4–6).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 5:10 For the institution of the Passover, which celebrated Israel's deliverance from the judgment that befell the Egyptians, see Exodus 12; on the timing of the Passover, see Ex. 12:18; Lev. 23:5; etc. Preparation for the first Passover meal, shortly before Israel's departure from Egypt, took place according to Ex. 12:3 on the tenth day of the first month (Abib or Nisan, overlapping with modern March/April). The notice in Josh. 4:19 that "the people came up out of the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month" suggests a parallel; the transition from wandering in the wilderness to arrival in the land was a kind of "second exodus." In the first exodus, the Passover preceded the crossing of the Red Sea. In this "second exodus," it followed the crossing of the Jordan.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 5:12 manna ceased. Cf. Ex. 16:35. Commensurate with their changed status, the people of Israel can now enjoy the fruit of the land of Canaan.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 5:13–14 Are you for us, or for our adversaries? Joshua's question to the man with the drawn sword is best understood as, "Are you one of ours, or one of our adversaries' [soldiers]?" To this question the commander of the army of the LORD rightly answers "No," i.e., "Neither" (in other words, not in the sense that Joshua is asking the question, assuming a merely human ally or enemy). Far from suggesting a lack of commitment to his people, the Lord underscores his commitment by marshaling his hosts on their behalf. The expression with his drawn sword in his hand appears in Num. 22:23, 31 and 1 Chron. 21:16, where it refers to the angel of the Lord as the agent of God's zeal. The way that Josh. 5:15 (see note there) evokes Ex. 3:5 reinforces this identification and shows that the angel of the Lord is often a manifestation of the Lord himself. The "army of the LORD" is the force God commands when judging (Isa. 13:4) or protecting (1 Kings 22:19). worshiped. Or, "bowed down." Joshua knew he was inferior to the commander; possibly he believed he was in God's own presence. Exodus 23:20–33 relates God's promise of his angel to secure Israel's success in conquest.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 5:15 Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy. Yet another indication of Joshua's status as Moses' successor: Joshua receives the same instructions Moses did at the burning bush (Ex. 3:5).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:1–12:24 Taking the Land. Now that the Israelites are in the land, they must conquer it. Again, the Lord takes the initiative, his first words underscoring the fact that the land is his gift: "I have given Jericho into your hand" (6:2). Nevertheless, this does not annul the importance of God's people acting on his commands. In this section, Joshua and Israel on occasion fail in their faithfulness to the Lord. The Lord nevertheless graciously restores them and fights for them (10:42) until the land is taken.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:1–27 Jericho's Fall: Firstfruits of War. As was often the case in ancient Near Eastern conquest accounts, key early conflicts are recounted in detail, while subsequent conflicts are noted more briefly. As the first city to be taken in Canaan, Jericho was to be wholly dedicated to the Lord, as a kind of symbolic "firstfruits" (cf. Lev. 23:10). The people of Israel were to take no plunder and were to leave no survivors. The chapter may be divided into three sections: the Lord's instructions to Joshua (Josh. 6:1–5); the execution of the Lord's instructions (vv. 6–21); and the aftermath of victory (vv. 22–27). Joshua was "by Jericho" in the last episode of ch. 5, and this has raised the question as to whether the early verses of ch. 6 should be regarded as the continuation of Joshua's encounter with the "commander of the army of the LORD." If this is the case, the Lord's words in vv. 2–5 were given to Joshua during this encounter. This is a possibility, but the evidence in the text does not clearly show whether this suggestion is correct or not.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:1–2 Jericho is one of the oldest known fortified cities in the ancient Near East, as well as one of the geographically lowest, at about 750 feet (229 m) below sea level. Well supplied with spring water, Jericho was an oasis and was sometimes referred to as the "city of palms" (Judg. 1:16). Throughout its long history of occupation, the actual settled area of Jericho occasionally shifted. OT Jericho is identified with Tell es-Sultan, a mound of about 10 acres. The name "Jericho" (Hb. yerikho) sounds like the Hebrew word "moon" (Hb. yareakh), leading many to the reasonable assumption that Canaanite Jericho may have been a center of moon worship. If so, then the Lord's destruction of Jericho would have suggested victory over the false gods of Canaan (cf. his humiliation of the gods of Egypt at the time of the exodus; see Ex. 12:12; Num. 33:4). On the archaeology of Jericho, see note on Josh. 6:5.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:3 march around the city. The remarkable instructions given to Joshua suggest a ritual aspect in the taking of Jericho, which underscores the divine agency while also recalling the divine creation in seven days.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:4 the ark. The visible symbol of the Lord's presence was at the center of the priestly and military personnel as they walked around the city of Jericho. It emphasizes that the conquest of the land of Canaan was first and foremost the Lord's doing. See also v. 8, where the ark is called the "ark of the covenant of the LORD."

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:5 and the wall of the city will fall down flat. Tell es-Sultan (OT Jericho) has had a long history of archaeological excavation. Many aspects of the site seemed to fit the biblical picture: clear evidence of fallen mud brick walls creating ramparts against the outer reinforcing wall, which could have allowed Israelite soldiers to go up, everyone straight before him; evidence of a rapid defeat in springtime; evidence of a lack of plundering; evidence of burning; etc. But the date seemed wrong. The question of dating the ruins of Tell es-Sultan—a site that has, in any case, experienced severe erosion—has recently been reopened. Many historians believe that the fall of Jericho occurred in the thirteenth century B.C. But some analyses of the original excavation reports, including pottery, stratigraphy, scarab data, and carbon 14 testing, have instead concluded that Jericho was destroyed at the end of the Late Bronze period (c. 1400 B.C.).

The City of Jericho

Jericho (Tell es-Sultan) is perhaps the oldest city on earth, and it is the lowest city on the surface of the planet (c. 750 feet/229 m below sea level). Jericho has undergone massive excavation work; major digs were led by Ernst Sellin and Carl Watzinger (1907–1909, 1911), John Garstang (1930–1936), and Kathleen Kenyon (1952–1958). Many important finds have been made at the site, one of the most notable being a city wall, some 4.5 feet (1.5 m) wide, attached to a monumental round stone tower. These are some of the earliest fortifications known to mankind. The diagram below portrays some of the remains from the excavations at Jericho from various periods of her history. Thus, the outer city wall comes from the Late Middle Bronze Age (2000–1550 B.C.) whereas the inner city wall dates to the Early Bronze Age (3200–2200 B.C.). Jericho was the first city west of the Jordan captured by the Israelites under the command of Joshua (Joshua 6). Whether or not there exist archaeological remains from that destruction is a hotly debated issue among archaeologists. Following the Israelite destruction, Jericho was abandoned for centuries until a new settlement was established by Hiel the Bethelite in the ninth century B.C. (1 Kings 16:34).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:17 devoted to the LORD for destruction. "Devotion to destruction" (Hb. kherem) was not an exclusively biblical practice (cf. the Moabite Stone, where in the earliest instance of the name of Israel's God in an inscription, King Mesha speaks of devoting to destruction the city of Nebo, killing 7,000 men and women and dragging the vessels of Yahweh before Chemosh). Though such total destruction may be offensive to modern sensibilities, the Bible insists that the total destruction of Jericho was commanded by the Lord himself (Deut. 20:16–17), and it gives evidence of God's judgment on the terrible sin of the Canaanites. This order to destroy every living thing was not a license to kill indiscriminately in other warfare, because cities outside the Land of Promise were to be treated differently (Deut. 20:10–15). Rather, it was intended to punish the Canaanites (whose iniquity had become complete; cf. Gen. 15:16) and to protect the Israelites from falling into idolatry and apostasy (Deut. 7:1–6). The extermination of the Canaanites was a special case of divine judgment intruding into a period otherwise characterized by common grace; as such, it provides no pattern for general warfare (ancient or modern) but anticipates the final judgment that will befall all who persist in rebellion against God's gracious overtures. See Introduction: The Destruction of the Canaanites.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:18 Should Israel prove unfaithful in carrying out the order for total destruction, the camp of Israel itself will become a thing for destruction. Thus, the order (see v. 17) is not an instance of ethnic cleansing but of religious purification. Canaanites such as Rahab (ch. 2) and the Gibeonites (ch. 9), who devote themselves to the Lord, are spared, while Israelites who defy the Lord, such as Achan (ch. 7), themselves become kherem (i.e., devoted to destruction). Nor was sin a private affair; individual actions could jeopardize the entire camp (cf. 7:1).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:19 Items that could not be destroyed, such as precious metals, were to go into the treasury of the LORD, and in that way be kept separate from common use.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:20 So the people shouted. Hebrews 11:30 commends the people's faith, for they believed the promise of Josh. 6:2–5, showing their faith by their obedience to the instructions.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:21 devoted … to destruction. See note on 6:17.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:23 Rahab … and all who belonged to her are spared, in keeping with the promise in 2:14, 17–20. Their placement outside the camp of Israel is apparently temporary (cf. 6:25) and likely necessitated by ritual uncleanness (Lev. 13:46).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 6:26 Joshua’s oath of curse against anyone who should rebuild the city of Jericho underlines the symbolic significance of the first Canaanite city to fall. Jericho represents God’s judgment on Canaan, and the continuing presence of its ruins is to serve as a warning to Israel. Any attempt to rebuild and refortify the city, therefore, will suggest defiance of the Lord’s rule. For the fulfillment of Joshua’s curse, see 1 Kings 16:34.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:1–26 Israel’s Failure: Achan’s Sin; Corporate Guilt. The events of chs. 1–6 (with the possible exception of ch. 2) were initiated by divine instruction. Chapter 7 recounts how Joshua launches an attack on the city of Ai, but it makes no mention either of a divine mandate to do so or of any inquiry made to the Lord as to how Israel should proceed. Perhaps Joshua felt overconfident after the remarkable success of Israel’s battle against Jericho (ch. 6), or perhaps the implication is that even an apparently easy target is not easy if the Lord is against them.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:1 After the rousing success of Israel’s first victory in Canaan, the opening summary of this chapter has an ominous ring: But the people of Israel broke faith. See note on 1 Chron. 2:3–8. While Achan is the actual perpetrator, Israel as a covenant community is held responsible for the presence of sin in its midst. Achan’s abuse of the devoted things (on which, see notes on Josh. Josh. 6:17; 6:18; 6:19) arouses the anger of the Lord and leads to Israel’s first defeat in the land of Canaan. Despite his fine Israelite pedigree (of the tribe of Judah), Achan begins the “Canaanization” of Israel.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:2–5 For a second time (see 2:1) Joshua sent men to spy out the land (7:1). But this spying mission proves disastrous. The spies give an optimistic estimate of the challenge of taking Ai, and the cost is the lives of thirty-six of their men (v. 5). In a striking reversal of what had earlier been the state of Canaanite morale (2:11; 5:1), now it is the Israelites whose hearts have melted and become as water (7:5). The location of ancient Ai, whose name means “ruin,” is often assumed to be at Khirbet et-Tell, in the central hill country about 13 miles (21 km) by road west of Jericho and 3,458 feet (1,054 m) higher in elevation. But the specific site identification is disputed, as the stratigraphy of et-Tell does not match important events of biblical history, such as Joshua’s campaign against it. It is more likely that Ai was in the same general location but at the modern site of Khirbet el-Maqatir.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:6–9 After tearing his clothes (a sign of distress and mourning; see Gen. 37:29, 34), Joshua speaks to the Lord for the first time in the chapter, raising his urgent complaint and accusing the Lord of bringing this people over the Jordan … to give us into the hands of the Amorites (Josh. 7:7). Joshua's words carry the further implication that the Lord has reversed his repeated promise (ch. 1) to give both the land and the inhabitants of Canaan into Israel's hands. Joshua's fear that our name will be cut off … from the earth (7:9) hints at a further reversal, namely, of the Lord's promise to Abraham to "make your name great" (Gen. 12:2). If these promises fail, Joshua insists, they will do little for your great name (on the issue of Israel's fate and the Lord's reputation, see Num. 14:13–16; Deut. 9:26–29). But Joshua is about to learn that his probing questions are misdirected.

Positive and Negative Patterns of Holy War

View this chart online at http://kindle.esvsb.org/c65

Positive: Jericho (chs. 2–6)	Negative: Ai (7:1–8:29)
An assurance of victory (6:2)	No assurance of victory (until 8:1)
Ritual purity (3:5; 5:2, 10)	Ritual impurity (7:1, 10–26)
Unity of the assembly (6:3–5)	Disunity of the assembly (7:3; 8:1)

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:10–12 Get up! … Israel has sinned. In no uncertain terms, the Lord redirects Joshua's attention to the true reason for Israel's defeat: Israel has transgressed my covenant. They have taken some of the devoted things (see notes on 6:17; 6:18; 6:19), stolen, lied, and put them among their own belongings—all actions explicitly forbidden in the Law of Moses (Deut. 7:25–26). Adherence to that law was insisted on in the assurances given Joshua in Josh. 1:7–8. The actual perpetrator of these crimes was Achan (7:1). But in addition to the corporate responsibility inherent in a covenant community, there was also the apparent negligence of Joshua and Israel's leaders in failing to seek divine direction for the Ai campaign (cf. 9:14's explicit reference to a similar neglect in the Gibeonite affair). No wonder, then, that Israel cannot stand before their enemies (cf. 7:13, and contrast 1:5, where the reverse was promised, on condition of Israel's faithfulness to the Lord).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:13 Consecrate yourselves. See note on 3:5.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:14 takes by lot. The Hebrew text reads simply "takes," and "by lot" is the likely interpretation as the means by which God indicated his choice (Urim and Thummim being the other possibility; see note on 1 Sam. 14:41–42).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:15 The offending party, once discovered, is to be burned with fire, because one who takes devoted things commits an outrageous act (an act of willful, sacrilegious folly) and makes himself and all that he has liable to the same treatment that the “devoted things” would receive. While it is possible that Achan’s family must have known of his offense and thus rightly shared his fate (v. 24), the text does not comment on this. Achan’s offense is not a civil infraction (for which he alone might be held responsible; cf. Deut. 24:16), but a religious one that defiled the camp and, most especially, those closest to him.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:19 Joshua’s charge that Achan give glory to the LORD God and give praise to him is probably to be understood not so much as commanding worship as in preparing Achan to tell me now what you have done. The Greek words for “give glory to … God” appear in John 9:24, where the Jewish leaders put under oath a man whom Jesus has healed; and the word “praise” (Hb. todah) can connote confession as well as praise.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:21 The allure of what Achan saw among the spoil was not insignificant; the six pounds of silver and a pound and a quarter of gold represent, according to some commentators, about what an average worker would have earned in a lifetime.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 7:24–26 Having brought trouble on Israel by his covetous act, Achan is put to death and he and all that he had are covered under a great heap of stones in the Valley of Achor (Achor represents Hb. ‘akor, which sounds like the Hb. word for “trouble,” ‘akar). The word them (vv. 24, 25) presumably includes Achan’s children, but there is room for uncertainty here because (1) v. 15 only says “all that he has”; (2) this could be what “them” refers to; and (3) there is no mention of Achan’s wife. Seven heaps or piles of stones figure in the Joshua account (see note on 4:20). The first was set up by Joshua in 4:20 as a memorial to the Lord’s faithfulness in bringing Israel safely across the Jordan River. This heap of stones over Achan is a reminder of Israel’s potential for unfaithfulness and of the dire consequences that result. all Israel stoned him with stones. This method of execution appropriately involved the entire community, as the entire community had been defiled and needed to be purified. It also freed any single individual from bearing the weight of acting as sole executioner.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:1–35 Israel’s Renewal: Ai’s Defeat. The first attempt to defeat the city of Ai (ch. 7) apparently proceeded without divine instruction, leaving Israel in the dark regarding its compromised standing brought about by Achan’s disobedience. The resulting defeat was costly, as was the remedy made necessary by Achan’s/Israel’s offense. The present episode recounts the successful defeat of Ai in response to explicit divine instructions, thus underscoring the importance of adherence to “the word of the LORD” (8:8, 27), followed by a special ceremony near Shechem (vv. 30–35). The passage goes into great detail for a small battle, probably to emphasize that success comes only from following the Lord’s instructions.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:1 Do not be dismayed recalls Joshua’s charge in 1:9 and implies the assurance of the Lord’s abiding presence. Despite breaking faith (7:1) in the preceding chapter, Israel is now restored and given a second chance.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:2 its spoil and its livestock you shall take as plunder. God has the right to determine the nature and extent of destruction in any given instance. In Deuteronomy 20, e.g., the prescribed treatment of cities outside the land of Canaan is less severe (Deut. 20:10–15) than that of cities within the land that Israel is to occupy (Deut. 20:16–20). Compare also the total destruction of people and the taking of plunder in Deut. 2:34–35; 3:6–7. Permission to take spoil here is ironic, in view of Joshua 7: if only Achan could have waited! ambush. Battles were sometimes won more by deceptive military strategy than by brute military strength, as is attested not only in the Bible but also in ancient Near Eastern, Greek, and Roman sources. Unlike the earlier case of Jericho, the divine instructions for the defeat of Ai depend less, if at all, on miraculous intervention than on clever strategy. The key in both instances is that the Lord’s instructions are to be heeded.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:3–4 Thirty thousand men seems to some commentators to be a remarkably large number to lie in ambush. It is possible that the Hebrew word “thousand” should be understood in the alternative sense of “military unit.” Further, the 30 “thousands” or “units” may not all have been involved in the ambush (see 8:12).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:8 In contrast to the first attack on Ai, this time everything is done according to the word of the LORD (also v. 27).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:12 Perhaps the 5,000 men (or five units) set in ambush represent a subset of the force mentioned in vv. 3–4, and the other 25 thousand (or units) constitute the main attack force. If so, this may help to explain why the king of Ai falls for the ruse. Israel appears to be attempting the same direct approach of ch. 7, but with more than eight times as many troops.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:18–20 Reminiscent of Moses' wielding the "staff of God in [his] hand" in Israel's wilderness battle against the Amalekites (Ex. 17:9) and earlier at the division of the sea (Ex. 14:16), Joshua is instructed by the Lord to stretch out the javelin that is in your hand toward Ai. Perhaps serving as a signal to the men in the ambush to arise and attack the city, this action more importantly symbolizes the Lord's giving the city into Joshua's hand. The stratagem succeeds, the city is set ablaze, and the soldiers of Ai have no power (Hb. "hands") to flee this way or that.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:28–29 The defeated city of Ai is left a heap of ruins, and its king, after being hanged on a tree (see Deut. 21:22–23), is buried beneath a great heap of stones (see note on Josh. 4:20). Both "heaps" (different words in Hb.) remain to this day—that is, to the time of the text's composition. If the "great heap of stones" over Achan in 7:26 was a monument to Israel's breaking faith, the present "great heap of stones" over the king of Ai is a monument to Israel's second chance and restoration.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:30–35 For Moses' instructions regarding the event recorded here, see Deut. 27:1–8, with which Joshua carefully complies.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:30–33 Mount Ebal, along with its counterpart Mount Gerizim (see Deut. 11:29), is some 20 miles (32 km) north of Ai, near Shechem, a city with long-standing ties to the ancestors of Israel, beginning with Abraham (Gen. 12:6–7; also Jacob in Gen. 33:18–20; 34:1–31). These associations may help to explain the curious fact that Israel is able to hold a covenant renewal in Shechem, apparently without having to capture it first. Mention of sojourner as well as native born among those assembled at Shechem may hint that some Shechemites voluntarily joined Israel (cf. the similar case of a "mixed multitude" exiting Egypt with the Israelites in Ex. 12:38).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:32 Joshua wrote on the stones a copy of the law of Moses, thereby creating a fourth stone monument in the land (see note on 4:20). This monument was to be a reminder of Israel's duty to live in obedience to the divine "Torah," or "instruction" (cf. 1:7–8).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 8:34 Included in the blessing and the curse sections of Deuteronomy 28 are statements of the Lord's intent to set the people of Israel "high above all the nations of the earth" (or "land," Hb. 'erets) and to "cause your enemies who rise against you to be defeated before you" (Deut. 28:1, 7). If the Canaanite kings in Joshua's day "heard" (Josh. 9:1) that these and similar words were read during the covenant renewal ceremony at Shechem, this would certainly have contributed to their alarm (see also note on 8:30–35).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 9:1–27 Israel's Canaanite Covenant: The Gibeonite Ruse. As did the sparing of the Canaanite prostitute Rahab with her family and their incorporation into Israel (2:1–21; 6:22–25), the present episode forces reflection on the divinely mandated "complete destruction" of the Canaanite "nations"—especially since the mandate explicitly states, "You shall make no covenant with them and show no mercy to them" (Deut. 7:1–2). The rationale given in the Deuteronomy passage is that to spare and intermarry with Canaanites will "turn away your sons from following me, to serve other gods" (Deut. 7:4). Thus, the issue is one of religious loyalty to the true God rather than to "other gods." That both Rahab and the Gibeonites express belief in the power and supremacy of the Lord eases the tension created by their inclusion.

The Covenant Is Renewed at Mount Ebal

c. 1406/1220 B.C.

Joshua fulfilled Moses' command to renew the covenant at Shechem by placing copies of the covenant on Mount Ebal and directing the Israelite tribes to shout the blessings and curses of the covenant to each other across the valley separating Mount Ebal and Mount Gerizim (see also Deut. 11:29–30; 27:4–13).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 9:3 The identification of the city of Gibeon with el-Jib, a site 6 miles (9.7 km) northwest of Jerusalem, has been confirmed archaeologically by the discovery of numerous jar handles inscribed with the name Gibeon.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 9:4 Cunning (Hb. ʿormah) implies cleverness and calculation. The extra emphasis in saying they on their part underscores the comparison between Joshua and the Gibeonites—that is, just as Joshua had acted shrewdly to win at Ai, so the Gibeonites acted shrewdly for the sake of their survival.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 9:6 The Gibeonites claimed they came from a distant country as grounds for Israel's making a covenant with them. This deception suggests awareness of the distinction Moses drew between cities inside and outside the Land of Promise (Deut. 20:10–18).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 9:7 The Hivites are included in the virtually identical lists of Deut. 20:17 (those to be devoted "to complete destruction") and Josh. 9:1–2 (those determined to "fight against Joshua and Israel"). The Gibeonites may have represented a subset of a larger Hivite population in Canaan. The Hivites, often identified as Hurrians, appear to have been of Indo-European origin. The comment perhaps you live among us indicates that the men of Israel were initially suspicious, but they nevertheless proceed without inquiring of the Lord (v. 14).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 9:14 The notice that Israel did not ask counsel from the LORD represents a rare instance of explicit commentary by the narrator. While it helps explain how Israel was duped, it also constitutes a serious criticism of Israel's willingness to trust their own surface-level impressions while neglecting the insight that inquiring of the Lord could have offered. What would have happened if the Lord had revealed the Gibeonites' deception to Israel? This, of course, remains an open question—though Gibeon may have been spared on the basis of their acknowledgment of the Lord. Without directly criticizing the Gibeonites, the narrator simply notes that they "acted with cunning" (see note on v. 4) to escape God's judgment. A few verses later, however, the Gibeonites are cursed for their deception (vv. 22–23).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 9:18 the leaders … had sworn. The right course of action in the case of wrongful or unlawful oaths involving action yet in the future (e.g., Jephthah's unwitting vow to sacrifice his daughter; Judg. 11:30–40) is to repudiate the oath and to seek forgiveness for having made it (cf. Lev. 5:4–6); however, oaths that establish a covenant relationship are of a different order and must be kept (cf. Gen. 26:26–31; 1 Sam. 20:8; 2 Sam. 21:7; Ezek. 16:59–60). The text does not state why the congregation murmured against the leaders, but it may have been because the covenant with the Gibeonites prevented the congregation from destroying them, or, perhaps more selfishly, from despoiling them.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 9:23 There is an interesting ambiguity in Joshua's words to the Gibeonite deceivers. They are pronounced cursed, never to be anything but servants. Specifically, they are to be cutters of wood and drawers of water (which were menial tasks in ancient societies). Yet, while v. 21 states that these duties are to be carried out "for all the congregation," Joshua assigns the Gibeonites more particularly to the house of my God (the summary statement in v. 27 combines both the general and the particular statements). Supplying wood and water for the extensive sacrificial system in Israel would indeed be hard work, but to be closely associated with the house of God should be construed as a blessing (Ps. 84:10).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 9:27 in the place that he should choose. Cf. Deut. 12:5. Shiloh appears to have served as Israel's central sanctuary from the time of Joshua (see Josh. 18:1) until the fall of Shiloh on the eve of the monarchy (1 Sam. 4:3; cf. Ps. 78:60; Jer. 7:12). From the time of David and Solomon, Jerusalem served as the central sanctuary (2 Sam. 6:12–14; 1 Kings 9:3).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:1–43 Defense of Gibeon, Conquest of the South. The end of ch. 9 finds Israel in a covenant relationship with a Canaanite city and people! The defection of an important Canaanite city causes alarm among other city leaders, and a coalition is formed. Despite Israel's presumptuousness in not inquiring of the Lord before making a covenant (9:14), once made, the covenant is defended even by the Lord himself. In ch. 10 he decisively intervenes to defend Israel's Canaanite ally. The battle is recounted first briefly in vv. 1–10, while vv. 11–15 provide additional details; vv. 16–27 add yet further details, focusing on the fates of the five kings; and, finally, vv. 28–39 recount the so-called "southern campaign" in which key southern cities are defeated. Because the events of ch. 10 are precipitated by Canaanite aggression, Israel's defeat of the south can be viewed as a defensive operation. The chapter concludes with a summary of the conquest so far (vv. 40–43).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:1 The name Adoni-zedek resembles that of another king of Jerusalem, Melchizedek of Gen. 14:18. The names sound like “lord of righteousness” and “king of righteousness,” respectively.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:2–4 That the Gibeonites had submissively joined in covenant with Israel strikes fear in the heart of Adoni-zedek (and other Canaanites), for Gibeon was a great city, like one of the royal cities and all its men were warriors. A royal city would have been of sufficient importance to have its own “king” and would likely have controlled a larger district.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:5 Amorites. See notes on 2:10 and 5:1.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:8 I have given them into your hands. Whatever questions were raised by Israel’s failure to “ask counsel from the LORD” (9:14) before making a covenant with the Gibeonites, the Lord assures Joshua that he will be with him in defending the Gibeonites against the Jerusalem coalition (see map). The past tense “have given” is significant: God has decided on the outcome, but Israel must still do some hard fighting (cf. 1:3 and note; 2:9, 24; 6:2, 16; 8:1; 10:19).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:9 marched up all night from Gilgal. While the precise location of Gilgal is not known, according to 4:19 it was “on the east border of Jericho.” From the vicinity of Jericho in the Jordan Valley to Gibeon in the hill country would have been an uphill journey of 15 miles (24 km).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:10 The Lord threw the Jerusalem coalition into a panic before Israel, and the battle spread west to Beth-horon and then southwestward as far as Azekah and Makkedah, thus covering more than 30 miles (48 km). This military action not only secured a foothold in central Canaan, controlling the major east-west corridor from the Jordan through the central hills to the coast, but also opened the way for Joshua’s southern campaign (vv. 29–43).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:11 Large stones from heaven is a picturesque way of referring to the hailstones with which the divine Warrior decimated the fleeing Amorite troops.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:12–14 Sun, stand still. The traditional understanding of this passage is that it refers to a miracle of cosmic proportions, in which the earth ceased rotating for a time. Since the Bible unquestionably teaches that God brought the universe into existence (Genesis 1; Ps. 33:6) and that he owns and rules it all for his own purposes (cf. Ex. 19:5; Deut. 10:14), this certainly would be possible. As alternatives to the traditional understanding, a number of possibilities have been proposed: (1) a solar eclipse (problematic, however, as the sun and moon are described in opposition, not conjunction); (2) poetic imagery (a day that seemed prolonged by virtue of how much was accomplished); (3) a day in which the sun's heat was diminished (perhaps by cloud cover), allowing Israelite troops to continue fighting; and (4) a refraction of light (causing the light to linger until the battle was completed). An additional possibility proposed more recently suggests that (5) Joshua is exploiting the Canaanites' superstitious fear of a bad omen, related to the position of the sun and the moon "standing" on the opposing horizons (the sun "at Gibeon, and the moon in the valley of Aijalon," Josh. 10:12). None of these proposals are without difficulties, however, and each fails to do justice to the claim that there has been no day like it before or since (v. 14). Given the miracle-working God of the Bible, the traditional understanding is certainly possible (perhaps cf. 2 Kings 20:9–11, paralleled in Isa. 38:8, where the sun's shadow moves backwards 10 steps). Although there is not enough information in the narrative to determine the precise nature of this exceptional day, the author's emphasis in any case is on the extraordinary answer that God gave to Joshua's prayer, and on the fact that the LORD heeded the voice of a man (Josh. 10:14). Apart from the present context, the Book of Jashar is mentioned only in 2 Sam. 1:18. No longer extant, the book appears to have contained poetic accounts or songs of the deeds of heroes (Hb. "Jashar" may be related to the Hb. words "sing" or "upright").

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:15 The notice that Joshua returned … to the camp at Gilgal anticipates the conclusion of the entire southern campaign (cf. v. 43 and the apparent return to the "camp at Makkedah" in the interim, v. 21). Such summary statements, followed by more detailed descriptions, are quite common in Hebrew narratives. On the logical arrangement of ch. 10, see note on vv. 1–43.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:21 Not a man moved his tongue. After Israel's decisive defeat of the coalition, no Canaanites dared speak a word against Israel.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:24 In the ancient Near East, victors would often put their feet on the necks of defeated foes, symbolizing supremacy. This action underlies the notion of making one's enemies a footstool under one's feet (Ps. 110:1).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:25 Joshua applies to the leaders of Israel the assurance God gave him in 1:1–9.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:26 hanged them on five trees. A sign of curse (Deut. 21:22–23; cf. the treatment of the king of Ai in Josh. 8:28–29).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:27 The large stones set against the mouth of the cave containing the bodies of the slain Amorite kings serve as a fifth monument in the land (see note on 4:20 and chart). This monument recalls God's gracious action in defending Israel's covenant with a Canaanite city (even though they acted rashly in making it). to this very day. See note on 4:9.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:28–39 Joshua next takes the important towns in the southern part of the land, establishing Israel's hold on it. The accounts for the various towns are similar, reflecting the uniform pattern by which God gave these enemies over to Israel. The variations probably reflect the particularities of each battle. Observe that v. 33 makes no mention of taking Gezer (cf. 16:10; Judg. 1:29); it finally became an Israelite possession in 1 Kings 9:15–17, when Pharaoh gave it to Solomon.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:40–42 This interim summary of the conquest credits Joshua, in the typically hyperbolic language of ancient Near Eastern conquest accounts, with leaving none remaining, totally destroying all that breathed. (Similar language in v. 20 juxtaposes the statement that Israel's enemies were "wiped out" with the admission that a "remnant … remained of them.") While Joshua is credited with acting obediently by taking no prisoners, the ultimate cause of Israel's success is that the LORD God of Israel fought for Israel (v. 42).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 10:43 Joshua's return to the camp at Gilgal (anticipated already in v. 15) marks the successful conclusion of the central and southern campaigns.

The Conquest of Canaan: The Southern Campaign

c. 1400 B.C.

Upon hearing that the Gibeonites signed a peace treaty with the Israelites, five Amorite cities attacked Gibeon. Joshua's forces came up from Gilgal to defend the Gibeonites, and they chased the Amorites as far as Azekah and Makkedah. Joshua's forces continued their attack until they had captured Libnah, Lachish, Makkedah, Eglon, Debir, Hebron, and most likely Jarmuth.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 11:1–12:24 Conquest of the North and a List of Defeated Kings. Just as the southern campaign was a necessary sequel to Israel's defense of the Gibeonites, the northern campaign takes shape as a defensive measure against the northern kings gathered around Jabin of Hazor (see map). The account gives a terse description of what must have been fierce battles, more like 10:29–43, in contrast to chs. 6 and 8 and 10:1–28. This is probably because 11:6–9 makes the main point. The idea of compliance with God's instructions given through Moses is a recurring theme (cf. 11:9, 12, 15, 20, 23), with 11:19–20 giving the narrator's theological assessment. Chapter 12 lists the kings defeated under the leadership of Moses (12:1–6) and Joshua (12:7–24), bringing the basic conquest narrative to a close.

The Conquest of Canaan: The Northern Campaign

c. 1400 B.C.

After Joshua's forces defeated several Amorite kings in the south, the king of Hazor assembled the northern Canaanite kings to battle the Israelites. Joshua and his men defeated the Canaanites at the waters of Merom and pursued them to Great Sidon and the Valley of Mizpeh. Then Joshua turned back and captured the city of Hazor.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 11:1 Jabin, king of Hazor, is not to be confused with the "Jabin king of Canaan, who reigned in Hazor" during the time of Deborah and Barak (Judg. 4:2). The West Semitic name Jabin, which may mean something like "(he) builds," is attested for rulers of Hazor in the Mari texts (18th century B.C.), the Amarna texts (14th century), etc., often in compound names employing the name of a deity. Thus, "Jabin" may have been a dynastic name especially associated with Hazor. Hazor (Tell el-Qedah)—located about 10 miles (16 km) north of the Sea of Galilee and covering an area of over 200 acres—was probably the largest city in Syria-Palestine in its day. The cities Shimron and Achshaph are also attested in the Amarna texts and in the itinerary of the Egyptian pharaoh Thutmose III (15th century B.C.).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 11:4 The great horde mustered by the northern city-kings is described colorfully as in number like the sand that is on the seashore. Their chariots were of light construction, with four-spoked wheels, and were drawn by two horses (contrast the "chariots of iron" of 17:16–18).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 11:5 Merom, if correctly identified with may be another name for Madon (v. 1), commonly identified with Tell Qarnei Hittin, 5 miles (8 km) west of the Sea of Galilee. It is mentioned by both Thutmose III (see note on v. 1) and the Assyrian king Tiglath-pileser III (8th century B.C.).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 11:6 In keeping with the biblical prohibition against amassing and placing confidence in military hardware (cf. Deut. 17:16), Joshua is to hamstring their horses and burn their chariots. The former would have involved cutting the horses' equivalent of the Achilles tendon, which would at the very least make the animal unfit for any military use (see also 2 Sam. 8:4).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 11:10–15 That Hazor was head of all those kingdoms (v. 10) is not surprising, given its size (see note on v. 1) and prominent location beside a major north-south trade route. Having decimated the northern-coalition forces at Merom (vv. 7–9), Joshua turned back to Hazor, struck its king with the sword (v. 10) along with all who were in it, and finally burned Hazor with fire (v. 11). Joshua struck the other coalition cities as well, devoting them to destruction (v. 12; see Introduction: The Destruction of the Canaanites, but none of these cities was burned except Hazor alone (v. 13). Archaeologists looking for physical signs of Israel's conquest must keep in mind that only three sites (Jericho in 6:24, Ai in 8:28, and Hazor) are explicitly said to have been burned. The Israelites were, after all, to live in towns and houses they had not built and to enjoy vineyards and olive groves they had not cultivated (Deut. 6:10–11). The archaeology of Hazor attests several violent destructions by fire, including in c. 1400, 1300, and 1230 B.C.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 11:16–20 Not unlike the brief summary of the southern campaign in 10:40–42, the summary following the successful completion of the northern campaign is cast in absolute phrases, describing how Joshua took all that land, from the far south to the far north. The regions that were taken are described in 11:16, and v. 17 demarcates the southern and northern boundaries of the entire conquered area. Though some mistakenly assume the conquest under Joshua to have been a blitzkrieg, in fact it took a long time (v. 18), perhaps about seven years. This number is calculated from information provided for Caleb, Joshua's fellow spy in Numbers 13–14. Caleb was 40 years old when Moses sent him as a spy (Josh. 14:7). From that time to the entry into the land of Canaan was another 38 years (Deut. 2:14), making Caleb 78 years old at the beginning of the conquest. Caleb receives his allotted territory at age 85 (Josh. 14:10), seven years after the start of the conquest. The political reality that not a city … made peace except Gibeon (11:19) is conjoined without embarrassment with the theological explanation that it was the LORD's doing to harden their hearts (v. 20; on the interplay of human responsibility and divine sovereignty, see the long saga of the hardening of Pharaoh's heart recounted in Exodus 4–14, beginning at 4:21).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 11:21–22 That Joshua cut off the Anakim is highly significant. This race of giants, beside whom the spies under Moses felt like "grasshoppers" (Num. 13:33), terrified 10 of the 12 spies and prompted Israel to shrink back in fear. It is fitting to crown the account of the subjugation phase of the conquest by describing how Joshua has now largely eradicated this frightening threat (see further Josh. 14:6–15).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 11:23 This verse begins the transition from the subjugation phase of the conquest (Joshua took the whole land) to the allocation/occupation phase (Joshua gave it for an inheritance to Israel according to their tribal allotments). The latter notice anticipates the events of chs. 13–19. And the land had rest from war. More fighting remains to be done when the Israelites attempt to occupy the conquered territories, but the Lord has proven true to the promises of 1:3–5, and the land lies subdued before them (cf. 18:1).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 12:1–24 Now that the land has been conquered, and before it is apportioned, the full extent of the conquest is summarized. Verses 1–6 describe the land beyond the Jordan (from the vantage point of Israel, now west of the Jordan). This land consisted of the territories of the Transjordanian kings whom Israel had conquered under Moses' leadership (Num. 21:21–35), that Moses had allocated to the tribes of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh (Num. 32:33). Joshua 12:7–24 lists the kings whom Joshua and the people of Israel defeated on the west side of the Jordan (v. 7), the total coming to 31 (v. 24; see note on v. 9).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 12:1 took possession of their land. If the emphasis in the first half of the book of Joshua is on the Lord's faithfulness in giving Israel the land, it now falls to Israel to prove faithful in taking possession, that is, occupying the territories that will be allocated to them. The words rendered "possess" or "possession" appear with increased frequency in the second half of Joshua (in this chapter, see vv. 6–7).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 12:9 The list of defeated kings (see map) begins with the king of Jericho and generally follows the sequence of the preceding narrative: central, southern, and northern campaigns. That some kings not mentioned in the preceding narrative appear in the list reminds the reader that historical reportage can be selective; the Joshua narratives are meant to be more than a mere catalog of historical information.

Kings Defeated by the Israelites

c. 1390 B.C.

The Israelites captured many key cities throughout Canaan, although apparently some of them were later taken back by the Canaanites (e.g., Jerusalem). Under the leadership of Moses, the Israelites captured towns east of the Jordan River, including Ashtaroth and Heshbon. Joshua led the Israelites to capture many towns west of the Jordan River (the locations of Geder and Lasharon are unknown).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 12:24 This list of thirty-one kings suggests Israel's overall success in gaining the upper hand in Canaan and in destroying the leaders of resistance, but it does not necessarily imply the destruction of the cities formerly ruled by these kings (see note on 11:10–15).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 13:1–21:45 Dividing the Land. As with the first two sections, this third major section in Joshua begins with a divine initiative. The Lord instructs Joshua regarding the division and allocation of the land. Packed with geographical details often lost on modern readers, the boundary descriptions and town lists that characterize this section were doubtless of great interest to ancient Israelites inheriting their allotments in the land. Over time, the tribal allocations presented here undoubtedly became the basis for administrative documents, and these would have been subject to updating as new towns or villages were founded. Despite its historical-geographical content, this lengthy section shows careful literary shaping (see Introduction: Outline, as well as the note on 14:1–19:51).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 13:1–33 It's Yours, Now Take It! Before beginning to describe the tribal allotments west of the Jordan (ch. 14), the text stresses that, though Israel has gained the upper hand, there remains much land to possess, particularly along the coast and in the far north (13:1–7). A rehearsal of what was allocated east of the Jordan under Moses (vv. 8–33) sets the stage for what follows, as does the ominous notice that the eastern tribes have failed to drive out some of their enemies, leaving them to dwell in the midst of Israel "to this day" (v. 13).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 13:1 The second half of the book of Joshua begins much like the first, with both the narrator and the Lord stating the status of Israel's key leader. In 1:1 they announced that Moses was dead, and now in 13:1 they describe Joshua as old and advanced in years (cf. 23:1; Joshua's death is mentioned in 24:29). By this point in the narrative, the subjugation phase of the conquest is largely completed (see summaries in 10:40–43 and 11:16–23), but the territories west of the Jordan must yet be allocated and occupied (see map). In other words, there remains yet very much land to possess.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 13:6 I myself will drive them out. … Only allot the land to Israel. The boundary between the subjugation phase of the conquest and the allocation phase cannot be sharply drawn. Verses 1–7 speak of enemies whose land Israel has yet to "possess" (v. 1). The Lord pledges to continue to "drive them out" (lit., "dispossess," related to the word "possess" in v. 1) and instructs Joshua to go ahead and "allot" these lands.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 13:8 It is Moses who first mentions the inheritance given to these tribes (Num. 32:33–42; Deut. 3:8–17).

The Allotment of the Land

c. 1400 B.C.

During the conquest of Canaan, Joshua allotted the land to the tribes of Israel. These boundaries, however, do not necessarily reflect the land each tribe actually inhabited by the end of the conquest. Several tribes, such as Dan, were unable to drive out the Canaanites that lived in much of their allotted territory (19:47), while other tribes controlled portions of land that were not originally allotted to them (e.g., 17:11).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 13:11 Geshurites and Maacathites. Geshur and Maacah were two small kingdoms north and east of the Sea of Galilee. This Geshur is not to be confused with the Geshur mentioned in v. 2, which lay far to the south on the Philistine coast.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 13:13 the people of Israel did not drive out … dwell in the midst of Israel to this day. See note on 15:63.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 13:14 The notice that the tribe of Levi receives no inheritance (repeated in v. 33, explained in 14:3–4, and recalled in 18:7 in the midst of the allotment listings) anticipates the designation of Levitical cities in Joshua 21; cf. Deut. 10:9 and the note on Num. 18:21–24.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 13:22 Balaam … the son of Beor. His story is told in Numbers 22–24 and his death is mentioned in Num. 31:8.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 14:1–19:51 Western Territories. This section describes the tribal allocations west of the Jordan, and it exhibits literary symmetry. It begins and ends almost identically, making reference to Eleazar the priest, Joshua, and the heads of the fathers' houses of the Israelite tribes, who distributed by lot the territories west of the Jordan (14:1–5; 19:51). Inside this outer frame are references to the inheritance of the two faithful former spies, Caleb (14:6–15) and Joshua (19:49–51). These in turn frame the major central section describing the actual allocations to the nine and a half tribes who received no inheritance east of the Jordan (15:1–19, 40–48). A crucial assembly of the whole congregation of the people of Israel at Shiloh before the "tent of meeting" (18:1–10) bisects and anchors this section, with the allotments for the major tribes of Judah and Joseph (that is, Ephraim and the half-tribe of Manasseh) preceding (15:1–17:18) and the allotments for the other seven tribes following (18:11–19:48). Thus, chs. 14–19 provide detailed historical information in a carefully structured literary form, and in so doing underscore a fundamental theological truth: those like Caleb or Joshua who wholly follow the Lord (14:8–9, 14) will be able to enjoy their inheritance.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 14:1 Eleazar the priest was Aaron's son and successor (Num. 20:25; Deut. 10:6) and had been assigned his present task by Moses (Num. 34:17). Ten heads of the nine and a half tribes were explicitly named already in Num. 34:18–29.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 14:2 That the inheritance was by lot guarantees divine oversight and protects Israel's leaders from any suspicion of favoritism. The Lord's progressively more detailed instructions to Moses regarding the lot-casting procedure are recorded in Num. 26:52–56; 33:50–54; 34:1–15.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 14:3 Levites. See note on 13:14.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 14:6–15 This section recounts Caleb's inheritance of Hebron, which Moses swore to give him many years before (v. 9; Deut. 1:36; cf. Num. 14:24). It is one of four narrative passages, sometimes referred to as "land-grant narratives," that are distinctive in Joshua 14–19 in that they focus on individuals. The other three are the allocation of Debir to Caleb's daughter Achsah and her husband Othniel (15:13–19; Othniel reappears in Judg. 3:7–11); the bestowal of an inheritance on the daughters of Zelophehad (Josh. 17:3–6); and the granting of Timnath-serah to Joshua (19:49–50). Despite his advanced age of eighty-five years (14:10), Caleb maintains that his strength is undiminished and that he will be able to drive out the formidable Anakim, provided that the LORD will be with him (v. 12). Joshua was credited with cutting off the Anakim from Hebron already in 11:21. Either the Anakim have reasserted themselves in Hebron (11:22 mentions some survivors) or, more likely, as commander-in-chief Joshua supports and receives general credit for the eventual expulsion of the Anakim by Caleb (14:12–14; 15:14). That both the summary of Joshua's defeat of the Anakim in 11:21–23 and the present account of Caleb's taking of Hebron conclude with the statement, the land had rest from war (14:15; cf. 11:23 and nowhere else in Joshua), suggests that both sections relate to the same events.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 14:8 wholly followed the LORD. See note on 14:1–19:51. Emphasized through repetition in 14:9, 14, this commendation of Caleb sets a standard by which Israel is to be measured in the narratives that follow.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 15:1–63 As the western allocations begin, pride of place goes to the important tribe of Judah. In keeping with the general pattern of the subsequent allotments, the tribal boundaries are first described (vv. 1–12), followed by listings of cities according to region (vv. 20–62).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 15:8 Jebusite (that is, Jerusalem). Not fully conquered until the time of King David (2 Sam. 5:6–10; for other attempts, see Judg. 1:8, 21).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 15:13–19 he gave to Caleb … Caleb drove out. See note on 14:6–15. Othniel (15:17) reappears as a judge-deliverer in Judg. 3:7–11.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 15:63 Against the backdrop of so much success, the notice that the people of Judah could not drive out the Jebusites from Jerusalem and that they dwell with the people of Judah at Jerusalem to this day is disconcerting in at least two respects. First, it recalls Moses' repeated warnings against allowing Canaanites to survive and live among the Israelites (see notes on 6:17; 6:18). Second, it raises a theological question: how is it that the people of Judah "could not" drive out their foes? Surely the god of the Jebusites is not stronger than the God of Judah! This is not the first instance of failure to occupy (13:13), and it will not be the last. In 17:12 the Manassites are unable to occupy certain towns because "the Canaanites persisted in dwelling in that land." In 17:16 the Ephraimites cite Canaanite possession of "chariots of iron" as preventing them from taking the plains. These statements seem to be in tension with the dominant theological conviction of the book of Joshua that "the hand of the LORD is mighty" (4:24) and with the divine promise to the leader Joshua that "No man shall be able to stand before you all the days of your life. … You shall cause this people to inherit the land" (1:5–6). Joshua himself seems to agree with this assessment, insisting in 17:18 that "you shall drive out the Canaanites, though they have chariots of iron, and though they are strong." Perhaps statements of what Israel "could not" do are to be read as early evidence of spiritual slippage—of failure to follow the Lord "wholly" (see 14:8)—which will become increasingly evident in the book of Judges.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 16:1 Chapters 16–17 describe the allotment of the people of Joseph, i.e., of Ephraim (16:5–10) and of Manasseh (17:1–13).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 16:10 did not drive out. See note on 15:63.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 17:3–6 The daughters of Zelophehad receive their inheritance, as the LORD commanded Moses (see Num. 27:1–11 and the qualification introduced in Num. 36:1–13). See note on Josh. 14:6–15.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 17:12 could not take possession. See note on 15:63.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 17:14–15 With the influx of the Israelites into Canaan, many settlements appear in areas never before settled: the highlands and the deserts. To support this human settlement in those areas not so easily cultivable, the Israelites borrowed or developed fresh agricultural techniques. One principal development of settlers in the mountains was agricultural terracing. In addition, plastered cisterns and rock-lined silos are abundant at these sites; they are rare in earlier periods.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 17:16–18 In contrast to the lighter chariots of 11:4, the chariots of iron of the plains-dwelling Canaanites were of heavier construction, perhaps armored with iron fittings and sporting iron-shod, six-spoked wheels (see also Judg. 1:19). Daunting as such military machinery must have been, Joshua insisted that it was no impediment to the eye of faith: you shall drive out the Canaanites, though they have chariots of iron, and though they are strong (see note on Josh. 15:63).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 18:1–10 This section marks the structural and thematic midpoint in the account of the division of the land. Mention of the whole congregation of Israel calls to mind the unity of Israel as a people, even as each tribe receives its individual inheritance. That the assembly gathers before the tent of meeting, or tabernacle (see Ex. 27:21; 40:2), recalls Israel's history under Moses, of whom Joshua is now the successor. Shiloh (Khirbet Seilun), making its first biblical appearance here, serves as the central sanctuary that Israel was to establish once safely settled in the land (Deut. 12:10–11; cf. Ps. 78:60; Jer. 7:12); Shiloh was likely destroyed following the battle of Ebenezer (1 Samuel 4; Jer. 7:14; 26:6, 9) and was replaced as central sanctuary by Jerusalem in the time of King David, a fact of which the present text makes no mention. Notice that the statement, the land lay subdued before them (Josh. 18:1), sums up the first half of the book, while Joshua's question in v. 3, "How long will you put off going in to take possession of the land?" pervades the second half of the book. Mention of the God of your fathers evokes God's promise of land to the patriarchs (see note on 1:2), and reference to the land's having now been given (18:3) underscores the fulfillment of the repeated promise of ch. 1 that the Lord would "give" the land. The Lord has fulfilled all his "good promises" (21:45); how will Israel respond?

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 18:7 The Levites have no portion among you. See note on 13:14. Adding that the priesthood of the LORD is their heritage, this verse prepares for the designation in ch. 21 of Levitical cities throughout the territories.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 18:9 wrote in a book. Or on a scroll, or some other writing material (the Hb. term seper does not specify).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 18:11 Though one of the smaller tribes, Benjamin was significant not only as the tribe of Israel's first king, Saul (1 Sam. 9:21), but also because it served as a buffer between the dominant tribes to the south and north; its allotted territory fell between the people of Judah and the people of Joseph (Ephraim and half of Manasseh).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 19:1–9 That the allotment for Simeon fell in the midst of the inheritance of the people of Judah (v. 1) is explained by the fact that the portion of the people of Judah was too large for them (v. 9). (For a theological rationale, cf. Gen. 49:7.) Logically, no boundary description is given for Simeon, only a list of cities. Those cities that can be located stretched west to east along the southern reaches of Judahite territory, suggesting that Simeon may have served a protective function against enemies to the south.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 19:15 Bethlehem is a northerly village not to be confused with the more famous Bethlehem in Judah (Judg. 17:7).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 19:47 On how Dan’s territory was lost to them, see Judg. 1:34. The story of how Dan went up and fought against Leshem is told in Judges 18, where the citizens of Laish (Leshem) are described as a people “quiet and unsuspecting” (Judg. 18:7).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 19:49–50 Like Caleb, his fellow survivor from the wilderness years, Joshua receives an inheritance among them (for Caleb, see 14:6–15). On the framing function of these two notices, see note on 14:1–19:51. By command of the LORD, Joshua is given Timnath-serah (Khirbet Tibnah; called Timnath-heres in the notice of Joshua’s death in Judg. 2:6–10). The site is in southwest Ephraim, away from the more formidable cities of the period. Joshua’s reception of an inheritance only after all others have received theirs speaks well of him as a leader. That his city is away from the major power centers may contain a hint that his most active leadership years are drawing to a close.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 19:51 Eleazar the priest and Joshua. See note on 14:1–19:51. Everything in this concluding verse indicates that the tribal allocations have been conducted appropriately at the Lord’s direction—by lot.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 20:1–21:45 A Land of Justice and Worship. The designation of six cities of refuge (ch. 20) and 48 Levitical cities (21:1–42) demonstrates the Lord’s concern that the land not only be duly allocated as an inheritance for the tribes (chs. 13–19) but that it be a land where justice prevails and true worship is cultivated. The section ends with yet another proclamation that the Lord has fulfilled all the good promises he made to the house of Israel (21:43–45).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 20:1–2 The fullest description of how the cities of refuge are to function appears in Num. 35:6–34, where the Lord expands on his initial instructions to Moses in Ex. 21:12–14. They are to be six in number, chosen among the Levitical cities, with three on each side of the Jordan (Num. 35:13–14). They are to guarantee judicial due process for anyone in Israel, including “the stranger” and “the sojourner” (Num. 35:15). In Deut. 4:41–43 Moses designates by name the three cities of refuge in the newly conquered territory east of the Jordan, one each in the territories of Reuben, Gad, and eastern Manasseh. Later, in Deut. 19:1–10, he charges Israel regarding the cities to be designated west of the Jordan, though he does not name them, as the land is yet to be conquered. They are to be appropriately spaced, so that the fugitive can reach the nearest one before being overtaken by the avenger (Deut. 19:3; and see note on Josh. 20:3). Should God enlarge Israel’s territory, an additional three cities can be designated (Deut. 19:8–9). That the additional three are not mentioned in Joshua may hint at the fact that Israel was not entirely successful in taking over all the land. The three cities west of the Jordan are finally named in Josh. 20:7. This overall progression is in keeping with the geographical movements of Israel and the extent of the conquest at each stage.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 20:3 A manslayer was one who unintentionally or without premeditation took another’s life. The “kinsman-redeemer” (Hb. go’el) was typically the nearest male relative, responsible to protect the family’s lives, liberty, property, and so forth (Lev. 25:25–26). Where a life was taken, the kinsman-redeemer became the avenger of blood, held responsible in cases of murder to “put the murderer to death” (Num. 35:19, 21). In distinction from some of its ancient Near Eastern neighbors, Israel was to “accept no ransom for the life of the murderer” (Num. 35:31), for the Lord desired justice in respect to both guilt and innocence (Prov. 17:15).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 20:6 until he has stood before the congregation … until the death of him who is high priest at the time. This verse compresses the fuller instructions provided in Numbers 35.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 21:1–41 From the beginning of the division of the land, this section in which the Levites receive their inheritance has been anticipated (see note on 13:14). Mention of Eleazar, Joshua, and the heads of the fathers’ houses (21:1), as well as the location at Shiloh (v. 2), indicate that this final allocation took place at the same time and place as the general distribution of chs. 18–19. Back in Num. 35:1–8, the LORD commanded through Moses that 48 cities (including the six cities of refuge) be assigned to the Levites. The effect of taking cities and their pasturelands from each of the tribes would be to scatter the Levites throughout the whole of Israel (cf. Gen. 49:7). This distribution would facilitate the Levites' fulfilling their duties. Many of the cities were along borders—with the Philistines in the southwest; the Canaanites in the plains and coastlands to the north; eastern boundary regions in Transjordan; and so forth. The Levites were grouped according to their descent from one of Levi's three sons (see Gen. 46:11). The Kohathites (Josh. 21:4), of whom Aaron and his line descended (Ex. 6:16–20), received cities in the center and the south of the land, while the Gershonites (Josh. 21:6) and Merarites (v. 7) received cities in the north and east.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 21:18 The priestly city of Anathoth (see 1 Kings 2:26) was the eventual home of the prophet Jeremiah (Jer. 1:1).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 21:43–45 Just as the account of the taking of the land drew to a close with generalizing summaries (10:40–42; 11:16–23), so the account of the dividing of the land ends with a summary section. It picks up on key motifs such as "land," "rest," and "victory" as the Lord's "gifts" (see esp. ch. 1; the word "rest" occurs also in 11:23 and 14:15, but the Hb. terminology is different). As seen later in Joshua, this section should be understood as a broad summary statement emphasizing the Lord's decisive action on behalf of Israel, rather than as a comprehensive assertion that all of Israel's enemies had been eradicated from the land. Although Israel did, in fact, take possession of the land and settled there (21:43), much work still remained to be done (see 23:5). But the key point is that the Lord has been utterly true to his good promises: none has failed, and all came to pass (21:45; the word "all" occurs six times in the Hb. text of vv. 43–45; see also 23:14).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 22:1–24:33 Serving the Lord in the Land. Each of the preceding three major divisions of the book of Joshua receives its impetus from a divine initiative. The Lord instructs; Israel under Joshua's leadership responds; and the land is entered, taken, and divided. This final section lacks such a beginning. The Lord has already fulfilled all his "good promises" (21:45). Now it is Israel's turn to respond. In his old age, Joshua charges the people to be united and exclusive in "serving" the Lord alone.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 22:1–34 One Nation, Under God. In this episode, the eastern tribes of Reuben, Gad, and eastern Manasseh are released to return to their homes, having fulfilled their duties to their fellow Israelites west of the Jordan (cf. Numbers 32). Their construction of a symbolic altar on the bank of the Jordan is at first misunderstood, and a disaster is narrowly averted. The reader does not learn the eastern tribes' motive until Josh. 22:21–29, which creates suspense. It is to the credit of the western tribes that they make a generous offer (v. 19) and then listen to the explanation and accept it (cf. Deut. 13:14). Both sides are determined to be faithful to their calling as Israel, and the account shows things working right. The key word "serve" occurs three times. Before their departure, Joshua charges the eastern tribes to serve the Lord "with all your heart and with all your soul" (Josh. 22:5). In v. 27, they insist that they "do perform the service of the LORD" (lit., "serve the service").

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 22:4 now the LORD your God has given rest to your brothers. See 1:12–15. The two and one-half eastern tribes are now free to go to their territories beyond the Jordan.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 22:8 Divide the spoil of your enemies with your brothers. In the Bible, as generally in the ancient Near East, both victory in battle and the spoils of victory are regarded as gifts of the deity, in this case the Lord. These gifts were to be shared with allies, or covenant partners, irrespective of their actual role in the conflict (cf. Num. 31:25–31; 1 Sam. 30:24).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 22:10–11 altar of imposing size. Very similar Hebrew terminology is used in Ex. 3:3 to describe the burning bush as a "great sight." Apparently, the altar was built on the western shore of the Jordan, on the side that belongs to the people of Israel, but was conspicuous enough to be seen from either side.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 22:13–20 Having misunderstood the purpose of the "imposing altar," the tribes that settled west of the Jordan send a delegation to confront the eastern tribes. That Phinehas the son of Eleazar heads the delegation can only strike fear in the hearts of those familiar with his history of zeal for the purity of Israel's worship (see Num. 25:1–9). For those requiring a reminder, the sin at Peor is explicitly mentioned in Josh. 22:17 (cf. Num. 25:3, 18), as is the case of Achan in Josh. 22:20, who did not perish alone for his iniquity (see ch. 7). Given its corporate responsibility, all Israel can suffer for the sins of a few or even just one. The delegation rightly fears that the Lord may become angry with the whole congregation of Israel (22:18).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 22:21–31 Fearing the worst, the delegation of western tribes is relieved to hear that the altar built by the eastern tribes is but a copy of the altar of the Lord (v. 28). It is not intended to rival the altar at Shiloh but only to serve as a witness between us and you (v. 28), a visible monument refuting any suggestion (now or in the future) that the eastern tribes have no portion in the Lord (v. 25).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 22:34 called the altar Witness. This sixth monument in the land (see note on 4:20) bears witness to the unity of the Transjordanian tribes with Israel west of the Jordan.

Seven Stone Memorials in the Land

View this chart online at http://kindle.esvsb.org/c64

4:20	Gilgal	a reminder of God's faithfulness in bringing Israel safely across the Jordan into the Promised Land
7:26	over Achan	a reminder of Israel's potential for unfaithfulness and of the dire consequences that result
8:28–29	over the king of Ai	a monument to Israel's second chance and restoration
8:30–32	Joshua engraves a copy of the law	a reminder of Israel's duty to live in obedience to the divine "Torah," or "instruction"
10:27	over Amorite kings at Gibeon	a reminder of God's gracious action in defending Israel's covenant with a Canaanite city
22:34	peace in the land of Gilead	a witness to the unity of the Transjordanian tribes with Israel west of the Jordan
24:26–27	covenant renewal at Shechem	a reminder of Israel's duty to serve the Lord, who fulfilled every promise in bringing them into the land

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 23:1–16 Joshua's Charge to Israel's Leaders. In many respects this episode mirrors the opening episode in the book of Joshua. The book began with the passing of the mantle of leadership to Joshua, after the death of Moses. Joshua, now "old and well advanced in years" (v. 1; cf. 13:1), will soon die (24:29), and so the next generation of leaders is charged in terms reminiscent of Joshua's own charge in ch. 1.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 23:1 A long time afterward. Specificity is not possible, but probably more than a quarter century has elapsed since Israel first crossed the Jordan into the land—assuming that Joshua was similar in age to Caleb at the beginning of the conquest (who was nearing 80; see note on 11:16–20), and in view of Joshua's age of 110 at death (24:29). had given rest. The reference in Heb. 4:8 does not deny this, but rather clarifies the truth that life in the earthly Promised Land does not automatically bring one to participate in God's own "rest."

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 23:4–5 I have allotted … those nations that remain. Joshua has obeyed the mandate he received in 13:1–7 (see 23:6). With respect to these remaining peoples, Joshua reminds Israel's leaders of the Lord's promise to drive them out ("dispossess"; cf. 13:6) and their responsibility to possess their land (cf. 13:1).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 23:6 Joshua charges the leaders who are to succeed him to be very strong, just as he had been charged three times in 1:5–9. Here he highlights only the central, key point: their greatest duty and challenge is to live and lead according to all that is written in the Book of the Law of Moses (cf. 1:7–8).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 23:7–8 The key question facing the generation following Joshua is whom they will serve: the gods of the nations remaining or the true God of Israel (cf. v. 16). Allegiance to the gods of other nations continued to be the primary threat Israel faced while living among (mix with) the nations (cf. Ps. 106:34–36).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 23:15–16 The same God who is true to his word in keeping his promises of blessing will be true to fulfill his threats (all the evil things, v. 15) if Israel breaks covenant with him and decides to serve other gods. Key Mosaic expositions of blessings and curses are found in Lev. 26:14–46 and Deut. 28:15–68.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:1–33 Covenant Renewal at Shechem. In the ancient Near East, treaties or covenants between a suzerain and his vassal(s) (i.e., a superior and his subjects) often displayed a standard format. For an outline showing how the ceremony at Shechem compared to such treaties, see chart.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:1 Shechem. See 8:30–33 and Judges 9. The archaeological record demonstrates that the city of Shechem was an important center of pagan worship in the Middle Bronze Age (2100–1550 B.C.). Extensive excavations at the mound known as Tell Balatah have revealed a large town surrounded by an elaborate fortification system. Several large and imposing "courtyard temples" have been discovered there. It is likely that the covenant renewal under Joshua took place in the excavated Fortress Temple at Shechem.

It was originally constructed in the seventeenth century B.C., and it is perhaps the worship center called El-berith in Judg. 9:46.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:2 Thus says the LORD. Joshua's utterance of these words further confirms his status as the true successor to Moses (Deut. 5:27; 18:15–19).

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:12 the hornet. Some interpreters understand this as a literal reference to divine intervention using insects. However, the text says "the hornet" (singular) rather than "hornets" (plural). Others take this as a reference to Egypt (the "hornet" being a symbol of Lower Egypt), but no mention of Egypt is found here or in the other related narratives. Therefore it seems best to take this as a figurative expression, with "hornet" as a metaphor for the sting of fear that the Lord inflicts on his enemies; see Ex. 23:28, where "hornet" (singular in Hb.) is paralleled in the preceding verse by "my terror" (cf. also Deut. 7:20). The focus in all three contexts where "hornet" appears is on the Lord's driving out Israel's enemies.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:14 Against the backdrop of the Lord's faithfulness in fulfilling all his good promises, Israel is called to fear the LORD—a technical expression connoting not simply fear but reverence and true devotion—and serve him in sincerity and in faithfulness. Israel's duty to "serve" (or "worship") the Lord is the dominant theme in the final major section of the book of Joshua (chs. 22–24). The word "serve" in Hebrew ('abad) occurs no fewer than 16 times in ch. 24 and an additional four times in chs. 22–23.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:15 choose this day whom you will serve. Joshua has urged the people to serve the Lord alone, and to put away the false gods (v. 14). Now he makes his admonition even sharper: if it is evil in their eyes to serve the LORD (i.e., if they prefer not to be loyal to the one true God, the Lord alone), then they must choose between two different categories of false gods: (1) their ancestral gods from Mesopotamia, or (2) the gods worshiped by the peoples they have dispossessed in Canaan. Joshua exercises leadership by example, committing himself and his household to serving the Lord. The people's response was to decisively reject false gods and to serve "the LORD our God" (vv. 16–17)—which Israel did "all the days of the elders who outlived Joshua" (v. 31), but which Israel failed to do in subsequent generations, as is tragically evidenced in the book of Judges.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:19–21 You are not able to serve the LORD. Joshua's point is surely not that the people are asked to do something impossible but, rather, that serving a holy and jealous God cannot be done casually or without divine assistance. It is disconcerting that the people simply reassert their claim—No, but we will serve the LORD (v. 21)—rather than ask for further instruction or prayer (cf. 1 Sam. 7:8). Joshua's warning in Josh. 24:19 that he will not forgive your transgressions or your sins is not to suggest that God is unforgiving (quite the contrary) but that he cannot condone apostasy, the point at issue in context.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:23 The mention of foreign gods makes the reader wonder how they could have been tolerated up to this point. Perhaps, as in vv. 14–15, Joshua is referring to the inner motives of their hearts.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:24–25 The people make their promise. What sincerity and obedience will the following years reveal?

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:26–27 wrote these words in the Book of the Law of God. The title "Book of the Law of God" occurs elsewhere only at Neh. 8:18, where it is explicitly identified with the "Book of the Law of Moses" (Neh. 8:1) and "Book of the Law" (Neh. 8:3). Those same titles are also found in Joshua (see "Book of the Law" [1:8] and note on 1:5–9, and "Book of the Law of Moses" [8:31] and note on 8:32). It is likely that "the Book of the Law of God" in Joshua refers, not to additions Joshua makes to the Mosaic legislation (although Joshua is a likely source for Deuteronomy 34, the account of Moses' death), but to the particular covenant enacted by Joshua with the people in Josh. 24:25, in which the people reaffirm their intention to be true to the Mosaic covenant. In that case the writing has not survived, except here in the book of Joshua. a large stone … a witness. This seventh monument in the land (see note on 4:20) serves as a reminder of Israel's duty to serve the Lord, who fulfilled every promise in bringing them into the land.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:29 Now at the end of his life, and for the first time, Joshua is called the servant of the LORD, an appellation Moses received at the end of his life (Deut. 34:5) and by which he is often referred to in the book of Joshua (see note on Josh. 1:1). Like Joseph before him (Gen. 50:26), Joshua is credited with a life span of 110 years, which was considered the ideal life span in Egypt throughout its 3,000-year history from the Old Kingdom to the Hellenistic period.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:31 The statement that Israel served the LORD all the days of Joshua and of the elders of his generation seems encouraging at first glance. But upon reflection, it is vaguely unsettling, as it allows that Israel's faithful service may be limited. What will happen in the next generation? Cf. Judg. 2:6–15.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:32 The burial of the bones of Joseph … at Shechem brings the book of Joshua (and indeed, the patriarchal history) to a fitting close. Joseph's final wish is granted (Gen. 50:25; Ex. 13:19), and all three aspects of God's promise to the patriarchs are, at least in part, fulfilled: Israel has become a great nation; it stands in blessed relationship to the Lord; and it has a land of its own.

JOSHUA—NOTE ON 24:33 Eleazar the son of Aaron died. Given the prominence of Eleazar (see note on 14:1) both in the Pentateuch and in the book of Joshua, his death notice serves as one more sign of the passing of an era.

Introduction to Judges

Author and Title

The name of the book of Judges comes from the title given to the 12 leaders ("judges," whose temporary leadership was both civil and military) of Israel during the period between Joshua and Samuel. The book is anonymous; nowhere in Scripture is any author indicated. The book consists of various blocks of material about different judges, which conceivably could have been written by multiple authors over a period of time. Late Jewish tradition ascribes authorship to Samuel, which is certainly possible. However, in the end, the book's author is not known.

Date of events. The events in Judges took place in the period between Joshua's death (either mid-14th or late-13th century B.C.) and the rise of Samuel and Saul (mid-11th century).

Date of composition. The earliest the book would have been written is after its last recorded event, in the mid-eleventh century B.C. If the phrase in 18:30, "the day of the captivity of the land," refers to the Babylonian exile, then the final form of the book does not precede the time of the exile. But most likely most of the book had been written by David's time (1010–970 B.C.), because the introductory framework in chapter 1 states that the Jebusites were living in Jerusalem "to this day" (1:21). Since David captured the city c. 1003 B.C., most Jebusites presumably did not inhabit the city after that. On the other hand, some evidence suggests they persisted in the city to some degree (e.g., 2 Sam. 24:16), so this is not a conclusive argument.

Theme

The theme of Judges is the downward spiral of Israel's national and spiritual life into chaos and apostasy, showing the need for a godly king to lead it (17:6; 21:25).

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

Purpose. The book of Judges was written to show the consequences of religious apostasy and to point the way to a king who, if righteous, would lead the people to God. In contrast to the serene way in which the book of Joshua ends—with all Israel obeying God's commands, for the most part—the book of Judges shows that, in fact, Israel began to disobey God even during the time of Joshua. This disobedience continued and grew more serious—and more debased—throughout the period of the judges. Time and again Israel turned its back on God and embraced the gods and the ways of the Canaanites, as the introductory summary in 2:16–23 indicates. Israel's history unfolded in this period in a cyclical or repetitive way: each cycle took Israel further downward in its debasement and apostasy. By the end of the book, Israel had violated its covenant with God in almost every way imaginable.

Occasion. The book of Judges arose out of the apostate conditions of the time. It was written as a justification for the monarchy, since the final verdict of the book—"In those days there was no king in Israel. Everyone did what was right in his own eyes" (21:25)—implies that things would have been different had there been a (godly) king leading the nation: they would have done right in God's eyes. The next book in the English Bible is Ruth, which ends with a genealogy that points to David, the godly king par excellence (Ruth 4:18–22). Following the book of Ruth, 1 and 2 Samuel relate the establishment of the legitimate Davidic monarchy in Israel, which God was pleased to bless (2 Samuel 7). God had planned for kings to rule in Israel from the beginning (Gen. 17:6, 16; 35:11; 49:10), and had even given instructions for their conduct (Deut. 17:14–20). These instructions were very countercultural: rather than a king "like the nations," where the prevailing model was the king as warrior, Israel's king was to focus on keeping the Mosaic law (Deut. 17:18–20). If such a king had arisen in the period of the judges, things would have been far different. As it was, Israel's apostasy pointed to the need for establishing the legitimate kingship under David.

Historical background. The period of the judges spanned a major transition in the ancient Near East, when the Late Bronze Age (c. 1550–1200 B.C.) gave way to the Early Iron Age shortly after 1200 B.C. The Late Bronze Age was a period of prosperity. In Palestine, the system of relatively small, independent city-states in the Middle Bronze Age (c. 2100–1550 B.C.) was replaced by large empires (Egyptian, Hittite, etc.) in the Late Bronze Age. However, Israelites and Canaanites were able to live there relatively undisturbed, the former in the hill country and the latter in the lowlands and coastal areas.

At the end of the Late Bronze Age, major upheavals took place throughout the Mediterranean basin. Widespread destruction is evident. Archaeological evidence shows a radical drop in population in major centers and an increase in more briefly inhabited sites in outlying areas, in the hill country, and in desert fringe areas. Imported pottery abruptly ceased. The large, visible signs of society collapsed. However, there was a continuity of culture at the grassroots level. Rough as it was, pottery did continue to be made.

The causes of the widespread destruction are not clear, but they coincide with the migrations of the “land and sea peoples” known from Egyptian texts. These peoples clashed with Egypt at the end of the thirteenth century B.C., and they were also involved in other disturbances in the eastern Mediterranean. Due to such conflicts, the Early Iron Age (c. 1200–1000 B.C.) was a “dark age” of sorts. It was not until c. 1000 B.C. that a true internationalism reasserted itself throughout the eastern Mediterranean, and houses and cities again began to rival those of the Late Bronze Age.

Canaanite religion and culture. The major problem for Israel during the period of the judges was its penchant for turning away from the Lord and toward the gods of the Canaanites. What was it about Canaanite religion and culture that proved to be such an irresistible attraction? The land of Canaan was awe-inspiring to the Israelites, as can be seen in the story of the spies who reported on its wealth and strength (Numbers 13). To a recently freed slave people, accustomed to the hardships of life in the wilderness, the cosmopolitanism and material wealth of Late-Bronze-Age Canaan, with its large urban centers, could not have failed to impress. The Canaanites were clearly superior to the Israelites on many levels: art, literature, architecture, trade, political organization, and more. It is not difficult to see how the Israelites would have been tempted by the elaborate Canaanite religious system, which ostensibly supported—and even provided—all of this.

One prominent feature of Canaanite religion was its highly sexualized orientation. The system of sacred prostitutes—“priestesses” of Baal—allowed people to combine sensual pleasures with worship of Baal. This undoubtedly was attractive to many Israelites (cf. the Israelites seduced by the Moabite women in Numbers 25).

The Setting of Judges

c. 1375/1210 B.C.

The incomplete conquest of the Promised Land set the stage for the book of Judges, which recounts the exploits of various leaders raised up to deliver Israel from their oppressors.

Assessment of the Judges

Two of the most famous judges were anything but paragons of virtue. After an auspicious beginning, Gideon's badgering God for a confirmatory sign (6:36–40) may indicate a decided lack of faith (or at least fear). Later he made an ephod that became an object of worship and a snare for him, his family, and all Israel (8:24–27). Samson violated all of the main provisions of his Nazirite vow (13:7; cf. Num. 6:1–21): he drank wine at his wedding feast (Judg. 14:10: "feast" here [Hb. mishteh] is specifically a "drinking feast"); he had contact with the dead (e.g., 14:8–9, 19; 15:15); and he allowed his hair to be cut (16:17–19). Furthermore, he married an unbelieving Philistine (14:1–20), and he had intimate relations with at least two other Philistine women (16:1, 4).

In general, the book does not describe the judges as leading Israel in true repentance and in putting away foreign gods, certainly not in the way the reforming kings did later in the kingdom of Judah. The one judge who did the most along this line—Gideon (6:25–32)—did so only at the beginning of his "ministry"; by the end, he was leading the people in exactly the opposite direction (8:24–27).

The NT may seem to present a more idealized view of Gideon, Samson, and others than what is found in the book of Judges: Hebrews lists Gideon, Barak, Samson, and Jephthah, along with David, Samuel, and the prophets, as examples of those "who through faith conquered kingdoms, enforced justice, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions" (Heb. 11:32–33). However, to say that these heroes had some measure of faith is not to say that they were consistent models of faith and virtue. Undoubtedly they demonstrated faith (at times) that allowed God to "conquer kingdoms" through them, but just as surely, the book of Judges focuses more on other aspects of their character to make a point about the widespread apostasy during the period.

While the judges themselves did not always contribute to improving the spiritual conditions in the land, this was not always their fault. The people as a whole did not supply the repentance that makes a godly leader effective. But despite their flaws, the judges often acted heroically. The book of Judges does not exaggerate or romanticize their exploits. These stories are not primarily about the judges as individuals: the judges' main function is to dispense God's justice and merciful faithfulness to his people, usually by military deliverance. All servants of God’s purposes for his people have their flaws; the question is whether God should choose to allow those flaws to bear their bitter fruit. Even in these circumstances, God is working out his plan; he is not thwarted, even by human failure.

Key Themes

1. Israel’s existence in the land, which had been promised by God, was threatened by its continuing apostasy. Israel had not conquered the land completely (ch. 1), and its unfaithfulness was to blame (2:1–3, 20–22). Therefore, the day would come when the nation would be taken captive, away from the land (18:30).

2. The oppressions, chaos, and generally negative picture in the book are due to Israel’s repeated sin. Time and again the Israelites broke the covenant, turning to the Canaanite gods and generally “doing evil” (2:3, 11–13, 17, 19; 3:6, 7, 12; 4:1; 6:1, 10; 8:24–27, 33; 10:6; 13:1; 17:6; 21:25). As a result, they repeatedly suffered the consequences.

3. God’s faithfulness was the counterpoint to Israel’s apostasy. Despite Israel’s repeated falling away, God continually delivered his people. This was due not to Israel’s merits or repentance, but to God’s compassion and pity (2:16, 18) and his promises to Abraham and his descendants (Deut. 6:10–11; cf. Gen. 12:7; 15:7, 18–21; 26:2–3; 35:12).

4. The judges did little to arrest the downward cycle of apostasy; if anything, they accelerated it. Major judges such as Gideon (8:24–27), Jephthah (11:30–31, 34–40), and Samson (chs. 14–16) were guilty of significant sin. The shining exception was a woman: Deborah (chs. 4–5).

5. Israel needed a godly king to lead in doing right in the Lord’s eyes rather than a leader who “did what was right in his own eyes” (cf. 17:6; 21:25). God had promised from the beginning that there would be kings (Gen. 17:6, 16; 35:11; 49:10), and had given explicit instructions about what a godly king would look like (Deut. 17:14–20). The book of Judges shows the chaos and apostasy to which the people of Israel descended in the absence of a godly king.

History of Salvation Summary

God’s people were to fulfill their calling by being faithful to the covenant in the land God had given them. The leadership of Joshua had set them up to do just this, and yet success was not automatic. The people depended on faithful leadership, which they generally lacked. Even the judges fell short of the ideal for leaders; nevertheless, God used them to preserve and chastise his people, and to teach them their need for a faithful king (a provision narrated by 1–2 Samuel). (For an explanation of the “History of Salvation,” see the Overview of the Bible. See also History of Salvation in the Old Testament: Preparing the Way for Christ.)

Literary Features

The format of Judges is a collection of individual “hero stories”; together, they tell the history of Israel during a specific era. Like Genesis, Judges pictures a mixture of good and bad behavior: the judges are not idealized, nor is their portrait uniformly negative. Mingled with the hero stories are brief units of historical facts about judges whose stories are not told in detail. The famous Song of Deborah (ch. 5) is poetry, while the story of Samson (chs. 13–16) meets the usual criteria of literary tragedy.

The pattern introduced in 2:11–23 shapes the plot: (1) the Israelites do what is evil in the sight of God; (2) God allows the nation to be conquered and oppressed by a neighboring nation; (3) the people cry to God; and (4) God sends a judge to deliver them (see chart). Then the cycle repeats itself. In addition to this cycle, the book is structured on the premise of a double plot. The overall story is one of national descent into lawlessness and apostasy; but within this national narrative lies a collection of stories that celebrate the heroic exploits of judges. Even though they had severe flaws, four of these judges are mentioned among the heroes of the faith (Hebrews 11).

Realism permeates Judges, for the book refuses to overlook the sordid side of life. As the book unfolds, readers encounter shocking accounts of violence, sexual abuse, idolatry, and misuse of power. Before the book is over, gruesome scenes of bodily mutilation and dismemberment are disclosed. While Judges portrays the worst with regard to bad behavior, such realism was included to reveal something important about life and human nature apart from God.

Judges

The Continuing Conquest of Canaan

JUDGES 1 [†]After the death of Joshua, the people of Israel [a] inquired of the LORD, [b] "Who shall go up first for us against the Canaanites, to fight against them?" [2][^][†]The LORD said, "Judah shall go up; behold, I have given the land into his hand." [3]And Judah said to Simeon his brother, "Come up with me into the territory allotted to me, that we may fight against the Canaanites. [c] And I likewise will go with you into the territory allotted to you." So Simeon went with him. [4]Then Judah went up and the LORD gave the Canaanites and the Perizzites into their hand, and they defeated 10,000 of them at Bezek. [5][†]They found Adoni-bezek at Bezek and fought against him and defeated the Canaanites and the Perizzites. [6]Adoni-bezek fled, but they pursued him and caught him and cut off his thumbs and his big toes. [7]And Adoni-bezek said, "Seventy kings with their thumbs and their big toes cut off [d] used to pick up scraps under my table. [e] As I have done, so God has repaid me." And they brought him to Jerusalem, and he died there.

[8][†][f] And the men of Judah fought against Jerusalem and captured it and struck it with the edge of the sword and set the city on fire. [9]And afterward the men of Judah went down to fight against the Canaanites who lived in [g] the hill country, in the Negeb, and in [g] the lowland. [10][†][h] And Judah went against the Canaanites who lived in Hebron [i] (now the name of Hebron was formerly Kiriath-arba), and they defeated [j] Sheshai and Ahiman and Talmai.

[11]From there they went against the inhabitants of Debir. The name of Debir was formerly Kiriath-sepher. [12]And Caleb said, "He who attacks Kiriath-sepher and captures it, I will give him Achsah my daughter for a wife." [13]And Othniel the son of Kenaz, [k] Caleb's younger brother, captured it. And he gave him Achsah his daughter for a wife. [14]When she came to him, she urged him to ask her father for a field. And she dismounted from her donkey, and Caleb said to her, "What do you want?" [15]She said to him, "Give me a blessing. Since you have set me in the land of the Negeb, give me also springs of water.” And Caleb gave her the upper springs and the lower springs.

16[†]And the descendants of the [l]Kenite, Moses’ father-in-law, went up with the people of Judah [m]from the city of palms into the wilderness of Judah, which lies in the Negeb near [n]Arad, [o]and they went and settled with the people. 17[p]And Judah went with Simeon his brother, and they defeated the Canaanites who inhabited Zephath and devoted it to destruction. So the name of the city was called [q]Hormah. [1] 18[†]Judah also [r]captured Gaza with its territory, and Ashkelon with its territory, and Ekron with its territory. 19[†][p]And the LORD was with Judah, and he took possession of the [s]hill country, but he could not drive out the inhabitants of the plain because they had [t]chariots of iron. 20[u]And Hebron was given to Caleb, as Moses had said. And he drove out from it [v]the three sons of Anak. 21[†]But the people of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites who lived in Jerusalem, [w]so the Jebusites have lived with the people of Benjamin in Jerusalem to this day.

22[†]The house of Joseph also went up against Bethel, [x]and the LORD was with them. 23And the house of Joseph scouted out Bethel. ([y]Now the name of the city was formerly Luz.) 24And the spies saw a man coming out of the city, and they said to him, “Please show us the way into the city, [z]and we will deal kindly with you.” 25And he showed them the way into the city. And they struck the city with the edge of the sword, but they let the man and all his family go. 26And the man went to [a]the land of the Hittites and built a city and called its name Luz. That is its name to this day.

Failure to Complete the Conquest

27[†][b]Manasseh did not drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shean and its villages, or Taanach and its villages, or the inhabitants of Dor and its villages, or the inhabitants of Ibleam and its villages, or the inhabitants of Megiddo and its villages, for the Canaanites persisted in dwelling in that land. 28[†]When Israel grew strong, they put the Canaanites to forced labor, but did not drive them out completely.

29[c]And Ephraim did not drive out the Canaanites who lived in Gezer, so the Canaanites lived in Gezer among them.

[30]Zebulun did not drive out the inhabitants of Kitron, or the inhabitants of [d] Nahalol, so the Canaanites lived among them, but became subject to forced labor.

[31] [e] Asher did not drive out the inhabitants of Acco, or the inhabitants of Sidon or of Ahlab or of Achzib or of Helbah or of Aphik or of Rehob, [32]so the Asherites lived among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land, for they did not drive them out.

[33]Naphtali did not drive out the inhabitants of [f] Beth-shemesh, or the inhabitants of Beth-anath, so they lived among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land. Nevertheless, the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh and of Beth-anath became subject to forced labor for them.

[34][†] [g] The Amorites pressed the people of Dan back into the hill country, for they did not allow them to come down to the plain. [35]The Amorites persisted in dwelling in Mount Heres, [h] in Aijalon, and in Shaalbim, but the hand of the house of Joseph rested heavily on them, and they became subject to forced labor. [36]And the border of the Amorites ran from [i] the ascent of Akrabbim, from Sela and upward.

Israel’s Disobedience

JUDGES 2 [†]Now the angel of the LORD went up from Gilgal to [j] Bochim. And he said, “I brought you up from Egypt and brought you into the land that I swore to give to your fathers. I said, [k] ‘I will never break my covenant with you, [2][†] [l] and you shall make no covenant with the inhabitants of this land; [m] you shall break down their altars.’ But you have not obeyed my voice. What is this you have done? [3]So now I say, [n] I will not drive them out before you, but they shall become [o] thorns in your sides, and their gods shall be a snare to you.” [4]As soon as the angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the people of Israel, the people lifted up their voices and wept. [5][†]And they called the name of that place Bochim. [1] And they sacrificed there to the LORD.

The Death of Joshua

[6][†]When Joshua dismissed the people, the people of Israel went each to his inheritance to take possession of the land. [7] [p] And the people served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders who outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great work that the LORD had done for Israel. [8]And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died at the age of 110 years. [9]And they buried him within the boundaries of [q] his inheritance in Timnath-heres, [r] in the hill country of Ephraim, north of the mountain of Gaash. [10][†]And all that generation also were gathered to their fathers. And there arose another generation after them who did not know the LORD or the work that he had done for Israel.

Israel’s Unfaithfulness

[11][†] [s] And the people of Israel did what was evil in the sight of the LORD and served the Baals. [12] [t] And they abandoned the LORD, the God of their fathers, who had brought them out of the land of Egypt. [u] They went after other gods, from among the gods of the peoples who were around them, and [v] bowed down to them. [w] And they provoked the LORD to anger. [13][†]They abandoned the LORD [x] and served the Baals and the Ashtaroth. [14] [y] So the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and he [z] gave them over to plunderers, who plundered them. [a] And he sold them into the hand of their surrounding enemies, [b] so that they could no longer withstand their enemies. [15][†]Whenever they marched out, the hand of the LORD was against them for harm, as the LORD had warned, [c] and as the LORD had sworn to them. And they were in terrible distress.

The LORD Raises Up Judges

[16][†] [d] Then the LORD raised up judges, [e] who saved them out of the hand of those who plundered them. [17][†]Yet they did not listen to their judges, for [f] they whored after other gods and bowed down to them. [g] They soon turned aside from the way in which their fathers had walked, who had obeyed the commandments of the LORD, and they did not do so. [18][^][†]Whenever the LORD raised up judges for them, [h] the LORD was with the judge, and he saved them from the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge. [i] For the LORD was moved to pity by [j] their groaning because of those who afflicted and oppressed them. [19]But [k] whenever the judge died, they turned back and were more corrupt than their fathers, going after other gods, serving them and bowing down to them. They did not drop any of their practices or their stubborn ways. [20][‡] [l] So the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and he said, “Because this people [m] have transgressed my covenant that I commanded their fathers and have not obeyed my voice, [21][‡] [n] I will no longer drive out before them any of the nations that Joshua left when he died, [22]in order [o] to test Israel by them, whether they will take care to walk in the way of the LORD as their fathers did, or not.” [23]So the LORD left those nations, not driving them out quickly, and he did not give them into the hand of Joshua.

JUDGES 3 [‡] [p] Now these are the nations that the LORD left, to test Israel by them, that is, all in Israel who had not experienced all the wars in Canaan. [2]It was only in order that the generations of the people of Israel might know war, to teach war to those who had not known it before. [3][‡]These are the nations: [q] the five lords of the Philistines and all the Canaanites and the Sidonians and the Hivites who lived on Mount Lebanon, from Mount Baal-hermon as far as Lebo-hamath. [4]They were for [r] the testing of Israel, to know whether Israel would obey the commandments of the LORD, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses. [5][‡]So the people of Israel lived [s] among the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. [6] [t] And their daughters they took to themselves for wives, and their own daughters they gave to their sons, and they served their gods.

Othniel

[7][‡] [u] And the people of Israel did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. They forgot the LORD their God and served the Baals and [v] the Asheroth. [8]Therefore the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, [w] and he sold them into the hand of [x] Cushan-rishathaim king of Mesopotamia. And the people of Israel served Cushan-rishathaim eight years. [9][‡]But when the people of Israel [y] cried out to the LORD, the LORD raised up a [z] deliverer for the people of Israel, who saved them, [a] Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb’s younger brother. [10] [b] The Spirit of the LORD was upon him, and he judged Israel. He went out to war, and the LORD gave Cushan-rishathaim king of Mesopotamia into his hand. And his hand prevailed over Cushan-rishathaim. 11[‡] [c] So the land had rest forty years. Then Othniel the son of Kenaz died.

Ehud

12[‡] [d] And the people of Israel again did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, and the LORD strengthened Eglon [e] the king of Moab against Israel, because they had done what was evil in the sight of the LORD. 13He gathered to himself the Ammonites and the [f] Amalekites, and went and defeated Israel. And they took possession of [g] the city of palms. 14And the people of Israel served Eglon the king of Moab eighteen years.

15Then the people of Israel [h] cried out to the LORD, and the LORD raised up for them [h] a deliverer, Ehud, the son of Gera, the Benjaminite, [i] a left-handed man. The people of Israel sent tribute by him to Eglon the king of Moab. 16And Ehud made for himself a sword with two edges, a cubit [1] in length, and he bound it on his right thigh under his clothes. 17And he presented the tribute to Eglon king of Moab. Now Eglon was a very fat man. 18And when Ehud had finished presenting the tribute, he sent away the people who carried the tribute. 19But he himself turned back [j] at the idols near Gilgal and said, “I have a secret message for you, O king.” And he commanded, “Silence.” And all his attendants went out from his presence. 20[^][‡]And Ehud came to him as he was sitting alone in his [k] cool roof chamber. [l] And Ehud said, “I have a message from God for you.” And he arose from his seat. 21And Ehud reached with his left hand, took the sword from his right thigh, and thrust it into his belly. 22And the hilt also went in after the blade, and the fat closed over the blade, for he did not pull the sword out of his belly; and the dung came out. 23Then Ehud went out into the porch [2] and closed the doors of the roof chamber behind him [m] and locked them.

24When he had gone, the servants came, and when they saw that the doors of the roof chamber were locked, they thought, [n] “Surely he is relieving himself in the closet of the cool chamber.” 25And they waited till they were embarrassed. But when he still did not open the doors of the roof chamber, they took the key and opened them, and there lay their lord dead on the floor.

[26]Ehud escaped while they delayed, and he passed beyond [o] the idols and escaped to Seirah. [27]When he arrived, [p] he sounded the trumpet in [q] the hill country of Ephraim. Then the people of Israel went down with him from the hill country, and he was their leader. [28]And he said to them, "Follow after me, [r] for the LORD has given your enemies the Moabites into your hand." So they went down after him and seized [s] the fords of the Jordan against the Moabites and did not allow anyone to pass over. [29]And they killed at that time about 10,000 of the Moabites, all strong, able-bodied men; not a man escaped. [30]So Moab was subdued that day under the hand of Israel. [t] And the land had rest for eighty years.

Shamgar

[31][†]After him was [u] Shamgar the son of Anath, who killed 600 of the Philistines [v] with an oxgoad, and he also [w] saved Israel.

Deborah and Barak

JUDGES 4 [†] [x] And the people of Israel again did what was evil in the sight of the LORD after Ehud died. [2]And the LORD [y] sold them into the hand of [z] Jabin king of Canaan, who reigned in [z] Hazor. The commander of his army was [a] Sisera, who lived in [b] Harosheth-hagoyim. [3]Then the people of Israel [c] cried out to the LORD for help, for he had [d] 900 chariots of iron and he oppressed the people of Israel cruelly for twenty years.

[4][†]Now Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lappidoth, was judging Israel at that time. [5]She used to sit under the palm of Deborah between Ramah and Bethel in [e] the hill country of Ephraim, and the people of Israel came up to her for judgment. [6][†]She sent and summoned [f] Barak the son of Abinoam from [g] Kedesh-naphtali and said to him, "Has not the LORD, the God of Israel, commanded you, 'Go, gather your men at Mount [h] Tabor, taking 10,000 from the people of Naphtali and the people of Zebulun. [7]And I will draw out Sisera, the general of Jabin's army, to meet you by [i] the river Kishon with his chariots and his troops, [j] and I will give him into your hand'?" [8]Barak said to her, "If you will go with me, I will go, but if you will not go with me, I will not go." [9][^]And she said, "I will surely go with you. Nevertheless, the road on which you are going will not lead to your glory, for the LORD will [k]sell Sisera into the hand of a woman." Then Deborah arose and went with Barak to Kedesh. [10]And Barak called out [l]Zebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh. And 10,000 men went up at his heels, and Deborah went up with him.

[11][†]Now Heber [m]the Kenite had separated from the Kenites, the descendants of [n]Hobab the father-in-law of Moses, and had pitched his tent as far away as the oak in [o]Zaanannim, which is near Kedesh.

[12]When Sisera was told that Barak the son of Abinoam had gone up to Mount Tabor, [13][†]Sisera called out all his chariots, [p]900 chariots of iron, and all the men who were with him, from Harosheth-hagoyim to the river Kishon. [14]And Deborah said to Barak, "Up! For this is the day in which [q]the LORD has given Sisera into your hand. [r]Does not the LORD go out before you?" So Barak went down from Mount Tabor with 10,000 men following him. [15][s]And the LORD routed Sisera and all his chariots and all his army before Barak by the edge of the sword. And Sisera got down from his chariot and fled away on foot. [16]And Barak pursued the chariots and the army to Harosheth-hagoyim, and all the army of Sisera fell by the edge of the sword; not a man was left.

[17][†]But Sisera fled away on foot to the tent of Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite, for there was peace between Jabin the king of Hazor and the house of Heber the Kenite. [18]And Jael came out to meet Sisera and said to him, "Turn aside, my lord; turn aside to me; do not be afraid." So he turned aside to her into the tent, and she covered him with a rug. [19]And he said to her, "Please give me a little water to drink, for I am thirsty." So she opened [t]a skin of milk and gave him a drink and covered him. [20]And he said to her, "Stand at the opening of the tent, and if any man comes and asks you, 'Is anyone here?' say, 'No.'" [21]But Jael the wife of Heber took a tent peg, and took a hammer in her hand. Then she went softly to him and drove the peg into his temple until it went down into the ground while he was lying fast asleep from weariness. So he died. [22]And behold, as Barak was pursuing Sisera, Jael went out to meet him and said to him, "Come, and I will show you the man whom you are seeking.” So he went in to her tent, and there lay Sisera dead, with the tent peg in his temple.

[23] [u] So on that day God subdued Jabin the king of Canaan before the people of Israel. [24] And the hand of the people of Israel pressed harder and harder against Jabin the king of Canaan, until they destroyed Jabin king of Canaan.

The Song of Deborah and Barak

JUDGES 5 [†] [v] Then sang Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam on that day:

[2] [†] “That the leaders took the lead in Israel, that [w] the people offered themselves willingly, bless the LORD!

[3] “Hear, O kings; give ear, O princes;
to the LORD I will sing;
I will make melody to the LORD, the God of Israel.

[4] [^][†] “LORD, [x] when you went out from Seir, when you marched from the region of Edom, [y] the earth trembled and the heavens dropped, yes, the clouds dropped water.
[5] The mountains [z] quaked before the LORD,
[a] even Sinai before the LORD, the God of Israel.

[6] [†] “In the days of [b] Shamgar, son of Anath, in the days of [c] Jael, [d] the highways were abandoned, and travelers kept to the byways.
[7] The villagers ceased in Israel;
they ceased to be until I arose;
I, Deborah, arose as a mother in Israel.
[8] [e] When new gods were chosen,
then war was in the gates.

[f] Was shield or spear to be seen among forty thousand in Israel?
[9] My heart goes out to the commanders of Israel who [g] offered themselves willingly among the people.
Bless the Lord.

[10][†] “Tell of it, [h] you who ride on white donkeys, you who sit on rich carpets [1] and you who walk by the way.
[11] To the sound of musicians [2] at the watering places, there they repeat the righteous triumphs of the Lord,
the righteous triumphs of his villagers in Israel.

“Then down to the gates marched the people of the Lord.

[12] [i] “Awake, awake, Deborah!
Awake, awake, break out in a song!
Arise, Barak, [j] lead away your captives,
O son of Abinoam.
[13][†] Then down marched the remnant of the noble;
the people of the Lord marched down for me against the mighty.
[14] From [k] Ephraim their root [l] they marched down into the valley, [3] following you, Benjamin, with your kinsmen;
from [m] Machir marched down the commanders, and from Zebulun those who bear the lieutenant’s [4] staff; [15] the princes of Issachar came with Deborah, and Issachar faithful to [n] Barak;
into the valley they rushed at his heels.
Among the clans of Reuben
there were great searchings of heart.
[16] Why did you sit still [o] among the sheepfolds, to hear the whistling for the flocks?
Among the clans of Reuben
there were great searchings of heart.
[17] [p] Gilead stayed beyond the Jordan;

[q] and Dan, why did he stay with the ships?
[r] Asher sat still [s] at the coast of the sea, staying by his landings.
18 [t] Zebulun is a people who risked their lives to the death;
[t] Naphtali, too, on the heights of the field.

19[†] “The kings came, they fought;
then fought the kings of Canaan,
at [u] Taanach, by the waters of [v] Megiddo;
[w] they got no spoils of silver.
20 [x] From heaven the stars fought,
from their courses they fought against Sisera.
21 [y] The torrent Kishon swept them away, the ancient torrent, the torrent Kishon.
March on, my soul, with might!

22 “Then loud beat the horses’ hoofs with the galloping, galloping of his steeds.

23 “Curse Meroz, says the angel of the LORD, curse its inhabitants thoroughly, [z] because they did not come to the help of the LORD, to the help of the LORD against the mighty.

24[†] “Most blessed of women be [a] Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite, of tent-dwelling women most blessed.
25 [b] He asked for water and she gave him milk;
she brought him curds in a noble’s bowl.
26 [c] She sent her hand to the tent peg and her right hand to the workmen’s mallet;
she struck Sisera;
she crushed his head;
she shattered and pierced his temple.
27 Between her feet
he sank, he fell, he lay still;

between her feet
    he sank, he fell;
where he sank,
    there he fell—dead.

28[†] [d]“Out of the window she peered, the mother of Sisera wailed through [e]the lattice:
‘Why is his chariot so long in coming?
    Why tarry the hoofbeats of his chariots?’
29 Her wisest princesses answer, indeed, she answers herself,
30 ‘Have they not found and [f]divided the spoil?—
    A womb or two for every man;
spoil of dyed materials for Sisera, spoil of dyed materials embroidered, two pieces of dyed work embroidered for the neck as spoil?’

31[†] [g]“So may all your enemies perish, O Lord!
    But your friends be [h]like the sun [i]as he rises in his might.”

[j]And the land had rest for forty years.

Midian Oppresses Israel

JUDGES 6 [†] [k]The people of Israel did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, and the Lord gave them into the hand of [l]Midian seven years. 2And the hand of Midian overpowered Israel, and because of Midian the people of Israel made for themselves the dens that are in the mountains and [m]the caves and the strongholds. 3For whenever the Israelites planted crops, the Midianites and [n]the Amalekites and [o]the people of the East would come up against them. 4They would encamp against them [p]and devour the produce of the land, as far as Gaza, and leave no sustenance in Israel and no sheep or ox or donkey. 5[†]For they would come up with their livestock and their tents; they would come [q]like locusts in number—both they and their camels could not be counted—so that they laid waste the land as they came in. [6]And Israel was brought very low because of Midian. And the people of Israel [r]cried out for help to the LORD.

[7]When the people of Israel cried out to the LORD on account of the Midianites, [8][†]the LORD sent a prophet to the people of Israel. And he said to them, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: [s]I led you up from Egypt and brought you out of the house of slavery. [9]And I delivered you from the hand of the Egyptians and from the hand of all who oppressed you, and [t]drove them out before you and gave you their land. [10]And I said to you, ‘I am the LORD your God; [u]you shall not fear the gods of the Amorites in whose land you dwell.’ But you have not obeyed my voice.”

The Call of Gideon

[11][†]Now the angel of the LORD came and sat under the terebinth at Ophrah, which belonged to Joash [v]the Abiezrite, while his son [w]Gideon was beating out wheat in the winepress to hide it from the Midianites. [12]And [x]the angel of the LORD appeared to him and said to him, [y]“The LORD is with you, O mighty man of valor.” [13][†]And Gideon said to him, “Please, sir, [1] if the LORD is with us, why then has all this happened to us? And where are [z]all his wonderful deeds [a]that our fathers recounted to us, saying, ‘Did not the LORD bring us up from Egypt?’ But now the LORD has forsaken us and given us into the hand of Midian.” [14]And the LORD [2] turned to him and said, “Go in this might of yours and save Israel from the hand of Midian; [b]do not I send you?” [15][^][†]And he said to him, [c]“Please, Lord, how can I save Israel? Behold, [d]my clan is the weakest in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father’s house.” [16]And the LORD said to him, [e]“But I will be with you, and you shall strike the Midianites as one man.” [17]And he said to him, [f]“If now I have found favor in your eyes, then [g]show me a sign that it is you who speak with me. [18]Please [h]do not depart from here until I come to you and bring out my present and set it before you.” And he said, “I will stay till you return.”

[19]So Gideon went into his house [i]and prepared a young goat and unleavened cakes from an ephah [3] of flour. The meat he put in a basket, and the broth he put in a pot, and brought them to him under the terebinth and presented them. [20]And the angel of God said to him, “Take the meat and the unleavened cakes, and put them [j] on this rock, and [k] pour the broth over them." And he did so. [21]Then the angel of the LORD reached out the tip of the staff that was in his hand and touched the meat and the unleavened cakes. [l] And fire sprang up from the rock and consumed the meat and the unleavened cakes. And the angel of the LORD vanished from his sight. [22][†]Then Gideon perceived that he was the angel of the LORD. And Gideon said, [m] "Alas, O Lord GOD! For now I have seen the angel of the LORD face to face." [23]But the LORD said to him, [n] "Peace be to you. Do not fear; you shall not die." [24][†]Then Gideon built an altar there to the LORD and called it, [o] The LORD Is Peace. To this day it still stands at [p] Ophrah, which belongs to the Abiezrites.

[25][†]That night the LORD said to him, "Take your father's bull, and the second bull seven years old, and pull down the altar of Baal that your father has, and cut down [q] the Asherah that is beside it [26]and build an altar to the LORD your God on the top of the [r] stronghold here, with stones laid in due order. Then take the second bull and offer it as a burnt offering with the wood of the Asherah that you shall cut down." [27]So Gideon took ten men of his servants and did as the LORD had told him. But because he was too afraid of his family and the men of the town to do it by day, he did it by night.

Gideon Destroys the Altar of Baal

[28]When the men of the town rose early in the morning, behold, the altar of Baal was broken down, and the Asherah beside it was cut down, and the second bull was offered on the altar that had been built. [29]And they said to one another, "Who has done this thing?" And after they had searched and inquired, they said, "Gideon the son of Joash has done this thing." [30]Then the men of the town said to Joash, "Bring out your son, that he may die, for he has broken down the altar of Baal and cut down the Asherah beside it." [31]But Joash said to all who stood against him, "Will you contend for Baal? Or will you save him? Whoever contends for him shall be put to death by morning. If he is a god, let him contend for himself, because his altar has been broken down." [32][†]Therefore on that day Gideon [4] was called

[s] Jerubbaal, that is to say, “Let Baal contend against him,” because he broke down his altar.

[33]Now [t] all the Midianites and the Amalekites and the people of the East came together, and they crossed the Jordan and encamped in [u] the Valley of Jezreel. [34][†]But [v] the Spirit of the LORD clothed Gideon, [w] and he sounded the trumpet, and the Abiezrites were called out to follow him. [35][†] [x] And he sent messengers throughout all Manasseh, and they too were called out to follow him. [x] And he sent messengers to Asher, Zebulun, and Naphtali, and they went up to meet them.

The Sign of the Fleece

[36][†] [y] Then Gideon said to God, “If you will save Israel by my hand, as you have said, [37]behold, I am laying a fleece of wool on the threshing floor. If there is dew on the fleece alone, and it is dry on all the ground, then I shall know that you will save Israel by my hand, as you have said.” [38]And it was so. When he rose early next morning and squeezed the fleece, he wrung enough dew from the fleece to fill a bowl with water. [39][†]Then Gideon said to God, [z] “Let not your anger burn against me; let me speak just once more. Please let me test just once more with the fleece. Please let it be dry on the fleece only, and on all the ground let there be dew.” [40]And God did so that night; and it was dry on the fleece only, and on all the ground there was dew.

Gideon’s Three Hundred Men

JUDGES 7 [†]Then [a] Jerubbaal (that is, Gideon) and all the people who were with him rose early and encamped beside [b] the spring of Harod. And the camp of Midian was north of them, [c] by the hill of Moreh, in the valley.

[2][†]The LORD said to Gideon, “The people with you are too many for me to give the Midianites into their hand, [d] lest Israel boast over me, saying, ‘My own hand has saved me.’ [3][^][†]Now therefore proclaim in the ears of the people, saying, [e] ‘Whoever is fearful and trembling, let him return home and hurry away from Mount Gilead.’” Then 22,000 of the people returned, and 10,000 remained.

[4][†]And the LORD said to Gideon, “The people are still too many. Take them down to the water, and I will test them for you there, and anyone of whom I say to you, ‘This one shall go with you,’ shall go with you, and anyone of whom I say to you, ‘This one shall not go with you,’ shall not go.” [5]So he brought the people down to the water. And the LORD said to Gideon, “Every one who laps the water with his tongue, as a dog laps, you shall set by himself. Likewise, every one who kneels down to drink.” [6]And the number of those who lapped, putting their hands to their mouths, was 300 men, but all the rest of the people knelt down to drink water. [7]And the LORD said to Gideon, [f]“With the 300 men who lapped I will save you and give the Midianites into your hand, and let all the others go every man to his home.” [8]So the people took provisions in their hands, and their trumpets. And he sent all the rest of Israel every man to his tent, but retained the 300 men. And the camp of Midian was below him [g] in the valley.

[9]That same [h] night the LORD said to him, “Arise, go down against the camp, [i] for I have given it into your hand. [10][†]But if you are afraid to go down, go down to the camp with Purah your servant. [11][j] And you shall hear what they say, and afterward your hands shall be strengthened to go down against the camp.” [k] Then he went down with Purah his servant to the outposts of the armed men who were in the camp. [12]And the Midianites and the Amalekites and [l] all the people of the East lay along the valley like locusts in abundance, and their camels were without number, [m] as the sand that is on the seashore in abundance. [13][†]When Gideon came, behold, a man was telling a dream to his comrade. And he said, “Behold, I dreamed a dream, and behold, a cake of barley bread tumbled into the camp of Midian and came to the tent and struck it so that it fell and turned it upside down, so that the tent lay flat.” [14]And his comrade answered, “This is no other than the sword of Gideon the son of Joash, a man of Israel; God has given into his hand Midian and all the camp.”

[15]As soon as Gideon heard the telling of the dream and its interpretation, he worshiped. And he returned to the camp of Israel and said, “Arise, for the LORD has given the host of Midian into your hand.” [16]And he divided the 300 men into three companies and put trumpets into the hands of all of them and empty jars, with [n] torches inside the jars. [17]And he said to them, “Look at me, and do likewise. When I come to the outskirts of the camp, do as I do. [18][‡]When I blow the trumpet, I and all who are with me, then blow the trumpets also on every side of all the camp and shout, [o]‘For the LORD and for Gideon.’”

Gideon Defeats Midian

[19][‡]So Gideon and the hundred men who were with him came to the outskirts of the camp at the beginning of the middle watch, when they had just set the watch. And they blew the trumpets and smashed the jars that were in their hands. [20][‡]Then the three companies blew the trumpets and broke the jars. They held in their left hands the torches, and in their right hands the trumpets to blow. [o]And they cried out, “A sword for the LORD and for Gideon!” [21]Every man stood in his place around the camp, [p]and all the army ran. They cried out and fled. [22][‡][q]When they blew the 300 trumpets, [r]the LORD set [s]every man’s sword against his comrade and against all the army. And the army fled as far as Beth-shittah toward Zererah, [1] as far as the border of Abel-meholah, by Tabbath. [23]And the men of Israel were called out from Naphtali and from Asher and from all Manasseh, and they pursued after Midian.

[24][t]Gideon sent messengers throughout [u]all the hill country of Ephraim, saying, “Come down against the Midianites and capture the waters against them, as far as [v]Beth-barah, and also the Jordan.” So all the men of Ephraim were called out, and they captured the waters as far as Beth-barah, and also the Jordan. [25]And they captured [w]the two princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb. They killed Oreb [x]at the rock of Oreb, and Zeeb they killed at the winepress of Zeeb. Then they pursued Midian, and they brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon [y]across the Jordan.

Gideon Defeats Zebah and Zalmunna

JUDGES 8 [‡][z]Then the men of Ephraim said to him, “What is this that you have done to us, not to call us when you went to fight against Midian?” And they accused him fiercely. [2]And he said to them, “What have I done now in comparison with you? Is not [a]the gleaning of the grapes of Ephraim better than the grape harvest of Abiezer? [3][b]God has given into your hands the princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb. What have I been able to do in comparison with you?” [c] Then their anger [1] against him subsided when he said this.

[4][†]And Gideon came to the Jordan and crossed over, he and [d] the 300 men who were with him, exhausted yet pursuing. [5]So he said to the men of [e] Succoth, “Please give loaves of bread to the people who follow me, for they are exhausted, and I am pursuing after Zebah and Zalmunna, the kings of Midian.” [6]And the officials of Succoth said, [f] “Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna already in your hand, [g] that we should give bread to your army?” [7]So Gideon said, “Well then, when the LORD has given Zebah and Zalmunna into my hand, [h] I will flail your flesh with the thorns of the wilderness and with briers.” [8]And from there he went up to [i] Penuel, and spoke to them in the same way, and the men of Penuel answered him as the men of Succoth had answered. [9]And he said to the men of Penuel, [j] “When I come again in peace, [k] I will break down this tower.”

[10]Now Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor with their army, about 15,000 men, all who were left of all the army of [l] the people of the East, for there had fallen 120,000 men [m] who drew the sword. [11][†]And Gideon went up by the way of the tent dwellers east of [n] Nobah and Jogbehah and attacked the army, for the army felt [o] secure. [12]And Zebah and Zalmunna fled, and he pursued them [p] and captured the two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna, and he threw all the army into a panic.

[13]Then Gideon the son of Joash returned from the battle by the ascent of Heres. [14]And he captured a young man of Succoth and questioned him. And he wrote down for him the officials and elders of Succoth, seventy-seven men. [15]And he came to the men of Succoth and said, “Behold Zebah and Zalmunna, about whom you taunted me, saying, [q] ‘Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna already in your hand, that we should give bread to your men who are exhausted?’” [16][^][†]And he took the elders of the city, and he took thorns of the wilderness and briers and with them taught the men of Succoth a lesson. [17] [r] And he broke down the tower of Penuel and killed the men of the city.

[18][†]Then he said to Zebah and Zalmunna, “Where are the men whom you killed at [s] Tabor?” They answered, “As you are, so were they. Every one of them resembled the son of a king.” 19 And he said, “They were my brothers, the sons of my mother. [t] As the LORD lives, if you had saved them alive, I would not kill you.” 20 So he said to Jether his firstborn, “Rise and kill them!” But the young man did not draw his sword, for he was afraid, because he was still a young man. 21 Then Zebah and Zalmunna said, “Rise yourself and fall upon us, for as the man is, so is his strength.” And Gideon arose and [u] killed Zebah and Zalmunna, and he took [v] the crescent ornaments that were on the necks of their camels.

Gideon’s Ephod

22 [†]Then the men of Israel said to Gideon, “Rule over us, you and your son and your grandson also, for you have saved us from the hand of Midian.” 23 Gideon said to them, “I will not rule over you, and my son will not rule over you; [w] the LORD will rule over you.” 24 And Gideon said to them, “Let me make a request of you: every one of you give me the earrings from his spoil.” (For they had golden earrings, [x] because they were Ishmaelites.) 25 And they answered, “We will willingly give them.” And they spread a cloak, and every man threw in it the earrings of his spoil. 26 [†]And the weight of the golden earrings that he requested was 1,700 shekels [2] of gold, besides [y] the crescent ornaments and [z] the pendants and the purple garments worn by the kings of Midian, and besides the collars that were around the necks of their camels. 27 [†]And Gideon [a] made an ephod of it and put it in his city, [b] in Ophrah. And all Israel [c] whored after it there, and it became a [d] snare to Gideon and to his family. 28 So Midian was subdued before the people of Israel, and they raised their heads no more. [e] And the land had rest forty years in the days of Gideon.

The Death of Gideon

29 [†] [f] Jerubbaal the son of Joash went and lived in his own house. 30 Now Gideon had [g] seventy sons, his own offspring, [3] for he had many wives. 31 And his concubine [h] who was in Shechem also bore him a son, and he called his name Abimelech. 32 And Gideon the son of Joash died [i] in a good old age and was buried in the tomb of Joash his father, [j] at Ophrah of the Abiezrites.

[33][‡] [k] As soon as Gideon died, the people of Israel turned again and [l] whored after the Baals and made [m] Baal-berith their god. [34]And the people of Israel [n] did not remember the LORD their God, who had delivered them from the hand of all their enemies on every side, [35] [o] and they did not show steadfast love to the family of Jerubbaal (that is, Gideon) in return for all the good that he had done to Israel.

Abimelech's Conspiracy

JUDGES 9 [‡]Now Abimelech the son of Jerubbaal went to Shechem to [p] his mother's relatives and said to them and to the whole clan of his mother's family, [2]"Say in the ears of all the leaders of Shechem, 'Which is better for you, that all [q] seventy of the sons of Jerubbaal rule over you, or that one rule over you?' Remember also that [p] I am [r] your bone and your flesh."

[3]And his mother's relatives spoke all these words on his behalf in the ears of all the leaders of Shechem, and their hearts inclined to follow Abimelech, for they said, [s] "He is our brother." [4]And they gave him seventy pieces of silver out of the house of [t] Baal-berith with which Abimelech hired [u] worthless and reckless fellows, who followed him. [5]And he went to his father's house at [v] Ophrah [w] and killed his brothers the sons of Jerubbaal, seventy men, on one stone. But Jotham the youngest son of Jerubbaal was left, for he hid himself. [6]And all the leaders of Shechem came together, and all [x] Beth-millo, and they went and made Abimelech king, by the oak of the pillar at Shechem.

[7][‡]When it was told to Jotham, he went and stood on top of [y] Mount Gerizim and cried aloud and said to them, "Listen to me, you leaders of Shechem, that God may listen to you. [8] [z] The trees once went out to anoint a king over them, and they said to the olive tree, [a] 'Reign over us.' [9]But the olive tree said to them, 'Shall I leave my abundance, by which gods and men are honored, and go hold sway over the trees?' [10]And the trees said to the fig tree, 'You come and reign over us.' [11]But the fig tree said to them, 'Shall I leave my sweetness and my good fruit and go hold sway over the trees?' [12]And the trees said to the vine, 'You come and reign over us.' [13]But the vine said to them, ‘Shall I leave my wine that [b] cheers God and men and go hold sway over the trees?’ [14]Then all the trees said to the bramble, ‘You come and reign over us.’ [15]And the bramble said to the trees, ‘If in good faith you are anointing me king over you, then come and [c] take refuge in my shade, but if not, [d] let fire come out of the bramble and devour [e] the cedars of Lebanon.’

[16]“Now therefore, if you acted in good faith and integrity when you made Abimelech king, and if you have dealt well with [f] Jerubbaal and his house and have done to him [g] as his deeds deserved— [17]for my father fought for you and risked his life and delivered you from the hand of Midian, [18]and you have risen up against my father’s house this day [h] and have killed his sons, seventy men on one stone, and have made [i] Abimelech, the son of his female servant, king over the leaders of Shechem, [j] because he is your relative— [19]if you then have acted in good faith and integrity with Jerubbaal and with his house this day, then [k] rejoice in Abimelech, and let him also rejoice in you. [20][†]But if not, [l] let fire come out from Abimelech and devour the leaders of Shechem and Beth-millo; and let fire come out from the leaders of Shechem and from Beth-millo and devour Abimelech.” [21]And Jotham ran away and fled and went to [m] Beer and lived there, because of Abimelech his brother.

The Downfall of Abimelech

[22][†]Abimelech ruled over Israel three years. [23][†] [n] And God sent an evil spirit between Abimelech and the leaders of Shechem, and the leaders of Shechem [o] dealt treacherously with Abimelech, [24] [p] that the violence done to the seventy sons of Jerubbaal might come, and their blood be laid on Abimelech their brother, who killed them, and on the men of Shechem, who strengthened his hands to kill his brothers. [25]And the leaders of Shechem put men in ambush against him on the mountaintops, and they robbed all who passed by them along that way. And it was told to Abimelech.

[26]And Gaal the son of Ebed moved into Shechem with his relatives, and the leaders of Shechem put confidence in him. [27]And they went out into the field and gathered the grapes from their vineyards and trod them and held a festival; and they went into [q] the house of their god and ate and drank and reviled Abimelech. [28]And Gaal the son of Ebed said, [r]“Who is Abimelech, and who are we of Shechem, that we should serve him? Is he not the son of Jerubbaal, and is not Zebul his officer? Serve the men of [s]Hamor the father of Shechem; but why should we serve him? [29]Would that this people were under my hand! Then I would remove Abimelech. I would say [1] to Abimelech, ‘Increase your army, and come out.’”

[30]When Zebul the ruler of the city heard the words of Gaal the son of Ebed, his anger was kindled. [31]And he sent messengers to Abimelech secretly, [2] saying, “Behold, Gaal the son of Ebed and his relatives have come to Shechem, and they are stirring up [3] the city against you. [32]Now therefore, go by night, you and the people who are with you, and set an ambush in the field. [33]Then in the morning, as soon as the sun is up, rise early and rush upon the city. And when he and the people who are with him come out against you, you may do to them [t]as your hand finds to do.”

[34]So Abimelech and all the men who were with him rose up by night and set an ambush against Shechem in four companies. [35]And Gaal the son of Ebed went out and stood in the entrance of the gate of the city, and Abimelech and the people who were with him rose from the ambush. [36]And when Gaal saw the people, he said to Zebul, “Look, people are coming down from [u]the mountaintops!” And Zebul said to him, “You mistake [4] the shadow of the mountains for men.” [37]Gaal spoke again and said, “Look, people are coming down from the center of the land, and one company is coming from the direction of the Diviners’ Oak.” [38]Then Zebul said to him, “Where is your mouth now, you who said, [v]‘Who is Abimelech, that we should serve him?’ Are not these the people whom you despised? Go out now and fight with them.” [39]And Gaal went out at the head of the leaders of Shechem and fought with Abimelech. [40]And Abimelech chased him, and he fled before him. And many fell wounded, up to the entrance of the gate. [41]And Abimelech lived at Arumah, and Zebul drove out Gaal and his relatives, so that they could not dwell at Shechem.

[42]On the following day, the people went out into the field, and Abimelech was told. [43]He took his people and divided them into three companies and set an ambush in the fields. And he looked and saw the people coming out of the city. So he rose against them and killed them. [44]Abimelech and the company that was with him [w]rushed forward and stood at the entrance of the gate of the city, while the two companies rushed upon all who were in the field and killed them. [45][†]And Abimelech fought against the city all that day. He captured the city and killed the people who were in it, and [x]he razed the city and [y]sowed it with salt.

[46][†]When all the leaders of the Tower of Shechem heard of it, they entered [z]the stronghold of the house of [a]El-berith. [47]Abimelech was told that all the leaders of the Tower of Shechem were gathered together. [48]And Abimelech went up to Mount [b]Zalmon, he and all the people who were with him. And Abimelech took an axe in his hand and cut down a bundle of brushwood and took it up and laid it on his shoulder. And he said to the men who were with him, “What you have seen me do, hurry and do as I have done.” [49]So every one of the people cut down his bundle and following Abimelech put it against [c]the stronghold, and they set the stronghold on fire over them, so that all the people of the Tower of Shechem also died, about 1,000 men and women.

[50]Then Abimelech went to Thebez and encamped against Thebez and captured it. [51][†]But there was a strong tower within the city, and all the men and women and all the leaders of the city fled to it and shut themselves in, and they went up to the roof of the tower. [52]And Abimelech came to the tower and fought against it and drew near to the door of the tower to burn it with fire. [53][d]And a certain woman threw an upper millstone on Abimelech’s head and crushed his skull. [54][†][e]Then he called quickly to the young man his armor-bearer and said to him, “Draw your sword and kill me, lest they say of me, ‘A woman killed him.’” And his young man thrust him through, and he died. [55]And when the men of Israel saw that Abimelech was dead, everyone departed to his home. [56][^][†][f]Thus God returned the evil of Abimelech, which he committed against his father in killing his seventy brothers. [57]And God also made all the evil of the men of Shechem return on their heads, and upon them came [g]the curse of Jotham the son of Jerubbaal.

Tola and Jair

JUDGES 10 [†]After Abimelech there arose to [h]save Israel Tola the son of Puah, son of Dodo, a man of Issachar, and he lived at Shamir in [i]the hill country of Ephraim. [2]And he judged Israel twenty-three years. Then he died and was buried at Shamir.

[3][†]After him arose Jair the Gileadite, who judged Israel twenty-two years. [4]And he had thirty sons who [j]rode on thirty donkeys, and they had thirty cities, called Havvoth-jair to this day, [k]which are in the land of Gilead. [5]And Jair died and was buried in Kamon.

Further Disobedience and Oppression

[6][^][†][l]The people of Israel again did what was evil in the sight of the Lord [m]and served the Baals and the Ashtaroth, the gods of Syria, [n]the gods of Sidon, the gods of Moab, the gods of the Ammonites, and the gods of the Philistines. And they [o]forsook the Lord and did not serve him. [7][†]So the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel, and [p]he sold them into the hand of the Philistines and into the hand of the Ammonites, [8]and they crushed and oppressed the people of Israel that year. For eighteen years they oppressed all the people of Israel who were beyond the Jordan in the land of the Amorites, which is in Gilead. [9]And the Ammonites crossed the Jordan to fight also against Judah and against Benjamin and against the house of Ephraim, so that Israel was severely distressed.

[10]And the people of Israel [q]cried out to the Lord, saying, “We have sinned against you, because [r]we have forsaken our God and have served the Baals.” [11]And the Lord said to the people of Israel, “Did I not save you [s]from the Egyptians and [t]from the Amorites, [u]from the Ammonites and [v]from the Philistines? [12]The Sidonians also, and [w]the Amalekites and the Maonites oppressed you, and you cried out to me, and I [x]saved you out of their hand. [13]Yet you have [y]forsaken me and served other gods; therefore I will save you no more. [14][†]Go and cry out [z]to the gods whom you have chosen; let them save you in the time of your distress.” [15]And the people of Israel said to the Lord, “We have sinned; do to us whatever seems good to you. Only please deliver us this day.” [16][†]So they put away the foreign gods from among them and served the LORD, and [a]he became impatient over the misery of Israel.

[17]Then the Ammonites were called to arms, and they encamped in Gilead. And the people of Israel came together, and they encamped at [b]Mizpah. [18]And the people, the leaders of Gilead, said one to another, “Who is the man who will begin to fight against the Ammonites? [c]He shall be head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.”

Jephthah Delivers Israel

JUDGES 11 [†]Now [d]Jephthah the Gileadite was [e]a mighty warrior, but he was the son of a prostitute. Gilead was the father of Jephthah. [2][^]And Gilead’s wife also bore him sons. And when his wife’s sons grew up, they drove Jephthah out and said to him, “You shall not have an inheritance in our father’s house, for you are the son of another woman.” [3]Then Jephthah fled from his brothers and lived in the land of [f]Tob, and [g]worthless fellows collected around Jephthah and went out with him.

[4][†]After a time the Ammonites made war against Israel. [5]And when the Ammonites made war against Israel, the elders of Gilead went to bring Jephthah from the land of [f]Tob. [6][†]And they said to Jephthah, “Come and be our leader, that we may fight against the Ammonites.” [7]But Jephthah said to the elders of Gilead, “Did you not hate me and drive me out of my father’s house? Why have you come to me now when you are in distress?” [8][†]And the elders of Gilead said to Jephthah, “That is why we have turned to you now, that you may go with us and fight against the Ammonites and [h]be our head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.” [9]Jephthah said to the elders of Gilead, “If you bring me home again to fight against the Ammonites, and the LORD gives them over to me, I will be your head.” [10]And the elders of Gilead said to Jephthah, [i]“The LORD will be witness between us, if we do not do as you say.” [11][†]So Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead, and the people [j]made him head and leader over them. And Jephthah spoke all his words [k]before the LORD at [l]Mizpah.

[12][†]Then Jephthah sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites and said, “What do you have against me, that you have come to me to fight against my land?” [13]And the king of the Ammonites answered the messengers of Jephthah, [m]“Because Israel on coming up from Egypt took away my land, from the [n]Arnon to the [o]Jabbok and to the Jordan; now therefore restore it peaceably.” [14]Jephthah again sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites [15]and said to him, “Thus says Jephthah: [p]Israel did not take away the land of Moab or the land of the Ammonites, [16]but when they came up from Egypt, Israel went through the wilderness [q]to the Red Sea and [r]came to Kadesh. [17][‡] [s]Israel then sent messengers to the king of Edom, saying, ‘Please let us pass through your land,’ [t]but the king of Edom would not listen. And they sent also to the king of Moab, but he would not consent. So Israel [u]remained at Kadesh.

[18]“Then they journeyed through the wilderness and [v]went around the land of Edom and the land of Moab and [w]arrived on the east side of the land of Moab and [x]camped on the other side of the Arnon. But they did not enter the territory of Moab, for the Arnon was the boundary of Moab. [19] [y]Israel then sent messengers to Sihon king of the Amorites, king of Heshbon, and Israel said to him, ‘Please let us pass through your land to our country,’ [20]but Sihon did not trust Israel to pass through his territory, so Sihon gathered all his people together and encamped at Jahaz and fought with Israel. [21]And the Lord, the God of Israel, gave Sihon and all his people into the hand of Israel, and they defeated them. So Israel took possession of all the land of the Amorites, who inhabited that country. [22]And they took possession of all the territory of the Amorites from the Arnon to the Jabbok and from the wilderness to the Jordan. [23]So then the Lord, the God of Israel, dispossessed the Amorites from before his people Israel; and are you to take possession of them? [24][‡]Will you not possess what [z]Chemosh your god gives you to possess? [a]And all that the Lord our God has dispossessed before us, we will possess. [25]Now are you any better than [b]Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab? Did he ever contend against Israel, or did he ever go to war with them? [26][‡]While Israel lived [c]in Heshbon and its villages, and [d]in Aroer and its villages, and in all the cities that are on the banks of the Arnon, 300 years, why did you not deliver them within that time? [27]I therefore have not sinned against you, and you do me wrong by making war on me. [e]The Lord, the Judge, decide this day between the people of Israel and the people of Ammon." [28]But the king of the Ammonites did not listen to the words of Jephthah that he sent to him.

Jephthah's Tragic Vow

[29][‡][f]Then the Spirit of the LORD was upon Jephthah, and he passed through Gilead and Manasseh and passed on to Mizpah of Gilead, and from Mizpah of Gilead he passed on to the Ammonites. [30]And Jephthah [g]made a vow to the LORD and said, "If you will give the Ammonites into my hand, [31][‡]then whatever [1] comes out from the doors of my house to meet me when I return in peace from the Ammonites [h]shall be the LORD's, and [i]I will offer it [2] up for a burnt offering." [32]So Jephthah crossed over to the Ammonites to fight against them, and the LORD gave them into his hand. [33]And he struck them from Aroer to the neighborhood of [j]Minnith, twenty cities, and as far as Abel-keramim, with a great blow. So the Ammonites were subdued before the people of Israel.

[34]Then Jephthah came to his home at [k]Mizpah. And behold, his daughter came out to meet him [l]with tambourines and with dances. She was his only child; besides her he had neither son nor daughter. [35][‡]And as soon as he saw her, he tore his clothes and said, "Alas, my daughter! You have brought me very low, and you have become the cause of great trouble to me. For I have opened my mouth to the LORD, [m]and I cannot take back my vow." [36]And she said to him, "My father, you have opened your mouth to the LORD; do to me according to what has gone out of your mouth, now that the LORD has avenged you on your enemies, on the Ammonites." [37]So she said to her father, "Let this thing be done for me: leave me alone two months, that I may go up and down on the mountains and weep for my virginity, I and my companions." [38]So he said, "Go." Then he sent her away for two months, and she departed, she and her companions, and wept for her virginity on the mountains. [39][‡]And at the end of two months, she returned to her father, [n]who did with her according to his vow that he had made. She had never known a man, and it became a custom in Israel [40]that the daughters of Israel went year by year to lament the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite four days in the year.

Jephthah’s Conflict with Ephraim

JUDGES 12 [†] [o] The men of Ephraim were called to arms, and they crossed to Zaphon and said to Jephthah, “Why did you cross over to fight against the Ammonites and did not call us to go with you? We will burn your house over you with fire.” [2]And Jephthah said to them, “I and my people had a great dispute with the Ammonites, and when I called you, you did not save me from their hand. [3]And when I saw that you would not save me, [p] I took my life in my hand and crossed over against the Ammonites, and the LORD gave them into my hand. Why then have you come up to me this day to fight against me?” [4][^]Then Jephthah gathered all the men of Gilead and fought with Ephraim. And the men of Gilead struck Ephraim, because they said, [q] “You are fugitives of Ephraim, you Gileadites, in the midst of Ephraim and Manasseh.” [5]And the Gileadites captured [r] the fords of the Jordan against the Ephraimites. And when any of the fugitives of Ephraim said, “Let me go over,” the men of Gilead said to him, “Are you an Ephraimite?” When he said, “No,” [6][†]they said to him, “Then say Shibboleth,” and he said, “Sibboleth,” for he could not pronounce it right. Then they seized him and slaughtered him at [r] the fords of the Jordan. At that time 42,000 of the Ephraimites fell.

[7]Jephthah judged Israel six years. Then Jephthah the Gileadite died and was buried in his city in Gilead. [1]

Ibzan, Elon, and Abdon

[8][†]After him Ibzan of Bethlehem judged Israel. [9]He had thirty sons, and thirty daughters he gave in marriage outside his clan, and thirty daughters he brought in from outside for his sons. And he judged Israel seven years. [10]Then Ibzan died and was buried at Bethlehem.

[11][†]After him Elon the Zebulunite judged Israel, and he judged Israel ten years. [12]Then Elon the Zebulunite died and was buried at Aijalon in the land of Zebulun.

[13][†]After him Abdon the son of Hillel the Pirathonite judged Israel. [14]He had forty [s] sons and thirty grandsons, who [t] rode on seventy donkeys, and he judged Israel eight years. [15]Then Abdon the son of Hillel the Pirathonite died and was buried at Pirathon in the land of Ephraim, in the hill country of the Amalekites.

The Birth of Samson

JUDGES 13 [†]And the people of Israel again [u]did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, so the LORD gave them [v]into the hand of the Philistines for forty years.

[2]There was a certain man of [w]Zorah, of the tribe of the Danites, whose name was Manoah. [x]And his wife was barren and had no children. [3][†][y]And the angel of the LORD appeared to the woman and said to her, "Behold, you are barren and have not borne children, but you shall conceive and bear a son. [4]Therefore be careful [z]and drink no wine or strong drink, and eat nothing unclean, [5][^][†]for behold, you shall conceive and bear a son. [a]No razor shall come upon his head, for the child shall be [z]a Nazirite to God from the womb, and he shall [b]begin to save Israel from the hand of the Philistines." [6][†]Then the woman came and told her husband, [c]"A man of God came to me, and his appearance was like the appearance of the angel of God, very awesome. [d]I did not ask him where he was from, and he did not tell me his name, [7]but he said to me, [e]'Behold, you shall conceive and bear a son. So then drink no wine or strong drink, and eat nothing unclean, for the child shall be a Nazirite to God from the womb to the day of his death.'"

[8][^]Then Manoah prayed to the LORD and said, "O Lord, please let the man of God whom you sent come again to us and teach us what we are to do with the child who will be born." [9]And God listened to the voice of Manoah, and the angel of God came again to the woman as she sat in the field. But Manoah her husband was not with her. [10]So the woman ran quickly and told her husband, "Behold, the man who came to me the other day has appeared to me." [11]And Manoah arose and went after his wife and came to the man and said to him, "Are you the man who spoke to this woman?" And he said, "I am." [12]And Manoah said, "Now when your words come true, [f]what is to be the child's manner of life, and what is his mission?" [13]And the angel of the LORD said to Manoah, "Of all that I said to the woman let her be careful. [14]She may not eat of anything that comes from the vine, [g]neither let her drink wine or strong drink, or eat any unclean thing. All that I commanded her let her observe."

[15]Manoah said to the angel of the LORD, "Please let us detain you and [h]prepare a young goat for you." [16]And the angel of the LORD said to Manoah, "If you detain me, I will not eat of your food. But if you prepare a burnt offering, then offer it to the LORD." (For Manoah did not know that he was the angel of the LORD.) [17]And Manoah said to the angel of the LORD, [i]"What is your name, so that, when your words come true, we may honor you?" [18][†]And the angel of the LORD said to him, [j]"Why do you ask my name, seeing [k]it is wonderful?" [19]So [l]Manoah took the young goat with the grain offering, and offered it on the rock to the LORD, to the one who works [1] wonders, and Manoah and his wife were watching. [20]And when the flame went up toward heaven from the altar, the angel of the LORD went up in the flame of the altar. Now Manoah and his wife were watching, [m]and they fell on their faces to the ground.

[21]The angel of the LORD appeared no more to Manoah and to his wife. [n]Then Manoah knew that he was the angel of the LORD. [22][†]And Manoah said to his wife, [n]"We shall surely die, for we have seen God." [23]But his wife said to him, "If the LORD had meant to kill us, he would not have accepted a burnt offering and a grain offering at our hands, or shown us all these things, or now announced to us such things as these." [24]And the woman bore a son and called his name Samson. [o]And the young man grew, and the LORD blessed him. [25][†][p]And the Spirit of the LORD began to stir him in Mahaneh-dan, between [q]Zorah and Eshtaol.

Samson's Marriage

JUDGES 14 [†][r]Samson went down to [s]Timnah, and at Timnah he saw one of the daughters of the Philistines. [2]Then he came up and told his father and mother, "I saw one of the daughters of the Philistines at Timnah. [t]Now get her for me as my wife." [3][^][†]But his father and mother said to him, "Is there not a woman among the daughters [u]of your relatives, or among all our people, that you must go to take a wife from the [v]uncircumcised Philistines?" But Samson said to his father, "Get her for me, for she is right in my eyes."

[4][‡]His father and mother did not know that it was [w] from the LORD, for he was seeking an opportunity against the Philistines. [x] At that time the Philistines ruled over Israel.

[5][‡]Then Samson went down with his father and mother to Timnah, and they came to the vineyards of Timnah. And behold, a young lion came toward him roaring. [6][‡] [y] Then the Spirit of the LORD rushed upon him, and although he had nothing in his hand, he tore the lion in pieces as one tears a young goat. But he did not tell his father or his mother what he had done. [7]Then he went down and talked with the woman, and she was right in Samson's eyes.

[8][‡]After some days he returned to take her. And he turned aside to see the carcass of the lion, and behold, there was a swarm of bees in the body of the lion, and honey. [9]He scraped it out into his hands and went on, eating as he went. And he came to his father and mother and gave some to them, and they ate. But he did not tell them that he had scraped the honey from the carcass of the lion.

[10][‡]His father went down to the woman, and Samson prepared a feast there, for so the young men used to do. [11]As soon as the people saw him, they brought thirty companions to be with him. [12]And Samson said to them, [z] "Let me now put a riddle to you. If you can tell me what it is, within [a] the seven days of the feast, and find it out, then I will give you thirty linen garments and thirty [b] changes of clothes, [13]but if you cannot tell me what it is, then you shall give me thirty linen garments and thirty changes of clothes." And they said to him, "Put your riddle, that we may hear it."
[14][‡]And he said to them,

"Out of the eater came something to eat.
Out of the strong came something sweet."

And in three days they could not solve the riddle.

[15][‡]On the fourth [1] day they said to Samson's wife, [c] "Entice your husband to tell us what the riddle is, [d] lest we burn you and your father's house with fire. Have you invited us here to impoverish us?" [16]And Samson's wife wept over him and said, [e] "You only hate me; you do not love me. You have put a riddle to my people, and you have not told me what it is.” And he said to her, “Behold, I have not told my father nor my mother, and shall I tell you?” [17]She wept before him the seven days that their feast lasted, and on the seventh day he told her, because [f] she pressed him hard. Then she told the riddle to her people. [18][†]And the men of the city said to him on the seventh day before the sun went down, > “What is sweeter than honey?

> What is stronger than a lion?”

And he said to them,

> “If you had not plowed with my heifer, > you would not have found out my riddle.”

[19] [g] And the Spirit of the LORD rushed upon him, and he went down to [h] Ashkelon and struck down thirty men of the town and took their spoil and gave the garments to those who had told the riddle. In hot anger he went back to his father’s house. [20]And Samson’s wife was given to [i] his companion, [j] who had been his best man.

Samson Defeats the Philistines

JUDGES 15 [†]After some days, at the time of wheat harvest, Samson went to visit his wife with [k] a young goat. And he said, “I will go in to my wife in the chamber.” But her father would not allow him to go in. [2]And her father said, “I really thought that you utterly hated her, [l] so I gave her to your companion. Is not her younger sister more beautiful than she? Please take her instead.” [3]And Samson said to them, “This time I shall be innocent in regard to the Philistines, when I do them harm.” [4][†]So Samson went and caught 300 foxes and took torches. And he turned them tail to tail and put a torch between each pair of tails. [5]And when he had set fire to the torches, he let the foxes go into the standing grain of the Philistines and set fire to the stacked grain and the standing grain, as well as the olive orchards. [6][†]Then the Philistines said, “Who has done this?” And they said, “Samson, the son-in-law of the Timnite, because he has taken his wife [m] and given her to his companion.” And the Philistines came up and [n] burned her and her father with fire. [7]And Samson said to them, “If this is what you do, I swear I will be avenged on you, and after that I will quit.” [8][†]And he struck them hip and thigh with a great blow, and he went down and stayed in the [o]cleft of the rock of Etam.

[9]Then the Philistines came up and encamped in Judah and [p]made a raid on [q]Lehi. [10]And the men of Judah said, “Why have you come up against us?” They said, “We have come up to bind Samson, to do to him as he did to us.” [11]Then 3,000 men of Judah went down to the cleft of the rock of Etam, and said to Samson, “Do you not know that [r]the Philistines are rulers over us? What then is this that you have done to us?” And he said to them, “As they did to me, so have I done to them.” [12]And they said to him, “We have come down to bind you, that we may give you into the hands of the Philistines.” And Samson said to them, “Swear to me that you will not attack me yourselves.” [13]They said to him, “No; we will only bind you and give you into their hands. We will surely not kill you.” So they bound him with two [s]new ropes and brought him up from the rock.

[14][^][†]When he came to Lehi, the Philistines came shouting to meet him. [t]Then the Spirit of the LORD rushed upon him, and the ropes that were on his arms became as flax that has caught fire, and his bonds melted off his hands. [15]And he found a fresh jawbone of a donkey, and put out his hand and took it, [u]and with it he struck 1,000 men. [16]And Samson said,

“With the jawbone of a donkey,
heaps upon heaps,
with the jawbone of a donkey
have I struck down a thousand men.”

[17][†]As soon as he had finished speaking, he threw away the jawbone out of his hand. And that place [v]was called Ramath-lehi. [1]

[18][†]And he was very thirsty, and he called upon the LORD and said, [w]“You have granted this great salvation by the hand of your servant, and shall I now die of thirst and fall into the hands of the uncircumcised?” [19]And God split open the hollow place that is [v]at Lehi, and water came out from it. And when he drank, [x]his spirit returned, and he revived. Therefore the name of it was called En-hakkore; [2] it is at Lehi to this day. [20][†]And he judged Israel [y] in the days of the Philistines twenty years.

Samson and Delilah

JUDGES 16 [†]Samson went to [z] Gaza, and there he saw a prostitute, and he went in to her. [2][†]The Gazites were told, “Samson has come here.” And they [a] surrounded the place and set an ambush for him all night at the gate of the city. They kept quiet all night, saying, “Let us wait till the light of the morning; then we will kill him.” [3]But Samson lay till midnight, and at midnight he arose and took hold of the doors of the gate of the city and the two posts, and pulled them up, bar and all, and put them on his shoulders and carried them to the top of the hill that is in front of Hebron.

[4][†]After this he loved a woman in the Valley of Sorek, whose name was Delilah. [5]And [b] the lords of the Philistines came up to her and said to her, [c] “Seduce him, and see where his great strength lies, and by what means we may overpower him, that we may bind him to [d] humble him. And we will each give you 1,100 pieces of silver.” [6]So Delilah said to Samson, “Please tell me where your great strength lies, and how you might be bound, that one could [d] subdue you.”

[7][†]Samson said to her, “If they bind me with seven fresh bowstrings that have not been dried, [e] then I shall become weak and be like any other man.” [8]Then the lords of the Philistines brought up to her seven fresh bowstrings that had not been dried, and she bound him with them. [9]Now she had men lying in ambush in an inner chamber. And she said to him, “The Philistines are upon you, Samson!” But he snapped the bowstrings, as a thread of flax snaps when it touches the fire. So the secret of his strength was not known.

[10]Then Delilah said to Samson, “Behold, you have mocked me and told me lies. Please tell me how you might be bound.” [11][†]And he said to her, “If they bind me with [f] new ropes that have not been used, then I shall become weak and be like any other man.” [12]So Delilah took new ropes and bound him with them and said to him, “The Philistines are upon you, Samson!” And the men lying in ambush were in an inner chamber. But he snapped the ropes off his arms like a thread.

[13][†]Then Delilah said to Samson, “Until now you have mocked me and told me lies. Tell me how you might be bound.” And he said to her, “If you weave the seven locks of my head with the web and fasten it tight with the pin, then I shall become weak and be like any other man.” [14]So while he slept, Delilah took the seven locks of his head and wove them into the web. [1] And she made them tight with the pin and said to him, “The Philistines are upon you, Samson!” But he awoke from his sleep and pulled away the pin, the loom, and the web.

[15]And she said to him, [g]“How can you say, ‘I love you,’ when your heart is not with me? You have mocked me these three times, and you have not told me where your great strength lies.” [16][†]And [h]when she pressed him hard with her words day after day, and urged him, his soul was vexed to death. [17]And he told her all his heart, and said to her, [i]“A razor has never come upon my head, for I have been a Nazirite to God from my mother’s womb. If my head is shaved, then my strength will leave me, and I shall become weak and be like any other man.”

[18][†]When Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart, she sent and called the lords of the Philistines, saying, “Come up again, for he has told me all his heart.” Then the lords of the Philistines came up to her and brought [j]the money in their hands. [19]She made him sleep on her knees. And she called a man and had him shave off the seven locks of his head. Then she began [k]to torment him, and his strength left him. [20][†]And she said, “The Philistines are upon you, Samson!” And he awoke from his sleep and said, “I will go out as at other times and shake myself free.” But he did not know that [l]the LORD had left him. [21]And the Philistines seized him and gouged out his eyes and brought him down to Gaza and bound him with bronze shackles. [m]And he ground at the mill in the prison. [22][†]But the hair of his head began to grow again after it had been shaved.

The Death of Samson

[23][†]Now the lords of the Philistines gathered to offer a great sacrifice to [n]Dagon their god and to rejoice, and they said, “Our god has given Samson our enemy into our hand.” [24]And when the people saw him, [o]they praised their god. For they said, “Our god has given our enemy into our hand, the ravager of our country, who has killed many of us.” [2] [25]And [p]when their hearts were merry, they said, “Call Samson, that he may entertain us.” So they called Samson out of the prison, and he entertained them. They made him stand between the pillars. [26]And Samson said to the young man who held him by the hand, “Let me feel the pillars on which the house rests, that I may lean against them.” [27]Now the house was full of men and women. All the lords of the Philistines were there, and [q]on the roof there were about 3,000 men and women, who looked on while Samson entertained.

[28][†]Then Samson called to the LORD and said, “O Lord GOD, [r]please remember me and please strengthen me only this once, O God, that I may be avenged on the Philistines for my two eyes.” [29]And Samson grasped the two middle pillars on which the house rested, and he leaned his weight against them, his right hand on the one and his left hand on the other. [30][^]And Samson said, “Let me die with the Philistines.” Then he bowed with all his strength, and the house fell upon the lords and upon all the people who were in it. So the dead whom he killed at his death were more than those whom he had killed during his life. [31][†]Then his brothers and all his family came down and took him and brought him up and buried him [s]between Zorah and Eshtaol in the tomb of Manoah his father. He had judged Israel twenty years.

Micah and the Levite

JUDGES 17 [†]There was a man of [t]the hill country of Ephraim, whose name was Micah. [2][^]And he said to his mother, “The 1,100 pieces of silver that were taken from you, about which you uttered a curse, and also spoke it in my ears, behold, the silver is with me; I took it.” And his mother said, [u]“Blessed be my son by the LORD.” [3][†]And he restored the 1,100 pieces of silver to his mother. And his mother said, “I dedicate the silver to the LORD from my hand for my son, to make [v]a carved image and [w]a metal image. Now therefore I will restore it to you.” [4]So when he restored the money to his mother, his mother [x]took 200 pieces of silver and gave it to the silversmith, who made it into a carved image and a metal image. And it was in the house of Micah. [5][†]And the man Micah had a shrine, and he made [y]an ephod and [z]household gods, and [a]ordained [1] one of his sons, who became his priest. 6[‡] [b] In those days there was no king in Israel. [c] Everyone did what was right in his own eyes.

7[‡]Now there was a young man of [d] Bethlehem in Judah, of the family of Judah, who was a Levite, and he sojourned there. 8And the man departed from the town of Bethlehem in Judah to sojourn where he could find a place. And as he journeyed, he came to [e] the hill country of Ephraim to the house of Micah. 9[‡]And Micah said to him, “Where do you come from?” And he said to him, “I am a Levite of Bethlehem in Judah, and I am going to sojourn where I may find a place.” 10And Micah said to him, “Stay with me, and be to me [f] a father and a priest, and I will give you ten pieces of silver a year and a suit of clothes and your living.” And the Levite went in. 11And the Levite [g] was content to dwell with the man, and the young man became to him like one of his sons. 12And Micah [h] ordained the Levite, and the young man [i] became his priest, and was in the house of Micah. 13Then Micah said, “Now I know that the LORD will prosper me, because I have a Levite as priest.”

Danites Take the Levite and the Idol

JUDGES 18 [‡] [j] In those days there was no king in Israel. And in those days [k] the tribe of the people of Dan was seeking for itself an inheritance to dwell in, for until then no inheritance among the tribes of Israel had fallen to them. 2[‡]So the people of Dan sent five able men from the whole number of their tribe, [l] from Zorah and from Eshtaol, [m] to spy out the land and to explore it. And they said to them, “Go and explore the land.” And they came [n] to the hill country of Ephraim, to the house of Micah, and lodged there. 3When they were by the house of Micah, they recognized the voice of the young Levite. And they turned aside and said to him, “Who brought you here? What are you doing in this place? What is your business here?” 4And he said to them, “This is how Micah dealt with me: [o] he has hired me, and I have become his priest.” 5[‡]And they said to him, [p] “Inquire of God, please, that we may know whether the journey on which we are setting out will succeed.” 6And the priest said to them, [q] “Go in peace. The journey on which you go is under the eye of the LORD.”

[7][†]Then the five men departed and came to [r]Laish and saw the people who were there, how they lived in security, after the manner of the Sidonians, [s]quiet and unsuspecting, lacking [1] nothing that is in the earth and possessing wealth, and how [t]they were far from the Sidonians and had no dealings with anyone. [8]And when they came to their brothers at [u]Zorah and Eshtaol, their brothers said to them, "What do you report?" [9]They said, [v]"Arise, and let us go up against them, for we have seen the land, and behold, it is very good. [w]And will you do nothing? [x]Do not be slow to go, to enter in and possess the land. [10]As soon as you go, you will come to an [y]unsuspecting people. The land is spacious, for God has given it into your hands, [z]a place where there is no lack of anything that is in the earth."

[11]So 600 men of the tribe of Dan, [a]armed with weapons of war, set out from Zorah and Eshtaol, [12][†]and went up and encamped at Kiriath-jearim in Judah. On this account that place is called [b]Mahaneh-dan [2] to this day; behold, it is west of [c]Kiriath-jearim. [13]And they passed on from there to [d]the hill country of Ephraim, and came to the house of Micah.

[14][†]Then the five men who had gone to scout out the country of Laish said to their brothers, "Do you know that [e]in these houses there are an ephod, household gods, a carved image, and a metal image? Now therefore consider what you will do." [15]And they turned aside there and came to the house of the young Levite, at the home of Micah, and [f]asked him about his welfare. [16]Now the 600 men of the Danites, [g]armed with their weapons of war, stood by the entrance of the gate. [17]And [h]the five men who had gone to scout out the land went up and entered and took [i]the carved image, the ephod, the household gods, and the metal image, while the priest stood by the entrance of the gate with the 600 men armed with weapons of war. [18]And when these went into Micah's house and took [i]the carved image, the ephod, the household gods, and the metal image, the priest said to them, "What are you doing?" [19][^]And they said to him, "Keep quiet; [j]put your hand on your mouth and come with us and be to us [k]a father and a priest. Is it better for you to be priest to the house of one man, or to be priest to a tribe and clan in Israel?" [20]And the priest's heart was glad. He took the ephod and the household gods and the carved image and went along with the people.

[21][†]So they turned and departed, putting the little ones and the livestock and [l] the goods in front of them. [22]When they had gone a distance from the home of Micah, the men who were in the houses near Micah's house were called out, and they overtook the people of Dan. [23]And they shouted to the people of Dan, who turned around and said to Micah, "What is the matter with you, that you come with such a company?" [24]And he said, [m] "You take my gods that I made and the priest, and go away, and what have I left? How then do you ask me, 'What is the matter with you?'" [25]And the people of Dan said to him, "Do not let your voice be heard among us, lest angry fellows fall upon you, and you lose your life with the lives of your household." [26]Then the people of Dan went their way. And when Micah saw that they were too strong for him, he turned and went back to his home.

[27]But the people of Dan took what Micah had made, and the priest who belonged to him, and they came to Laish, to a people [n] quiet and unsuspecting, and [o] struck them with the edge of the sword and burned the city with fire. [28]And there was no deliverer because it was [p] far from Sidon, and they had no dealings with anyone. It was in the valley that belongs to [q] Beth-rehob. Then they rebuilt the city and lived in it. [29]And they named the city [r] Dan, after the name of Dan their ancestor, who was born to Israel; but [s] the name of the city was Laish at the first. [30][†]And the people of Dan set up the carved image for themselves, and Jonathan the son of Gershom, [t] son of Moses, [3] [u] and his sons were priests to the tribe of the Danites until the day [v] of the captivity of the land. [31]So they set up Micah's carved image that he made, [w] as long as the house of God was at Shiloh.

A Levite and His Concubine

JUDGES 19 [†]In those days, [x] when there was no king in Israel, a certain Levite was sojourning in the remote parts of [y] the hill country of Ephraim, who took to himself a concubine from [z] Bethlehem in Judah. [2]And his concubine was unfaithful to [1] him, and she went away from him to her father's house at Bethlehem in Judah, and was there some four months. [3][†]Then her husband arose and went after her, to speak kindly to her and bring her back. He had with him his servant and a couple of donkeys. And she brought him into her father's house. And when the girl's father saw him, he came with joy to meet him. [4]And his father-in-law, the girl’s father, made him stay, and he remained with him three days. So they ate and drank and spent the night there. [5]And on the fourth day they arose early in the morning, and he prepared to go, but the girl’s father said to his son-in-law, [a]“Strengthen your heart with a morsel of bread, and after that you may go.” [6]So the two of them sat and ate and drank together. And the girl’s father said to the man, “Be pleased to spend the night, and [b]let your heart be merry.” [7]And when the man rose up to go, his father-in-law pressed him, till he spent the night there again. [8]And on the fifth day he arose early in the morning to depart. And the girl’s father said, [c]“Strengthen your heart and wait until the day declines.” So they ate, both of them. [9]And when the man and his concubine and his servant rose up to depart, his father-in-law, the girl’s father, said to him, “Behold, now the day has waned toward evening. Please, spend the night. Behold, the day draws to its close. Lodge here and let your heart be merry, and tomorrow you shall arise early in the morning for your journey, and go home.”

[10][†]But the man would not spend the night. He rose up and departed and arrived opposite [d]Jebus (that is, Jerusalem). He had with him a couple of saddled donkeys, and his concubine was with him. [11]When they were near Jebus, the day was nearly over, and the servant said to his master, “Come now, let us turn aside to this city of the Jebusites and spend the night in it.” [12]And his master said to him, “We will not turn aside into the city of foreigners, who do not belong to the people of Israel, but we will pass on to [e]Gibeah.” [13]And he said to his young man, “Come and let us draw near to one of these places and spend the night at Gibeah or at [f]Ramah.” [14]So they passed on and went their way. And the sun went down on them near Gibeah, which belongs to Benjamin, [15]and they turned aside there, to go in and spend the night at Gibeah. And he went in and sat down in the open square of the city, [g]for no one took them into his house to spend the night.

[16][†]And behold, an old man was coming from his work in the field at evening. The man was from [h]the hill country of Ephraim, and he was sojourning in Gibeah. [i]The men of the place were Benjaminites. [17]And he lifted up his eyes and saw the traveler in the open square of the city. And the old man said, “Where are you going? And where do you come from?” [18]And he said to him, “We are passing from Bethlehem in Judah to the remote parts of the hill country of Ephraim, from which I come. I went to Bethlehem in Judah, and I am going [j] to the house of the Lord, [2] [g] but no one has taken me into his house. [19]We have straw and feed for our donkeys, with bread and wine for me and your female servant and the young man with your servants. [k] There is no lack of anything.” [20]And the old man said, [l] “Peace be to you; I will care for all your wants. [m] Only, do not spend the night in the square.” [21]So he brought him into his house and gave the donkeys feed. [n] And they washed their feet, and ate and drank.

Gibeah’s Crime

[22][‡]As they were [o] making their hearts merry, behold, the men of the city, worthless fellows, [p] surrounded the house, beating on the door. And they said to the old man, the master of the house, “Bring out the man who came into your house, that we may know him.” [23]And the man, the master of the house, went out to them and said to them, “No, my brothers, [q] do not act so wickedly; since this man has come into my house, [r] do not do this vile thing. [24] [s] Behold, here are my virgin daughter and his concubine. Let me bring them out now. [t] Violate them and do with them what seems good to you, but against this man [r] do not do this outrageous thing.” [25]But the men would not listen to him. So the man seized his concubine and made her go out to them. And they knew her and abused her all night until the morning. And as the dawn began to break, they let her go. [26]And as morning appeared, the woman came and fell down at the door of the man’s house where her master was, until it was light.

[27][‡]And her master rose up in the morning, and when he opened the doors of the house and went out to go on his way, behold, there was his concubine lying at the door of the house, with her hands on the threshold. [28]He said to her, “Get up, let us be going.” [u] But there was no answer. Then he put her on the donkey, and the man rose up and went away to his home. [29]And when he entered his house, he took a knife, and taking hold of his concubine he [v] divided her, limb by limb, into twelve pieces, and sent her throughout all the territory of Israel. [30][^] [w] And all who saw it said, “Such a thing has never happened or been seen from the day that the people of Israel came up out of the land of Egypt until this day; [x]consider it, take counsel, and speak."

Israel's War with the Tribe of Benjamin

JUDGES 20 [‡]Then [y]all the people of Israel came out, [z]from Dan to Beersheba, including the land of Gilead, and the congregation assembled as one man to the LORD at [a]Mizpah. 2And the [b]chiefs of all the people, of all the tribes of Israel, presented themselves in the assembly of the people of God, 400,000 men on foot [c]that drew the sword. 3(Now the people of Benjamin heard that the people of Israel had gone up to Mizpah.) And the people of Israel said, "Tell us, how did this evil happen?" 4And the Levite, the husband of the woman who was murdered, answered and said, [d]"I came to Gibeah that belongs to Benjamin, I and my concubine, to spend the night. 5[e]And the leaders of Gibeah rose against me and surrounded the house against me by night. They meant to kill me, and they violated my concubine, and she is dead. 6[f]So I took hold of my concubine and cut her in pieces and sent her throughout all the country of the inheritance of Israel, for they have committed abomination and [g]outrage in Israel. 7Behold, you people of Israel, all of you, [h]give your advice and counsel here."

8And all the people arose as one man, saying, "None of us will go to his tent, and none of us will return to his house. 9[‡]But now this is what we will do to Gibeah: we will go up against it by lot, 10and we will take ten men of a hundred throughout all the tribes of Israel, and a hundred of a thousand, and a thousand of ten thousand, to bring provisions for the people, that when they come they may repay Gibeah of Benjamin, for all the outrage that they have committed in Israel." 11So all the men of Israel gathered against the city, united as one man.

12[‡][i]And the tribes of Israel sent men through all the tribe of Benjamin, saying, "What evil is this that has taken place among you? 13Now therefore give up the men, [j]the worthless fellows in Gibeah, that we may put them to death [k]and purge evil from Israel." But the Benjaminites would not listen to the voice of their brothers, the people of Israel. 14[^]Then the people of Benjamin came together out of the cities to Gibeah to go out to battle against the people of Israel. 15[‡]And the people of Benjamin mustered out of their cities on that day [l]26,000 men [m]who drew the sword, besides the inhabitants of Gibeah, who mustered 700 chosen men. [16]Among all these were 700 chosen men who were [n]left-handed; every one could sling a stone at a hair and not miss. [17]And the men of Israel, apart from Benjamin, mustered [m]400,000 men who drew the sword; all these were men of war.

[18][†]The people of Israel arose and went up to [o]Bethel and inquired of God, [p]"Who shall go up first for us to fight against the people of Benjamin?" And the LORD said, [p]"Judah shall go up first."

[19]Then the people of Israel rose in the morning and encamped against Gibeah. [20]And the men of Israel went out to fight against Benjamin, and the men of Israel drew up the battle line against them at Gibeah. [21] [q]The people of Benjamin came out of Gibeah and destroyed on that day 22,000 men of the Israelites. [22]But the people, the men of Israel, took courage, and again formed the battle line in the same place where they had formed it on the first day. [23] [r]And the people of Israel went up and wept before the LORD until the evening. And they inquired of the LORD, "Shall we again draw near to fight against our brothers, the people of Benjamin?" And the LORD said,
"Go up against them."

[24]So the people of Israel came near against the people of Benjamin the second day. [25][†]And Benjamin [s]went against them out of Gibeah the second day, and destroyed 18,000 men of the people of Israel. All these were men who [t]drew the sword. [26]Then all the people of Israel, the whole army, went up and came to [u]Bethel and wept. They sat there before the LORD and fasted that day until evening, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before the LORD. [27]And the people of Israel inquired of the LORD [v](for the ark of the covenant of God was there in those days, [28][†]and [w]Phinehas the son of Eleazar, son of Aaron, [x]ministered before it in those days), saying, "Shall we go out once more to battle against our brothers, the people of Benjamin, or shall we cease?" And the LORD said, "Go up, for tomorrow I will give them into your hand."

[29] [y]So Israel set men in ambush around Gibeah. [30]And the people of Israel went up against the people of Benjamin on the third day and set themselves in array against Gibeah, as at other times. [31]And the people of Benjamin went out against the people and were drawn away from the city.
And as at other times they began to strike and kill some of the people in the highways, [z] one of which goes up to [a] Bethel and the other to Gibeah, and in the open country, about thirty men of Israel. [32]And the people of Benjamin said, [b] "They are routed before us, as at the first." But the people of Israel said, "Let us flee and draw them away from the city to the highways." [33]And all the men of Israel rose up out of their place and set themselves in array at Baal-tamar, and the men of Israel who were in ambush rushed out of their place from Maareh-geba. [1] [34]And there came against Gibeah 10,000 chosen men out of all Israel, and the battle was hard, [c] but the Benjaminites did not know that disaster was close upon them. [35][†]And the LORD defeated Benjamin before Israel, and the people of Israel destroyed 25,100 men of Benjamin that day. All these were men who [d] drew the sword. [36]So the people of Benjamin saw that they were defeated.

The men of Israel gave ground to Benjamin, because they trusted the men in ambush whom they had set against Gibeah. [37] [e] Then the men in ambush hurried and rushed against Gibeah; the men in ambush moved out and struck all the city with the edge of the sword. [38][†]Now the appointed signal between the men of Israel and the men in the main ambush was that when they made a great cloud of smoke rise up out of the city [39]the men of Israel should turn in battle. Now Benjamin had begun to strike and kill about thirty men of Israel. They said, [f] "Surely they are defeated before us, as in the first battle." [40]But when the signal began to rise out of the city in a column of smoke, the Benjaminites looked behind them, and behold, [g] the whole of the city went up in smoke to heaven. [41]Then the men of Israel turned, and the men of Benjamin were dismayed, [h] for they saw that disaster was close upon them. [42]Therefore they turned their backs before the men of Israel in [i] the direction of the wilderness, but the battle overtook them. And those who came out of the cities were destroying them in their midst. [43]Surrounding the Benjaminites, they pursued them and trod them down from Nohah [2] as far as opposite Gibeah on the east. [44]Eighteen thousand men of Benjamin fell, all of them men of valor. [45]And they turned [i] and fled toward the wilderness to the rock of [j] Rimmon. Five thousand men of them were cut down in the highways. And they were pursued hard to Gidom, and 2,000 men of them were struck down. [46]So all who fell that day of Benjamin were 25,000 men who drew the sword, all of them men of valor. [47][‡]But 600 men turned and [i] fled toward the wilderness to the rock of [j] Rimmon and remained at the rock of Rimmon four months. [48]And the men of Israel turned back against the people of Benjamin and struck them with the edge of the sword, the city, men and beasts and all that they found. And all the towns that they found they set on fire.

Wives Provided for the Tribe of Benjamin

JUDGES 21 [‡]Now the men of Israel had sworn [k] at Mizpah, “No one of us shall give his daughter in marriage to Benjamin.” [2]And the people came to [l] Bethel and sat there till evening before God, and they lifted up their voices and wept bitterly. [3]And they said, “O LORD, the God of Israel, why has this happened in Israel, that today there should be one tribe lacking in Israel?” [4]And the next day the people rose early and [m] built there an altar and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings. [5][‡]And the people of Israel said, “Which of all the tribes of Israel did not come up in the assembly to the LORD?” [n] For they had taken a great oath concerning him who did not come up to the LORD to Mizpah, saying, “He shall surely be put to death.” [6]And the people of Israel [o] had compassion for Benjamin their brother and said, “One tribe is cut off from Israel this day. [7] [p] What shall we do for wives for those who are left, since we have sworn by the LORD that we will not give them any of our daughters for wives?”

[8]And they said, “What one is there of the tribes of Israel that did not come up to the LORD to Mizpah?” And behold, no one had come to the camp from [q] Jabesh-gilead, to the assembly. [9]For when the people were mustered, behold, not one of the inhabitants of [q] Jabesh-gilead was there. [10][^][‡]So the congregation sent 12,000 of their bravest men there and commanded them, [r] “Go and strike the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead with the edge of the sword; also the women and the little ones. [11]This is what you shall do: [s] every male and every woman that has lain with a male you shall devote to destruction.” [12]And they found among the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead 400 young virgins who had not known a man by lying with him, and they brought them to the camp at [t] Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan.

[13]Then the whole congregation sent word to the people of Benjamin who were at the [u] rock of Rimmon and [v] proclaimed peace to them. [14]And Benjamin returned at that time. And they gave them the women whom they had saved alive of the women of Jabesh-gilead, but they were not enough for them. 15And the people [w] had compassion on Benjamin because the LORD had made a breach in the tribes of Israel.

16Then the elders of the congregation said, [x] “What shall we do for wives for those who are left, since the women are destroyed out of Benjamin?” 17And they said, “There must be an inheritance for the survivors of Benjamin, that a tribe not be blotted out from Israel. 18Yet we cannot give them wives from our daughters.” [y] For the people of Israel had sworn, “Cursed be he who gives a wife to Benjamin.” 19So they said, “Behold, there is the yearly feast of the LORD at Shiloh, which is north of Bethel, on the east of [z] the highway that goes up from Bethel to Shechem, and south of Lebonah.” 20And they commanded the people of Benjamin, saying, “Go and lie in ambush in the vineyards 21and watch. If the daughters of Shiloh come out to [a] dance in the dances, then come out of the vineyards and snatch each man his wife from the daughters of Shiloh, and go to the land of Benjamin. 22And when their fathers or their brothers come to complain to us, we will say to them, ‘Grant them graciously to us, because we did not take for each man of them his wife in battle, neither did you give them to them, else you would now be guilty.’” 23And the people of Benjamin did so and took their wives, according to their number, from the dancers whom they carried off. Then they went and returned to their inheritance [b] and rebuilt the towns and lived in them. 24[†]And the people of Israel departed from there at that time, every man to his tribe and family, and they went out from there every man to his inheritance.

25[†] [c] In those days there was no king in Israel. Everyone did what was right in his own eyes.

Study Notes for Judges

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:1–3:6 The Roots of Israel's Apostasy. This introduction to the book identifies the root causes and effects of Israel's apostasy. The pattern established here is then repeated in a cyclical fashion throughout the body of the book (3:7–16:31).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:1–2:5 Prelude to Apostasy: Incomplete Conquests. In the first part of the book's introduction, continuing military activity indicates that all conquests had not been completed during Joshua's day (1:1–26); several tribes achieved only incomplete conquests (1:27–36). Israel's disobedience in not completely conquering the land is confirmed in 2:1–5.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:1–21 Initial Battles and the Seeds of Apostasy. The military encounters here are reminders that the peace at the end of the book of Joshua was short-lived. Judah was given a leadership role, and they allied with Simeon against the remaining Canaanites. They had some successes, but some ominous failures as well (vv. 19, 21).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:1 After the death of Joshua a new era begins. Significantly, however, no new leader is appointed (as in Joshua 1). This foreshadows the chaotic conditions and apostasy that would prevail.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:2–3 Judah shall go up (see note on 20:18). Judah's leadership in Israel had been anticipated as early as Jacob's blessing, when he said that kings would come from the line of Judah (Gen. 49:8–12). Judah and Simeon, the two tribes that were to lead the way into Canaan, were closely linked: both came from the same mother (Gen. 29:33, 35), and Simeon had inherited land in Judah's territory (Josh. 19:1, 9).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:5–7 Each city and town in Canaan had its own "king," such as Adoni-bezek, whose name means "Lord of Bezek." cut off his thumbs and his big toes. This would prevent him from ever engaging in battle again. The practice of cutting off body parts of vanquished enemies is known in Mesopotamian and classical Greek sources, and was practiced by Adoni-bezek himself (v. 7).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:8 Jerusalem was on the border between Judah and Benjamin. Neither tribe succeeded in driving out its inhabitants completely (Josh. 15:63; Judg. 1:21); that was accomplished only by David (2 Sam. 5:6–10).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:10–15 This passage (almost identical to Josh. 15:13–19) is probably a “flashback” to the earlier capture of Hebron and Debir. Caleb offering Achsah as a prize to the victor is similar to Saul offering Michal to David in exchange for 100 Philistine foreskins (1 Sam. 18:25). Achsah asked for springs of water in addition to land, since land without sources of fresh water was almost worthless.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:16 The Kenite, Moses’ father-in-law was Jethro (Ex. 3:1). The Israelites and Kenites had been friendly in the wilderness (Num. 10:29–32), and the cooperation here fulfills Moses’ words, “we will do good to you” (Num. 10:29). city of palms. Another name for Jericho (Deut. 34:3; 2 Chron. 28:15).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:18 Gaza … Ashkelon … Ekron. Judah captured three of the major Philistine cities (Josh. 13:2–3) but was not able to hold them; they later reverted to Philistine control (Judg. 14:19; 16:1; 1 Sam. 5:10).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:19 he could not drive out the inhabitants of the plain. This seemingly innocuous notice is in fact ominous, since the Israelites’ failure to drive out the Canaanites completely, as God had instructed (Josh. 6:17; 11:14), was a root cause of Israel’s apostasy and troubles (Judg. 2:11–3:6). Since the three Philistine cities mentioned in 1:18 were in the plain, v. 19 must mean that the Israelites had no success beyond these three cities, and perhaps even that they lost control of them very quickly. chariots of iron. The Israelites did not have chariots, which were effective on the flat, coastal plains but were ineffective in the hill country of Canaan, where most of the Israelites settled.

Reasons Israel Failed to Take the Promised Land

View this chart online at http://kindle.esvsb.org/c68

1. The Canaanites had superior arms and fortifications	1:19
2. Israel was disposed to make alliances with the people of the land	2:1–5

3. Israel sinned and must be punished	2:20–21
4. Yahweh was testing Israel to see if they would be faithful or not	2:22–23; 3:4
5. Israel needed to be instructed in the art of war	3:1–3

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:21 Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites. A second notice about Israelite failure (see note on v. 19) previews a series of six almost identical notices in vv. 27–36. The Israelites were apparently satisfied with a comfortable home in a productive land and were not zealous to achieve God's full purpose for their life in the land (see note on vv. 27–33).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:22–36 Incomplete Conquests Portending Apostasy. The Israelites now suffered more failures in the north. After an initial success at Bethel (vv. 22–26), six tribes—Manasseh, Ephraim, Zebulun, Asher, Naphtali, and Dan—did not drive out the Canaanites from their territories (vv. 27–36). These territories fairly well spanned the northern two-thirds of the Promised Land.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:22 The house of Joseph. There was no tribe of Joseph: his inheritance had been split between his two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh (Gen. 48:5–6; Deut. 33:17), the next two tribes mentioned (Judg. 1:27, 29). Bethel means "the house of God." Its honored history included Abraham's sacrifice to God (Gen. 13:3) and Jacob's revelation from God in a dream (Gen. 31:13). Joshua originally captured it (Josh. 12:16), perhaps as part of the defeat of Ai (cf. Josh. 8:17).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:27–33 Six more tribes failed in the same way as Judah and Benjamin: Manasseh (v. 27), Ephraim (v. 29), Zebulun (v. 30), Asher (v. 31), Naphtali (v. 33), and Dan (v. 34). The effects were tragic: the Israelites turned to the Baals, the gods of those Canaanites who remained among them, and forsook the Lord. Thus, Israel's worship did not remain pure.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:28 The Israelites subjected many of the Canaanite groups to forced labor (vv. 30, 33, 35; cf. Josh. 16:10; 17:13). In later times, David and Solomon also used their enemies in this way (2 Sam. 20:24; 1 Kings 9:15).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 1:34 Amorites were Canaanite peoples (cf. Josh. 3:10) living in the central hill country. They were such an obstacle to the tribe of Dan that the Danites were eventually forced to migrate northward (Josh. 19:47; Judg. 18:1).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:1–5 The Angel of the Lord and Israel's Apostasy. The angel of the Lord now makes explicit that Israel's failure to drive out the Canaanites as God had instructed is the cause of his handing them over to the vicissitudes of life among their enemies. The roots of Israel's apostasy are now in full view.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:1 The angel of the LORD was God's representative, speaking authoritatively to the people about their apostasy. He shows up suddenly elsewhere in Judges (5:23; 6:11, 12, 20–22; 13:3, 13, 15, 16, 18, 20, 21), sometimes causing fear (6:22–23), probably because of the warning about humans seeing God (Ex. 33:20; see note on Judg. 6:22). As the Lord's designated messenger (Hb. mal'ak), the angel speaks as the Lord himself (see note on Gen. 16:7; cf. Ex. 3:6). This angel may be the same one promised to Moses in Ex. 23:20–23, or a theophany of the Lord himself. Gilgal was Israel's first encampment west of the Jordan (Josh. 4:19). I brought you up. "You" is plural, referring to the entire nation (since those addressed here were not part of the original exodus). I will never break my covenant. On God's eternal covenant faithfulness, see Lev. 26:44 and Ps. 89:34.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:2–3 God had commanded Israel to make no covenant with pagan nations and to tear down their altars. Cf. Ex. 23:32; 34:12–13; Deut. 12:3. As a consequence of Israel's disobedience, these nations would be a snare to them (e.g., by pagan rituals; Judg. 8:27), just as God had promised (Ex. 23:33; Num. 33:55; Josh. 23:13).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:5 they sacrificed there. The Israelites' apparent distress at God's threats (v. 4), and their attempts to pacify God by sacrificing (v. 5), were short-lived. Verses 11–15 show their more usual pattern of apostasy.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:6–3:6 The Unfolding and Consequences of Apostasy. In the second part of the book's introduction, the breakdown chronicled in ch. 1 is assumed, but the focus is less on incomplete conquests than on a theological analysis of Israel's apostasy and its consequences. The recurring downward cycle of history presented in 2:16–23 is especially captured by the statement, "whenever the judge died, they turned back and were more corrupt than their fathers" (2:19). The final section (3:1–6) emphasizes God's purposes in the punishments mentioned in 2:14–15, 21–23, which have to do with "testing" Israel (2:22; 3:1, 4).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:6–10 Joshua's Death and the Coming Apostasy. This is a flashback to Josh. 24:28–31 and a transition to the second part of the introduction. Joshua had already died (Judg. 1:1), but the repetition of the information about Joshua introduces the apostasy to follow.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:10 another generation … who did not know the LORD. The positive picture painted in Joshua (esp. Josh. 24:31) is marred by a reference to the next generation, who had forgotten the work that the Lord had done for Israel (Judg. 2:7), including the work done through Joshua.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:11–23 The Recurring Pattern of Israel's Apostasy, God's Grace, and God's Anger. This section deals with the recurring patterns of Israel's apostasy and God's reaction to it. The unit might be divided into three subsections: (1) Israel's apostasy and God's anger (vv. 11–15); (2) God's grace and Israel's continuing apostasy (vv. 16–19); and (3) God's anger (vv. 20–23). The first and third sections are similar in describing Israel's apostasy and then in describing how God punished the nation, although the third section ends without reference to God's grace. The middle section presents a summary of the recurring pattern seen throughout the remainder of the book: God graciously raises up successive judges to deliver Israel, but the people fall away from him each time.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:11 the people of Israel did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. This clear statement of Israel's apostasy recurs throughout the book (3:7, 12; 4:1; 6:1; 10:6; 13:1), and again many times in 1–2 Kings, with reference to the kings of Israel and Judah (e.g., 1 Kings 15:26, 34; 2 Kings 21:2). Israel's tendency throughout its history was to turn away from the Lord. Only God's grace and the leadership of a few godly individuals kept Israel from complete paganism. served the Baals. See note on Judg. 3:7.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:13 Ashtaroth is the plural form of Ashtoreth (Gk. Astartē), a goddess of fertility, love, and war who was closely associated with Baal (10:6; 1 Sam. 7:4; 12:10). Canaanite texts seldom mention Ashtoreth, but she appears in Mesopotamian texts by the name "Ishtar" and in Egyptian representations of Canaanite religion. Ashtoreth (plural Ashtaroth) should not be confused with Asherah (plural Asheroth; see notes on Judg. 3:7; 6:25–26).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:15 as the LORD had sworn. God had threatened to deliver Israel into its enemies' hands if it forsook him (Deut. 28:25; Josh. 23:13). He also warned that these nations would be snares and traps to Israel (Ex. 23:33; Deut. 7:16; and esp. Num. 33:55), which came true with a vengeance during the period of the judges (Judg. 2:14–15, 21–23).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:16 the LORD raised up judges. The judges' primary (though temporary) function was military; they were provided by the grace of God.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:17 whored. The metaphor of Israel's committing adultery against God by following other gods is one of the most powerful in the OT. Ezekiel spoke against Jerusalem's adultery (Ezekiel 16; 23), and Hosea's ministry was inextricably linked with God's command to marry "a wife of whoredom" (Hosea 1–3). Israel's unfaithfulness was reprehensible to the God who had chosen, loved, and provided for his people.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:18 moved to pity (Hb. nakham; cf. 1 Sam. 15:29, "have regret"; Jonah 3:10, "relented"). God graciously changed his course of action concerning the Israelites (to give them over to their enemies; Judg. 2:14–15) because of his compassion for their suffering (cf. 10:16).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:20 this people. Literally, "this nation" (Hb. goy), a term normally reserved for pagans (e.g., in vv. 21, 23; 3:1). Biblical writers usually refer to Israel as a "people" (Hb. 'am, a more intimate word). The usage of "this nation" here is freighted with contempt and reflects the disgust God feels toward his people, whom he now regards as just like the other nations.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 2:21–22 I will no longer drive out … any of the nations. This repeats the promise (or threat) that God had made to the Israelites (Josh. 23:13), which is then carried out in Judg. 2:23. to test Israel. See note on 3:1.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:1–6 The Testing of Israel. The final section of the introduction emphasizes God's purposes in testing Israel (vv. 1, 4; cf. 2:22). It concludes with a confirmation that Israel indeed was apostate in this period (3:5–6). The stage is now set for the accounts of the individual judges, a significant number of whom were as much part of Israel's problem as they were sources of deliverance.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:1 to test Israel. This testing was to see if Israel would truly follow the Lord (2:22; 3:4), as when God tested Abraham (Gen. 22:1) and Hezekiah (2 Chron. 32:31). Through adversity, God tested Israel in order to refine it. Later in the book of Judges, Gideon "tested" God in a display of weak faith (Judg. 6:39).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:3 The word lords here (seren) is Philistine, not Hebrew; the Greeks borrowed it, using it as the basis for their word tyrannos, "tyrant." Philistines were part of the mercenary sea peoples, mentioned in Egyptian texts as early as the fourteenth century B.C.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:5–6 The book's introduction ends with a searing indictment of the Israelites' apostasy through their intermarriage and their infidelity to God.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:7–16:31 The Downward Spiral of Israel's Apostasy. The body of the book of Judges includes the stories of 12 judges raised up to deliver Israel from successive crises and to "judge" Israel. Their primary function was military in nature. Most judges failed to point people convincingly to the Lord. Indeed, in some cases the judges themselves were not exemplary (e.g., Gideon, Jephthah, Samson). The recurring pattern unfolds in a downward spiral: the first judge, Othniel, was raised up by God and empowered by God's Spirit (3:9–10), whereas the next-to-last major judge, Jephthah, made a foolish vow and offered his own daughter as a "sacrifice" (whether literally or figuratively; see 11:30–40, and note on 11:39), and the last judge, Samson, was anything but a paragon of virtue (chs. 14–16).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:7–11 Othniel. The Spirit of the Lord was on Othniel, the first judge (v. 10), and he delivered Israel from Cushan-rishathaim, king of Mesopotamia. The section begins by repeating much of 2:11–14. When the Israelites sinned, God gave them into foreign control for eight years (3:8). When Israel cried out for deliverance (v. 9), God provided Othniel as a deliverer.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:7 the Baals and the Asheroth. Baal was the most powerful god of the Canaanites, and Asherah was a popular Canaanite goddess, a consort of El, the head of the Canaanite pantheon (see notes on 2:13; 6:25–26), who may have been displaced at some point by Baal. The use of the plural forms (Baals and Asheroth) shows that each was worshiped in many locales, and their local manifestations took on the character of independent gods (e.g., "Baal of Peor" [Num. 25:5], "Mount Baal-hermon" [Judg. 3:3], "Baal-gad" [Josh. 11:17], "Baal-hazor" [2 Sam. 13:23], "Baal-hamon" [Song 8:11], and Baal-berith [i.e., "the Baal of the covenant"; Judg. 8:33]). Asherah is also associated with Baal in 1 Kings 18:19 and 2 Kings 23:4.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:9–10 Othniel of Judah had captured the city of Kiriath-sepher and become Caleb's son-in-law (see 1:13). This is the last appearance in the book of a leader from Judah, the most favored tribe. The Spirit of the LORD was upon him. See note on 14:6.

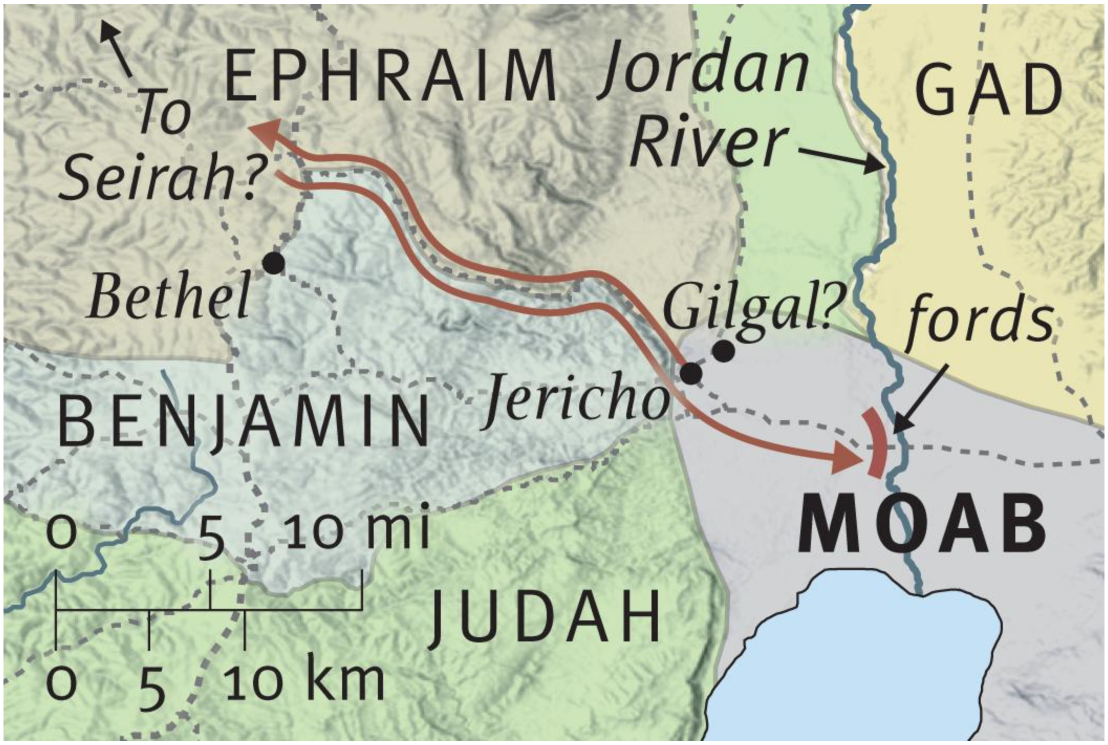
JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:11 the land had rest forty years. Cf. 3:30; 5:31; 8:28. In 18:7, some foreigners also "lived in security" (the same Hb. word as "had rest").

JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:12–30 Ehud. Ehud, the second judge, delivered Israel from Eglon, king of Moab (see map). Verses 12–14 give a standard introduction, telling of the Israelites' apostasy and of God's giving them into Eglon's control for 18 years. The story that follows—of Ehud killing Eglon—is rather graphic, highlighting the rough, even grotesque nature of this period and many of its "heroes."

Ehud Defeats the Moabites

During the time of Ehud, King Eglon of Moab expanded his territory and captured the "city of palms," probably to be understood as Jericho. Ehud and the other Israelite delegates were returning from delivering their tribute to Eglon, but Ehud turned back and killed Eglon at Jericho. Then Ehud escaped to the hill country of Ephraim and mustered the warriors of Israel, who captured the fords of the Jordan River to prevent the Moabites from escaping.



JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:20 his cool roof chamber. In ancient cities, the coolest place in the house was on the roof (cf. the "small room on the roof" that a Shunammite couple made for Elisha, 2 Kings 4:10).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 3:31 Shamgar. The third judge was Shamgar, mentioned only here and in 5:6. Shamgar's name is apparently Hurrian, not Israelite, and his designation as "son of Anath" probably refers to the Canaanite warrior goddess Anath. If so, it is ironic that God used a non-Israelite warrior to deliver Israel from its enemies. Shamgar's activity in single-handedly killing many Philistines anticipates Samson.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 4:1–5:31 Deborah. The fourth judge was Deborah (see note on 4:4–5), whose story is the first extended account in the book (cf. Gideon in chs. 6–8; Jephthah in ch. 11; and Samson in chs. 13–16). While the pattern of apostasy continues (esp. 4:1–3), Deborah distinguishes herself as the most godly of all the judges; it is ironic that the most distinguished judge was a woman (4:8–9). She was a prophet (4:4) and "a mother in Israel" (5:7), and many sought out her judicial decisions at the "palm of Deborah" (4:5). She instructed Barak in the conduct of the battle (4:9, 14) and led in the victory song in ch. 5, where she figures prominently (5:7, 12, 15). Deborah's actions and words consistently pointed to God, not away from him, in contrast to the poor choices of judges like Gideon, Jephthah, and Samson.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 4:1–24 Victory over the Canaanites. This section describes Israel's remarkable victory over the more powerful Canaanites (see map).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 4:1–3 Israel again did … evil. Cf. 3:7–8, 12–14.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 4:4–5 Deborah is called a prophetess, one of five such women in the OT (cf. Miriam [Ex. 15:20]; Huldah [2 Kings 22:14]; Isaiah's wife [Isa. 8:3]; and Noadiah [a false prophetess; Neh. 6:14]). Deborah functioned as a civil leader (Judg. 4:6–10; 5:7) and as a judge who decided cases (4:4–5). She lived in southern Ephraim, near Judah.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 4:6–9 Has not the LORD, the God of Israel, commanded you? Deborah did not lead the army herself, but challenged Barak, a man, to do so (see also v. 14); a woman would not normally be a military leader in Israel. In response, Barak summoned the tribes of Israel and led the army (see vv. 10, 14, 15, 16, 22). At least six tribes participated in the battle: Naphtali and Zebulun (v. 6), Ephraim, Benjamin, Manasseh (Machir), and Issachar (5:14–15). This is the nearest thing to an "all-Israelite" coalition in the book. To his discredit, Barak hesitated to lead the Israelites in battle (4:8). Thus, Deborah agreed to go with him but predicted that the glory for the battle would go to a woman (see note on 5:24–27).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 4:11 The introduction of Heber, Jael's husband, anticipates vv. 17–22. The Kenites were distantly related to the Israelites (see note on 1:16).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 4:13 900 chariots of iron. Sisera's army was very impressive: chariots were swift, maneuverable weapons of war, the ancient equivalent of tanks (see note on 1:19). However, the chariots got mired in the river Kishon (see 5:19–22).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 4:17–24 The story of Sisera's death by the hand of Jael is detailed in a slow, suspenseful manner reminiscent of the story of Ehud's killing of Eglon (3:12–30). God himself is credited with subduing Jabin, a process that took some time to complete (4:23–24).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:1–31 Deborah and Barak's Victory Song. The victory song of Deborah and Barak praises God for his triumph over the Canaanites on Israel's behalf and reviews the events of the victory (cf. the Song of Moses and Miriam in Ex. 15:1–21).

Deborah and Barak Defeat the Canaanites

When King Jabin of Hazor began to oppress the Israelites, Deborah called upon Barak from Kedesh-naphtali to fight against him. The Israelite forces gathered at Mount Tabor, and Sisera, the commander of Jabin's army, marched his men to the Kishon River. The Israelites defeated Sisera's forces and chased them all the way back to Harosheth-hagoyim, but Sisera fled on foot to the oak at Zaanannim, where a woman named Jael killed him as he rested in her tent.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:1 sang. This verb is a feminine singular form (i.e., "she sang"), which emphasizes Deborah's role and her prominence over Barak (cf. 4:8–9).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:2 leaders took the lead. The Hebrew is difficult. While the esv translation is the most likely sense, an alternative proposal is that the word translated “leaders” may literally mean, “the long-haired ones” or “the hairy ones,” with the verb translated “took the lead” being “to let [hair] hang loose.” offered themselves willingly. All the people gladly cooperated (cf. v. 9). This verb (Hb. nadab) is related to the noun for “freewill offerings” (Hb. nedabah), which were one of three types of offerings making up the “peace offerings” (Lev. 7:16; 22:23). bless the LORD! Cf. Judg. 5:9.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:4–5 The Lord’s marching from Seir and Edom likely refers to God’s transferring his “abode” from the wilderness to Canaan (by way of the land of Edom; cf. Num. 10:12; 20:22)—from one mountain (Sinai; Judg. 5:5) to another (Zion; Ps. 2:6).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:6–8 Before Deborah arose as a deliverer, life as it had been known ceased when Israel silently submitted to its enemies. a mother in Israel. A title of honor and respect. new gods. Cf. 10:14.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:10–11 All classes of society were to bear witness to the mighty acts of God, from the ruling classes (those riding on white donkeys) to the lowest classes (those who walk by the way, i.e., along the road). Watering places were public places where the entire community gathered.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:13–18 After the call to worship (vv. 10–12), the text offers a general battle overview (v. 13) and then describes the tribes’ participation (vv. 14–18). Ten of the 12 tribes are mentioned here. Five of them (and part of a sixth) are mentioned favorably because they responded to Deborah’s and Barak’s call to arms: Ephraim, Benjamin, western Manasseh (Machir) (v. 14), Zebulun (vv. 14, 18), Issachar (v. 15), and Naphtali (v. 18). Four tribes (and the other part of Manasseh) did not respond to the summons: Reuben (vv. 15–16), Gad and eastern Manasseh (Gilead), Dan, and Asher (v. 17). Judah and Simeon are not mentioned at all in chs. 4–5. Dan’s connection with ships (5:17) probably reflects the tribe’s original inheritance along the south-central coastal plain, with access to the sea (Josh. 19:40–46). Later, the tribe migrated northward, forced out of its territory (Josh. 19:47; Judg. 1:34; 18:1).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:19–23 The victory proper is now described in vivid, impressionistic terms. the stars fought … against Sisera (cf. 4:15: “the LORD routed Sisera”). The imagery suggests that the forces of nature fought on God’s side (and thus Canaanite deities, who supposedly ruled over these forces, were powerless to help against the true God). The frantic pounding of the horses’ hoofs suggests the disarray caused by the waters of the Kishon (5:21–22; cf. 4:7).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:24–27 Most blessed of women. Jael is a heroine for killing Sisera (see 4:17–22). Between her feet he sank, he fell. Chapter 4 tells us that Sisera already was lying down, asleep, when Jael struck him (4:21). The poem is probably speaking metaphorically, repeating graphic, emotive language to make its point, namely, that a woman triumphed over this great warrior.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:28–30 The mother of Sisera is a pitiable figure, but these verses highlight Jael's achievement: rather than bringing great plunder to impress his women, Sisera lay dead at another woman's feet. A womb or two. A crude reference to captured women.

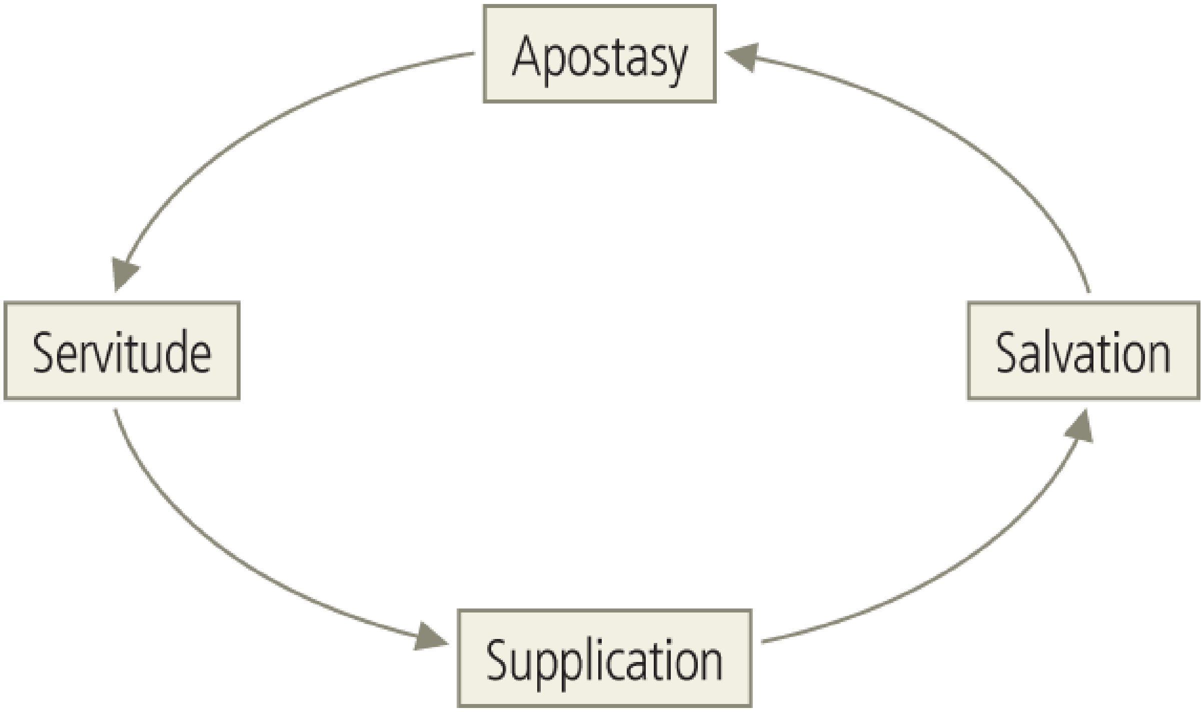
JUDGES—NOTE ON 5:31 The hymn concludes with more praise of the Lord, as many psalms do. the land had rest for forty years. See note on 3:11.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:1–8:35 Gideon. The fifth judge was Gideon, who fought the Midianites (6:1–6) twice, first following God's instructions (7:1–8:3) and the second time on his own initiative (8:4–21). Before Gideon, Israel's apostasy had grown worse, so when the people cried out, God sent a prophet to condemn them for their covenant infidelity (6:7–10). After Gideon defeated Midian, however, he led the people of Israel into sin (8:22–28). The Israelites turned upon each other for the first time (8:16–17; cf. 9:23–54), foreshadowing later, even worse dissension (12:1–6; ch. 20). Despite God's continued intervention, and even some positive qualities in Gideon, the downward spiral in Israel's apostasy continued.

Common Cycle for Each Judge

God's sending of judges to Israel repeatedly followed a fourfold cycle:
I. apostasy: the Israelites do what is evil in the sight of the Lord;
II. servitude: God allows the nation to be conquered and oppressed by a neighboring nation;
III. supplication: the people cry out to God; and
IV. salvation: God sends a judge to deliver the Israelites.

The cycle then repeats after the judge dies.



Cycles of Good and Bad under the Judges (2:11–16:31)

View this chart online at http://kindle.esvsb.org/c69

Pattern	Outline	Othniel	Ehud	Deborah	Gideon	Jephthah	Samson
Apostasy	2:11–13	3:7	3:12a	4:1	6:1a	10:6	13:1a
Servitude	2:14–15	3:8	3:12b–14	4:2	6:1b–6a	10:7–9	13:16
Supplication and salvation	2:16–18	3:9–11	3:15–31	4:3–24	6:6b–8:28	11:1–33	13:24; 14:19; 15:14b–20

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:1–10 Continuing Apostasy. The familiar pattern of apostasy is resumed here (vv. 1–6). When Israel cried out for deliverance (v. 6), God sent a prophet, not a judge, who condemned Israel (vv. 7–10). God would not be confined to a mechanical "box," responding to any and all Israelite appeals regardless of circumstances.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:5 Locusts devastated land, ate crops, and darkened the skies as they were blown in by the wind (Ex. 10:13–15; cf. Joel 1:4, 15–17; 2:1–11).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:8 The message of the unnamed prophet represents the first time God rebuked the people when they called upon him. The prophet reminded the Israelites of God's faithfulness and their own apostasy.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:11–40 Gideon's Call. God's call of a reluctant Gideon is the focus of the next three accounts. First, the angel of the Lord appeared to him (vv. 11–24); then, Gideon destroyed an altar of Baal (vv. 25–35); finally, Gideon's wavering faith is on full display (vv. 36–40). Gideon's reluctance recalls that of Moses (Exodus 3–4).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:11 the angel of the LORD. See note on 2:1. beating out wheat in the winepress. Grapes were normally trodden in a winepress, a square or circular pit carved into rock (cf. Isa. 16:10; Jer. 48:33), whereas wheat was usually threshed on open threshing floors, where the wind could carry away the chaff in the winnowing process (2 Sam. 24:18). Gideon's secret threshing inside a winepress—when he already had access to a true threshing floor (cf. Judg. 6:37)—shows the desperate straits because of Midianite oppression.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:13 sir. The term is literally "my Lord" (Hb. 'Adoni; see esv footnote). This was a polite form of address (cf. 4:18, where Jael spoke the same words to Sisera). Gideon uses the same term to refer to God in 6:15 ("Lord"; Hb. 'Adonay). the LORD (Hb. YHWH). This is the personal name of God (see note on Gen. 2:4).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:15–16 I am the least. Moses and Jeremiah had similar objections when God called them (Ex. 3:11; Jer. 1:6). I will be with you. This promise of God's presence had also been given to Moses and Joshua (Ex. 3:12; Josh. 1:5, 9), putting Gideon in the same lineage of leaders, with the same guarantee of success. Nonetheless, Gideon had his doubts and fears (cf. Judg. 6:17 and esp. vv. 36–40).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:22 perceived. Lit., "saw" (Hb. ra'ah, translated seen later in the verse). Gideon feared for his life because he had encountered God's angel face to face (cf. Gen. 32:30; Ex. 33:20).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:24 To this day. This expression is common in Joshua and Judges (e.g., Josh. 4:9; 5:9; 6:25; 7:26; Judg. 1:21, 26; 15:19). The Abiezrites were part of the tribe of Manasseh that settled west of the Jordan River (Num. 26:30; Josh. 17:1–2).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:25–26 Asherah may function as both the divine name for a particular goddess or, as in these verses, refer to sacred wooden poles erected at places where she was worshiped (vv. 26, 28, 30; cf. 1 Kings 15:13; 18:19; 2 Kings 17:16). Most frequently, these sacred objects are called "Asherim" (e.g., Ex. 34:13; Deut. 7:5; 12:3; 2 Kings 17:10). and the second bull. There is some debate as to whether Judg. 6:25 refers to one bull or two. The word translated "and" may also be translated "namely," such that the Lord is not indicating a second animal but specifying more clearly to Gideon which bull should be used to tear down the altar and then be sacrificed. Either way, Gideon is instructed to use a bull to topple the altar of Baal, whose symbol was the bull. The need to make such an instruction explicit again shows Gideon's reluctance and slow response (cf. v. 17). wood of the Asherah. Ironically, Gideon's sacrifice was to be offered using the very wood of the image that he was to tear down.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:32 Gideon's new name, Jerubbaal, meant "Let Baal contend," echoing Joash's mockery of those who trusted in Baal (v. 31). With this name, Gideon became a living reminder of Baal's impotence.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:34 Spirit of the LORD clothed. See 1 Chron. 12:18; 2 Chron. 24:20. Other terms for the Spirit's activity in Judges include "was upon" (Judg. 3:10; 11:29) and "rushed upon" (14:6, 19; 15:14). See note on 14:6.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:35 Gideon sent messengers to four northern tribes adjacent to each other—Manasseh, Asher, Zebulun, and Naphtali—prior to the first military encounter in 7:1–8:3.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:36–40 Before the actual military engagement, Gideon again displays his reluctance to be a leader, for he asks for confirmatory signs from God (cf. v. 17). On the one hand, Gideon's fears are understandable: the task he is preparing to do is difficult and dangerous. On the other hand, the angel's appearance and promise (vv. 11–24) already included a confirmatory miracle (v. 21), and Gideon had already begun to obey (vv. 25–27) and to see God's protection (v. 31). In any event, God stoops to Gideon's level and grants the signs requested.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 6:39 let me test. Ironically, this is the same word (Hb. nasah) used of God earlier, when he "tested" Israel (2:22; 3:1). Gideon's desire to test God was in direct violation of the Mosaic law, which prohibited humans from testing God (Deut. 6:16). Gideon himself was aware that he was doing something unwise, if not sinful, since he asked God not to be angry with him (Judg. 6:39). Gideon already knew God's will (cf. vv. 14–16, 36)—calling him to service on behalf of God's people—so Gideon's requests reveal his weak faith. Despite this lack of faith, God accommodated both of Gideon's requests (vv. 38, 40). More constructive examples of responses to God's call are Isaiah (Isa. 6:8) and Jesus' disciples (Matt. 4:20; Mark 1:18–20).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 7:1–8:3 Gideon's First Battle. God clearly delivered Israel in Gideon's first military encounter (see map). The account of Gideon's force reduction from 32,000 to 300 men (7:1–8) emphasizes that God wanted the glory for himself (esp. 7:2, 7). God's assurances of help for Israel were reinforced when Gideon overheard the Midianites speaking of God's triumph (7:9–15). The battle did not significantly involve the Israelites because God provided the victory in a special way (7:16–25). The battle's aftermath shows the resolution of the Ephraimites' misunderstanding of Gideon's intentions (8:1–3).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 7:2 lest Israel boast. God made it clear from the very beginning that the glory for this victory was to be all his. This makes all the more absurd the Israelites' request after the battle that Gideon rule over them because he had supposedly delivered them from the Midianites (cf. 8:22).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 7:3 The Mosaic laws allowed military exemptions for several classes of people, including those who were fearful (Deut. 20:5–8) since they might cause others also to fear.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 7:4–5 Every one who laps … as a dog laps. The second test for reducing Gideon's forces involved a strange ritual: taking into account how men drank water from a brook. Neither way of drinking is singled out as the "right" way, so this may be simply a means of trimming down the number of men rather than a critique of either form of drinking.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 7:10 if you are afraid. God graciously granted to Gideon, who had been reluctant and afraid previously (6:17, 23, 27, 36–40), a preview of the coming victory by allowing him to enter the Midianite camp and overhear a Midianite's dream about Israel's triumph (7:10–14).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 7:13–15 tumbled. This word literally means "turned itself over." The loaf in the dream, symbolizing the sword of Gideon, "overturned" the Midianite camp. The dream provided the confirmation that Gideon needed, in light of his earlier fear (v. 10). he worshiped. This indicates prostrating oneself to the ground in humble obeisance.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 7:18 For the LORD and for Gideon. See note on 7:20.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 7:19 middle watch. Jewish tradition speaks of three nighttime watches (Jubilees 49.10, 12); the "morning watch" is mentioned in Ex. 14:24 and 1 Sam. 11:11. The later division into four watches (Matt. 14:25; Mark 13:35) seems to have been influenced by Roman practice.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 7:20 A sword for the LORD and for Gideon! The full war cry is now uttered in the event of battle (cf. the previews of this in vv. 14, 18). Ironically, no Israelite swords were used at all, only torches, trumpets, and jars—scarcely classic military weapons.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 7:22–25 The victory was clearly God's: he turned the Midianites' swords against them (v. 22), and they fled south and east to the Jordan River and across (vv. 23–25).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:1–3 The Ephraimites complained that they had been called out only belatedly, but Gideon's flattering response had a soothing effect on them.

Gideon Defeats the Midianites

Gideon's small army of 300 men camped by the spring of Harod while the vast Midianite army spread out in the Jezreel Valley by the hill of Moreh. When Gideon's men encircled and surprised the Midianites during the night, the Midianites fled. Gideon's men chased them to Abel-meholah and beyond, passing through Succoth and Penuel on their way to Karkor, where they captured the leaders of the Midianite army.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:4–21 Gideon's Second Battle. Following the Lord's great victory on the Israelites' behalf, Gideon pursued a second military engagement. But the narrative here takes on a different tone. Whereas the Lord is prominently mentioned as the one who orchestrates the victory in the preceding chapter (ch. 7), the presence of the Lord is noticeably absent in this chapter. Even though Gideon was finishing off the action against the Midianites, the portrayal of Gideon in 8:13–21 is far from attractive (cf. his treatment of Succoth and Penuel for their obstruction of his purposes [vv. 13–17], and his reasons for slaying Zebah and Zalmunna, the Midianite kings [vv. 18–21]).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:11–12 Gideon's active involvement in attacking and chasing the enemy contrasts sharply with his and the people's standing by while the Lord gave them the victory in the earlier encounter (see esp. 7:21).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:16–17 Gideon's actions here fulfill his pledges in vv. 7 and 9.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:18–21 The private nature of Gideon's feud with the Midianites is seen most clearly in this conversation, where Zebah and Zalmunna challenged Gideon's manhood, and Gideon responded by killing them himself. Holy war, which is to be fought at God's command for the protection of the whole people, gives no warrant for this kind of personal vengeance.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:22–28 Gideon's Apostasy. Despite God's faithfulness to Gideon, he turns away from the Lord by leading the people into improper worship practices.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:22–23 Rule over us. This request, while understandable from a human perspective, as Gideon may have begun to conduct himself like a king (v. 18), flew directly in the face of the entire narrative up to this moment: it was God (not any human being) who was to get the credit for delivering his people (see note on 7:2). the LORD will rule over you. The Hebrew word order might be paraphrased as, "It is the Lord, and no other, who shall rule over you!" While Gideon's words were theologically correct, his subsequent actions show either that he was only pretending or that he was self-deceived; he appears eventually to have been seduced by the lures of being a king (8:24–28, 31).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:26 Despite Gideon's protest that he would not become a king (see v. 23), the ornamentation of the Midianite kings—the crescent ornaments and the pendants and the purple garments—was now Gideon's.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:27 The original ephod was an ornate ceremonial garment worn by the high priest (Exodus 28; 39; see illustration). It was made of choice materials ornamented with gold and onyx stones. According to the Mosaic law, there was to be only one ephod in Israel, and it was to have a "breastpiece of judgment" (Ex. 28:15–30). The ephod was used to inquire of God (cf. 1 Sam. 14:3; 23:9; 30:7). By setting up another ephod in his own city, Gideon may have been making it his own to use, at his own whim. Ultimately, it became a snare to Gideon and his family, echoing Judg. 2:3. whored. See note on 2:17.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:29–32 Gideon, Father of Abimelech. This transitional unit shows that one of Gideon's most fateful contributions to Israel's future was his son Abimelech, whose violent story is told in ch. 9. for he had many wives. On polygamy, see note on Gen. 16:3 and Marriage and Sexual Morality. Abimelech means "my father is king." Ironically, then, Gideon, who had vigorously proclaimed that he should not be king (see notes on Judg. 8:22–23; 8:26), nevertheless did function as king, even to the point of giving his son such a name.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 8:33–35 Continuing Apostasy. The steady downward cycle of Israel's apostasy continued unabated. Gideon, though he had accomplished some good things, was a significant contributing factor to this downward slide. whored. See note on 2:17. Baal-berith means "Baal of the covenant": Israel made its covenant with one of the Baals, not with its own covenant-keeping God (cf. 9:46). Jerubbaal (that is, Gideon). See note on 6:32.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:1–57 Abimelech, Apostate "King." This is an extended account of Abimelech's violent grab for power. The seeds of his offense are found in Israel's continuing apostasy, in its request for a warrior-king and rejection of the Lord, and in his father Gideon's misdeeds and mistakes.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:1–6 Abimelech's Sordid Rise. Abimelech rose to power by ruthlessly killing his own brothers, with the help of the Shechemites. He was then "made king" at Shechem (v. 6). Jerubbaal. That is, Gideon (see 8:35 and note on 6:32). worthless and reckless fellows. Abimelech's character can be judged by the company that he kept, as can Jephthah's (cf. 11:3).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:7–21 Indictment of Abimelech: Jotham’s Fable. Jotham, the only brother of Abimelech who escaped his murderous rampage, provided a strong indictment of Abimelech’s actions by means of a fable (vv. 7–20). The fable depicts the noble trees of the forest each in turn rejecting the call to kingship, which is finally accepted by the ignoble bramble bush (vv. 8–15). In this context, it is an indictment of the Shechemites (who have chosen the ignoble Abimelech as king), of Abimelech himself, and of the process by which this “king” was chosen (see esp. Jotham’s comments in vv. 16–20). It is not an indictment of the institution of kingship in general, however, since the overall thrust of the book is that a proper king would have been good for Israel.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:7 Mount Gerizim. When Israel had entered the land, they proclaimed the blessings of the covenant from this mountain (Josh. 8:30–35) as Moses had commanded (Deut. 11:26–32). Now Jotham utters curses from this “mountain of blessing” (see note on Judg. 9:20).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:20 let fire come out. Jotham’s challenge to the Shechemites and Abimelech was dramatically resolved when fire from Abimelech devoured a large number of Shechemites and a Shechemite woman killed Abimelech (vv. 49, 54).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:22–55 Abimelech’s Violent Reign and End. The Shechemites and Abimelech deserved each other. Abimelech, who was aided by the Shechemites, was himself now the target of their lawlessness, and discord prevailed between them (vv. 22–25)—a discord that spread into open revolt under Gaal (vv. 26–33). Abimelech was able to quell the revolt, and he razed Shechem (vv. 34–45). He also destroyed the stronghold of Shechem (its tower), burning it with fire (vv. 46–49). Abimelech himself met his end at nearby Thebez (vv. 50–55), where he also attempted to burn its tower but instead was mortally wounded by a stone dropped from it by a woman.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:22 Ruled has the nuance “rule (as prince or commander)”; it is not the more usual word for “rule (as king)” used in 8:22–23. The ignoble Abimelech, who had been “made king” by the people, not by God (9:6), could only “rule” as a secondary commander, not as a true king.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:23 an evil spirit. Cf. the “evil (or harmful) spirit” God sent to Saul (1 Sam. 16:14, 15, 16, 23a, 23b; 18:10; 19:9; see note on 1 Sam. 16:14). Here, the spirit is between Abimelech and the Shechemites, probably “a spirit of ill will” or “a harmful spirit” between the parties. In this way, God himself brought about the estrangement between the two sides.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:45 sowed it with salt. This physical yet symbolic action signified the turning of Shechem into a barren, uninhabitable desert (cf. Deut. 29:23; Job 39:6; Ps. 107:34; Jer. 17:6). It was later rebuilt by Jeroboam (1 Kings 12:25).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:46 El-berith. “El” was the name of a well-known Canaanite god, the father of Baal. The term here is probably another way of referring to the god “Baal-berith” and would mean “El of the covenant” (see note on 8:33–35).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:51 strong tower (cf. 8:17; 9:46–49). The foundations of a square tower (38 feet/12 m sq.) from this period were found at the site of Giloh (see Josh. 15:51; 2 Sam. 15:12). The tower was well-built, having been constructed of large, roughly hewn stones.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:54 kill me. Being killed or bested by a woman was a disgrace to a warrior. See notes on 4:6–9; 5:24–27.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 9:56–57 Final Verdict on Abimelech. Abimelech was not a true king; the institution of a valid monarchy in Israel would have to await a later time. God actively opposed Abimelech, in return for the evil he had done in killing his brothers. The “evil” (Hb. ra‘ah) spirit sent by God to effect the discord (v. 23) led directly to God’s repaying the “wickedness” (Hb. ra‘ah) of Abimelech and the Shechemites (vv. 56–57). The fire that was a sign of Abimelech’s poor choice (vv. 15, 20) brought the downfall of Shechem and Abimelech (vv. 49, 52), and these two devoured each other, as Jotham’s fable had foretold.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 10:1–2 Tola. Tola was the sixth judge, the second “minor” judge (that is, one about whom little is recorded; Shamgar was the first), and he judged 23 years. He arose to save Israel (v. 1), which it needed after Abimelech’s tyranny. This brief account echoes that of Deborah’s early activity (cf. esp. 4:4–5; 5:7).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 10:3–5 Jair. Jair was the seventh judge, the third minor judge, and he judged 22 years. He was rather wealthy (v. 4), and lived in Transjordan (Gilead), the same area as the next judge, Jephthah (11:1). His 30 sons (cf. 12:8–10) form a sharp contrast to Jephthah’s ultimate childlessness.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 10:6–12:7 Jephthah. Jephthah was the eighth judge, and his is the third extended account of a judge's activity (after Deborah and Gideon). Jephthah freed Israel from the Ammonite burden, but he made a foolish vow that led to a personal tragedy.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 10:6–18 Apostasy and Distress. The introduction restates the themes in ch. 2 about Israel's apostasy and God's mercy. A new theme emerges, however, concerning the Israelites' confession and repentance (10:10, 15–16).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 10:6 The references to seven groupings of foreign gods (cf. the seven nations in vv. 11–12) shows the wide scope of Israel's apostasy. Not only did they worship the major Canaanite deities (Baal, Asherah, Ashtoreth; see notes on 2:13; 3:7; 6:25–26), but also, apparently, the gods of any people with whom they came into contact.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 10:7 Philistines … Ammonites. The next two major judges were God's instruments against the Ammonites (Jephthah) and the Philistines (Samson).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 10:14 gods whom you have chosen. Cf. v. 6. The Israelites had also "chosen" new gods in Deborah's time (5:8).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 10:16 he became impatient over the misery of Israel. Many scholars see this as a reference to God's great mercy and his capacity to be moved by Israel's misery and repentance (cf. 2:18). Another interpretation is that it is Israel's unfaithfulness, the cause of their misery, that makes God impatient. This would indicate that Israel's "repentance" here was only a superficial one.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:1–3 Introduction to Jephthah. Like Jair (10:3), Jephthah was from Gilead. He was a "mighty warrior," but his illegitimacy caused his half brothers to expel him from his father's house. Like Abimelech (9:4), he attracted "worthless fellows" (11:3; cf. 2 Chron. 13:7), which did not bode well for his future; indeed, God did not "raise" him up (see note on Judg. 11:6). This is unlike the band of distressed men that David attracted, to whom he gave good leadership (see note on 1 Sam. 22:2).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:4–11 Jephthah's Commissioning. After some negotiation, Jephthah was commissioned by the people—but not, apparently, by God—as “head” and “leader” (v. 11) over Israel.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:6 Come and be our leader. God did not “raise up” Jephthah, as he had raised up previous judges (3:9, 15; 4:6; 6:14). Now, for the first time, a leader was commissioned by the people, without seeking God’s approval—another sign of their increasing apostasy.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:8 that you may go with us and fight. Cf. the language later used by the Israelites to ask Samuel for a king: “that our king may … go out before us and fight” (1 Sam. 8:20). In both cases, even though God acquiesced, the request was inappropriate. God, not any judge or any king, was to be Israel’s prime warrior.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:11 Jephthah spoke all his words before the LORD. Jephthah represented a strange mixture of faith and foolishness. While he acknowledged God (cf. vv. 21, 23, 27, 30–31; 12:3), overall his foolishness seemed to outstrip his faith (see note on 11:31).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:12–28 Diplomatic Discussions. The negotiations between Jephthah and the Ammonites consisted largely of an impressive speech by Jephthah, answering the Ammonite charge (v. 13) that Israel had unlawfully seized the territory currently disputed. Jephthah asserted that “the LORD, the God of Israel,” himself was the one who dispossessed these peoples from before Israel (vv. 21, 23, 24) and that Israel was not an aggressor (v. 15) but merely a recipient of the Lord’s generosity. The Ammonites had brought this upon themselves by hindering Israel, thus prompting God’s help in dispossessing them (Israel was not to take Ammonite land, since God had expressly forbidden it; Deut. 2:19). However, Sihon, king of the Amorites, had taken some of what was Moabite/Ammonite territory, and then Israel had taken this and other territory of Sihon (see Num. 21:25–26). The Ammonites, if they had indeed been involved at all, deserved what they had coming. Furthermore, the Ammonites never really had true claim to the land to begin with; rather, it was the land of the Amorites (Judg. 11:19–22). Finally, it was a little late to be challenging Israel’s claim to the land in any case, since 300 years had passed since the events in question (v. 26). Jephthah ended his speech with an appeal to God to judge between the two disputants.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:17–22 The review of the past refers to events in the wilderness recounted in Num. 20:14–21. all the territory. The limits of the Amorites' land, precisely what the Ammonites claimed was theirs in Judg. 11:13 (cf. Num. 21:24).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:24 Chemosh was the Moabites' god (1 Kings 11:7, 33); elsewhere, the Ammonites' god was Molech (1 Kings 11:7) or Milcom (1 Kings 11:5, 33; 2 Kings 23:13). However, Ammon and Moab were closely associated (cf. Judg. 11:15; cf. Deut. 2:18–19; 23:3–5; Judg. 3:12–13), as both were descended from Lot (Gen. 19:37, 38). The two nations likely shared cultural and religious heritages, and Chemosh may have been considered stronger than Molech/Milcom.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:26 300 years. If the exodus took place c. 1440 B.C. (the "early date"), with the conquest of Palestine beginning about 1400, then Jephthah's speech would fall around 1106 B.C. (However, "300 years" may be a round number, giving an approximate date.) If the exodus took place c. 1260 B.C. (the "late date"), then Jephthah's number is either inaccurate or a generalization indicating simply seven or eight generations (see note on 1 Kings 6:1). See The Date of the Exodus.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:29–40 Victory and Jephthah's Foolish Vow. The conflict with the Ammonites reached its peak with their defeat by Jephthah (vv. 29, 32–33; see map). However, the climax of the Jephthah narrative centers upon his rash vow (vv. 30–31, 34–40). In order to gain God's favor, he promised to sacrifice whatever came out of his house upon his victorious return. This reflected a misguided application of the principle of offering to God the best of one's treasure. Theoretically, a vow to make a burnt offering was valid: cf. Lev. 22:18–20, which also specifies what is a valid offering. The tragic result of Jephthah's vow was the sacrifice of his only child, a daughter (see note on Judg. 11:39).

Jephthah Defeats the Ammonites

Jephthah was called upon by the leaders of Gilead to fight against the Ammonites, who were oppressing the Israelites in Gilead, Ephraim, Benjamin, and Judah. After Jephthah defeated the Ammonites, the men of Ephraim became angry that they had not been called to join the battle, and they gathered to fight Jephthah at Zaphon. Jephthah's men, however, defeated the Ephraimites and killed them as they tried to return to their homes across the Jordan River.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:29 the Spirit of the LORD was upon. See note on 14:6.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:31 whatever comes out. The wording here would indicate that Jephthah intended to offer some animal as a burnt offering. However, the grammar also allows for "whoever" (see esv footnote), in which case Jephthah would have intended to offer a human sacrifice all along. If so, what surprised him was not that he had to sacrifice a person, but that it was his daughter. Human sacrifice was strictly forbidden in Israel (Lev. 18:21; 20:2; Deut. 12:31; 18:10; Jer. 19:5; Ezek. 20:30–31; 23:37, 39). Yet, Jephthah's foolishness impelled him to make such a vow and apparently to follow through with this abomination (see note on Judg. 11:39).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:35 I cannot take back my vow. Vows were solemn affairs, made only to God. People were not forced to take them, but, if they did, they had to be kept, under normal circumstances (Deut. 23:21–23; Ps. 15:4; Eccles. 5:4–5). But any vow that would end in sin was not binding; keeping it could not please God, and the Levitical laws provided for such instances (Lev. 5:4–6). Human sacrifice was an abomination, and Jephthah should not have followed through with killing his daughter.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 11:39 who did with her according to his vow. Most likely this means Jephthah literally sacrificed his daughter as a burnt offering. However, another interpretation is that Jephthah dedicated his daughter to perpetual virginity, as a figurative sacrifice (cf. references to her uniqueness [v. 34] and virginity [vv. 37–40]). This would be a tragedy for her, as she would bear no children; but it would also be tragic for Jephthah, whose line would come to an end. Some support for this comes from Jephthah's speech in vv. 12–28, which shows enough grasp of Israel's history that he might well have stopped short of literally sacrificing his own child.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 12:1–7 Jephthah's Conflict with Ephraim. This episode recalls Ephraim's earlier challenge to Gideon (8:1–3). In the first incident, Gideon was able to pacify Ephraim, whereas in the second, Jephthah did not, and a civil war erupted. The Ephraimites were defeated, and they never again played any important role in Israel's history.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 12:6 Shibboleth … Sibboleth. The Gileadites devised a test to catch the Ephraimites using an insignificant word—it means either "a flowing stream" or "an ear of grain"—that was difficult for outsiders to pronounce correctly. In modern English usage, "Shibboleth" may refer to words, expressions, ideas, or beliefs used by "insiders" to detect "outsiders." The terrible tragedy is that Israel is again turning upon itself in internal strife (cf. 8:17).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 12:8–10 Ibzan. Ibzan was the ninth judge. He was distinguished for marrying his 30 sons and his 30 daughters to outsiders (v. 9). In contrast to Jephthah, left childless by his own actions, the judges who immediately preceded and followed him—Jair and Ibzan—both had 30 sons (see 10:4).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 12:11–12 Elon. Elon was the tenth judge, but nothing of significance is reported about him other than the length of his rule (ten years).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 12:13–15 Abdon. Abdon was the eleventh judge; he, like Jair and Ibzan, had many children, and he too was rather wealthy.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 13:1–16:31 Samson. Samson was the twelfth and last judge; he lived around the beginning of the eleventh century B.C., about 50 years before Saul became king. His strength was unparalleled. Rather than lead an army, he battled the Philistines single-handedly. He was a deeply flawed hero whose life was unduly entangled with the people against whom he fought. He violated a number of the Ten Commandments, as well as his Nazirite vow (see note on 13:5–7). Samson embodied in his own tragic-heroic life the traits that Israel exhibited during this period. While he was used of God for deliverance, and while he even called upon God on occasion to help him (15:18; 16:28, 30), his life was nevertheless one of continued unfaithfulness, just like that of the nation he judged.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 13:1–25 The Birth of Samson. Samson's story opens with the typical statement about Israel's apostasy (v. 1; cf. 3:7, 12; 4:1; 6:1; 10:6), but the rest of ch. 13 is a lengthy and atypical introduction to Samson. It details the encounter between Samson's parents and the angel of the Lord, who announced Samson's birth and mission. Clearly, Samson was to be used by God against the Philistines (14:4), even if, in his own life, he did not follow God's instructions.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 13:3 the angel of the LORD (see note on 2:1). The angel's appearance was awesome (v. 6), but his essential character was not to be revealed (vv. 6, 17–18).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 13:5–7 Any man or woman could take a vow to become a Nazirite, to separate himself or herself to God (see Numbers 6). It was to be voluntary (Num. 6:2), for a limited time (Num. 6:5, 8, 13, 20), and involved three provisions: (1) abstinence from wine, strong drink, or anything associated with the vine (Num. 6:3–4); (2) no cutting of the hair (Num. 6:5); and (3) no contact with the dead (Num. 6:6–8). If a person became unclean, there were elaborate cleansing rituals (Num. 6:9–21). Three things are unusual concerning Samson and this vow. First, he did not take it voluntarily; it was his lot from the womb (Judg. 13:5, 7). Second, it was not limited in time; it was to last to the day of his death (vv. 5, 7; cf. 1 Sam. 1:11; Luke 1:15 for similar situations). Third, he broke every one of its stipulations: his head was sheared (Judg. 16:17, 19); he associated with the dead (14:6–9; 15:15); and he undoubtedly drank at his wedding feast (14:10–20; see note on 14:10).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 13:5 begin to save Israel. Samson's successes were only for a time, since the Philistines were still adversaries of Israel in the days of Samuel, Saul, and David.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 13:6 A man of God designates prophets elsewhere in the OT (e.g., Deut. 33:1; 1 Sam. 2:27; 1 Kings 17:18). At first, Samson's mother may have thought she was dealing with a prophet, but she quickly realized this was someone greater.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 13:18 The angel's name was too wonderful to comprehend, so he does not reveal it to Samson's parents.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 13:22 we have seen God. Manoah's fears echo those of Gideon on encountering the angel of the Lord (see 6:22; cf. Gen. 32:30; Ex. 33:20).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 13:25 the Spirit of the LORD began to stir him. God's Spirit was pushing Samson toward the work that God wanted him to do (cf. 14:4). See note on 14:6.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:1–16:31 Samson's exploits fall into two segments (14:1–15:20; 16:1–31), each climaxing with a mass destruction of Philistines, followed by a comment about his judging. Within these are 10 feats of strength and heroism, five in each segment (see chart). In three of these, the Spirit of the Lord "rushed upon him" (feats 1, 2, and 5). Perhaps significantly, this did not happen in the second segment (ch. 16), when Samson was acting more on his own and increasingly falling out of touch with God (culminating with the Lord leaving him completely [v. 20]).

Samson's Exploits

The Philistines ruled over Israel during Samson's lifetime, and Samson was raised up by God to begin to deliver Israel from them. Samson's marriage to a Philistine woman in Timnah led to a number of encounters with the Philistines, often resulting in their harm at Samson's hand.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:1–15:20 Samson and the Philistines, Part 1. These episodes recount Samson's marriage to a Philistine woman and the resulting cycle of offense and retaliation. Marriages with unbelieving foreigners were prohibited for Israelites (Ex. 34:16; Deut. 7:3; cf. Gen. 24:2–3; 26:34–35), and Samson's demand for a wife (Judg. 14:2–3) was against the tradition in which a marriage was arranged by the parents (Gen. 24:1–4; 38:6). Despite this, and despite the mostly sinful life he led, God intended to use Samson for his own purposes (Judg. 14:4).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:1 Timnah is located at modern Tel Batash, which lies in the Shephelah (foothills) near the southern bank of the Nahal (or dry river bed) Sorek. Excavations here have uncovered a thriving Philistine city during the period of the Judges (Early Iron Age) with impressive fortifications constructed of mud-brick on stone.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:3 uncircumcised Philistines. Cf. 15:18; 1 Sam. 14:6; 17:26, 36; 31:4; 2 Sam. 1:20; 1 Chron. 10:4. she is right in my eyes (cf. Judg. 14:7). This self-centered demand contrasts with being “right in the Lord’s eyes” (cf. Deut. 6:18; 12:25), and foreshadows the negative conclusions concerning the entire era, that everyone did what was right in their own eyes (Judg. 17:6; 18:1; 19:1; 21:25).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:4 it was from the LORD. Despite Israel’s apostasy and Samson’s unsavory life, God would use Samson for his own purposes. (Cf. 13:16; 16:20 for similar comments.)

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:5–20 At his wedding feast, Samson told his 30 companions a riddle based on a feat of strength he had displayed. When they could not solve it, they enlisted his wife’s help and she extracted the answer. In his rage at this trickery, Samson killed 30 Philistines to obtain the garments he owed his companions. In his absence, his wife was given to his best man.

Samson’s Ten Feats of Strength and Heroism

Part 1: Three mentions of the “Spirit of the LORD”
1. The killing of the lion	14:5–9	“The Spirit of the LORD rushed upon him” (14:6).
2. The killing of 30 Philistines	14:19	“The Spirit of the LORD rushed upon him” (14:19).
3. The burning of the fields	15:4–6
4. Another slaughter of the Philistines	15:7–8
5. Escape from ropes and killing of 1,000 Philistines	15:14–17	“The Spirit of the LORD rushed upon him” (15:14).
Part 2: No mention of the “Spirit of the LORD”
6. The Gaza-gate incident	16:3
7. Escape from the bowstrings	16:9
8. Escape from the new ropes	16:12
9. Escape from the loom	16:14
10. Final destruction of 3,000 Philistines	16:28–30

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:6 the Spirit of the LORD rushed upon him. The OT speaks many times of God’s Spirit acting upon individuals, usually to empower them for some service for the whole people of God. In Judges this is described by the Spirit being upon (Othniel, 3:10; Jephthah, 11:29), clothing (Gideon, 6:34), stirring (Samson, 13:25), or rushing upon someone (Samson, 14:6, 19; 15:14; cf. Saul, 1 Sam. 10:6, 10; 11:6; David, 1 Sam. 16:13). See note on 1 Sam. 10:6.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:8–9 carcass of the lion. Samson's contact with the dead lion violated his Nazirite vow (cf. 13:5).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:10 a feast (Hb. mishteh). This word denotes a feast that especially includes alcohol, another violation of Samson's Nazirite vow (cf. 13:5).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:14 Samson's riddle (Hb. khidah) is the best example of a riddle in Scripture. Other examples include the queen of Sheba's "hard questions" (same Hebrew word, khidah) for Solomon (1 Kings 10:1) and Daniel's ability "to interpret dreams, explain riddles, and solve problems" (Dan. 5:12).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:15 fourth day. The Hebrew text has "seventh day" (cf. v. 18); the esv reading is based on Greek and Syriac versions (see esv footnote). The difference is only one letter in Hebrew, which could easily have been miscopied by a scribe in an early manuscript. "Fourth" fits better with the immediate context (v. 14 mentions three days of futile guessing about the riddle).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 14:18 If you had not plowed with my heifer. This may have been a saying in Samson's time (heifers were occasionally used for plowing; cf. Deut. 21:3). Here, it is a coarse reference to their manipulation of Samson's wife.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 15:1 a young goat. Tamar required the same gift of Judah before she would consent to sexual relations with him (Gen. 38:17).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 15:4 It is possible that the animals were not foxes but jackals, which were more common in Palestine. The two animals look similar, and the same Hebrew word (shu'al) is used for both. Whereas foxes are solitary, jackals travel in packs, and thus 300 of them could be caught more easily. Both animals have long tails that could be tied together.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 15:6 burned her … with fire. The Philistines retaliated by killing Samson's wife and her father by burning them alive. Ironically, this was the very fate she was attempting to avoid by extracting from Samson the answer to his riddle (14:15).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 15:8 he struck them hip and thigh. The exact meaning of this idiom is obscure. Perhaps Samson left his enemies in a tangled jumble of legs and thighs. The expression may have originated in the art of wrestling, where brute strength like Samson's would obviously have been an advantage.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 15:14–15 Spirit of the LORD. See note on 14:6. fresh jawbone. Presumably the advantage of this weapon was that it would not have been dry and brittle, hence there was no danger of its breaking.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 15:17 Ramath-lehi. See ESV footnote; cf. Lehi in vv. 9, 14, 19.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 15:18–19 uncircumcised. See note on 14:3. to this day. See note on 6:24.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 15:20 Cf. 16:31. Both sections of the Samson stories (14:1–15:20; 16:1–31) end with a notice of Samson's judging Israel for twenty years.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:1–31 Samson and the Philistines, Part 2. The second segment of the Samson stories details his fateful involvement with yet two more Philistine women—a prostitute (vv. 1–3) and Delilah (vv. 4–22)—and his final revenge on the Philistines and their god (vv. 23–31). Significantly, the Spirit of the Lord is nowhere mentioned in this chapter. Finally the Lord departs from him (v. 20), and Samson's miraculous strength is gone.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:1 prostitute. Hebrew has two words for prostitutes. One (qadesh) refers to "cultic prostitutes" who served pagan gods (Gen. 38:21–22; Deut. 23:17; 1 Kings 14:24). The word here (zonah) signifies a second type, the common, "secular" variety (cf. Gen. 38:15).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:2–3 at the gate. Gates from this period, the Early Iron Age, were elaborate complexes, at least two stories high, with guardrooms flanking a narrow opening. The two posts were set deep in the ground to support the doors. the hill that is in front of Hebron. The ancient route connecting Hebron and Gaza was a journey of c. 40 miles (64 km).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:4–22 Delilah coordinated her actions with the "lords" of the Philistines to bring down Samson. She persisted and finally succeeded in persuading him to reveal the source of his amazing strength. When he broke the final Nazirite stipulation by allowing his hair to be cut, the Lord left him (v. 20) and he was captured.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:4–5 Delilah was the third Philistine woman with whom Samson had become entangled (cf. 14:1; 16:1). came up to her and said. Cf. 14:15.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:7–9 In the first test of Samson's strength, the seven fresh bowstrings, made of animal gut, were weaker than dried and aged strings. Samson's suggestion of these inadequate bonds shows his contempt for his adversaries, and their credulity indicates their haste to capture him. thread of flax. See 15:14.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:11 new ropes. In the second test, Samson toyed with the Philistines, suggesting that they use the same bonds that the men of Judah had previously found to be worthless (see 15:13).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:13–14 seven locks of my head. The third test, involving Samson's hair, got closer to the true source of his strength. Made them tight with the pin translates the same Hebrew phrase that was used when Jael drove a tent peg into Sisera's head (4:21). The exact scenario here is unclear, but Samson obviously had no trouble escaping once more. Samson, like Sisera, was unwary in the presence of a woman, naively not suspecting her of posing any danger.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:16 she pressed him. Delilah did precisely what Samson's wife had done earlier (14:17). Samson's weak character shows through again: he did not learn from his previous mistake, but yielded in both cases.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:18 told her all his heart. Delilah knew that Samson was finally telling the truth. Earlier, he had withheld his heart from her (v. 15).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:20–21 the LORD had left him. See note on 14:4. gouged out his eyes. The practice of blinding an enemy and then forcing him to grind grain at a mill is known from ancient Near Eastern texts (e.g., the Tapikka Letters, from a 14th century B.C. Hittite administrative city). The Philistines may have adopted this practice from the Hittites.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:22 the hair of his head began to grow again. There was no magical power in Samson's hair, for his strength came only from the Lord (14:6, 19; 15:14; 16:20). But the growth of his hair indicates that God was renewing his previous power (cf. vv. 17, 19–20). Samson may also have begun to renew his faith (cf. v. 28).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:23–27 Despite Samson's humiliation, his life ended with vindication. His hair grew back (v. 22), and he slaughtered 3,000 Philistines (v. 27), more than he had killed previously (v. 30).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:28–30 Samson demonstrated a measure of faith by calling upon God and believing that God could and would help him (cf. Heb. 11:32). However, Samson seems to have desired God's intervention more for personal revenge than for the protection of God's people. two middle pillars. A temple from the period of the judges has been unearthed at the Philistine site of Tell Qasile. It was built with two central pillars to support the roof of the entire structure, a design distinct from either Canaanite or Israelite temples.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 16:31 The main body of the book of Judges now ends, with a final editorial comment about Samson's judging. Samson, the last judge, had been empowered by God's Spirit, just as the first (Othniel) had been. However, much had happened in the interim. Samson and most of his predecessors certainly were not paragons of virtue. Yet, despite the generally poor examples of the judges themselves, God had worked to deliver Israel and to protect his own name and reputation. But the book's message is not yet played out. In the following chapters, the nation's apostasy sinks to even deeper levels, and the stage is set for the coming of a faithful king who will restore moral order.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 17:1–21:25 The Depths of Israel's Apostasy. The book of Judges closes with two sections (chs. 17–18 and 19–21) characterized by the statements, "In those days there was no king in Israel" (17:6; 18:1; 19:1; 21:25) and, "everyone did what was right in his own eyes" (17:6; 21:25). Whereas chs. 2–16 describe external threats to Israel, chs. 17–21 describe internal threats to religious worship and tribal unity. The most sordid and tragic stories in the book are found here, for the ultimate depths of Israel's apostasy have now been reached. The message is that if Israel had had a godly king functioning as a king should (Deut. 17:18–20), things would have been better.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 17:1–18:31 Religious Corruption. The first concluding section (cf. note on 17:1–21:25) depicts Micah's establishment of his own private shrine, featuring an attendant priest, and tells of the Danites' migration, during which they took Micah’s priest and the symbols of his shrine away from him.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 17:1–6 Religious Corruption of a Household. These verses depict a thieving son and an unusually forgiving mother who commit apostasy together.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 17:3–4 a carved image. Such images are mentioned in the Ten Commandments (Ex. 20:4). They were normally carved from wood or chiseled out of rock but sometimes made from a mold (cf. Isa. 40:19; 44:10). a metal image. Cf. 2 Kings 17:16. Micah’s mother approved of his making these images, showing how God’s people sometimes are tempted to mix elements of true worship with practices unacceptable to God. This is another consequence of the Israelites’ lack of good leadership. The house of Micah was a compound consisting of multiple housing units for travelers and relatives (cf. Judg. 18:2). Similar complexes, including two or more attached houses, have been uncovered by excavations at Ai and Khirbet Raddana.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 17:5 a shrine. Lit., “a house of God.” This was a perversion of the true sanctuary where worship was to take place (cf. “the house of God” at Shiloh in 18:31). Micah also made an ephod (cf. 8:27) and various household gods (cf. Gen. 31:19); these are later condemned as idolatry (1 Sam. 15:23). Micah further violated the Mosaic law by appointing his own son as his private priest, an office meant not for private but for public service. Furthermore, he was not descended from Aaron (as the priests were supposed to be), nor was he even a Levite (cf. Ex. 28:1; 40:12–15; Num. 16:39–40; 17:8).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 17:6 no king in Israel. See Introduction: Purpose, Occasion, and Background (cf. 18:1; 19:1; 21:25). right in his own eyes (cf. 21:25). The verse is an editorial comment on the nation’s apostasy. People were doing whatever they wanted, as opposed to what was right in the Lord’s eyes (cf. 14:3).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 17:7–13 Religious Corruption of a Levite. Micah meets a Levite and lures him into serving as a private priest by offering him a fine salary and a safe house.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 17:9 Levite of Bethlehem. This Levite had been living as a sojourner, a resident alien, in Judah. The Levites did not have their own tribal territory, but they had 48 cities, scattered among the other tribes (Joshua 21). However, Bethlehem was not one of those cities, and this Levite was only too happy to settle in Micah’s household in Ephraim and become his private priest, displacing Micah’s son (Judg. 17:10–11; see note on v. 5).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 18:1–31 Religious Corruption of a Tribe. A band of treacherous men from the tribe of Dan offer the Levite (see note on 17:9) more money and prestige to be their priest, so he joins them. A whole tribe now sins like Micah’s family did.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 18:1 no king in Israel. See Introduction: Purpose, Occasion, and Background (cf. 17:6; 19:1; 21:25). Dan was seeking … an inheritance. The Danites had been unable to settle in their allotted territory (Josh. 19:40–47), as they had failed to capture it earlier (Judg. 1:34–35).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 18:2–4 Zorah … Eshtaol. These towns were located in the Judean lowlands approximately 15 miles (24 km) west of Jerusalem. The fact that the Danites send men who lodged there with Micah to spy out the land, recalls similar events with Rahab and the spies in Josh. 2:1.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 18:5–6 Their request, regarding whether the journey … will succeed, echoes the language of Joshua, where the “prosperous way” is defined in terms of devotion to God’s word (Josh. 1:8). Given the highly negative tone of Judges 17–21 and future events in this particular narrative (18:30), it is difficult to take seriously their desire to inquire of God. The statement, under the eye of the LORD, captures the ambiguity of the priest’s response. The future actions of the Danites may have been seen by God, but that does not mean that they were approved by God.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 18:7 Laish was located about 25 miles (40 km) north of the Sea of Galilee, making the migration of the Danites from Zorah and Eshtaol to Laish about a hundred miles. Laish was renamed Dan (v. 29; see note on 20:1–2), and it was here that Jeroboam set up one of his golden calves (1 Kings 12:29–30). The site was occupied through the Roman period.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 18:12 Kiriath-jearim, a chief city of the Gibeonites (Josh. 9:17), was located approximately 8 miles (13 km) northwest of Jerusalem, though debate continues regarding its precise location.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 18:14–20 ephod, household gods, a carved image, and a metal image. Micah's collection of cultic objects was quite impressive (cf. 17:3–5). Rather than offering condemnation, the Danites took the cultic objects for themselves. a father and a priest. The Danites' words to the Levite were the same as Micah's earlier (17:10). The Danites' offer of more money and prestige, and the Levite's acceptance, are further indications of the period's apostasy. Their plundering of another tribe (18:18, 21) fulfills Jacob's prediction that Dan would deal viciously with others, like a serpent or a viper (Gen. 49:17).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 18:21 As the Danites fled, they placed what they had stolen in front of them, with the warriors behind, as protection against pursuit from Micah's household or neighbors.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 18:30–31 The Levite's name is revealed for the first time (Jonathan), as well as his lineage—apostasy has even infected the house of Moses. Captivity of the land could refer to the Babylonian captivity (587 B.C.), or, since Dan is in the north, to the Assyrian captivity of 722 (or even earlier, when Dan passed into Assyrian control). In any case, the Danites' priest and his descendants served in that role for centuries, and only exile ended the arrangement. Shiloh was destroyed at the end of the period of the judges, c. 1050 B.C. (cf. Ps. 78:60; Jer. 7:12, 14; 26:6).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 19:1–21:24 Moral and Social Corruption. This second concluding section (cf. note on 17:1–21:25) deals with outrageous actions perpetrated at Gibeah against a Levite's concubine and the aftermath of those actions. The story is similar to the assault on Lot's household in Sodom in Genesis 19, placing Gibeah on the same debased plane as Sodom (cf. Gen. 13:13; Deut. 32:32; Isa. 1:10; 3:9). This section is linked with the previous (Judges 17–18) by Levites as protagonists in both (17:7; 19:1); in the first section, a Levite from Bethlehem travels to the hill country of Ephraim, while in the second, a Levite from the hill country of Ephraim travels to Bethlehem to take a concubine. One horror seems to lead inexorably to another, apparently with no way out, as the people's unfaithfulness takes its devastating toll.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 19:1–30 Moral Outrage at Gibeah. These verses recount one of the most sordid stories in the Bible. Rape, murder, and callous indifference lead to the death of an innocent woman and, eventually, to civil war.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 19:1 no king in Israel. See Introduction: Purpose, Occasion, and Background (cf. 17:6; 18:1; 21:25). A concubine was a female servant or slave regarded as part of the family. Her usual function was childbearing to enlarge the family (cf. Abraham's concubine Hagar [Genesis 16]; Jacob's concubines Bilhah and Zilpah [Gen. 30:4–13]). Bethlehem in Judah was also the origin of Micah's priest (Judg. 17:9).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 19:3–9 An elaborate and extended ritual of hospitality is played out here: the Levite stayed in the home of his concubine's father for five days, on the insistent urging of the father. Strict codes of hospitality still play a part in many tribal Near Eastern cultures. The elaborate hospitality described here stands in sharp contrast to what follows in the ensuing episodes.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 19:10–12 Jebus (that is, Jerusalem). Jerusalem was at this time in the hands of the Jebusites and so is referred to as a city of foreigners (see note on 1:8). Gibeah was about 4 miles (6 km) north of Jerusalem. Archaeologists have discovered a massive-destruction level (c. 1100 B.C.) at the site of Gibeah, which may correspond with the destruction in chs. 19–20. The city was soon rebuilt, with an imposing rectangular fortress dating to the time of Saul (Gibeah was Saul's hometown; 1 Sam. 10:26). The Levite considered Gibeah a safer place to spend the night than Jerusalem, because it was a Benjaminite city (Judg. 19:14, 16); this, however, was a tragically fatal misjudgment.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 19:16 old man … sojourning in Gibeah. In a striking irony —and a commentary on the degenerate state of affairs in Israel—the Levite found hospitality, not from the residents of Gibeah, but from an outsider, a sojourner. hill country of Ephraim. Cf. v. 1.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 19:22–26 The “hospitality” offered by Gibeah was no hospitality at all; it was the “hospitality” of Sodom (cf. Genesis 19), an outrageous affront to the Levite and especially to his concubine. This section closely echoes Gen. 19:4–9; indeed, it is likely that the author intentionally patterned this text after the Genesis account, as if to say, “Things are as bad now as they were in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah!”

JUDGES—NOTE ON 19:22 worthless fellows. Literally, “sons of Belial.” In the OT, the term “Belial” is used descriptively, speaking of perverted or worthless people (cf. 20:13; 1 Sam. 10:27; 1 Kings 21:13). In intertestamental literature, the term was used of Satan, and this is Paul’s sense in 2 Cor. 6:15: “What accord has Christ with Belial?” that we may know him. The word “know” was the normal Hebrew euphemism for sexual relations (cf. Gen. 4:1). The same expression is found in Gen. 19:5, where the men of Sodom wanted to have homosexual relations with Lot’s guests.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 19:27–30 The Levite’s matter-of-fact reaction to his concubine’s death illustrates his callousness. His gruesome response was to cut her into twelve pieces and send them around to the 12 tribes to rally them against Gibeah. Saul later did the same thing with a yoke of oxen (1 Sam. 11:7); a similar practice is known from Mari, in Mesopotamia. has never happened or been seen. It is unclear what was being referred to here (the outrageous actions of the men of Gibeah or the cutting up of the concubine), but it is more likely the former (cf. Judg. 20:10).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:1–48 Civil War. Gibeah, site of the moral outrage (ch. 19), was a Benjaminite city, and so an assembly of all Israel convened at Mizpah to unite against Benjamin (20:1–11). However, the Benjaminites, who apparently were not at the assembly (v. 3), refused to deliver the inhabitants of Gibeah to them, but rather prepared for battle (vv. 12–17). The battle was joined, Judah going first (v. 18), and the Israelites were repelled twice by the Benjaminites at Gibeah (vv. 19–28). Each time, God directed the Israelites to continue the fight (vv. 23, 28). The third time, Benjamin was routed and subjected to the complete annihilation that earlier had been reserved exclusively for the Canaanites (vv. 29–48). Readers are not told whether God approved of this; certainly he did not explicitly command it. It was a grim measure of Israel’s apostasy and the attendant chaos that complete annihilation now was directed internally, against fellow Israelites.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:1–2 from Dan to Beersheba. This phrase was commonly used to speak of the entire land of Israel, from north to south (cf. 1 Sam. 3:20; 2 Sam. 24:2; 1 Kings 4:25). assembly. The Hebrew word (qahal) denotes a specially summoned gathering, usually for a religious (Num. 16:3; 1 Chron. 28:8) or military purpose (Num. 22:4, “horde”; 1 Sam. 17:47). Here, the Israelites gathered for war against the tribe of Benjamin (see map).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:9 The tribes agreed to send a tenth of their men (v. 10), chosen by lot. Far from this being a matter of chance, God was always in control of the lot (cf. Num. 26:55; Josh. 14:2; 18:6, 8, 10; Prov. 16:33). However, perhaps significantly, he is not mentioned in this instance.

Dan’s Migration and Israel’s War with Benjamin

The final chapters of Judges record the migration of the tribe of Dan to the north, and Israel’s war with Benjamin for deeds committed against a Levite passing through Gibeah. After refusing to surrender the perpetrators to judgment, the Benjaminites were defeated by the other tribes, and the remaining Benjaminites fled to the rock of Rimmon. In order to rescue the Benjaminites from being completely wiped out, the other tribes provided wives captured from Jabesh-gilead and Shiloh.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:12–14 purge evil from Israel (cf. Deut. 13:5; 17:7; etc.). This evil deed is seen as polluting the whole people. But the Benjaminites would not listen. Benjamin's decision to protect the evildoers sets the stage for further horrors.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:15–16 26,000 men. The Benjaminite force, large as it was, equaled only a small fraction of the Israelite coalition (400,000 men; v. 17). left-handed. The left-handedness of the 700 expert slingers was an advantage, since their shots would come at an unaccustomed angle. Ironically, the name "Benjamin" means "son of the right (hand)."

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:18 Judah … first. As before (1:1–2), Judah took the lead. This is the tribe from which David, the greatest embodiment of the monarchy (what the Israelites most lacked at this time), would come.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:25–26 The fasting and sacrificing of the Israelites is very rare in this period. See note on 2:5.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:28 Phinehas. Cf. Num. 25:6–11.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:35 the LORD defeated Benjamin. Despite Israel's apostasy, God still intervened in its affairs and gave victory.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:38 ambush. Cf. the ambush set for Ai in Josh. 8:17–22.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 20:47 Despite the rout, 600 men of Benjamin survived to become the core of the renewed tribe (21:13–15).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 21:1–24 Chaotic Aftermath. The war against Benjamin hardly solved Israel's spiritual and social problems. Chaos continued to reign. After the defeat of Benjamin, the remaining Israelites were regretful that one of the tribes might cease to exist (vv. 1–7). Thus, ch. 21 shows the provision for Benjamin's continued survival. Four hundred wives were obtained through a punitive action against Jabesh-gilead, which had not joined in the original battle (vv. 8–15). Two hundred more wives were obtained through an action at Shiloh, legitimized on more flimsy grounds (vv. 16–24). The book ends (v. 25) with one final editorial comment about the apostasy in the land.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 21:1 had sworn. This oath was presumably made when the people gathered together at Mizpah (cf. 20:1).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 21:5 great oath. A second, “greater” oath provided the justification for raiding Jabesh-gilead to provide wives for the Benjaminites. No doubt all the tribes were expected to participate, since all 12 had been sent the gruesome remains of the Levite’s concubine (19:29).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 21:10–11 devote to destruction. This phrase is found throughout the book of Joshua describing the Israelites’ destruction of the Canaanites (e.g., Josh. 6:17–18; 10:28, 35, 39, 40–41; 11:11, 20; see note on Deut. 20:16–18). Here, ironically, the total destruction was directed against an Israelite city, not a Canaanite one; Israel acted on its own, without God’s command to take such action. The rebuilt city of Jabesh-gilead figures in Saul’s history (1 Sam. 11:1–11; 31:11–13).

JUDGES—NOTE ON 21:24 every man to his inheritance. The exact same statement is found at the end of Joshua (Josh. 24:28), but now things were far worse.

JUDGES—NOTE ON 21:25 Final Verdict. The final editorial comment echoes earlier ones (17:6; 18:1; 19:1; see chart). Israel’s apostasy had reached the depths, and the stage was set for the coming of a godly king, David, a man after God’s own heart with whom God would make an everlasting covenant (cf. Ruth 4:17; 1 Samuel 16; 2 Samuel 7; see Introduction: Purpose, Occasion, and Background). The sympathetic reader who has followed the whole narrative is left yearning for such a king.

Introduction to Ruth

Author and Title

The book is named for its main character, Ruth, a Moabite widow who married the Bethlehemite Boaz. She became an ancestor of King David (4:17, 22) and thus an ancestor of the Messiah (Matt. 1:1, 5–6). The author of Ruth is never named in the Bible. According to rabbinic tradition (Babylonian Talmud, Baba Bathra 14a–15b), Samuel is the author. This is unlikely, however, since Samuel died before David actually became king, and Ruth 4:17–22 implies that David's kingship was an established fact at the time of writing.

Date

The mention of David (4:17) and his genealogy (4:18–22) places the writing after David's accession to the throne (2 Samuel 2) in c. 1010 B.C. The narrator's explanation of a custom once current "in former times in Israel" (Ruth 4:7) distances him from the story's events, which occurred "in the days when the judges ruled" (1:1). Therefore, the book could have been written any time after 1010 B.C. by an author using accurate oral or written material as historical sources.

Theme

This book highlights how God's people experience his sovereignty, wisdom, and covenant kindness. These often come disguised in hard circumstances and are mediated through the kindness of others.

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

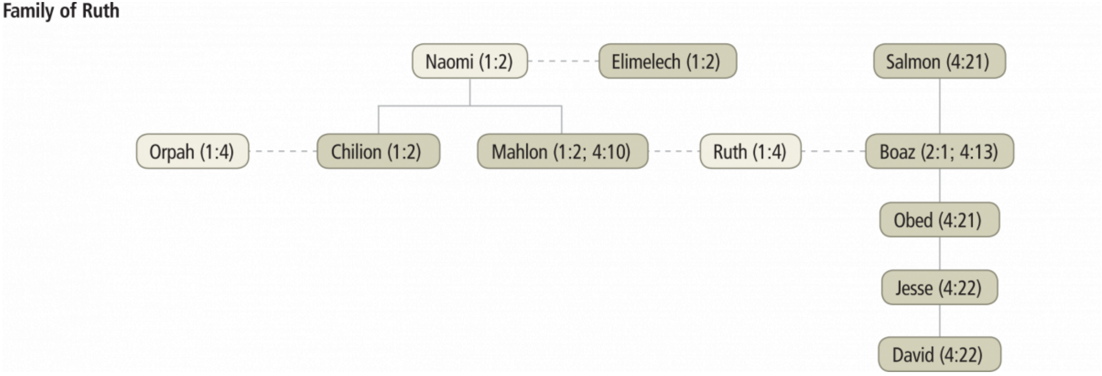
Given the book of Ruth's interest in all Israel (4:7, 11), it may have been written in hopes that the 12 tribes, which divided into two nations c. 930 B.C. (see 1 Kings 12:1–20), would reunite. The story itself takes place in the time of the judges (after the conquest and before c. 1050 B.C.), before a king was in place to reign over a united kingdom. This book explains the providential ancestry of David, who would become such a king.

Content

In the period of the judges, Elimelech, Naomi, and their sons leave Bethlehem because of a famine to sojourn in Moab (see map). Naomi's husband, Elimelech, dies there. Mahlon and Chilion, the sons, marry Moabite women, Ruth and Orpah. Ten years later the sons die too, leaving no children. Naomi is bereft of family (1:1–5). Learning that the famine in Israel is over, she decides to return to Bethlehem; Orpah stays behind, but Ruth accompanies Naomi (1:6–22). At harvest time, Ruth goes to glean in a field that happens to belong to Elimelech's relative, Boaz (2:1–23). Naomi knows he is an eligible kinsman-redeemer. Following Naomi's daring plan, in a midnight encounter at the threshing floor Ruth boldly asks him, as a redeemer, to marry her (3:1–18). After a closer kinsman refuses to take Ruth, Boaz redeems all the property of the deceased and marries Ruth (4:1–12). They have a son, Obed, who becomes the grandfather of King David (4:13–22).

Ruth's words in the book (as compared with Naomi's or Boaz's) are surprisingly few; the story, however, hangs on them. Ruth expresses her lifelong commitment to Naomi, "May the LORD do so to me … if anything but death parts me from you" (1:17), which takes her from Moab to Judah. She resolves to provide for Naomi ("Let me go … and glean," 2:2), which brings her from Bethlehem to Boaz's field. She invites Boaz to "spread your wings over your servant" (3:9), which leads her from childless widowhood to marriage and motherhood (4:13).

Family of Ruth



Key Themes

1. Kindness. Ruth shows Naomi kindness (Hb. hesed, see note on 3:10), particularly in leaving her country and family to care for her mother-in-law (1:16–17; 2:11, 18, 23), because she loves her (4:15). Then Boaz shows kindness (see note on 2:20) in his welcome to Ruth, acting as a kinsman-redeemer (4:9–10) and marrying Ruth (4:13). Human kindness reflects the kindness (or "steadfast love") that the Lord shows to his people (cf. Ex. 15:13; Deut. 7:8–9; Ps. 103:4; 106:7, 10; 136:10–15).

2. Redemption. Redemption is bound to kindness and is at the heart of the story (2:20). "Redeem" (Hb. ga'al), "redeemer" (Hb. go'el), and "redemption" (Hb. ge'ullah) appear 23 times. The book of Ruth describes two legal institutions combined in one practice (which the Law of Moses does not require), namely, property redemption by a near kinsman and the "levirate" marriage. Property redemption by a relative assured that land would not remain in perpetuity outside the family (see Lev. 25:23–25). Levirate marriage (from Latin levir, "husband's brother") involves a childless widow marrying her husband's brother to provide an heir for the dead husband (Deut. 25:5–6; cf. note on Matt. 22:24). Differences in Ruth, as compared with these laws, reflect customs applicable to particular circumstances. Boaz, a close relative (but not the closest), redeemed the property (Ruth 4:9), married Ruth (4:10, 13), and fathered Obed (4:13, 17), who became heir to the property of the deceased.

Once redemption occurred, Ruth and Naomi's desperate conditions radically changed (4:13–17). This reversal is highlighted by contrasts: living/dead (1:8; 2:20); find/seek rest (1:9; 3:1); pleasant/bitter (1:20); full/empty (1:21; 3:17; see note on 4:15); last/first kindness (3:10). The resolution to the narrative conflict is Boaz's act of redemption (4:9–10), resulting in blessing for Ruth (in marriage, conception, and giving birth; 4:13) and for Naomi (in restored and nourished life in her old age; 4:14–15). Redemption also brought blessing to the community (4:11–12) and—through David—to the nation (4:14, 17).

History of Salvation Summary

As a foreigner and ancestor of David (4:17, 22), Ruth is a forerunner of the universal blessing that Christ's redemptive work ushered in. Many OT prophecies anticipate a new David (e.g., Jer. 33:15, 17; Ezek. 37:24; Hos. 3:5; Zech. 12:7–10) reigning over Israel and incorporating the Gentiles into his benevolent empire (e.g., Isa. 55:3–5; Amos 9:11–12). This expectation is fulfilled in David's "son," Jesus the Christ (or Messiah; cf. Matt. 1:1–6; Luke 3:31–33; Acts 13:23; Rom. 1:3–5). In him, the "gospel" preached beforehand to Abraham (Gen. 12:3; Rom. 15:8–12; Gal. 3:8), that all nations will be blessed, is fully realized (Rom. 4:9–12; Gal. 3:7–9, 14). Through Christ, David's throne is reestablished forever (Acts 15:16; Rev. 3:7; 5:5; 22:16). Christ's reign is universal (Matt. 28:18–20; Rom. 1:5; 15:8–12). In him, redeemed people of all nations, no longer strangers and aliens, become fellow citizens in God's household (Eph. 2:11–22). (For an explanation of the "History of Salvation," see the Overview of the Bible. See also History of Salvation in the Old Testament: Preparing the Way for Christ.)

Literary Features

In terms of compact storytelling, Ruth is a masterpiece of narrative art. It is densely packed, yet the charm of the book is evident even to the most unsophisticated reader. The book of Ruth is the classic love story of the Bible. Few stories in the Bible are told from a woman's viewpoint, but in the story of Ruth, not only is a woman the protagonist but the world of the story is a woman's world, and the writer gives attention to feminine values and feelings. Of course Boaz in his role as kinsman-redeemer cuts a striking figure as a man who embodies the Lord's own kindness. The story exalts virtuous womanhood and strong manhood.

The overall genre is story or narrative, but several further subtypes converge as well. Ruth is a love story. It is also an idyll, i.e., a brief story describing a simple, pleasant aspect of rural and domestic life. As that definition suggests, Ruth has affinities with pastoral (rural) literature, and in this case the idealized rural world provides a setting for the idealized romance of the book: even though readers know from the first verse that the story is set in tumultuous times, these do not come into view. The story is also a hero story built around the life of an exemplary heroine as well as featuring an idealized male hero. Boaz is a rarity in the Bible, a character who gets a uniformly positive portrayal; most other characters reveal their flaws. But this reflects the literary function of Boaz as the embodiment of the Lord's kindness.

The plot of the story of Ruth is a quest story in which the stated goal is to find Ruth a home (1:9 and 3:1). The plot follows the conventional U-shape of literary "comedy," with events first descending into potential tragedy and then rising to a happy ending as obstacles to fulfillment are gradually overcome.

The Setting of Ruth

Set in the period of the judges, the book of Ruth records how a famine in Judah forces Naomi and her husband to leave Israel and move to Moab, where their sons marry Moabite women. When Naomi's husband and sons die, she decides to return to her home in Bethlehem in Judah, and her daughter-in-law Ruth chooses to go with her.

Ruth

Naomi Widowed

RUTH 1 [‡]In the days [a] when the judges ruled there was [b] a famine in the land, and a man of [c] Bethlehem in Judah went to sojourn in the country of Moab, he and his wife and his two sons. [2][‡]The name of the man was Elimelech and the name of his wife Naomi, and the names of his two sons were Mahlon and Chilion. They were [d] Ephrathites from Bethlehem in Judah. They went into the country of Moab and remained there. [3]But Elimelech, the husband of Naomi, died, and she was left with her two sons. [4][‡]These took Moabite wives; the name of the one was Orpah and the name of the other Ruth. They lived there about ten years, [5][‡]and both Mahlon and Chilion died, so that the woman was left without her two sons and her husband.

Ruth’s Loyalty to Naomi

[6][‡]Then she arose with her daughters-in-law to return from the country of Moab, for she had heard in the fields of Moab that [e] the LORD had visited his people and [f] given them food. [7][‡]So she set out from the place where she was with her two daughters-in-law, and they went on the way to return to the land of Judah. [8][‡]But Naomi said to her two daughters-in-law, “Go, return each of you to her mother’s house. May the LORD [g] deal kindly with you, as you have dealt with [h] the dead and with me. [9]The LORD grant that you may find [i] rest, each of you in the house of her husband!” Then she kissed them, and they lifted up their voices and wept. [10]And they said to her, “No, we will return with you to your people.” [11][‡]But Naomi said, “Turn back, my daughters; why will you go with me? Have I yet sons in my womb [j] that they may become your husbands? [12]Turn back, my daughters; go your way, for I am too old to have a husband. If I should say I have hope, even if I should have a husband this night and should bear sons, [13]would you therefore wait till they were grown? Would you therefore refrain from marrying? No, my daughters, for it is exceedingly bitter to me for your sake that [k]the hand of the LORD has gone out against me." [14][†]Then they lifted up their voices and wept again. And Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, but Ruth clung to her.

[15][†]And she said, "See, your sister-in-law has gone back to her people and to [l]her gods; return after your sister-in-law." [16][^][†]But Ruth said, "Do not urge me to leave you or to return from following you. For where you go I will go, and where you lodge I will lodge. [m]Your people shall be my people, and your God my God. [17][†]Where you die I will die, and there will I be buried. [n]May the LORD do so to me and more also if anything but death parts me from you." [18][o]And when Naomi saw that she was determined to go with her, she said no more.

Naomi and Ruth Return

[19][†]So the two of them went on until they came to Bethlehem. And when they came to Bethlehem, [p]the whole town was stirred because of them. And the women said, "Is this Naomi?" [20][^][†]She said to them, "Do not call me Naomi; [1] call me [q]Mara, [2] for the Almighty has dealt very bitterly with me. [21][r]I went away full, and the LORD has brought me back empty. Why call me Naomi, when the LORD has testified against me and the Almighty has brought calamity upon me?"

[22][†]So Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabite her daughter-in-law with her, who returned from the country of Moab. And they came to Bethlehem [s]at the beginning of barley harvest.

Ruth Meets Boaz

RUTH 2 [†]Now Naomi had [t]a relative of her husband's, a worthy man of the clan of Elimelech, whose name was [u]Boaz. [2][†]And Ruth the Moabite said to Naomi, "Let me go to the field and [v]glean among the ears of grain after him [w]in whose sight I shall find favor." And she said to her, "Go, my daughter." [3][†]So she set out and went and gleaned in the field after the reapers, and she happened to come to the part of the field belonging to Boaz, who was of the clan of Elimelech. [4][†]And behold, Boaz came from Bethlehem. And he said to the reapers, [x]"The LORD be with you!" And they answered, “The LORD bless you.” [5]Then Boaz said to his young man who was in charge of the reapers, “Whose young woman is this?” [6]And the servant who was in charge of the reapers answered, “She is the young Moabite woman, [y]who came back with Naomi from the country of Moab. [7][†]She said, ‘Please let me glean and gather among the sheaves after the reapers.’ So she came, and she has continued from early morning until now, except for a short rest.” [1]

[8][†]Then Boaz said to Ruth, “Now, listen, my daughter, do not go to glean in another field or leave this one, but keep close to my young women. [9]Let your eyes be on the field that they are reaping, and go after them. Have I not charged the young men not to touch you? And when you are thirsty, go to the vessels and drink what the young men have drawn.” [10][†]Then [z]she fell on her face, bowing to the ground, and said to him, “Why have I found favor in your eyes, that you should [a]take notice of me, since I am a foreigner?” [11][†]But Boaz answered her, [b]“All that you have done for your mother-in-law since the death of your husband has been fully told to me, and how you left your father and mother and your native land and came to a people that you did not know before. [12][†] [c]The LORD repay you for what you have done, and a full reward be given you by the LORD, the God of Israel, under whose wings you have come to take refuge!” [13][†]Then she said, [d]“I have found favor in your eyes, my lord, for you have comforted me and spoken kindly to your servant, though I am not one of your servants.”

[14]And at mealtime Boaz said to her, “Come here and eat some bread and dip your morsel in the wine.” So she sat beside the reapers, and he passed to her roasted grain. And she ate until [e]she was satisfied, and she had some left over. [15][†]When she rose to glean, Boaz instructed his young men, saying, “Let her glean even among the sheaves, and do not reproach her. [16]And also pull out some from the bundles for her and leave it for her to glean, and do not rebuke her.”

[17][†]So she gleaned in the field until evening. Then she beat out what she had gleaned, and it was about an ephah [2] of barley. [18]And she took it up and went into the city. Her mother-in-law saw what she had gleaned. She also brought out and gave her what food she had left over [f]after being satisfied. [19]And her mother-in-law said to her, “Where did you glean today?

And where have you worked? Blessed be the man [g] who took notice of you." So she told her mother-in-law with whom she had worked and said, "The man's name with whom I worked today is Boaz." [20][^][‡]And Naomi said to her daughter-in-law, [h] "May he be blessed by the LORD, whose kindness has not forsaken [i] the living or the dead!" Naomi also said to her, "The man is a close relative of ours, one of [j] our redeemers." [21][‡]And Ruth the Moabite said, "Besides, he said to me, 'You shall keep close by my young men until they have finished all my harvest.'" [22]And Naomi said to Ruth, her daughter-in-law, "It is good, my daughter, that you go out with his young women, lest in another field you be assaulted." [23][‡]So she kept close to the young women of Boaz, gleaning until the end of the barley and wheat harvests. And she lived with her mother-in-law.

Ruth and Boaz at the Threshing Floor

RUTH 3 [‡]Then Naomi her mother-in-law said to her, "My daughter, should I not seek [k] rest for you, that it may be well with you? [2][‡]Is not Boaz [l] our relative, [m] with whose young women you were? See, he is winnowing barley tonight at the threshing floor. [3][‡] [n] Wash therefore and anoint yourself, and put on your cloak and go down to the threshing floor, but do not make yourself known to the man until he has finished eating and drinking. [4][‡]But when he lies down, observe the place where he lies. Then go and uncover his feet and lie down, and he will tell you what to do." [5]And she replied, "All that you say I will do."

[6][‡]So she went down to the threshing floor and did just as her mother-in-law had commanded her. [7]And when Boaz had eaten and drunk, and [o] his heart was merry, he went to lie down at the end of the heap of grain. Then she came softly and uncovered his feet and lay down. [8]At midnight the man was startled and turned over, and behold, a woman lay at his feet! [9][^][‡]He said, "Who are you?" And she answered, "I am Ruth, your servant. [p] Spread your wings [1] over your servant, for you are [q] a redeemer." [10][‡]And he said, [r] "May you be blessed by the LORD, my daughter. You have made this last kindness greater than [s] the first in that you have not gone after young men, whether poor or rich. [11][‡]And now, my daughter, do not fear. I will do for you all that you ask, for all my fellow townsmen know that you are

[t] a worthy woman. [12][‡]And now it is true that I am [u] a redeemer. Yet there is a redeemer nearer than I. [13]Remain tonight, and in the morning, if he will [v] redeem you, good; let him do it. But if he is not willing to redeem you, then, [w] as the LORD lives, I will redeem you. Lie down until the morning."

[14][‡]So she lay at his feet until the morning, but arose before one could recognize another. And he said, "Let it not be known that the woman came to the threshing floor." [15][‡]And he said, "Bring the garment you are wearing and hold it out." So she held it, and he measured out six measures of barley and put it on her. Then she went into the city. [16]And when she came to her mother-in-law, she said, "How did you fare, my daughter?" Then she told her all that the man had done for her, [17][‡]saying, "These six measures of barley he gave to me, for he said to me, 'You must not go back empty-handed to your mother-in-law.'" [18]She replied, "Wait, my daughter, until you learn how the matter turns out, for the man will not rest but will settle the matter today."

Boaz Redeems Ruth

RUTH 4 [‡]Now Boaz had gone up to [x] the gate and sat down there. And behold, [y] the redeemer, of whom Boaz had spoken, came by. So Boaz said, "Turn aside, friend; sit down here." And he turned aside and sat down. [2]And he took ten men [z] of the elders of the city and said, "Sit down here." So they sat down. [3][‡]Then he said to the redeemer, "Naomi, who has come back from the country of Moab, is selling the parcel of land that belonged to our relative Elimelech. [4][‡]So I thought I would tell you of it and say, [a] 'Buy it in the presence of those sitting here and in the presence of the elders of my people.' If you will redeem it, redeem it. But if you [1] will not, tell me, that I may know, for there is no one besides you to redeem it, and I come after you." And he said, "I will redeem it." [5]Then Boaz said, "The day you buy the field from the hand of Naomi, you also acquire Ruth [2] the Moabite, the widow of the dead, in order [b] to perpetuate the name of the dead in his inheritance." [6] [c] Then the redeemer said, "I cannot redeem it for myself, lest I impair my own inheritance. Take my right of redemption yourself, for I cannot redeem it."

[7][†][d]Now this was the custom in former times in Israel concerning redeeming and exchanging: to confirm a transaction, the one drew off his sandal and gave it to the other, and this was the manner of attesting in Israel. [8]So when the redeemer said to Boaz, “Buy it for yourself,” he drew off his sandal. [9]Then Boaz said to the elders and all the people, “You are witnesses this day that I have bought from the hand of Naomi all that belonged to Elimelech and all that belonged to [e]Chilion and to Mahlon. [10][†]Also Ruth the Moabite, the widow of Mahlon, I have bought to be my wife, [f]to perpetuate the name of the dead in his inheritance, that the name of the dead may not be cut off from among his brothers and from the gate of his native place. You are witnesses this day.” [11][^][†]Then all the people who were [g]at the gate and the elders said, “We are witnesses. May the LORD make the woman, who is coming into your house, like Rachel and Leah, [h]who together [i]built up the house of Israel. May you act worthily in [j]Ephrathah and [k]be renowned in Bethlehem, [12][†]and may your house be like the house of Perez, [l]whom Tamar bore to Judah, because [m]of the offspring that the LORD will give you by this young woman.”

Ruth and Boaz Marry

[13][†]So Boaz took Ruth, and she became his wife. And he went in to her, [n]and the LORD gave her conception, and she bore a son. [14][†][o]Then the women said to Naomi, “Blessed be the LORD, who has not left you this day without [p]a redeemer, and may his name [q]be renowned in Israel! [15][†]He shall be to you a restorer of life and a nourisher of your old age, for your daughter-in-law who loves you, [r]who is more to you than seven sons, has given birth to him.” [16][†]Then Naomi took the child and laid him on her lap and became his nurse. [17][†][s]And the women of the neighborhood gave him a name, saying, “A son has been born to Naomi.” They named him Obed. He was the father of Jesse, the father of David.

The Genealogy of David

fathered Nahshon, Nahshon fathered Salmon, 21[†]Salmon fathered Boaz, Boaz fathered Obed, 22[†]Obed fathered Jesse, and Jesse fathered David.

Study Notes for Ruth

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:1–5 Introduction: Naomi Bereft of Family. This brief introduction presents Naomi's loss of her family. The similar phrases "a man … his wife and his two sons" (v. 1) and "the woman … two sons and her husband" (v. 5) frame the introduction.

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:1 days when the judges ruled. This period of spiritual, social, and political unrest (Judg. 2:6–3:6; 21:25b) engendered the desire for a king (Judg. 21:25) who could give rest (like that finally achieved by David; Ruth 4:17, 22; 2 Sam. 7:11; 1 Kings 5:4). A famine was sometimes a divine scourge (Deut. 11:14; 32:24; cf. Lev. 26:3–4), but it could also advance God's purposes, as it did for the sons of Israel in Joseph's time (Gen. 42:5; 45:5–8; Ps. 105:16–17, 23). Bethlehem (lit., "house of bread/food") is often associated with David in the OT (e.g., 1 Sam. 20:6) and with Jesus' birth in the NT (Matt. 2:1; Luke 2:4; John 7:42). Because of Bethlehem's location in a fertile region, Rehoboam turned it into a fortress city (2 Chron. 11:5–12). to sojourn (Hb. gur). To be a resident alien (Deut. 24:17), as in times of famine (Gen. 12:10; 26:1–3; 47:4; see also 2 Kings 8:1) or war (2 Sam. 4:3). Moab. A country across the Dead Sea from Judah, and one of Israel's traditional enemies (see Num. 22:1–25:9).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:2 This verse lists the clan (Ephrathites), city (Bethlehem), and tribal territory (Judah) of the family of David (see note on 4:11; cf. 1 Sam. 17:12), and the family of the coming Messiah (Mic. 5:2).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:4 Moabite wives. Ruth's husband was Mahlon (4:10). There was no formal prohibition against marrying Moabites (cf. Canaanites in Deut. 7:1–4). However, marriage to Moabites was discouraged because of their commitment to other gods (such as Molech), the Balaam debacle, Israel's debauchery with Moabite women in the wilderness, and the 10-generation Moabite male exclusion from the assembly of the Lord (Numbers 22–25; Deut. 23:3–7; Ezra 9:2, 12; 10:44; Neh. 13:25). There is a progression in the words “sojourn” (Ruth 1:1), “remained” (1:2), and lived there, or “settled down there” (1:4). Ten years, and no children, recalls the barren Sarah, who after 10 years gave Abraham her servant to have a son (Gen. 16:3; see notes on Ruth 4:11; 4:13; 4:18–22).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:5 left without. She was the last remaining person in her family (cf. 2 Sam. 14:7); Elimelech had no immediate (living) brothers (see notes on Ruth 2:20; 3:12–13). A childless widow was in a precarious position, lacking long-term financial support. Thus she needed community help (Gen. 38:6–11; Deut. 25:5–10; 1 Kings 17:17–20; Luke 7:11–17; 1 Tim. 5:4–5).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:6–22 Scene 1: Naomi Returns to Bethlehem with Ruth. This first scene relates Ruth’s kindness in returning with Naomi to Bethlehem. The scene is framed by the expression “return/returned from the country of Moab” (vv. 6, 22).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:6 The key word return (Hb. shub, also rendered in the esv as “turn, go, or bring back”) recurs 12 times in this chapter (vv. 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 15 [twice], 16, 21, 22 [twice]; see note on 4:15). the LORD had visited. God sent rains to water the crops; now, in the springtime, there was a long-anticipated harvest and food, or “bread” (Hb. lekhem), a play on words with Beth*lehem* (see note on 1:1).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:7 The recurring kinship expressions daughters-in-law (vv. 6, 7, 8) and “my daughters” (vv. 11, 12, 13) underscore Naomi’s attachment to them. Land of Judah likely denotes the tribal area (cf. 4:7, referring to Israel, the whole people) as opposed to the southern kingdom (e.g., 2 Kings 23:24; 25:22).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:8–9 return each of you to her mother’s house. Naomi understands the crucial role of a mother in preparing a daughter for marriage and motherhood (cf. Gen. 24:28, 67; Ruth 4:16–17; Song 3:4; 8:2; Titus 2:3–4); she hopes that both Ruth and Orpah will remarry and have children. Since Ruth’s father is still alive (Ruth 2:11), Naomi thinks that Ruth can return to his house (cf. Gen. 38:11; Lev. 22:13; Judg. 19:2–3). the LORD deal kindly with you. Naomi’s desire is fulfilled when the Lord provides a family (see notes on Ruth 2:20; 3:10) through redemption (see Introduction: Key Themes). find rest … in the house of her husband. Naomi wishes for them security and stability in raising a family (3:1; see note on 4:13).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:11–13 sons in my womb … your husbands. Naomi's question assumes that the widows should marry their dead husbands' brothers (i.e., levirate marriage, Deut. 25:5–10); but they would have to wait for such brothers to be born, and she is considered too old to conceive. bitter … that the hand of the LORD … against me. Naomi is interpreting her hard circumstances as coming from God's enmity toward her; as the rest of the book will make plain, she is mistaken (see note on Ruth 1:20–21).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:14 Orpah kissed Naomi farewell, even though she had promised to return with her (v. 10). However, Ruth clung (Hb. dabaq) to Naomi, an expression of loyalty and devotion (cf. Gen. 2:24, "hold fast" [Hb. dabaq]).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:15 Returning to her people meant returning to her gods, since gods and territory went together (Judg. 10:6). Chemosh was the main god of Moab (Num. 21:29; 1 Kings 11:7, 33; Jer. 48:7). See note on Ruth 1:4.

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:16 Ruth's decision had far-reaching spiritual implications (2:12; Mark 10:29–31). Her confession of faith, your people … my God, recalls the central covenant promise: "I will be your God and you shall be my people" (Gen. 17:7–8; Ex. 6:7; Deut. 29:13; Jer. 24:7; 31:33; Hos. 2:23; Zech. 8:8; 2 Cor. 6:16; Rev. 21:7).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:17 May the LORD do so to me and more also. Ruth binds herself by an oath that invites punishment if she is unfaithful. She swears this oath in the name of Yahweh (cf. 1 Sam. 3:17; 1 Kings 2:23), thereby owning him as her God.

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:19 The whole town was stirred perhaps with excitement (cf. 1 Sam. 4:5, "resounded") because of Ruth, but probably in agitation (cf. Isa. 22:2, "tumultuous") because of Naomi's arrival without her husband and sons (Ruth 1:1).

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:20–21 Naomi … Mara. As the esv footnotes explain, the names mean “pleasant” and “bitter” (cf. v. 13). Almighty … bitterly (cf. Job 27:2). Naomi describes her family situation before her return (as full) and after her return (as empty). the LORD has testified against me. He has brought calamity (destitution, childlessness, widowhood) upon her. She sees her suffering as God’s testimony, i.e., as proof that God condemns her for some sin of which she is unaware (see note on Ruth 1:11–13). However, her troubles will provide the means to God’s bounty, as Ruth stays with her and gleans in Boaz’s field.

RUTH—NOTE ON 1:22 Ruth the Moabite. Her origins are mentioned several times (vv. 4, 22; 2:2, 6, 21; 4:5, 10; cf. 2:10). The author emphasizes how God’s kindness (1:8) extends beyond, but through, the Israelites (2:20), and how it abounds to them through a foreigner (3:10; 4:13ff.). barley harvest. In April/May, a few weeks before the wheat harvest (see 2:23).

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:1–23 Scene 2: Ruth Gleans in Boaz’s Field. This encounter between Ruth and Boaz in the harvest field is one of their two crucial meetings. (The other is at the threshing floor; 3:6–15.) References to Naomi (2:1; “mother-in-law” in 2:23) frame this scene.

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:1 relative … Boaz. The readers are told what the characters will soon discover (see note on 2:20). Worthy (Hb. hayil, lit., “of worth or excellence”) connotes character, wealth, position, or strength (see note on 4:11). The same is said of Ruth (3:11).

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:2 The key word glean appears in this scene 12 times (vv. 2, 3, 7, 8, 15 [twice], 16, 17 [twice], 18, 19, 23). Provisions for the poor, sojourners, widows, and orphans allowed them to gather standing grain in corners or borders of fields, as well as dropped stalks and left-behind sheaves (Lev. 19:9–10; 23:22; Deut. 24:19). in whose sight I shall find favor. See notes on Ruth 2:10 and 2:13. Ruth recognized her dependence on the owner’s permission (Gen. 34:11; Num. 32:5; 1 Sam. 25:8).

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:3 she happened. The narrator presents this event from the standpoint of something unknown to Ruth (see note on v. 20); since this is a story of God’s mysterious providence, the words here are ironic.

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:4 The LORD be with you acknowledges the Lord’s presence with the workers in the field. The LORD bless you recognizes that he makes their lives and work fruitful (Gen. 1:22, 28; Deut. 28:8, 11–12; see note on Ruth 2:20).

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:7 Ruth’s request to glean … among the sheaves is known only through the reaper’s report (cf. v. 2). She has continued (Hb. ‘amad; lit., “stood”) may suggest that she was not yet gleaning but waiting there for the owner to grant her permission (v. 8), something that the foreman could not do. More likely (as in the ESV), she has continued to work from early morning until now.

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:8–9 Boaz has charged the young men working in his field (cf. vv. 15, 21, 22) not to touch Ruth, in order to ensure her safety; young men in other nearby fields might not be as trustworthy (cf. Deut. 22:25–27).

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:10 found favor. Ruth’s first words to Boaz (see v. 13) convey her gratitude that he would grant her these privileges and take notice of her. In other words, she wonders why Boaz would act according to her need, not her social status (see note on v. 20). Ruth calls herself a foreigner, but by virtue of her loyalty to Naomi and to the Lord she has become a sojourner, who can enjoy many of the rights of an Israelite (see note on 1:1; Lev. 24:22; Num. 9:14; 15:14–16; Ezek. 47:22–23).

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:11 All that you have done. Boaz has learned about Ruth’s kindness to Naomi and therefore knows her good intentions.

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:12 Only the Lord could repay, i.e., make restitution for Ruth’s losses of husband, father, mother, and country. Full reward (Hb. maskoret) is compensation commensurate with her loss—perhaps offspring, like Abraham’s “reward” (Gen. 15:1–5, Hb. sakar, from the same root) and Leah’s “wages” (Gen. 30:18, Hb. sakar; cf. Ruth 4:12). On both counts Boaz himself will become the Lord’s answer to Boaz’s own prayer. wings … refuge (Ps. 36:7; 57:1; 91:4; Matt. 23:37). Boaz becomes the Lord’s protective “wings” when he “spreads his wings” over Ruth (see note on Ruth 3:9).

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:13 found favor. This is Ruth's second reply (see note on v. 10). comforted … spoken kindly. Boaz dispels the fear and uncertainty over whether Ruth can obtain food (Gen. 50:21; Isa. 40:2). The type of servant (Hb. shipkhah) to which Ruth humbly compares herself had limited rights (cf. Gen. 16:6; Lev. 19:20).

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:15–16 even among the sheaves … pull out some from the bundles. Boaz's favor goes well beyond the requirements of the law (see notes on vv. 2 and 7).

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:17–18 Gleaning went from early morning (v. 7) to evening, i.e., before sundown. After sundown (see note on 3:2) was the time to beat out or winnow what was gathered. An ephah of barley is about 5.5 gallons (22 liters)—at least a two-week supply for the two women (see Naomi's surprise, 2:19). food … left over. See v. 14.

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:20 whose kindness. The referent of "whose" is ambiguous: is she speaking of the kindness of Boaz, or of the Lord? This ambiguity is probably intentional; that is, the answer is both. In this story, Boaz embodies features of God's own character, particularly his kindness. This kindness is clearly visible in vv. 8–9, 14–16, where Boaz goes well beyond any legal requirements in his generosity to Ruth. Ruth, in receiving the kindness of Boaz extended to a foreigner, is experiencing what Israel as a whole, and each faithful Israelite, receives from the Lord (cf. Deut. 7:7–9). Naomi's blessing anticipates kindness shown to the living in marriage (Deut. 25:5–6; Ruth 4:10a, 13) and to the dead (1:8) by perpetuating their name in their inheritance (4:5, 10b; Lev. 25:23, 25). close relative … one of our redeemers. Boaz is neither the closest relative to Naomi nor the only one (see note on Ruth 3:12–13). This situation combines two institutions: the redemption of family land and levirate marriage (see Introduction: Key Themes). What "happened" (2:3) is now seen to be providential.

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:21 Moabite. See note on 1:22. close by my young men. See notes on 2:8–9 and 2:23.

RUTH—NOTE ON 2:23 The barley harvest was in April/May, and the wheat harvest was a few weeks later (cf. 1:22). she lived with her mother-in-law. See 1:16.

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:1–18 Scene 3: Ruth, at the Threshing Floor, Asks Boaz to Marry Her. This scene depicts the second crucial encounter between Ruth and Boaz, framed by the recurrence of “my daughter” (vv. 1, 18). Several uses of “know” (Hb. yada‘ and related terms from the same root) are woven into this scene: “relative” (v. 2, lit., “one known”); “do not make yourself known” (v. 3); “observe [or, ‘know’] the place where he lies” (v. 4); “my … townsmen know … you are a worthy woman” (v. 11); “until you learn [or, ‘know’] how the matter turns out” (v. 18).

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:1 rest. See notes on 1:8–9 and 4:13. be well with you. By having children (cf. Deut. 6:3).

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:2 Is not … ? The rhetorical question connects Boaz our relative and “rest” (1:9; 3:1). winnowing … tonight. The winnowing took place during the breezes that begin after sundown (see note on 2:17–18). threshing floor. This was located to the east of the city so that the westerly wind carried away the chaff. (On threshing [or winnowing], see note on Ps. 1:4.) Ruth, leaving the city, goes “down to the threshing floor” (Ruth 3:3); Boaz, leaving the threshing floor, goes “up to the [city] gate” (4:1).

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:3 Wash … anoint … put on. Perhaps a sign that her mourning was over, as it was for David (2 Sam. 12:20). She must make herself attractive, like a betrothed woman (Ezek. 16:9–12), and meet Boaz at the right time: after he finished … drinking (see Ruth 3:7; Ps. 4:7; 104:15).

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:4 To uncover his feet and lie down there (vv. 8, 14) will demonstrate her dependence on him in view of her bold marriage proposal (v. 9). It is sometimes suggested that “his feet” (lit., “place of his feet,” Hb. margelot) is a euphemism for sexual contact, but there is no evidence for this and it would be out of place in this story.

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:6–7 went down … uncovered … lay down. Ruth was true to her word (v. 5). softly. Ruth moved in stealth so as not to awaken Boaz (cf. Judg. 4:21; 1 Sam. 26:7).

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:9 Ruth, your servant. A maidservant (Hb. ’amah), unlike a slave-servant (see note on 2:13), enjoyed the privileges of an Israelite household (e.g., Ex. 20:10) and could give birth to an heir (see Gen. 30:3–4, 9). your wings. Although this is an expression for “the edge of your garment” (spread in order to claim her in marriage; see esv footnote), here it evokes the mention of the Lord’s “wings” in Ruth 2:12 and Boaz as an embodiment of the Lord’s character. redeemer. See note on 3:12–13.

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:10 this last kindness. That is, Ruth claiming Boaz as her redeemer (v. 9). It was a greater act of kindness, given the implications of redemption. The first act of kindness was that shown earlier to Naomi (2:11). Boaz was impressed that Ruth was not merely seeking marriage with eligible young men.

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:11 worthy woman. See notes on 2:1; 4:11; cf. Prov. 31:10, “excellent wife,” using the same Hebrew expression, ’eshet khayil.

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:12–13 redeemer nearer. The order of these relations is: brother, uncle, cousin, or close clan relative (Lev. 25:48–49; Num. 27:11; see Introduction: Key Themes, “Redemption”). The use of this term (Hb. ga’al) for “kinsman-redeemer” is separate from the way the same word is used for the Lord “redeeming” Israel (e.g., Ex. 6:6; 15:13; cf. NT usage of “redemption”). Boaz may only claim his right of redemption if the other redeemer is not willing (cf. Deut. 25:7–8). as the LORD lives. A solemn oath (cf. Judg. 8:19; 1 Kings 2:24).

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:14 Let it not be known. Boaz is concerned for propriety and for his and Ruth’s good reputation.

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:15 six measures of barley. Boaz’s ample supply would also confirm his intentions to Naomi (v. 17).

RUTH—NOTE ON 3:17 not … empty-handed. Lit., “with nothing,” as in 1:21 (cf. Deut. 15:13). Boaz functions in the story as the channel of the Lord’s recompense (Ruth 2:12) and kindness (2:20) to Naomi.

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:1–12 Scene 4: Boaz Arranges Redemption at the Gate. This scene is framed by opening and closing at the “gate” with “elders” (vv. 1–2, 11–12). Both verb or noun forms of “redeem” occur throughout this scene (vv. 1, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8; cf. 2:20; 3:9, 12, 13; 4:14).

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:1–2 The gate served as a combined town hall and courthouse (2 Sam. 15:2; Job 29:7–17; Prov. 22:22; 31:23; Amos 5:10). Elders witnessed transactions (Ruth 4:4, 9–11; cf. Deut. 25:7) and decided cases (cf. Deut. 21:19; 22:15).

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:3 Redemption is referred to here in terms of buying and selling (vv. 4, 5, 8, 9, 10; Ps. 74:2; Jer. 32:7). This land, or the legal right to use it, may have been sold to buy food during the famine or before leaving for Moab. Or Naomi may still be in full possession of the land, or of its use, which she is selling out of necessity. In either case, a kinsman must redeem it.

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:4–6 The "redeemer nearer" (3:12) is given the opportunity to redeem the field from Naomi. He responds, I will redeem it. However, when he learns that Ruth will become his wife as part of the transaction, he changes his mind, lest I impair my own inheritance. Apparently he was concerned that any son born to him and Ruth would share the inheritance already planned for his present children. Take my right of redemption yourself. His decision opens the door for Boaz.

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:7–8 in former times. The practice must be explained since the audience for the book of Ruth no longer does this. exchanging. Transferring the right of redemption (v. 6). sandal. A symbol of this exchange (cf. Ps. 60:8; Amos 2:6; 8:6). Deuteronomy 25:9, however, represents a different but related custom.

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:10 Moabite (see note on 1:22). To preserve the property, Ruth was bought (redeemed) to be Boaz's wife (see 4:13; Deut. 25:5). not be cut off from among his brothers. That is, from his clan relatives (Ruth 4:3). from the gate. Men of this family may have held prominent positions in the gate. His … place refers to his social standing (Job 20:9; Ps. 103:16) in his home (Judg. 7:7; 1 Sam. 2:20), city (Deut. 21:19; cf. John 14:2, 3; Heb. 11:8), territory (Judg. 19:16), and country (Ex. 23:20).

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:11 Rachel and Leah. These two women were barren (as Ruth had been up to this point; see notes on 1:4; 4:13; 4:18–22), but the Lord opened their wombs (Gen. 29:31; 30:22). Leah was the mother of Judah (Gen. 35:23), ancestor of the tribe of Boaz and Naomi. Through childbearing they built up the house of Israel, i.e., established and perpetuated the family of Jacob (Deut. 25:9; Ps. 127:1, 3; Prov. 24:27). The people and the elders also express their blessing-wish that Boaz would act worthily (see notes on Ruth 2:1; 3:11). Through Boaz's offspring, David's house was built (2 Sam. 7:11, 26), which was the pride of Ephrathah and Bethlehem (see note on Ruth 1:2; cf. 1 Sam. 17:12).

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:12 Perez. Ancestor of the preeminent Judean Perezite clan (Num. 26:20–21) and of prominent leaders (1 Chron. 9:4; 27:2–3; Neh. 11:4–6; Matt. 1:12). Tamar and Judah (Tamar's father-in-law) recalls this attempted levirate marriage (Gen. 38:6–8; see note on Ruth 1:11–13). offspring. See 4:17; Ps. 89:4, 29.

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:13–17 Conclusion: Naomi Blessed with a New Family. The conclusion serves as the reversal of the introduction, showing how the Lord, through Ruth's love (v. 15), restored Naomi's life.

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:13 Ruth went from self-proclaimed slave-servant (2:13) and maidservant (3:9) to wife (see note on 4:10). The LORD gave her conception just as he did for Leah and Rachel (see note on v. 11; cf. Gen. 29:32–35; 30:23). The word son (Hb. ben) sounds like "built up" (Hb. banah, Ruth 4:11): the son is the one through whom the house (1:9; 4:11, 12) is built. Ruth has now found rest (see notes on 1:8–9; 3:1; cf. Ps. 113:9).

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:14 Blessed be the LORD. The women recognize that the Lord is the author of new life (v. 15; see notes on 2:4; 2:20) resulting from redemption. Calling the heir a redeemer indicates the one in whom redemption is realized.

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:15 restorer of life. Lit., "he who causes life to return [Hb. shub]," which reverses Naomi's complaint before the women of Bethlehem: "the LORD … brought me back [Hb. shub] empty" (1:21). loves. Ruth's love for Naomi has been steadfast throughout the book (cf. 1:16–17). The number seven expresses completion, or fullness: this is the answer to Naomi's complaint (see note on 1:20–21).

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:16 child. Cf. 1:5, 11–12. A nurse cares for a child as a foster mother (2 Sam. 4:4).

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:17 son … to Naomi. Elimelech's heir (v. 9). The Lord, through Ruth, also recompenses Naomi (2:12) and gives her rest (1:9; 3:1). The childless widow became the grandmother of Obed, who was the grandfather of David.

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:18–22 Genealogy: Extended Blessing. Looking backward and forward, this genealogy (cf. 1 Chron. 2:5–15) shows how the Lord repaid and rewarded Ruth, as Boaz desired (Ruth 2:12): the Lord brought about a new family line which became, through David, the greatest in all Israel. The 10 names in Ruth's new family more than fill her 10 years of childlessness (see notes on 1:4; 4:11). Noah's and Abraham's genealogies also have 10 names (Gen. 5:3–32; 11:10–26). (In a genealogy, the word "fathered" can mean fathered a later descendant; thus biblical genealogies, including this one, may skip generations when the number of names is more important than recording every single member.) The Lord made everlasting, universal covenants with Noah concerning all creation (Gen. 9:16–17), with Abraham regarding Israel and the nations (Gen. 12:2–3; 17:4, 7, 16), and with David concerning his dynasty (2 Sam. 7:16; Ps. 89:4). All three are examples of the blessing received by faith (Noah: Gen. 6:8; Heb. 11:7; Abraham: Gen. 15:6; Rom. 4:2–3, 9; Gal. 3:8–9; David: Ps. 32:1–2; Rom. 4:6). Christ is the "son" of Noah (Luke 3:36), Abraham, and David (Matt. 1:1). Jesus' genealogy includes three foreign women—Tamar, Rahab, and Ruth—all related to this genealogy (Matt. 1:3, 5; see notes on Ruth 4:12; 4:21).

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:18 Perez. See notes on v. 12 and Matt. 1:3.

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:20 Nahshon (Aaron's brother-in-law) is fifth in the list. He was a leader among the Judean clans (Ex. 6:23; Num. 1:7; 10:14; 1 Chron. 2:10).

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:21 Salmon fathered Boaz by Rahab (Matt. 1:5; see Josh. 6:25).

RUTH—NOTE ON 4:22 The Messiah, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, is the root of Jesse and the root and descendant of David (Gen. 49:9; Isa. 11:10; Rom. 15:12; Rev. 5:5; 22:16).

Introduction to 1–2 Samuel

Author and Title

The Hebrew title "Samuel" refers to Samuel as the key figure in 1–2 Samuel, the one who established the monarchy in Israel by anointing first Saul and then David; Samuel was the kingmaker in the history of ancient Israel. In the Hebrew Bible, the first and second books of Samuel are counted among the "Former Prophets" (Joshua–2 Kings). The Greek translation, the Septuagint, divides Samuel and Kings into the four "Books of Kingdoms"; thus 1–2 Samuel are 1–2 Kingdoms. In the Latin Vulgate and Douay Bible they are called 1–2 Kings.

The author or authors of 1–2 Samuel are not known. First Chronicles 29:29–30 implies that Samuel (or perhaps his disciples) left written records, but because his death is mentioned in 1 Samuel 25, he could not have written most of Samuel.

First and Second Samuel seem to have been composed and edited in several stages. The "Story of the Ark of God" (1 Sam. 4:1–7:1) could have originated very early—even from a pre-Davidic period, since 2 Samuel 6 is not foreshadowed in the ark narrative and the name of the town where the ark remained is different in the two narratives.

This "Story of the Ark" was embedded in a larger unit, the "Story of Samuel" (1 Sam. 1:1–7:17). It is possible that this story, and the following transitional chapter on the "Rights of the King" (1 Sam. 8:11–18), came from the earlier time of Samuel's ministry, while the "Story of Saul" (1 Samuel 9–15) originated during a later time of Samuel's era.

Sections such as the "Story of Saul and David" (1 Samuel 16–31) and the "Story of King David" (2 Samuel 1–20) must have been composed later, during King David's time, or within a generation or two after David. First Samuel 27:6 states, “Therefore Ziklag has belonged to the kings of Judah to this day.” The final editing of 1–2 Samuel, except perhaps for some minor adjustments, must have been done during the late tenth century B.C., i.e., the early period of the reign of Rehoboam, king of Judah alone. Before that period the writer would have said “kings of Israel.” Furthermore, the Ziklag area was captured by Egypt during Shishak’s campaign in 925 B.C. The period within a generation or two after the death of the founder of a dynasty is certainly a reasonable time for an official historian to write his history. There is no reason to think that many generations must have passed before the history of David was written down.

Theme

The central theme of the books of Samuel is God’s exercising of his cosmic kingship by inaugurating a Davidic dynasty (“house”) in Israel (2 Samuel 7; Psalm 89), not a Saulide one (1 Sam. 13:13–14; 15:28), and by electing the holy city Zion (Jerusalem; 2 Samuel 6; Psalm 132) as the place where David’s successor will establish the temple (“house”) for the worship of the divine King Yahweh (see 2 Sam. 24:18). The Davidic “covenant” (2 Samuel 7; Ps. 89:3) entitled Matthew to put David at the center of the genealogical history of the divine plan of salvation (Matt. 1:1).

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

The purpose of the book of 1 Samuel is to highlight two major events: first, the establishment of the monarchy in Israel (chs. 8–12); and second, the preparation of David to sit on the royal throne after Saul (chs. 16–31). Saul was rejected by the Lord in favor of David (chs. 15–16) even though, humanly speaking, he stayed on the throne until his death at Mount Gilboa (ch. 31). Later, in 2 Samuel 7, God promises David and his house an eternal dynasty. In these two central events the role of the prophet Samuel was very important because he had anointed first Saul, then David, as king over the covenant people. The book of 1 Samuel establishes the principle that the king in Israel is to be subject to the word of God as conveyed through his prophets. In other words, obedience to the word of God is the necessary condition for a king to be acceptable to the God of Israel. This is what Jesus the Messiah-King did in his life of obedience to God the Father, even up to "death on a cross" (Phil. 2:8). First and Second Samuel deal with a transitional period in the history of ancient Israel—the transition first from the priest Eli to the judge Samuel, then from the judge Samuel to the king Saul, and then from Saul to David, who founded the dynasty that would last as long as the kingdom of Judah. The prophet Samuel thus functions as the link between the judgeship and the kingship. The kingdom of Saul was transitional in a further sense: it was more than a loose confederation that gathered together when there was a common threat, but it was not a period of strong central rule such as existed later. The story of the rise of David in the second half of 1 Samuel prepares for the full-scale kingship of David in 2 Samuel.

1 Samuel Key Themes

The themes of 1 Samuel are the kingship of God, his providential guidance, and his sovereign will and power.

1. God's kingship. God is the King of the universe; no human king can assume kingship except as a deputy of the divine King. God has been enthroned as King from eternity. This view is expressed in the Bible as early as Exodus 15:18: "The LORD will reign forever and ever."

The first occurrence of the word "king" in 1–2 Samuel is in the Song of Hannah (1 Sam. 2:10). Though the Lord is not explicitly described as King here, it is implied in the statement that he is the One who judges “the ends of the earth” (cf. Ps. 96:10). In this verse Hannah expresses her conviction that this King, the Lord, is the One who gives power to his human deputy (the “king”) and lifts up the “power of his anointed.”

According to Genesis, all human beings were created as “royal” figures in the image of God. Hence, humans are deputies who rule and control other creatures for the sake of the King of the universe. So when God allowed the people of Israel to have a human king (1 Sam. 8:6–9), he gave them a king only as God’s earthly vice-regent or deputy, who is responsible to the Lord for his actions and subject to his commands (see esp. 1 Sam. 12:14; 2 Sam. 12:9).

The Lord’s holy sovereignty is expressed also in his title “the LORD of hosts, who is enthroned on the cherubim” (1 Sam. 4:4). As in other places in the Bible, he is clearly seen as controlling events not only in Israel, the land of his covenant people, but outside Israel too, especially in Philistia (1 Sam. 4:1–6:21; 23:27; 29:4; see also Amos 9:7).

2. God’s providential guidance. Romans 8:28 summarizes well what the author of 1 Samuel meant to convey to his readers: “And we know that for those who love God all things work together for good, for those who are called according to his purpose.” God is certainly the One who providentially and individually guided the lives of chosen individuals such as Hannah, Samuel, and David; even the life of Saul was in God’s providential care (see 1 Sam. 9:16). The course of life is different for each individual, but the same God, not “Fate,” consistently and graciously guides one’s life. Though it is often not recognized by his human agents, God’s timing is always perfect (see 1 Samuel 9 and the end of 1 Samuel 23), for he is the Lord of history.

God’s saving plan is fulfilled in the ongoing day-to-day lives of human beings. For example, Hannah’s difficult relationship with Peninnah leads to the birth of Samuel (1 Samuel 1); Saul’s donkey-searching journey leads to the encounter with the prophet Samuel (1 Samuel 9); David’s chore of bringing food to his brothers enables him to see Goliath (1 Samuel 17). Ordinary situations are the most meaningful in human life, and it is in these that God “works for good.”

Later, in 2 Samuel 7, God uses King David’s earnest desire to build a house for the Lord to indwell as an occasion to further his plan of salvation by choosing David’s line to be that of the Messiah-King who would sit on the throne of David forever. In 2 Samuel 7:16 God says to David, “And your house and your kingdom shall be made sure forever before me. Your throne shall be established forever.” In other words, Yahweh, King of the universe, promises David that he will establish David’s house (i.e., his dynasty) as eternal. Thus, this promise to, or “covenant” with (see Ps. 89:3), David was a turning point in the outworking of God’s saving purposes.

3. God’s sovereign will and power. As Hannah phrases it, God is the all-knowing God, “a God of knowledge” (1 Sam. 2:3b), and he chooses or rejects people according to his absolute sovereign will and purpose. From a human perspective it sometimes looks as though God has changed his mind, but God “will not lie or have regret, for he is not a man, that he should have regret” (1 Sam. 15:29). To be sure, the Lord as the sovereign deity may change his way of dealing with individuals according to his plan and purpose. But his decision is always just and right; at the same time, he is merciful and gracious to sinful human beings.

Therefore, obedience to God’s word is of prime importance in human life. First and Second Samuel provide many examples of the importance of listening to the word of God. The boy Samuel listens to the word of God (1 Samuel 3), but Saul fails here, rejecting God’s commandment (1 Samuel 13; 15). David fights bravely with Goliath for the honor of Yahweh’s name (1 Samuel 17) but later fails to keep the commandments, committing adultery and murder (2 Samuel 11). God gives David a second chance by sending the prophet Nathan (2 Samuel 12), while Saul is finally refused a chance to repent (1 Samuel 15). Only God’s grace upholds human beings, who are sinful in nature, before the holy God.

“Who is able to stand before the Lord, this holy God?” (1 Sam. 6:20)—these words of the men of Beth-shemesh well express human reality, though their understanding of God’s “holiness” was not adequate (see Leviticus 19). Only the God-given way of approaching him through sacrifice can prepare sinful human beings to come closer to the holy God.

God spontaneously reveals his will in words, and his word through the prophets determines events. But not every detail is revealed to the eyes of human beings (e.g., 1 Sam. 3:1–21; 9:15–21; 16:1–13). Believers can only wait on God, who will do his will according to his own purpose.

For fighting God’s battle against his enemies, Jonathan (1 Sam. 14:6) and David (1 Sam. 17:45–47) called on God’s power. God uses human urges and enthusiasms for his honor—often in a way that seems to defy common sense. God is the One who works wonders and uses even his enemies (Philistine kings, Achish, etc.) to fulfill his plan and purpose. Thus, humanly impossible agendas become divinely possible, encouraging believers to put their faith in the One who is sovereign over the entire creation.

The story of 1–2 Samuel begins with Samuel and ends with David, framing the problematic figure of Saul. These three are certainly central figures in the history of the kingdom of God. Their lives illustrate many biblical themes. In God's dealings with Saul and David, one might see God's justice and his mercy, respectively; according to the NT, both qualities find their ultimate expression in the person of Jesus Christ, who died on the cross.

2 Samuel Key Themes

The themes of 1 Samuel (namely, God's kingship, providential guidance, and sovereign will and power) are related to the themes of 2 Samuel (namely, the Davidic covenant and messianic promise): the sovereign God, who has guided David's life, elects David as his deputy to represent his kingship by his eternal covenant. David thus becomes the prototype of the future Messiah, Jesus Christ.

1. Davidic covenant. For the Davidic covenant, see note on 2 Samuel 7:1–29.

2. Messianic promise. Second Samuel 7 is a turning point in the history of salvation; it clearly advances the messianic hope in the Abrahamic covenant. True, Saul was also anointed by Yahweh. David in fact called Saul "the LORD's anointed" (e.g., 1 Sam. 24:6) until the end. Yet God chose David, the youngest and forgotten son of Jesse, to establish a dynasty. David was used for God's eternal plan of salvation, not because he was perfect and ideal from a human viewpoint, but because the Lord was "with him" and David found favor in God's sight.

The idea of the eternal throne and dynasty was not a product of postexilic idealism as is sometimes claimed. Such a concept was already current in the second millennium B.C. in Canaan as mlk ʿilm (Ugaritic, "the king of eternity" or "king of the world") and was prominent among the Assyrians during the eighth century B.C., as can be seen in the Assyrian records. Thus, the prophecies in Isaiah 7–9 reflect the ideal of preexilic times.

Text

The Hebrew Masoretic text (MT) of 1–2 Samuel is notorious for its difficulties. Furthermore, Samuel and Jeremiah are the two OT books where the ancient Greek translations and the Hebrew are notably different in many places. Many scholars and translations too readily reject the MT in favor of the Greek, saying that the Greek text makes more sense and reflects the more original Hebrew text. They hold that the MT must have been corrupted into its present form through a series of scribal errors, and they try to "correct" these "corrupted" texts on the basis of the Greek texts. In fact, the Hebrew texts of Samuel from about 50 to 25 B.C. found among the Dead Sea Scrolls give support for some readings in the Greek text tradition. But the alleged similarity between the Greek texts and the Dead Sea Scrolls has been overemphasized.

One of the reasons for the difficulty of the Hebrew text of Samuel is that Samuel was written in the manner of an oral narrative—written, i.e., to be heard. Some of the repetitions are more typical of poetry than of prose. Also, at places the spelling seems to have followed the actual pronunciation instead of the "standard" Hebrew, as can be clearly seen when one compares 2 Samuel 22 and Psalm 18 in Hebrew. The MT of 1–2 Samuel is not easy. Yet if one carefully examines it with a thorough knowledge of the grammar and style of the language, in most cases the MT as it stands appears to be good, and the esv translation has therefore followed the MT in most (but not all) places.

History of Salvation Summary

The period of the Judges shows the serious problems Israel had, both in its leadership and among the people as a whole. The books of Samuel show God's continued care for his people, in raising up for them a king whose job was to be their champion, representative, and example. Saul, by his disobedience to God's messenger, proves to be an unsuitable king. David, on the other hand, in spite of his moral failures, is God's choice to be the beginning of an enduring dynasty, from which the ultimate Ruler, who will lead Israel in bringing blessing to all the nations, will arise. Literary Features

The primary genre of 1 Samuel is hero story. The author did not choose the common method of OT historians in giving coverage to a broad span of people and events but instead focused primarily on three heroic leaders whose stories are elaborated at length: Samuel, Saul, and David. Three other characters are sufficiently prominent in the narrative for their stories to be mini-hero stories: Hannah, Eli, and Jonathan. Within the species of hero story, the story of Saul is the only undisputed and fully elaborated literary tragedy in the Bible. The story of David and Goliath is the prototypical battle story in the Bible. The phase of David's life when he is the archetypal man on the run fits the narrative pattern of a fugitive story. Hannah's song of gratitude (1 Sam. 2:1–10) is a lyric poem in the specific form of a praise psalm, and Samuel's last words to the nation (1 Samuel 12) fit the genre of the farewell discourse.

The first third of 1 Samuel pits the decline of Eli and his sons against the rise of Samuel, so that readers should picture these chapters in the form of an X (Eli's decline occurring simultaneously with Samuel's ascent). The remainder of the book is likewise an extended X in which the decline of Saul is played against the rise of David. In this phase of the story, the stories of Saul and David are intertwined, as readers are kept up to date on the tragic decline of Saul and the life of the king-in-waiting as a fugitive.

First Samuel is a book of personalities, so paying close attention to characterization is important. Similarly, the book is rich in universal, recognizable human experience, with the result that building bridges between the world of the text and one's own experiences is an inviting approach to the book. Even though this book does not cover the vast spans of Israelite history that the other OT historical chronicles cover, it provides in-depth analyses of what makes for good and bad leadership. What is true for leaders, moreover, is true for all individuals in their choices for or against God. A leading literary purpose of the book is to embody universal human experience as the means of teaching moral and spiritual lessons for all people at all times.

Second Samuel is the prose epic of David, telling the story of a nation led by a heroic leader. It is at the same time a hero story in which the protagonist, while not wholly idealized, is nonetheless a largely exemplary and representative character who embodies the struggles and ideals of his society. While the story does not possess the single linear sequence of literary tragedy, nonetheless at one point it meets the essential tragic criterion of locating the source of the hero's subsequent downfall in a single tragic choice. Readers should picture David's life as portrayed in 2 Samuel as a pyramid in which the trajectory is wholly positive until the Bathsheba/Uriah debacle, after which David's life goes into comparative decline as the tragic consequences work themselves out. Two threads of action make up the story of David's heroic life: the public life of a king and the personal life of a family man.

The literary technique of realism permeates the book as the storyteller refuses to ignore either the good or the bad aspects of the characters. As with 1 Samuel, the story rings true to human experience. The dramatic impulse to present the actual words and dialogues of characters is continuous.

The Setting of 1 Samuel

c. 1050 B.C.

The book of 1 Samuel is set in Israel during the time of transition between the period of the judges and the period of the monarchy. It opens with Samuel's birth and then describes his role as judge over Israel. When the people ask for a king, the Lord instructs Samuel to anoint Saul as Israel's first king.

1 Samuel

The Birth of Samuel

1 SAMUEL 1 [†]There was a certain man of [a] Ramathaim-zophim of [b] the hill country of Ephraim whose name was Elkanah the son of Jeroham, son of Elihu, son of Tohu, son of Zuph, [c] an Ephrathite. [2][†]He had two wives. The name of the one was Hannah, and the name of the other, Peninnah. And Peninnah had children, but Hannah had no children.

[3][†]Now this man used to go up [d] year by year from his city [e] to worship and to sacrifice to the LORD of hosts [f] at Shiloh, where the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were priests of the LORD. [4][†]On the day when Elkanah sacrificed, [g] he would give portions to Peninnah his wife and to all her sons and daughters. [5][†]But to Hannah he gave a double portion, because he loved her, though the LORD had closed her womb. [1] [6][†]And her rival used to provoke her grievously to irritate her, because the LORD had closed her womb. [7][†]So it went on year by year. As often as she went up to the house of the LORD, she used to provoke her. Therefore Hannah wept and would not eat. [8][†]And Elkanah, her husband, said to her, “Hannah, why do you weep? And why do you not eat? And why is your heart sad? [h] Am I not more to you than ten sons?”

[9][†]After they had eaten and drunk in Shiloh, Hannah rose. Now Eli the priest was sitting on the seat beside the doorpost of [i] the temple of the LORD. [10]She was [j] deeply distressed and prayed to the LORD and wept bitterly. [11][^][†]And she [k] vowed a vow and said, “O LORD of hosts, if you will indeed [l] look on the affliction of your servant and [m] remember me and not forget your servant, but will give to your servant a son, then I will give him to the LORD all the days of his life, [n] and no razor shall touch his head.”

[12][†]As she continued praying before the LORD, Eli observed her mouth. [13]Hannah was speaking in her heart; only her lips moved, and her voice was not heard. Therefore Eli took her to be a drunken woman. [14]And Eli said to her, “How long will you go on being drunk? Put your wine away from you.” [15]But Hannah answered, “No, my lord, I am a woman troubled in spirit. I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink, but [o] I have been pouring out my soul before the LORD. [16]Do not regard your servant as [p] a worthless woman, for all along I have been speaking out of my great anxiety and vexation.” [17]Then Eli answered, [q] “Go in peace, and the God of Israel [r] grant your petition that you have made to him.” [18]And she said, [s] “Let your servant find favor in your eyes.” Then the woman [t] went her way and ate, and her face was no longer sad.

[19]They rose early in the morning and worshiped before the LORD; then they went back to their house at [u] Ramah. And Elkanah knew Hannah his wife, and the LORD [v] remembered her. [20][†]And in due time Hannah conceived and bore a son, and she called his name Samuel, for she said, “I have asked for him from the LORD.” [2]

Samuel Given to the LORD

[21]The man Elkanah and all his house [w] went up to offer to the LORD the yearly sacrifice and to pay his vow. [22]But Hannah did not go up, for she said to her husband, “As soon as the child is weaned, I will bring him, so that he may appear in the presence of the LORD [x] and dwell there forever.” [23][†] [y] Elkanah her husband said to her, “Do what seems best to you; wait until you have weaned him; [z] only, may the LORD establish his word.” So the woman remained and nursed her son until she weaned him. [24][†]And when she had weaned him, [a] she took him up with her, along with a three-year-old bull, [3] an ephah [4] of flour, and a skin of wine, and she brought him to [b] the house of the LORD at Shiloh. And the child was young. [25][†]Then they slaughtered the bull, and they brought the child to Eli. [26][†]And she said, “Oh, my lord! [c] As you live, my lord, I am the woman who was standing here in your presence, praying to the LORD. [27][†]For this child I prayed, [d] and the LORD has granted me my petition that I made to him. [28]Therefore I have lent him to the LORD. As long as he lives, he is lent to the LORD.”

[e] And he worshiped the LORD there.

Hannah’s Prayer

1 SAMUEL 2 [†]And Hannah prayed and said,

[f]“My heart exults in the Lord;
[g]my horn is exalted in the Lord.
My mouth derides my enemies,
because [h]I rejoice in your salvation.

[2][†] [i]“There is none holy like the Lord:
for there is none besides you;
there is [j]no rock like our God.
[3][†] Talk no more so very proudly, let not arrogance come from your mouth;
for the Lord is a God of knowledge, and by him actions are weighed.
4 [k]The bows of the mighty are broken,
but the feeble bind on strength.
[5][†] Those who were full have hired themselves out for bread, but those who were hungry have ceased to hunger.
[l]The barren has borne seven,
[m]but she who has many children is forlorn.
[6][†] [n]The Lord kills and brings to life;
he brings down to Sheol and raises up.
[7][^] [o]The Lord makes poor and makes rich;
[p]he brings low and he exalts.
[8][†] [q]He raises up the poor from the dust;
he lifts the needy from the ash heap
[r]to make them sit with princes and inherit a seat of honor.
[s]For the pillars of the earth are the Lord’s,
and on them he has set the world.

[9][†] [t]“He will guard the feet of his faithful ones, but the wicked shall be cut off in darkness,
for not by might shall a man prevail.

[10][†] [u]The adversaries of the LORD shall be broken to pieces;
[v]against them he will thunder in heaven.
[w]The LORD will judge the ends of the earth;
he will give strength to his king
[x]and exalt the horn of his anointed.”

[11][†]Then Elkanah went home [y]to Ramah. [z]And the boy [1] was ministering to the LORD in the presence of Eli the priest.

Eli’s Worthless Sons

[12][†]Now the sons of Eli were [a]worthless men. [b]They did not know the LORD. [13][†]The custom of the priests with the people was that when any man offered sacrifice, the priest’s servant would come, while the meat was boiling, with a three-pronged fork in his hand, [14]and he would thrust it into the pan or kettle or cauldron or pot. All that the fork brought up the priest would take for himself. This is what they did at Shiloh to all the Israelites who came there. [15][†]Moreover, [c]before the fat was burned, the priest’s servant would come and say to the man who was sacrificing, “Give meat for the priest to roast, for he will not accept boiled meat from you but only raw.” [16]And if the man said to him, “Let them burn the fat first, and then take as much as you wish,” he would say, “No, you must give it now, and if not, I will take it by force.” [17][†]Thus the sin of the young men was very great [d]in the sight of the LORD, [e]for the men treated the offering of the LORD with contempt.

[18][†][f]Samuel was ministering before the LORD, a boy [g]clothed with a linen ephod. [19]And his mother used to make for him a little robe and take it to him each year [h]when she went up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice. [20]Then Eli would bless Elkanah and his wife, and say, “May the LORD give you children by this woman [i]for the petition she asked of the LORD.” So then they would return to their home.

[21][j]Indeed the LORD visited Hannah, and she conceived and bore three sons and two daughters. [k]And the boy Samuel grew in the presence of the LORD.

Eli Rebukes His Sons

[22][†]Now Eli was very old, and he kept hearing all that his sons were doing to all Israel, and how they lay with the women who [l]were serving at the entrance to the tent of meeting. [23]And he said to them, “Why do you do such things? For I hear of your evil dealings from all these people. [24]No, my sons; it is no good report that I hear the people of the LORD spreading abroad. [25][†]If someone sins against a man, God will mediate for him, but if someone sins against the LORD, who can intercede for him?” But they would not listen to the voice of their father, [m]for it was the will of the LORD to put them to death.

[26][†]Now the boy Samuel [n]continued to grow both in stature and in favor with the LORD and also with man.

The LORD Rejects Eli’s Household

[27][†]And there came [o]a man of God to Eli and said to him, “Thus says the LORD, [p]‘Did I indeed reveal myself to the house of your father when they were in Egypt subject to the house of Pharaoh? [28] [q]Did I choose him out of all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to go up to my altar, to burn incense, [r]to wear an ephod before me? [s]I gave to the house of your father all my offerings by fire from the people of Israel. [29][†]Why then do you [t]scorn [2] my sacrifices and my offerings that I commanded for my dwelling, and honor your sons above me by fattening yourselves on the choicest parts of every offering of my people Israel?’ [30][†]Therefore the LORD, the God of Israel, declares: [v]‘I promised that your house and the house of your father should go in and out before me forever,’ [w]but now the LORD declares: ‘Far be it from me, for those who honor me I will honor, and those who despise me shall be lightly esteemed. [31][†]Behold, [x]the days are coming when I will cut off your strength and the strength of your father’s house, so that there will not be an old man in your house. [32]Then [y]in distress you will look with envious eye on all the prosperity that shall be bestowed on Israel, [z]and there shall not be an old man in your house forever. [33]The only one of you whom I shall not cut off from my altar shall be spared to weep his [3] eyes out to grieve his heart, and all the descendants [4] of your house shall die by the sword of men. [5] [34] [a]And this that shall come upon your two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, shall be the sign to you: both of them shall die [b] on the same day. [35][†] [c] And I will raise up for myself a faithful priest, who shall do according to what is in my heart and in my mind. [d] And I will build him a sure house, and he shall go in and out before [e] my anointed forever. [36]And everyone who is left in your house shall come to implore him for a piece of silver or a loaf of bread and shall say, "Please put me in one of the priests' places, that I may eat a morsel of bread."'"

The Lord Calls Samuel

1 SAMUEL 3 [†] [f] Now the boy Samuel was ministering to the Lord in the presence of Eli. [g] And the word of the Lord was rare in those days; there was no frequent vision.

[2]At that time Eli, [h] whose eyesight had begun to grow dim so that he could not see, was lying down in his own place. [3][†] [i] The lamp of God had not yet gone out, and Samuel was lying down [j] in the temple of the Lord, where the ark of God was.

[4]Then the Lord called Samuel, and he said, "Here I am!" [5]and ran to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me." But he said, "I did not call; lie down again." So he went and lay down.

[6]And the Lord called again, "Samuel!" and Samuel arose and went to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me." But he said, "I did not call, my son; lie down again." [7][†]Now Samuel did not yet know the Lord, and the word of the Lord had not yet been revealed to him.

[8]And the Lord called Samuel again the third time. And he arose and went to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me." Then Eli perceived that the Lord was calling the boy. [9]Therefore Eli said to Samuel, "Go, lie down, and if he calls you, you shall say, 'Speak, Lord, for your servant hears.'" So Samuel went and lay down in his place.

[10][†]And the Lord came and stood, calling as at other times, "Samuel! Samuel!" And Samuel said, "Speak, for your servant hears." [11][†]Then the Lord said to Samuel, "Behold, I am about to do a thing in Israel [k] at which the two ears of everyone who hears it will tingle. [12][†]On that day I will fulfill against Eli [l] all that I have spoken concerning his house, from beginning to end. [13][†] [l] And I declare to him that I am about to punish his house forever, for the iniquity that he knew, [m] because his sons were blaspheming God, [1] [n] and he did not restrain them. [14][‡]Therefore I swear to the house of Eli [o] that the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be atoned for by sacrifice or offering forever."

[15]Samuel lay until morning; then he opened the doors of the house of the LORD. And Samuel was afraid to tell the vision to Eli. [16]But Eli called Samuel and said, "Samuel, my son." And he said, "Here I am." [17][‡]And Eli said, "What was it that he told you? Do not hide it from me. [p] May God do so to you and more also if you hide anything from me of all that he told you." [18][‡]So Samuel told him everything and hid nothing from him. And he said, [q] "It is the LORD. Let him do what seems good to him."

[19][^][‡] [r] And Samuel grew, and the LORD was with him [s] and let none of his words fall to the ground. [20][‡]And all Israel [t] from Dan to Beersheba knew that Samuel was established as a prophet of the LORD. [21]And the LORD appeared again at Shiloh, for the LORD revealed himself to Samuel [u] at Shiloh [v] by the word of the LORD.

The Philistines Capture the Ark

1 SAMUEL 4 [‡]And the word of Samuel came to all Israel.

Now Israel went out to battle against the Philistines. They encamped at [w] Ebenezer, and the Philistines encamped at [x] Aphek. [2]The Philistines drew up in line against Israel, and when the battle spread, Israel was defeated before the Philistines, who killed about four thousand men on the field of battle. [3][‡]And when the people came to the camp, the elders of Israel said, "Why has the LORD defeated us today before the Philistines? Let us bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD here [y] from Shiloh, that it [1] may come among us and save us from the power of our enemies." [4]So the people sent to Shiloh and brought from there the ark of the covenant of the LORD of hosts, [z] who is enthroned on the cherubim. And the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were there with the ark of the covenant of God.

[5][‡]As soon as the ark of the covenant of the LORD came into the camp, all Israel [a] gave a mighty shout, so that the earth resounded. [6][‡]And when the Philistines heard the noise of the shouting, they said, "What does this great shouting in the camp of the Hebrews mean?" And when they learned that the ark of the LORD had come to the camp, [7][†]the Philistines were afraid, for they said, “A god has come into the camp.” And they said, “Woe to us! For nothing like this has happened before. [8]Woe to us! Who can deliver us from the power of these mighty gods? These are the gods who struck the Egyptians with every sort of plague in the wilderness. [9] [b] Take courage, and be men, O Philistines, lest you become slaves to the Hebrews [c] as they have been to you; be men and fight.”

[10][†]So the Philistines fought, [d] and Israel was defeated, [e] and they fled, every man to his home. And there was a very great slaughter, for thirty thousand foot soldiers of Israel fell. [11][^] [f] And the ark of God was captured, [g] and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, died.

The Death of Eli

[12][†]A man of Benjamin ran from the battle line and came to Shiloh the same day, [h] with his clothes torn and with dirt on his head. [13][†]When he arrived, [i] Eli was sitting on his seat by the road watching, for his heart trembled for the ark of God. And when the man came into the city and told the news, all the city cried out. [14]When Eli heard the sound of the outcry, he said, “What is this uproar?” Then the man hurried and came and told Eli. [15]Now Eli was ninety-eight years old [j] and his eyes were set so that he could not see. [16]And the man said to Eli, “I am he who has come from the battle; I fled from the battle today.” And he said, [k] “How did it go, my son?” [17][†]He who brought the news answered and said, “Israel has fled before the Philistines, and there has also been a great defeat among the people. Your two sons also, Hophni and Phinehas, are dead, and the ark of God has been captured.” [18]As soon as he mentioned the ark of God, Eli fell over backward [l] from his seat by the side of the gate, and his neck was broken and he died, for the man was old and heavy. He had judged Israel forty years.

[19][†]Now his daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinehas, was pregnant, about to give birth. And when she heard the news that the ark of God was captured, and that her father-in-law and her husband were dead, she bowed and gave birth, for her pains came upon her. [20]And about the time of her death the women attending her said to her, [m] “Do not be afraid, for you have borne a son.” But she did not answer or pay attention. [21][†]And she named the child [n]Ichabod, saying, [o]“The glory has departed [2] from Israel!” because [p]the ark of God had been captured and because of her father-in-law and her husband. [22]And she said, “The glory has departed from Israel, [p]for the ark of God has been captured.”

The Philistines and the Ark

1 SAMUEL 5 [†]When the Philistines captured the ark of God, they brought it from [q]Ebenezer to [r]Ashdod. [2][†]Then the Philistines took the ark of God and brought it into the house of Dagon and set it up beside [s]Dagon. [3][†]And when the people of Ashdod rose early the next day, behold, [t]Dagon had fallen face downward on the ground before the ark of the LORD. So they took Dagon and put him back in his place. [4][^]But when they rose early on the next morning, behold, Dagon had fallen face downward on the ground before the ark of the LORD, [u]and the head of Dagon and both his hands were lying cut off on the threshold. Only the trunk of Dagon was left to him. [5][†]This is why the priests of Dagon and all who enter the house of Dagon [v]do not tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod to this day.

[6][†] [w]The hand of the LORD was heavy against the people of Ashdod, and he terrified and afflicted them with [x]tumors, both Ashdod and its territory. [7]And when the men of Ashdod saw how things were, they said, “The ark of the God of Israel must not remain with us, for his hand is hard against us and against Dagon our god.” [8][†]So they sent and gathered together all [y]the lords of the Philistines and said, “What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel?” They answered, “Let the ark of the God of Israel be brought around to Gath.” So they brought the ark of the God of Israel there. [9]But after they had brought it around, [z]the hand of the LORD was against the city, causing a very great panic, and he afflicted the men of the city, both young and old, so that [x]tumors broke out on them. [10][†]So they sent the ark of God to Ekron. But as soon as the ark of God came to Ekron, the people of Ekron cried out, “They have brought around to us the ark of the God of Israel to kill us and our people.” [11][†] [y]They sent therefore and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines and said, “Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it return to its own place, that it may not kill us and our people." For there was a deathly panic throughout the whole city. [w] The hand of God was very heavy there. [12]The men who did not die were struck with [x] tumors, and the cry of the city went up to heaven.

The Ark Returned to Israel

1 SAMUEL 6 [†]The ark of the LORD was in the country of the Philistines seven months. [2][†]And the Philistines called for the priests and [a] the diviners and said, "What shall we do with the ark of the LORD? Tell us with what we shall send it to its place." [3][†]They said, "If you send away the ark of the God of Israel, do not send it empty, but by all means return him [b] a guilt offering. Then you will be healed, and it will be known to you why [c] his hand does not turn away from you." [4][†]And they said, "What is the guilt offering that we shall return to him?" They answered, "Five golden [d] tumors and five golden mice, [e] according to the number of the lords of the Philistines, for the same plague was on all of you and on your lords. [5][†]So you must make images of your [d] tumors and images of your mice that ravage the land, [f] and give glory to the God of Israel. Perhaps [g] he will lighten his hand from off you [h] and your gods and your land. [6][†]Why should you harden your hearts as [i] the Egyptians and [j] Pharaoh hardened their hearts? After he had dealt severely with them, [k] did they not send the people away, and they departed? [7][†]Now then, take and prepare [l] a new cart and two milk cows [m] on which there has never come a yoke, and yoke the cows to the cart, but take their calves home, away from them. [8]And take the ark of the LORD and place it on the cart and put in a box at its side [n] the figures of gold, which you are returning to him as [b] a guilt offering. Then send it off and let it go its way [9]and watch. If it goes up on the way to its own land, to [o] Beth-shemesh, then it is he who has done us this great harm, but if not, then we shall know that it is not [p] his hand that struck us; it happened to us by coincidence."

[10]The men did so, and took two milk cows and yoked them to the cart and shut up their calves at home. [11][†]And they put the ark of the LORD on the cart and the box with the golden mice and the images of their tumors. [12][^][†]And the cows went straight in the direction of [q] Beth-shemesh along

[r] one highway, lowing as they went. They turned neither to the right nor to the left, and the lords of the Philistines went after them as far as the border of [q] Beth-shemesh. [13]Now the people of [q] Beth-shemesh were reaping their wheat harvest in the valley. And when they lifted up their eyes and saw the ark, they rejoiced to see it. [14]The cart came into the field of Joshua of Beth-shemesh and stopped there. [s] A great stone was there. And they split up the wood of the cart and offered the cows as a burnt offering to the LORD. [15][‡]And the Levites took down the ark of the LORD and the box that was beside it, in which were the golden figures, and set them upon [s] the great stone. And the men of [q] Beth-shemesh offered burnt offerings and sacrificed sacrifices on that day to the LORD. [16]And when [t] the five lords of the Philistines saw it, they returned that day to Ekron.

[17][‡]These are the golden tumors that the Philistines returned as a [u] guilt offering to the LORD: one for Ashdod, one for Gaza, one for Ashkelon, one for Gath, one for Ekron, [18]and the golden mice, according to the number of all the cities of the Philistines belonging to the five lords, [v] both fortified cities and unwalled villages. [w] The great stone beside which they set down the ark of the LORD is a witness to this day in the field of Joshua of Beth-shemesh.

[19][‡] [x] And he struck some of the men of Beth-shemesh, because they looked upon the ark of the LORD. He struck seventy men of them, [1] and the people mourned because the LORD had struck the people with a great blow. [20][‡]Then the men of Beth-shemesh said, [y] “Who is able to stand before the LORD, this holy God? And to whom shall he go up away from us?” [21][‡]So they sent messengers to the inhabitants of [z] Kiriath-jearim, saying, “The Philistines have returned the ark of the LORD. Come down and take it up to you.”

1 SAMUEL 7 [‡]And the men of Kiriath-jearim came and took up the ark of the LORD and brought it to the house of [a] Abinadab on the hill. And they consecrated his son Eleazar to have charge of the ark of the LORD. [2][‡]From the day that the ark was lodged at Kiriath-jearim, a long time passed, some twenty years, and all the house of Israel lamented after the LORD.

Samuel Judges Israel

[3][†]And Samuel said to all the house of Israel, [b]“If you are returning to the LORD with all your heart, then [c]put away the foreign gods and the [d]Ashtaroth from among you and [e]direct your heart to the LORD [f]and serve him only, and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines.” [4]So the people of Israel put away the Baals and the Ashtaroth, and they served the LORD only.

[5][†]Then Samuel said, “Gather all Israel at [g]Mizpah, and I will pray to the LORD for you.” [6]So they gathered at [g]Mizpah [h]and drew water and poured it out before the LORD [i]and fasted on that day and said there, [j]“We have sinned against the LORD.” And Samuel judged the people of Israel at Mizpah. [7]Now when the Philistines heard that the people of Israel had gathered at Mizpah, the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And when the people of Israel heard of it, they were afraid of the Philistines.
[8][^]And the people of Israel said to Samuel, “Do not cease to cry out to the LORD our God for us, that he may save us from the hand of the Philistines.”
[9][†]So Samuel took a nursing lamb and offered it as a whole burnt offering to the LORD. And [k]Samuel cried out to the LORD for Israel, and the LORD answered him. [10][†]As Samuel was offering up the burnt offering, the Philistines drew near to attack Israel. [l]But the LORD thundered with a mighty sound that day against the Philistines and threw them into confusion, and they were defeated before Israel. [11]And the men of Israel went out from Mizpah and pursued the Philistines and struck them, as far as below Beth-car.

[12]Then Samuel [m]took a stone and set it up between Mizpah and Shen [1] and called its name Ebenezer; [2] for he said, “Till now the LORD has helped us.” [13][†] [n]So the Philistines were subdued and did not again enter the territory of Israel. And the hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel. [14][†]The cities that the Philistines had taken from Israel were restored to Israel, from Ekron to Gath, and Israel delivered their territory from the hand of the Philistines. There was peace also between Israel and the Amorites.

[15][†] [o]Samuel judged Israel all the days of his life. [16][†]And he went on a circuit year by year to Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpah. And he judged Israel in all these places. [17]Then he would return to [p]Ramah, for his home was there, and there also he judged Israel. [q] And he built there an altar to the LORD.

Israel Demands a King

1 SAMUEL 8 [†]When Samuel became old, [r] he made his sons judges over Israel. [2][†]The name of his firstborn son was Joel, and the name of his second, Abijah; they were judges in Beersheba. [3][†]Yet his sons did not walk in his ways [s] but turned aside after gain. [t] They took bribes and perverted justice.

[4][†]Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel at [p] Ramah [5][^]and said to him, “Behold, you are old and your sons do not walk in your ways. [u] Now appoint for us a king to judge us like all the nations.” [6][†]But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, “Give us a king to judge us.” And Samuel prayed to the LORD. [7][^]And the LORD said to Samuel, “Obey the voice of the people in all that they say to you, [v] for they have not rejected you, [w] but they have rejected me from being king over them. [8]According to all the deeds that they have done, from the day I brought them up out of Egypt even to this day, forsaking me and serving other gods, so they are also doing to you. [9][†]Now then, obey their voice; only you shall solemnly warn them [x] and show them the ways of the king who shall reign over them.”

Samuel’s Warning Against Kings

[10]So Samuel told all the words of the LORD to the people who were asking for a king from him. [11][†]He said, [y] “These will be the ways of the king who will reign over you: [z] he will take your sons and appoint them to his chariots and to be his horsemen and to run before his chariots. [12][†]And he will appoint for himself commanders of thousands and commanders of fifties, and some [a] to plow his ground and to reap his harvest, and to make his implements of war and the equipment of his chariots. [13]He will take your daughters to be perfumers and cooks and bakers. [14][†] [b] He will take the best of your fields and vineyards and olive orchards and give them to his servants. [15]He will take the tenth of your grain and of your vineyards and give it to his officers and to his servants. 16He will take your male servants and female servants and the best of your young men [1] and your donkeys, and put them to his work. 17[†]He will take the tenth of your flocks, and you shall be his slaves. 18And in that day you will cry out because of your king, whom you have chosen for yourselves, [c] but the LORD will not answer you in that day."

The LORD Grants Israel's Request

19[†]But the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel. And they said, "No! But there shall be a king over us, 20 [d] that we also may be like all the nations, and that our king may judge us and go out before us and fight our battles." 21And when Samuel had heard all the words of the people, he repeated them in the ears of the LORD. 22[†]And the LORD said to Samuel, [e] "Obey their voice and make them a king." Samuel then said to the men of Israel, "Go every man to his city."

Saul Chosen to Be King

1 SAMUEL 9 [†]There was a man of Benjamin whose name was [f] Kish, the son of Abiel, son of Zeror, son of Becorath, son of Aphiah, a Benjaminite, a man of wealth. 2[†]And he had a son whose name was Saul, [g] a handsome young man. There was not a man among the people of Israel more handsome than he. [h] From his shoulders upward he was taller than any of the people.

3[†]Now the donkeys of Kish, Saul's father, were lost. So Kish said to Saul his son, "Take one of the young men with you, and arise, go and look for the donkeys." 4[†]And he passed through [i] the hill country of Ephraim and passed through the land of [j] Shalishah, but they did not find them. And they passed through the land of Shaalim, but they were not there. Then they passed through the land of Benjamin, but did not find them.

5When they came to the land of Zuph, Saul said to his servant [1] who was with him, "Come, let us go back, [k] lest my father cease to care about the donkeys and become anxious about us." 6[†]But he said to him, "Behold, there is [l] a man of God in this city, and he is a man who is held in honor; [m] all that he says comes true. So now let us go there. Perhaps he can tell us the way we should go.” 7Then Saul said to his servant, “But if we go, [n] what can we bring the man? For the bread in our sacks is gone, and there is no present to bring to the man of God. What do we have?” 8The servant answered Saul again, “Here, I have with me a quarter of a shekel [2] of silver, and I will give it to the man of God to tell us our way.” 9[†](Formerly in Israel, when a man [o] went to inquire of God, he said, “Come, let us go to the seer,” for today’s “prophet” was formerly called a seer.) 10And Saul said to his servant, “Well said; come, let us go.” So they went to the city where the man of God was.

11As they went up the hill to the city, [p] they met young women coming out to draw water and said to them, “Is the seer here?” 12[†]They answered, “He is; behold, he is just ahead of you. Hurry. He has come just now to the city, because the people [q] have a sacrifice today on [r] the high place. 13As soon as you enter the city you will find him, before he goes up to the high place to eat. For the people will not eat till he comes, since he must bless the sacrifice; afterward those who are invited will eat. Now go up, for you will meet him immediately.” 14[†]So they went up to the city. As they were entering the city, they saw Samuel coming out toward them on his way up to the high place.

15Now the day before Saul came, [s] the LORD had [t] revealed to Samuel: 16[^][†]“Tomorrow about this time I will send to you a man from the land of Benjamin, [u] and you shall anoint him to be prince [3] over my people Israel. He shall save my people from the hand of the Philistines. [v] For I have seen [4] my people, because their cry has come to me.” 17When Samuel saw Saul, the LORD told him, [w] “Here is the man of whom I spoke to you! He it is who shall restrain my people.” 18Then Saul approached Samuel in the gate and said, “Tell me where is the house of the seer?” 19Samuel answered Saul, “I am the seer. Go up before me to the high place, for today you shall eat with me, and in the morning I will let you go and will tell you all that is on your mind. 20[†] [x] As for your donkeys that were lost three days ago, do not set your mind on them, for they have been found. And for whom is all that is desirable in Israel? Is it not for you and for all your father’s house?” 21Saul answered, “Am I not a Benjaminite, [y] from the least of the tribes of Israel? [z]And is not my clan the humblest of all the clans of the tribe of Benjamin? Why then have you spoken to me in this way?”

[22]Then Samuel took Saul and his young man and brought them into the hall and gave them a place at the head of those who had been invited, who were about thirty persons. [23]And Samuel said to the cook, “Bring the portion I gave you, of which I said to you, ‘Put it aside.’” [24][†]So the cook took up [a]the leg and what was on it and set them before Saul. And Samuel said, “See, what was kept is set before you. Eat, because it was kept for you until the hour appointed, that you might eat with the guests.” [5]

So Saul ate with Samuel that day. [25]And when they came down from the high place into the city, a bed was spread for Saul [6] [b]on the roof, and he lay down to sleep. [26]Then at the break of dawn [7] Samuel called to Saul on the roof, “Up, that I may send you on your way.” So Saul arose, and both he and Samuel went out into the street.

[27][†]As they were going down to the outskirts of the city, Samuel said to Saul, “Tell the servant to pass on before us, and when he has passed on, stop here yourself for a while, that I may make known to you the word of God.”

Saul Anointed King

1 SAMUEL 10 [†][c]Then Samuel took a flask of oil and poured it on his head [d]and kissed him and said, “Has not the Lord anointed you to be prince [1] over [e]his people Israel? And you shall reign over the people of the Lord and you will save them from the hand of their surrounding enemies. And this shall be the sign to you that the Lord has anointed you to be prince [2] over his heritage. [2]When you depart from me today, you will meet two men by [f]Rachel’s tomb in the territory of Benjamin at Zelzah, and they will say to you, [g]‘The donkeys that you went to seek are found, and now [h]your father has ceased to care about the donkeys and is anxious about you, saying, “What shall I do about my son?”’ [3]Then you shall go on from there farther and come to the [i]oak of Tabor. Three men [j]going up [k]to God at Bethel will meet you there, one carrying three young goats, another carrying three loaves of bread, and another carrying a skin of wine. [4][†]And they will greet you and give you two loaves of bread, which you shall accept from their hand. [5][†]After that you shall come to [l]Gibeath-elohim, [3] [m]where there is a garrison of the Philistines. And there, as soon as you come to the city, you will meet a group of prophets coming down [n]from the high place with harp, tambourine, flute, and lyre before them, prophesying. [6][†][o]Then the Spirit of the LORD will rush upon you, [p]and you will prophesy with them and be turned into another man. [7]Now when [q]these signs meet you, do what your hand finds to do, [r]for God is with you. [8][†]Then go down before me [s]to Gilgal. And behold, I am coming down to you to offer burnt offerings and [t]to sacrifice peace offerings. [u]Seven days you shall wait, until I come to you and show you what you shall do."

[9][†]When he turned his back to leave Samuel, God gave him another heart. And all these signs came to pass that day. [10]When they came to [v]Gibeah, [4] behold, a group of prophets met him, [o]and the Spirit of God rushed upon him, and he prophesied among them. [11][†]And when all who knew him previously saw how he prophesied with the prophets, the people said to one another, "What has come over the son of Kish? [w]Is Saul also among the prophets?" [12][†]And a man of the place answered, [x]"And who is their father?" Therefore it became a proverb, [w]"Is Saul also among the prophets?" [13]When he had finished prophesying, he came to the high place.

[14][†][y]Saul's uncle said to him and to his servant, "Where did you go?" And he said, [z]"To seek the donkeys. And when we saw they were not to be found, we went to Samuel." [15]And Saul's uncle said, "Please tell me what Samuel said to you." [16]And Saul said to his uncle, [a]"He told us plainly that the donkeys had been found." But about the matter of the kingdom, of which Samuel had spoken, he did not tell him anything.

Saul Proclaimed King

[17][†]Now Samuel called the people together [b]to the LORD [c]at Mizpah. [18]And he said to the people of Israel, [d]"Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, 'I brought up Israel out of Egypt, and I delivered you from the hand of the Egyptians and from the hand of all the kingdoms that were oppressing you.' [19][e]But today you have rejected your God, who saves you from all your calamities and your distresses, and you have said to him, 'Set a king over us.' Now therefore [f]present yourselves before the LORD by your tribes and by your thousands."

[20][†]Then Samuel [g]brought all the tribes of Israel near, and the tribe of Benjamin was taken by lot. [21]He brought the tribe of Benjamin near by its clans, and the clan of the Matrites was taken by lot; [5] and Saul the son of Kish was taken by lot. But when they sought him, he could not be found. [22][†] [h]So they inquired again of the LORD, "Is there a man still to come?" and the LORD said, "Behold, he has hidden himself among the baggage." [23]Then they ran and took him from there. And when he stood among the people, [i]he was taller than any of the people from his shoulders upward. [24][†]And Samuel said to all the people, "Do you see him [j]whom the LORD has chosen? There is none like him among all the people." And all the people shouted, [k]"Long live the king!"

[25][†]Then Samuel told the people [l]the rights and duties of the kingship, and he wrote them in a book and laid it up before the LORD. Then Samuel sent all the people away, each one to his home. [26][†]Saul also went to his home [m]at Gibeah, and with him went men of valor whose hearts God had touched. [27]But some [n]worthless fellows said, "How can this man save us?" And they despised him and brought him no present. But he held his peace.

Saul Defeats the Ammonites

1 SAMUEL 11 [†] [o]Then Nahash the Ammonite went up and besieged [p]Jabesh-gilead, and all the men of Jabesh said to Nahash, [q]"Make a treaty with us, and we will serve you." [2][†]But Nahash the Ammonite said to them, "On this condition I will make a treaty with you, [r]that I gouge out all your right eyes, and thus [s]bring disgrace on all Israel." [3][†]The elders of Jabesh said to him, "Give us seven days' respite that we may send messengers through all the territory of Israel. Then, if there is no one to save us, we will give ourselves up to you." [4][†]When the messengers came to [t]Gibeah of Saul, they reported the matter in the ears of the people, [u]and all the people wept aloud.

[5]Now, behold, Saul was coming from the field behind the oxen. And Saul said, "What is wrong with the people, that they are weeping?" So they told him the news of the men of Jabesh. [6][†] [v]And the Spirit of God rushed upon Saul when he heard these words, and his anger was greatly kindled. [7]He took a yoke of oxen [w]and cut them in pieces and sent them throughout all the territory of Israel by the hand of the messengers, saying, [x]"Whoever does not come out after Saul and Samuel, so shall it be done to his oxen!" Then the dread of the LORD fell upon the people, and they came out [y]as one man. [8][†]When he mustered them at [z]Bezek, [a]the people of Israel were three hundred thousand, and the men of Judah thirty thousand. [9]And they said to the messengers who had come, "Thus shall you say to the men of Jabesh-gilead: 'Tomorrow, by the time the sun is hot, you shall have [b]salvation.'" When the messengers came and told the men of Jabesh, they were glad. [10][†]Therefore the men of Jabesh said, [c]"Tomorrow we will give ourselves up to you, and you may do to us whatever seems good to you." [11][†][d]And the next day Saul put the people [e]in three companies. And they came into the midst of the camp in the morning watch and struck down the Ammonites until the heat of the day. And those who survived were scattered, so that no two of them were left together.

The Kingdom Is Renewed

[12][†]Then the people said to Samuel, [f]"Who is it that said, 'Shall Saul reign over us?' [g]Bring the men, that we may put them to death." [13]But Saul said, [h]"Not a man shall be put to death this day, for today [i]the LORD has worked [j]salvation in Israel." [14]Then Samuel said to the people, "Come, let us go to Gilgal and there renew the kingdom." [15][^]So all the people went to [k]Gilgal, and there they made Saul king [l]before the LORD in Gilgal. There [m]they sacrificed peace offerings before the LORD, and there Saul and all the men of Israel rejoiced greatly.

Samuel's Farewell Address

1 SAMUEL 12 [†]And Samuel said to all Israel, "Behold, I have obeyed [n]your voice in all that you have said to me [o]and have made a king over you. [2][†]And now, behold, the king [p]walks before you, [q]and I am old and gray; and behold, my sons are with you. I have walked before you from my youth until this day. [3][†]Here I am; testify against me before the LORD and before [r]his anointed. [s]Whose ox have I taken? Or whose donkey have I taken? Or whom have I defrauded? Whom have I oppressed? Or from whose hand have I taken a bribe to blind my eyes with it? Testify against me [1] and I will restore it to you.” [4]They said, “You have not defrauded us or oppressed us or taken anything from any man’s hand.” [5]And he said to them, “The LORD is witness against you, and [r]his anointed is witness this day, that you have not found anything [t]in my hand.” And they said, “He is witness.”

[6]And Samuel said to the people, [u]“The LORD is witness, [2] who appointed Moses and Aaron and brought your fathers up out of the land of Egypt. [7][‡]Now therefore stand still that I may plead with you before the LORD concerning all the righteous deeds of the LORD that he performed for you and for your fathers. [8] [v]When Jacob went into Egypt, and the Egyptians oppressed them, [3] [w]then your fathers cried out to the LORD and [x]the LORD sent Moses and Aaron, [y]who brought your fathers out of Egypt and made them dwell in this place. [9]But [z]they forgot the LORD their God. [a]And he sold them into the hand of Sisera, commander of the army of Hazor, [4] [b]and into the hand of the Philistines, [c]and into the hand of the king of Moab. And they fought against them. [10][‡] [d]And they cried out to the LORD and said, ‘We have sinned, because we have forsaken the LORD [e]and have served the Baals and the Ashtaroth. But now [f]deliver us out of the hand of our enemies, that we may serve you.’ [11]And the LORD sent [g]Jerubbaal [h]and Barak [5] [i]and Jephthah and [j]Samuel and delivered you out of the hand of your enemies on every side, and you lived in safety. [12]And when you saw that [k]Nahash the king of the Ammonites came against you, [l]you said to me, ‘No, but a king shall reign over us,’ [m]when the LORD your God was your king. [13]And now [n]behold the king whom you have chosen, for whom you have asked; behold, [o]the LORD has set a king over you. [14][^][‡]If you will [p]fear the LORD and serve him and obey his voice and not rebel against the commandment of the LORD, and if both you and the king who reigns over you will follow the LORD your God, it will be well. [15]But [q]if you will not obey the voice of the LORD, but rebel against the commandment of the LORD, then [r]the hand of the LORD will be against you and [s]your king. [6] [16]Now therefore [t]stand still and see this great thing that the LORD will do before your eyes. [17] [u] Is it not wheat harvest today? [v] I will call upon the LORD, that he may send thunder and rain. And you shall know and see that [w] your wickedness is great, which you have done in the sight of the LORD, in asking for yourselves a king.” [18]So Samuel called upon the LORD, and the LORD sent thunder and rain that day, [x] and all the people greatly feared the LORD and Samuel.

[19]And all the people said to Samuel, [y] “Pray for your servants to the LORD your God, that we may not die, for we have added to all our sins this evil, to ask for ourselves a king.” [20]And Samuel said to the people, “Do not be afraid; you have done all this evil. Yet [z] do not turn aside from following the LORD, but serve the LORD with all your heart. [21][†]And [z] do not turn aside after [a] empty things that cannot profit or deliver, for they are empty. [22][†] [b] For the LORD will not forsake his people, [c] for his great name’s sake, because [d] it has pleased the LORD to make you a people for himself. [23][†]Moreover, as for me, far be it from me that I should sin against the LORD by ceasing [e] to pray for you, [f] and I will instruct you in the good and the right way. [24] [g] Only fear the LORD and serve him faithfully with all your heart. For consider [h] what great things he has done for you. [25][†]But if you still do wickedly, [i] you shall be swept away, [j] both you and your king.”

Saul Fights the Philistines

1 SAMUEL 13 [†]Saul lived for one year and then became king, and when he had reigned for two years over Israel, [1] [2][†]Saul chose three thousand men of Israel. Two thousand were with Saul in [k] Michmash and the hill country of Bethel, and a thousand were with Jonathan in [l] Gibeah of Benjamin. The rest of the people he sent home, every man to his tent. [3][†]Jonathan defeated [m] the garrison of the Philistines that was [n] at Geba, and the Philistines heard of it. And Saul [o] blew the trumpet throughout all the land, saying, “Let the Hebrews hear.” [4]And all Israel heard it said that Saul had defeated the garrison of the Philistines, and also that Israel had become a stench to the Philistines. And the people were called out to join Saul at Gilgal.

5[‡]And the Philistines mustered to fight with Israel, thirty thousand chariots and six thousand horsemen and troops [p]like the sand on the seashore in multitude. They came up and encamped in Michmash, to the east of [q]Beth-aven. 6When the men of Israel saw that they were in trouble (for the people were hard pressed), the people hid themselves [r]in caves and in holes and in rocks and in tombs and in cisterns, 7[‡]and some Hebrews crossed the fords of the Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead. Saul was still at Gilgal, and all the people followed him trembling.

Saul's Unlawful Sacrifice

8[‡][s]He waited seven days, the time appointed by Samuel. But Samuel did not come to Gilgal, and the people were scattering from him. 9So Saul said, "Bring the burnt offering here to me, and the peace offerings." And he offered the burnt offering. 10As soon as he had finished offering the burnt offering, behold, Samuel came. And Saul went out to meet him and greet him. 11Samuel said, "What have you done?" And Saul said, "When I saw that the people were scattering from me, and that you did not come within the days appointed, and that the Philistines had mustered at Michmash, 12[^]I said, 'Now the Philistines will come down against me at Gilgal, and I have not sought the favor of the LORD.' So I forced myself, and offered the burnt offering." 13[‡]And Samuel said to Saul, [t]"You have done foolishly. [u]You have not kept the command of the LORD your God, with which he commanded you. For then the LORD would have established your kingdom over Israel forever. 14But now [v]your kingdom shall not continue. The LORD has sought out a man [w]after his own heart, and the LORD has commanded him to be prince [2] over his people, because you have not kept what the LORD commanded you." 15And Samuel arose and went up from Gilgal. The rest of the people went up after Saul to meet the army; they went up from Gilgal [3] to [x]Gibeah of Benjamin.

And Saul numbered the people who were present with him, [y]about six hundred men. 16[‡]And Saul and Jonathan his son and the people who were present with them stayed in [z]Geba of Benjamin, but the Philistines encamped in Michmash. 17[‡]And [a]raiders came out of the camp of the Philistines in three companies. One company turned toward Ophrah, to the land of Shual; [18]another company turned toward [b] Beth-horon; and another company turned toward the border that looks down on the Valley of [c] Zeboim toward the wilderness.

[19][‡] [d] Now there was no blacksmith to be found throughout all the land of Israel, for the Philistines said, "Lest the Hebrews make themselves swords or spears." [20]But every one of the Israelites went down to the Philistines to sharpen his plowshare, his mattock, his axe, or his sickle, [4] [21]and the charge was two-thirds of a shekel [5] for the plowshares and for the mattocks, and a third of a shekel [6] for sharpening the axes and for setting the goads. [7] [22]So on the day of the battle [e] there was neither sword nor spear found in the hand of any of the people with Saul and Jonathan, but Saul and Jonathan his son had them. [23]And [f] the garrison of the Philistines went out to the [g] pass of [h] Michmash.

Jonathan Defeats the Philistines

1 SAMUEL 14 [‡]One day Jonathan the son of Saul said to the young man who carried his armor, "Come, let us go over to the Philistine garrison on the other side." But he did not tell his father. [2][‡]Saul was staying in the outskirts of Gibeah in the pomegranate cave [1] at [h] Migron. The people who were with him were about [i] six hundred men, [3]including [j] Ahijah the son of Ahitub, [k] Ichabod's brother, son of Phinehas, son of Eli, the priest of the LORD [l] in Shiloh, [m] wearing an ephod. And the people did not know that Jonathan had gone. [4][‡]Within [n] the passes, by which Jonathan sought to go over to the Philistine garrison, there was a rocky crag on the one side and a rocky crag on the other side. The name of the one was Bozez, and the name of the other Seneh. [5]The one crag rose on the north in front of Michmash, and the other on the south in front of [o] Geba.

[6][^][‡]Jonathan said to the young man who carried his armor, "Come, let us go over to the garrison of these [p] uncircumcised. It may be that the LORD will work for us, [q] for nothing can hinder the LORD from saving by many or by few." [7]And his armor-bearer said to him, "Do all that is in your heart. Do as you wish. [2] Behold, I am with you heart and soul." [8]Then Jonathan said, "Behold, we will cross over to the men, and we will show ourselves to them. [9]If they say to us, ‘Wait until we come to you,’ then we will stand still in our place, and we will not go up to them. [10][†]But if they say, ‘Come up to us,’ then we will go up, for the LORD has given them into our hand. And this shall be the sign to us.” [11]So both of them showed themselves to the garrison of the Philistines. And the Philistines said, “Look, Hebrews are coming [r] out of the holes where they have hidden themselves.” [12]And the men of the garrison hailed Jonathan and his armor-bearer and said, “Come up to us, and we will show you a thing.” And Jonathan said to his armor-bearer, “Come up after me, for the LORD has given them into the hand of Israel.” [13]Then Jonathan climbed up on his hands and feet, and his armor-bearer after him. And they fell before Jonathan, and his armor-bearer killed them after him. [14][†]And that first strike, which Jonathan and his armor-bearer made, killed about twenty men within as it were half a furrow’s length in an acre [3] of land. [15][†]And there was a panic in the camp, in the field, and among all the people. The garrison and even [s] the raiders trembled, the earth quaked, and it became a very great panic. [4]

[16][†]And the watchmen of Saul in Gibeah of Benjamin looked, and behold, the multitude [t] was dispersing here and there. [5] [17]Then Saul said to the people who were with him, “Count and see who has gone from us.” And when they had counted, behold, Jonathan and his armor-bearer were not there. [18][†]So Saul said to Ahijah, “Bring the ark of God here.” For the ark of God went at that time with the people [6] of Israel. [19]Now [u] while Saul was talking to the priest, the tumult in the camp of the Philistines increased more and more. So Saul said to the priest, “Withdraw your hand.” [20]Then Saul and all the people who were with him rallied and went into the battle. And behold, [v] every Philistine’s sword was against his fellow, and there was very great confusion. [21][†]Now the Hebrews who had been with the Philistines before that time and who had gone up with them into the camp, [w] even they also turned to be with the Israelites who were with Saul and Jonathan. [22]Likewise, when all the men of Israel [x] who had hidden themselves [y] in the hill country of Ephraim heard that the Philistines were fleeing, they too followed hard after them in the battle. [23][†] [z] So the LORD saved Israel that day. And the battle passed beyond [a] Beth-aven.

Saul’s Rash Vow

[24][†]And the men of Israel had been hard pressed that day, [b] so Saul had laid an oath on the people, saying, “Cursed be the man who eats food until it is evening and I am avenged on my enemies.” So none of the people had tasted food. [25]Now when all the people [7] came to the forest, behold, there was honey on the ground. [26]And when the people entered the forest, behold, the honey was dropping, but no one put his hand to his mouth, for the people feared the oath. [27][†]But Jonathan had not heard his father charge the people with the oath, [c] so he put out the tip of the staff that was in his hand and dipped it in the honeycomb and put his hand to his mouth, and his eyes became bright. [28][†]Then one of the people said, “Your father strictly charged the people with an oath, saying, ‘Cursed be the man who eats food this day.’” And the people were [d] faint. [29]Then Jonathan said, “My father has troubled the land. See how my eyes have become bright because I tasted a little of this honey. [30]How much better if the people had eaten freely today of the spoil of their enemies that they found. For now the defeat among the Philistines has not been great.”

[31]They struck down the Philistines that day from [e] Michmash to [f] Aijalon. And the people were very [d] faint. [32][†]The people [g] pounced on the spoil and took sheep and oxen and calves and slaughtered them on the ground. And the people ate them [h] with the blood. [33]Then they told Saul, “Behold, the people are sinning against the Lord by eating [h] with the blood.” And he said, “You have dealt treacherously; roll a great stone to me here.” [8] [34]And Saul said, “Disperse yourselves among the people and say to them, ‘Let every man bring his ox or his sheep and slaughter them here and eat, and do not sin against the Lord by eating with the blood.’” So every one of the people brought his ox with him that night and they slaughtered them there. [35]And Saul [i] built an altar to the Lord; it was the first altar that he built to the Lord.

[36]Then Saul said, “Let us go down after the Philistines by night and plunder them until the morning light; let us not leave a man of them.” And they said, “Do whatever seems good to you.” But [j] the priest said, “Let us draw near to God here.” [37]And Saul inquired of God, “Shall I go down after the Philistines? Will you give them into the hand of Israel?” [k] But he did not answer him that day. [38]And Saul said, “Come here, all you leaders of the people, and know and see how this sin has arisen today. [39][†]For [l] as the LORD lives who saves Israel, [m] though it be in Jonathan my son, he shall surely die." But there was not a man among all the people who answered him. [40]Then he said to all Israel, "You shall be on one side, and I and Jonathan my son will be on the other side." And the people said to Saul, "Do what seems good to you." [41][†]Therefore Saul said, "O LORD God of Israel, why have you not answered your servant this day? If this guilt is in me or in Jonathan my son, O LORD, God of Israel, give Urim. But if this guilt is in your people Israel, give Thummim." [9] [n] And Jonathan and Saul were taken, but the people escaped. [42]Then Saul said, [n] "Cast the lot between me and my son Jonathan." And Jonathan was taken.

[43]Then Saul said to Jonathan, [o] "Tell me what you have done." And Jonathan told him, [p] "I tasted a little honey with the tip of the staff that was in my hand. Here I am; I will die." [44]And Saul said, [q] "God do so to me and more also; [r] you shall surely die, Jonathan." [45][†]Then the people said to Saul, "Shall Jonathan die, who has worked this great salvation in Israel? Far from it! [l] As the LORD lives, [s] there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground, for he has worked with God this day." So the people ransomed Jonathan, so that he did not die. [46]Then Saul went up from pursuing the Philistines, and the Philistines went to their own place.

Saul Fights Israel's Enemies

[47][†]When Saul had taken the kingship over Israel, he fought against all his enemies on every side, against Moab, [t] against the Ammonites, against Edom, against the kings of [u] Zobah, and against the Philistines. Wherever he turned he routed them. [48]And he did valiantly [v] and struck the Amalekites and delivered Israel out of the hands of those who plundered them.

[49][†] [w] Now the sons of Saul were Jonathan, Ishvi, and Malchi-shua. And the names of his two daughters were these: the name of the firstborn was [x] Merab, and the name of the younger Michal. [50][†]And the name of Saul's wife was Ahinoam the daughter of Ahimaaz. [y] And the name of the commander of his army was Abner the son of Ner, [z] Saul's uncle. [51] [a] Kish was the father of Saul, and Ner the father of Abner was the son of [a] Abiel.

[52]There was hard fighting against the Philistines all the days of Saul. And when Saul saw any strong man, or any valiant man, [b]he attached him to himself.

The LORD Rejects Saul

1 SAMUEL 15 [‡]And Samuel said to Saul, [c]“The LORD sent me to anoint you king over his people Israel; now therefore listen to the words of the LORD. [2][‡]Thus says the LORD of hosts, ‘I have noted what Amalek did to Israel [d]in opposing them on the way when they came up out of Egypt. [3][‡]Now go and strike Amalek and [e]devote to destruction [1] all that they have. Do not spare them, [f]but kill both man and woman, child and infant, ox and sheep, camel and donkey.’”

[4][‡]So Saul summoned the people and numbered them in Telaim, two hundred thousand men on foot, and ten thousand men of Judah. [5]And Saul came to the city of Amalek and lay in wait in the valley. [6][‡]Then Saul said to [g]the Kenites, “Go, depart; go down from among the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them. [h]For you showed kindness to all the people of Israel when they came up out of Egypt.” So the Kenites departed from among the Amalekites. [7] [i]And Saul defeated the Amalekites from [j]Havilah as far as [k]Shur, which is east of Egypt. [8]And he took Agag the king of the Amalekites alive [l]and devoted to destruction all the people with the edge of the sword. [9][‡][m]But Saul and the people spared Agag and the best of the sheep and of the oxen and of the fattened calves [2] and the lambs, and all that was good, and would not utterly destroy them. All that was despised and worthless they devoted to destruction.

[10]The word of the LORD came to Samuel: [11][‡][n]“I regret [3] that I have made Saul king, for he has turned back from following me and [o]has not performed my commandments.” And Samuel was angry, and he cried to the LORD all night. [12][‡]And Samuel rose early to meet Saul in the morning. And it was told Samuel, “Saul came to [p]Carmel, and behold, he set up a monument for himself and turned and passed on and went down to Gilgal.” [13]And Samuel came to Saul, and Saul said to him, [q]“Blessed be you to the LORD. I have performed the commandment of the LORD.” [14]And Samuel said, “What then is this bleating of the sheep in my ears and the lowing of the oxen that I hear?” [15][‡]Saul said, “They have brought them from the Amalekites, [r]for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen to sacrifice to the LORD your God, and the rest we have devoted to destruction.” [16]Then Samuel said to Saul, “Stop! I will tell you what the LORD said to me this night.” And he said to him, “Speak.”

[17][†]And Samuel said, [s]“Though you are little in your own eyes, are you not the head of the tribes of Israel? The LORD anointed you king over Israel. [18]And the LORD sent you on a mission and said, ‘Go, devote to destruction the sinners, the Amalekites, and fight against them until they are consumed.’ [19]Why then did you not obey the voice of the LORD? [t]Why did you pounce on the spoil and do what was evil in the sight of the LORD?” [20][†]And Saul said to Samuel, [u]“I have obeyed the voice of the LORD. I have gone on the mission on which the LORD sent me. I have brought Agag the king of Amalek, and I have devoted the Amalekites to destruction. [21] [v]But the people took of the spoil, sheep and oxen, the best of the things devoted to destruction, to sacrifice to the LORD your God in Gilgal.” [22][^][†]And Samuel said,

[w]“Has the LORD as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the LORD?
Behold, [x]to obey is better than sacrifice, and to listen than the fat of rams.
[23][†] For rebellion is as the sin of divination, and presumption is as iniquity and [y]idolatry.
Because [z]you have rejected the word of the LORD,
  [a]he has also rejected you from being king.”

[24][†]Saul said to Samuel, [b]“I have sinned, for I have transgressed the commandment of the LORD and your words, because I feared the people and obeyed their voice. [25]Now therefore, please pardon my sin and [c]return with me that I may bow before the LORD.” [26]And Samuel said to Saul, “I will not return with you. [d]For you have rejected the word of the LORD, [e]and the LORD has rejected you from being king over Israel.” [27][†][f]As Samuel turned to go away, Saul seized the skirt of his robe, and it tore. [28][†]And Samuel said to him, [g]“The LORD has torn the kingdom of Israel from you this day and has given it to a neighbor of yours, who is better than you. [29][†]And also the Glory of Israel [h]will not lie or have regret, for he is not a man, that he should have regret.” [30][†]Then he said, “I have sinned; yet

[i] honor me now before the elders of my people and before Israel, [j] and return with me, that I may bow before the LORD your God." [31][†]So Samuel turned back after Saul, and Saul bowed before the LORD.

[32][†]Then Samuel said, "Bring here to me Agag the king of the Amalekites." And Agag came to him cheerfully. [4] Agag said, "Surely the bitterness of death is past." [33]And Samuel said, [k] "As your sword has made women childless, so shall your mother be childless among women." And Samuel hacked Agag to pieces before the LORD [l] in Gilgal.

[34][†]Then Samuel went [m] to Ramah, and Saul went up to his house in [n] Gibeah of Saul. [35][†] [o] And Samuel did not see Saul again until the day of his death, [p] but Samuel grieved over Saul. [q] And the LORD regretted that he had made Saul king over Israel.

David Anointed King

1 SAMUEL 16 [†]The LORD said to Samuel, [r] "How long will you grieve over Saul, since [s] I have rejected him from being king over Israel? [t] Fill your horn with oil, and go. I will send you to Jesse the Bethlehemite, [u] for I have provided for myself a king among his sons." [2][†]And Samuel said, "How can I go? If Saul hears it, he will kill me." And the LORD said, "Take a heifer with you and say, [v] 'I have come to sacrifice to the LORD.' [3]And invite Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will show you what you shall do. [w] And you shall anoint for me him whom I declare to you." [4]Samuel did what the LORD commanded and came to Bethlehem. The elders of the city [x] came to meet him trembling and said, [y] "Do you come peaceably?" [5][†]And he said, "Peaceably; I have come to sacrifice to the LORD. [z] Consecrate yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice." And he consecrated Jesse and his sons and invited them to the sacrifice.

[6]When they came, he looked on [a] Eliab and thought, "Surely the LORD's anointed is before him." [7][^][†]But the LORD said to Samuel, [b] "Do not look on his appearance or on the height of his stature, because I have rejected him. For the LORD sees not as man sees: man looks on the outward appearance, [c] but the LORD looks on the heart." [8][†]Then Jesse called [d] Abinadab and made him pass before Samuel. And he said, “Neither has the LORD chosen this one.” [9]Then Jesse made [d] Shammah pass by. And he said, “Neither has the LORD chosen this one.” [10][†]And Jesse made seven of his sons pass before Samuel. And Samuel said to Jesse, “The LORD has not chosen these.” [11]Then Samuel said to Jesse, “Are all your sons here?” And he said, [e] “There remains yet the youngest, [1] but behold, he is keeping the sheep.” And Samuel said to Jesse, [f] “Send and get him, for we will not sit down till he comes here.” [12]And he sent and brought him in. Now he was [g] ruddy and had beautiful eyes and was handsome. And the LORD said, [h] “Arise, anoint him, for this is he.” [13][†]Then Samuel took [i] the horn of oil [j] and anointed him in the midst of his brothers. [k] And the Spirit of the LORD rushed upon David from that day forward. And Samuel rose up and went to Ramah.

David in Saul’s Service

[14][†] [l] Now the Spirit of the LORD departed from Saul, [m] and a harmful spirit from the LORD tormented him. [15]And Saul’s servants said to him, “Behold now, a harmful spirit from God is tormenting you. [16][†]Let our lord now command your servants [n] who are before you to seek out a man who is skillful in playing the lyre, and when the harmful spirit from God is upon you, he will [o] play it, and you will be well.” [17]So Saul said to his servants, “Provide for me a man who can play well and bring him to me.” [18]One of the young men answered, “Behold, I have seen a son of Jesse the Bethlehemite, who is skillful in playing, [p] a man of valor, a man of war, prudent in speech, and a man of good presence, [q] and the LORD is with him.” [19]Therefore Saul sent messengers to Jesse and said, “Send me David your son, [r] who is with the sheep.” [20][†] [s] And Jesse took a donkey laden with bread and a skin of wine and a young goat and sent them by David his son to Saul. [21][†]And David came to Saul [t] and entered his service. And Saul loved him greatly, and he became his armor-bearer. [22][†]And Saul sent to Jesse, saying, “Let David remain in my service, for he has found favor in my sight.” [23][†]And [u] whenever the harmful spirit from God was upon Saul, David took the lyre [o] and played it with his hand. So Saul was refreshed and was well, and the harmful spirit departed from him.

David and Goliath

1 SAMUEL 17 [†]Now the Philistines [v]gathered their armies for battle. And they were gathered at [w]Socoh, which belongs to Judah, and encamped between Socoh and [x]Azekah, in [y]Ephes-dammim. [2]And Saul and the men of Israel were gathered, and encamped in [z]the Valley of Elah, and drew up in line of battle against the Philistines. [3]And the Philistines stood on the mountain on the one side, and Israel stood on the mountain on the other side, with a valley between them. [4][†]And there came out from the camp of the Philistines a champion named [a]Goliath of [b]Gath, whose height was six [1] cubits [2] and a span. [5]He had a helmet of bronze on his head, and he was armed with a coat of mail, and the weight of the coat was five thousand shekels [3] of bronze. [6]And he had bronze armor on his legs, and a [c]javelin of bronze slung between his shoulders. [7]The shaft of his spear was like a weaver's beam, and his spear's head weighed six hundred shekels of iron. [d]And his shield-bearer went before him. [8]He stood and shouted to the ranks of Israel, "Why have you come out to draw up for battle? Am I not a Philistine, and [e]are you not servants of Saul? Choose a man for yourselves, and let him come down to me. [9]If he is able to fight with me and kill me, then we will be your servants. But if I prevail against him and kill him, then you shall be our servants [f]and serve us." [10]And the Philistine said, [g]"I defy the ranks of Israel this day. Give me a man, that we may fight together." [11][†]When Saul and all Israel heard these words of the Philistine, they were dismayed and greatly afraid.

[12][†]Now David was [h]the son of an [i]Ephrathite of Bethlehem in Judah, [j]named Jesse, [k]who had eight sons. In the days of Saul the man was already old and advanced in years. [4] [13]The three oldest sons of Jesse had followed Saul to the battle. And [l]the names of his three sons who went to the battle were Eliab the firstborn, and next to him Abinadab, and the third Shammah. [14] [m]David was the youngest. The three eldest followed Saul, [15]but David went back and forth from Saul [n]to feed his father's sheep at Bethlehem. [16]For forty days the Philistine came forward and took his stand, morning and evening.

[17]And Jesse said to David his son, "Take for your brothers an ephah [5] of this parched grain, and these ten loaves, and carry them quickly to the camp to your brothers. [18][†] [o]Also take these ten cheeses to the commander of their thousand. [p]See if your brothers are well, and bring some token from them.”

[19]Now Saul and they and all the men of Israel were in the Valley of Elah, fighting with the Philistines. [20]And David rose early in the morning and left the sheep with a keeper and took the provisions and went, as Jesse had commanded him. And he came to [q]the encampment as the host was going out to the battle line, shouting the war cry. [21]And Israel and the Philistines drew up for battle, army against army. [22]And David left the [r]things in charge of the keeper of the [r]baggage and ran to the ranks and went and greeted his brothers. [23]As he talked with them, behold, [s]the champion, the Philistine of Gath, Goliath by name, came up out of the ranks of the Philistines and spoke [t]the same words as before. And David heard him.

[24]All the men of Israel, when they saw the man, fled from him and were much afraid. [25][†]And the men of Israel said, “Have you seen this man who has come up? Surely he has come up to [u]defy Israel. And the king will enrich the man who kills him with great riches [v]and will give him his daughter and make his father’s house free in Israel.” [26]And David said to the men who stood by him, “What shall be done for the man who kills this Philistine and takes away [w]the reproach from Israel? For who is this [x]uncircumcised Philistine, that he should [u]defy the armies of [y]the living God?” [27]And the people answered him in the same way, [z]“So shall it be done to the man who kills him.”

[28][†]Now Eliab his eldest brother heard when he spoke to the men. And Eliab’s anger was kindled against David, and he said, “Why have you come down? And with whom have you left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know your presumption and the evil of your heart, for you have come down to see the battle.” [29]And David said, “What have I done now? Was it not but a word?” [30]And he turned away from him toward another, and spoke [b]in the same way, and the people answered him again as before.

[31]When the words that David spoke were heard, they repeated them before Saul, and he sent for him. [32]And David said to Saul, [c]“Let no man’s heart fail because of him. [d]Your servant will go and fight with this Philistine.” [33]And Saul said to David, “You are not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him, for you are but a youth, and he has been a man of war from his youth.” [34][†]But David said to Saul, “Your servant used to keep sheep for his father. And when there came a lion, or a bear, and took a lamb from the flock, [35]I went after him and struck him and delivered it out of his mouth. And if he arose against me, I caught him by his beard and struck him and killed him. [36][†]Your servant has struck down both lions and bears, and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be like one of them, [e]for he has defied the armies of the living God.” [37][†]And David said, [f]“The LORD who delivered me from the paw of the lion and from the paw of the bear will deliver me from the hand of this Philistine.” And Saul said to David, “Go, [g]and the LORD be with you!”

[38]Then Saul clothed David with his armor. He put a helmet of bronze on his head and clothed him with a coat of mail, [39]and David strapped his sword over his armor. And he tried in vain to go, for he had not tested them. Then David said to Saul, “I cannot go with these, for I have not tested them.” So David put them off. [40]Then he took his staff in his hand and chose five smooth stones from the brook and put them in his shepherd’s pouch. His sling was in his hand, and he approached the Philistine.

[41]And the Philistine moved forward and came near to David, [h]with his shield-bearer in front of him. [42]And when the Philistine looked and saw David, he disdained him, for he was but a youth, [i]ruddy and handsome in appearance. [43][†]And the Philistine said to David, “Am I [j]a dog, that you come to me with sticks?” And the Philistine cursed David by his gods. [44]The Philistine said to David, “Come to me, and I will give your flesh [k]to the birds of the air and to the beasts of the field.” [45]Then David said to the Philistine, “You come to me with a sword and with a spear and with [l]a javelin, but I come to you in the name of the LORD of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, [e]whom you have defied. [46]This day the LORD will deliver you into my hand, and I will strike you down and cut off your head. [m]And I will give the dead bodies of the host of the Philistines this day [n]to the birds of the air and to the wild beasts of the earth, [o]that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel, [47][^]and that all this assembly may know that [p]the LORD saves not with sword and spear. [q]For the battle is the LORD’s, and he will give you into our hand.”

[48]When the Philistine arose and came and drew near to meet David, David ran quickly toward the battle line to meet the Philistine. [49]And David put his hand in his bag and took out a stone and slung it and struck the Philistine on his forehead. The stone sank into his forehead, and he fell on his face to the ground.

[50]So David prevailed over the Philistine with a sling and with a stone, and struck the Philistine and killed him. There was no sword in the hand of David. [51]Then David ran and stood over the Philistine [r] and took his sword and drew it out of its sheath and killed him and cut off his head with it. When the Philistines saw that their champion was dead, [s] they fled. [52][†]And the men of Israel and Judah rose with a shout and pursued the Philistines as far as Gath [6] and the gates of [t] Ekron, so that the wounded Philistines fell on the way from [u] Shaaraim as far as [v] Gath and Ekron. [53]And the people of Israel came back from chasing the Philistines, and they plundered their camp. [54][†]And David took [w] the head of the Philistine [x] and brought it to Jerusalem, but he put his armor in his tent.

[55][†]As soon as Saul saw David go out against the Philistine, he said to Abner, [y] the commander of the army, “Abner, [z] whose son is this youth?” And Abner said, [a] “As your soul lives, O king, I do not know.” [56]And the king said, “Inquire whose son the boy is.” [57]And as soon as David returned from the striking down of the Philistine, Abner took him, and brought him before Saul [b] with the head of the Philistine in his hand. [58]And Saul said to him, “Whose son are you, young man?” And David answered, [c] “I am the son of your servant Jesse the Bethlehemite.”

David and Jonathan’s Friendship

1 SAMUEL 18 As soon as he had finished speaking to Saul, the soul of Jonathan was knit to the soul of David, and Jonathan [d] loved him as his own soul. [2][†]And Saul took him that day [e] and would not let him return to his father’s house. [3][^][†]Then Jonathan made a covenant with David, because [d] he loved him as his own soul. [4]And Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that was on him and gave it to David, and his armor, and even his sword and his bow and his belt. [5]And David went out [f] and was successful wherever Saul sent him, so that Saul set him over the men of war. And this was good in the sight of all the people and also in the sight of Saul’s servants.

Saul’s Jealousy of David

6[†]As they were coming home, when David returned from striking down the Philistine, [g] the women came out of all the cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet King Saul, with tambourines, with songs of joy, and with musical instruments. [1] 7[†]And the women [h] sang to one another as they celebrated,

> [i] “Saul has struck down his thousands,
> and David his ten thousands.”

8And Saul was very angry, and this saying displeased him. He said, “They have ascribed to David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed thousands, and what more can he have but [j] the kingdom?” 9And Saul eyed David from that day on.

10The next day [k] a harmful spirit from God rushed upon Saul, and [l] he raved within his house while David was [m] playing the lyre, as he did day by day. [n] Saul had his spear in his hand. 11And Saul [o] hurled the spear, for he thought, “I will pin David to the wall.” But David evaded him twice.

12[†] [p] Saul was afraid of David because [q] the LORD was with him [r] but had departed from Saul. 13So Saul removed him from his presence and made him a commander of a thousand. [s] And he went out and came in before the people. 14And David [t] had success in all his undertakings, [q] for the LORD was with him. 15And when Saul saw that [t] he had great success, he stood in fearful awe of him. 16 [u] But all Israel and Judah loved David, for he went out and came in before them.

David Marries Michal

17[†]Then Saul said to David, “Here is [v] my elder daughter Merab. [w] I will give her to you for a wife. Only be valiant for me [x] and fight the LORD’s battles.” For Saul thought, “Let not my hand be against him, [y] but let the hand of the Philistines be against him.” 18[†]And David said to Saul, [z]“Who am I, and who are my relatives, my father’s clan in Israel, that I should be son-in-law to the king?” 19But at the time when Merab, Saul’s daughter, should have been given to David, she was given to [a]Adriel the [b]Meholathite for a wife.

20[†]Now [y]Saul’s daughter Michal [c]loved David. And they told Saul, and the thing pleased him. 21Saul thought, “Let me give her to him, that she may [d]be a snare for him [e]and that the hand of the Philistines may be against him.” Therefore Saul said to David a second time, [2] [f]“You shall now be my son-in-law.” 22And Saul commanded his servants, “Speak to David in private and say, ‘Behold, the king has delight in you, and all his servants love you. Now then become the king’s son-in-law.’” 23And Saul’s servants spoke those words in the ears of David. And David said, [g]“Does it seem to you a little thing to become the king’s son-in-law, since I am a poor man and have no reputation?” 24And the servants of Saul told him, “Thus and so did David speak.” 25[†]Then Saul said, “Thus shall you say to David, ‘The king desires no [h]bride-price except a hundred foreskins of the Philistines, [i]that he may be avenged of the king’s enemies.’” [j]Now Saul thought to make David fall by the hand of the Philistines. 26And when his servants told David these words, it pleased David well to be the king’s son-in-law. [k]Before the time had expired, 27David arose and went, [l]along with his men, and killed two hundred of the Philistines. [m]And David brought their foreskins, which were given in full number to the king, that he might become the king’s son-in-law. And Saul gave him his daughter Michal for a wife. 28But when Saul saw and knew that [n]the LORD was with David, [o]and that Michal, Saul’s daughter, loved him, 29Saul was even more afraid of David. So Saul was David’s enemy continually.

30[p]Then the commanders of the Philistines came out to battle, and as often as they came out [q]David had more success than all the servants of Saul, so that his name was highly esteemed.

Saul Tries to Kill David

1 SAMUEL 19 [†]And Saul spoke to Jonathan his son and to all his servants, that they should kill David. [r]But Jonathan, Saul’s son, delighted much in

David. 2And Jonathan told David, “Saul my father seeks to kill you. Therefore be on your guard in the morning. Stay in a secret place and hide yourself. 3And I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where you are, and I will speak to my father about you. And if I learn anything I will tell you.” 4[‡]And Jonathan spoke well of David to Saul his father and said to him, “Let not the king [s] sin against his servant David, because he has not sinned against you, and because his deeds have brought good to you. 5[‡]For [t] he took his life in his hand [u] and he struck down the Philistine, [v] and the LORD worked a great salvation for all Israel. You saw it, and rejoiced. Why then will you sin against [w] innocent blood by killing David without cause?” 6And Saul listened to the voice of Jonathan. Saul swore, [x] “As the LORD lives, he shall not be put to death.” 7And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan reported to him all these things. And Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence [y] as before.

8And there was war again. And David went out and fought with the Philistines and struck them with a great blow, so that they fled before him. 9[‡] [z] Then a harmful spirit from the LORD came upon Saul, as he sat in his house with his spear in his hand. [a] And David was playing the lyre. 10[^][‡] [b] And Saul sought to pin David to the wall with the spear, but he eluded Saul, so that he struck the spear into the wall. And David fled and escaped that night.

11 [c] Saul sent messengers to David’s house to watch him, that he might kill him in the morning. But Michal, David’s wife, told him, “If you do not escape with your life tonight, tomorrow you will be killed.” 12 [d] So Michal let David down through the window, and he fled away and escaped. 13[‡]Michal took [e] an image [1] and laid it on the bed and put a pillow of goats’ hair at its head and covered it with the clothes. 14[‡]And when Saul sent messengers to take David, she said, “He is sick.” 15Then Saul sent the messengers to see David, saying, “Bring him up to me in the bed, that I may kill him.” 16And when the messengers came in, behold, [e] the image was in the bed, with the pillow of goats’ hair at its head. 17Saul said to Michal, “Why have you deceived me thus and let my enemy go, so that he has escaped?” And Michal answered Saul, “He said to me, ‘Let me go. [f] Why should I kill you?’”

[18][†]Now David fled and escaped, and he came to Samuel at [g]Ramah and told him all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went and lived at Naioth. [19]And it was told Saul, “Behold, David is at Naioth in Ramah.” [20][†]Then Saul sent messengers to take David, and when they saw the company of the prophets prophesying, and Samuel standing as head over them, [h]the Spirit of God came upon the messengers of Saul, [i]and they also prophesied. [21]When it was told Saul, he sent other messengers, [i]and they also prophesied. And Saul sent messengers again the third time, [i]and they also prophesied. [22]Then he himself went to Ramah and came to the great well that is in Secu. And he asked, “Where are Samuel and David?” And one said, “Behold, they are at Naioth in [g]Ramah.” [23][†]And he went there to Naioth in Ramah. [j]And the Spirit of God came upon him also, and as he went he prophesied until he came to Naioth in Ramah. [24][k]And he too stripped off his clothes, and he too prophesied before Samuel and lay naked all that day and all that night. Thus it is said, [l]“Is Saul also among the prophets?”

Jonathan Warns David

1 SAMUEL 20 [†]Then David fled from Naioth [m]in Ramah and came and said before Jonathan, “What have I done? What is my guilt? And what is my sin before your father, that he seeks my life?” [2]And he said to him, “Far from it! You shall not die. Behold, my father does nothing either great or small without disclosing it to me. And why should my father hide this from me? It is not so.” [3][†]But David vowed again, saying, “Your father knows well that [n]I have found favor in your eyes, and he thinks, ‘Do not let Jonathan know this, lest he be grieved.’ But truly, [o]as the LORD lives and [p]as your soul lives, there is but a step between me and death.” [4]Then Jonathan said to David, “Whatever you say, I will do for you.” [5][†]David said to Jonathan, “Behold, tomorrow is [q]the new moon, and I should not fail to sit at table with the king. But let me go, [r]that I may hide myself in the field till the third day at evening. [6][s]If your father misses me at all, then say, ‘David earnestly asked leave of me to run [t]to Bethlehem his city, for there is a yearly [u]sacrifice there for all the clan.’ [7]If he says, ‘Good!’ it will be well with your servant, but if he is angry, then know that [v]harm is determined by him. [8]Therefore deal kindly with your servant, [w] for you have brought your servant into a covenant of the LORD with you. [x] But if there is guilt in me, kill me yourself, for why should you bring me to your father?” [9]And Jonathan said, “Far be it from you! If I knew that [v] it was determined by my father that harm should come to you, would I not tell you?” [10]Then David said to Jonathan, “Who will tell me if your father answers you roughly?” [11]And Jonathan said to David, “Come, let us go out into the field.” So they both went out into the field.

[12]And Jonathan said to David, “The LORD, the God of Israel, be witness! [1] When I have sounded out my father, about this time tomorrow, or the third day, behold, if he is well disposed toward David, shall I not then send and disclose it to you? [13][‡]But should it please my father to do you harm, [y] the LORD do so to Jonathan and more also if I do not disclose it to you and send you away, that you may go in safety. [z] May the LORD be with you, as he has been with my father. [14]If I am still alive, show me the steadfast love of the LORD, that I may not die; [15][‡] [a] and do not cut off [2] your steadfast love from my house forever, when the LORD cuts off every one of the enemies of David from the face of the earth.” [16]And Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David, saying, [b] “May [3] the LORD take vengeance on David’s enemies.” [17]And Jonathan made David swear again by his love for him, [c] for he loved him as he loved his own soul.

[18]Then Jonathan said to him, [d] “Tomorrow is the new moon, and [e] you will be missed, because [f] your seat will be empty. [19]On the third day go down quickly to the place where you hid yourself when the matter was in hand, and remain beside the stone heap. [4] [20]And I will shoot three arrows to the side of it, as though I shot at a mark. [21]And behold, I will send the boy, saying, ‘Go, find the arrows.’ If I say to the boy, ‘Look, the arrows are on this side of you, take them,’ then you are to come, for, [g] as the LORD lives, it is safe for you and there is no danger. [22][‡]But if I say to the youth, [h] ‘Look, the arrows are beyond you,’ then go, for the LORD has sent you away. [23] [i] And as for the matter of which you and I have spoken, behold, [j] the LORD is between you and me forever.”

[24]So David hid himself in the field. And when the new moon came, the king sat down to eat food. [25]The king sat on his seat, as at other times, on the seat by the wall. Jonathan sat opposite, [5] and Abner sat by Saul's side, [k] but David's place was empty.

[26][†]Yet Saul did not say anything that day, for he thought, "Something has happened to him. [l] He is not clean; surely he is not clean." [27]But on [m] the second day, the day after the new moon, [k] David's place was empty. And Saul said to Jonathan his son, "Why has not the son of Jesse come to the meal, either yesterday or today?" [28]Jonathan answered Saul, [n] "David earnestly asked leave of me to go to Bethlehem. [29][†]He said, 'Let me go, for our clan holds a sacrifice in the city, and my brother has commanded me to be there. So now, if I have found favor in your eyes, let me get away and see my brothers.' For this reason he has not come to the king's table."

[30][†]Then Saul's anger was kindled against Jonathan, and he said to him, "You son of a perverse, rebellious woman, do I not know that you have chosen the son of Jesse to your own shame, and to the shame of your mother's nakedness? [31][†]For as long as the son of Jesse lives on the earth, neither you nor your kingdom shall be established. Therefore send and bring him to me, for he shall surely die." [32]Then Jonathan answered Saul his father, [o] "Why should he be put to death? What has he done?" [33][^] [p] But Saul hurled his spear at him to strike him. So Jonathan knew [q] that his father was determined to put David to death. [34]And Jonathan rose from the table in fierce anger and ate no food the second day of the month, for he was grieved for David, because his father had disgraced him.

[35]In the morning Jonathan went out into the field to the appointment with David, and with him a little boy. [36]And he said to his boy, "Run and find the arrows that I shoot." As the boy ran, he shot an arrow beyond him. [37][†]And when the boy came to the place of the arrow that Jonathan had shot, Jonathan called after the boy and said, [r] "Is not the arrow beyond you?" [38]And Jonathan called after the boy, "Hurry! Be quick! Do not stay!" So Jonathan's boy gathered up the arrows and came to his master. [39]But the boy knew nothing. Only Jonathan and David knew the matter. [40][†]And Jonathan gave his weapons to his boy and said to him, "Go and carry them to the city." [41]And as soon as the boy had gone, David rose from beside the stone heap [6] and fell on his face to the ground and bowed three times. And they kissed one another and wept with one another, David weeping the most. [42]Then Jonathan said to David, [s]“Go in peace, because we have sworn both of us in the name of the Lord, saying, [t]‘The Lord shall be between me and you, [u]and between my offspring and your offspring, forever.’” And he rose and departed, and Jonathan went into the city. [7]

David and the Holy Bread

1 SAMUEL 21 [†] [1] Then David came to [v]Nob to [w]Ahimelech the priest. And Ahimelech [x]came to meet David trembling and said to him, “Why are you alone, and no one with you?” [2][†]And David said to Ahimelech the priest, “The king has charged me with a matter and said to me, ‘Let no one know anything of the matter about which I send you, and with which I have charged you.’ I have made an appointment with the young men for such and such a place. [3]Now then, what do you have on hand? Give me five loaves of bread, or whatever is here.” [4][†]And the priest answered David, “I have no common bread on hand, but there is [y]holy bread—[z]if the young men have kept themselves from women.” [5][^]And David answered the priest, “Truly women have been kept from us as always when I go on an expedition. The vessels of the young men are holy even when it is an ordinary journey. How much more today will their vessels be holy?” [6]So the priest gave him [y]the holy bread, for there was no bread there but the bread of the Presence, [a]which is removed from before the Lord, to be replaced by hot bread on the day it is taken away.

[7][†]Now a certain man of the servants of Saul was there that day, detained before the Lord. His name was [b]Doeg the Edomite, the chief of Saul’s herdsmen.

[8]Then David said to Ahimelech, “Then have you not here a spear or a sword at hand? For I have brought neither my sword nor my weapons with me, because the king’s business required haste.” [9][†]And the priest said, [c]“The sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom you struck down in [d]the Valley of Elah, behold, it is here wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod. If you will take that, take it, for there is none but that here.” And David said, “There is none like that; give it to me.”

David Flees to Gath

[10][†]And David rose and fled that day from Saul and went to [e]Achish the king of Gath. [11]And the servants of Achish said to him, “Is not this David the king of the land? [f]Did they not sing to one another of him in dances, ‘Saul has struck down his thousands,

and David his ten thousands’?”

[12]And David [g]took these words to heart and was much afraid of Achish the king of Gath. [13]So he changed his behavior before them and pretended to be insane in their hands and made marks on the doors of the gate and let his spittle run down his beard. [14][†]Then Achish said to his servants, “Behold, you see the man is mad. Why then have you brought him to me? [15]Do I lack madmen, that you have brought this fellow to behave as a madman in my presence? Shall this fellow come into my house?”

1 SAMUEL 22 [†]David departed from there and escaped to [h]the cave of [i]Adullam. And when his brothers and all his father’s house heard it, they went down there to him. [2][†][j]And everyone who was in distress, and everyone who was in debt, and everyone who was bitter in soul, [1] gathered to him. And he became commander over them. And there were with him [k]about four hundred men.

[3]And David went from there to Mizpeh of Moab. And he said to the king of Moab, “Please let my father and my mother stay [2] with you, till I know what God will do for me.” [4]And he left them with the king of Moab, and they stayed with him all the time that David was in the stronghold. [5][†]Then the prophet [l]Gad said to David, “Do not remain in the stronghold; depart, and go into the land of Judah.” So David departed and went into the forest of Hereth.

Saul Kills the Priests at Nob

[6][†]Now Saul heard that David was discovered, and the men who were with him. Saul was sitting at Gibeah under [m]the tamarisk tree on the height with his spear in his hand, and all his servants were standing about him. 7[‡]And Saul said to his servants who stood about him, “Hear now, people of Benjamin; will the son of Jesse [n] give every one of you fields and vineyards, will he make you all commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds, 8[‡]that all of you have conspired against me? No one discloses to me [o] when my son makes a covenant with the son of Jesse. None of you [p] is sorry for me or discloses to me that my son has stirred up my servant against me, [q] to lie in wait, as at this day.” 9[‡]Then answered [r] Doeg the Edomite, who stood by the servants of Saul, “I saw the son of Jesse [s] coming to Nob, to [t] Ahimelech the son of Ahitub, 10[‡] [u] and he inquired of the LORD for him and [v] gave him provisions and gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine.”

11Then the king sent to summon Ahimelech the priest, the son of Ahitub, and all his father’s house, the priests who were at Nob, and all of them came to the king. 12And Saul said, “Hear now, son of Ahitub.” And he answered, “Here I am, my lord.” 13And Saul said to him, “Why have you conspired against me, you and the son of Jesse, in that you have given him bread and a sword and [u] have inquired of God for him, so that he has risen against me, [w] to lie in wait, as at this day?” 14Then Ahimelech answered the king, “And who among all your servants is so faithful as David, who is the king’s son-in-law, and captain over [3] your bodyguard, and honored in your house? 15Is today the first time [u] that I have inquired of God for him? No! Let not the king impute anything to his servant or to all the house of my father, for your servant has known nothing of all this, [x] much or little.” 16[^]And the king said, “You shall surely die, Ahimelech, you and all your father’s house.” 17And the king said to [y] the guard who stood about him, “Turn and kill the priests of the LORD, because their hand also is with David, and they knew that he fled and did not disclose it to me.” But the servants of the king would not put out their hand to strike the priests of the LORD. 18Then the king said to Doeg, “You turn and strike the priests.” And Doeg the Edomite turned and struck down the priests, [z] and he killed on that day eighty-five persons who wore the linen ephod. 19[‡]And Nob, the city of the priests, he put to the sword; [a] both man and woman, child and infant, ox, donkey and sheep, he put to the sword.

[20][†]But one of the sons of Ahimelech the son of Ahitub, named [b]Abiathar, escaped and fled after David. [21]And Abiathar told David that Saul had killed the priests of the LORD. [22]And David said to Abiathar, “I knew on that day, [c]when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he would surely tell Saul. I have occasioned the death of all the persons of your father’s house. [23][d]Stay with me; do not be afraid, for he who seeks my life seeks your life. With me you shall be in safekeeping.”

David Saves the City of Keilah

1 SAMUEL 23 [†]Now they told David, “Behold, the Philistines are fighting against [e]Keilah and are robbing the threshing floors.” [2][^][†]Therefore David [f]inquired of the LORD, “Shall I go and attack these Philistines?” And the LORD said to David, “Go and attack the Philistines and save Keilah.” [3]But David’s men said to him, “Behold, we are afraid here in Judah; how much more then if we go to Keilah against the armies of the Philistines?” [4]Then David [f]inquired of the LORD again. And the LORD answered him, “Arise, go down to Keilah, [g]for I will give the Philistines into your hand.” [5][†]And David and his men went to Keilah and fought with the Philistines and brought away their livestock and struck them with a great blow. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

[6][h]When Abiathar the son of Ahimelech had fled to David to Keilah, he had come down with an ephod in his hand. [7][†]Now it was told Saul that David had come to Keilah. And Saul said, “God has given him into my hand, for he has shut himself in by entering a town that has gates and bars.” [8]And Saul summoned all the people to war, to go down to Keilah, to besiege David and his men. [9]David knew that Saul was plotting harm against him. And he said to Abiathar the priest, [i]“Bring the ephod here.” [10]Then David said, “O LORD, the God of Israel, your servant has surely heard that Saul seeks to come to Keilah, to destroy the city on my account. [11]Will the men of Keilah surrender me into his hand? Will Saul come down, as your servant has heard? O LORD, the God of Israel, please tell your servant.” And the LORD said, “He will come down.” [12][†]Then David said, “Will the men of Keilah surrender me and my men into the hand of Saul?” And the LORD said, [j]“They will surrender you.” [13]Then David and his men, [k]who were about six hundred, arose and departed from Keilah, and they went [l]wherever they could go. When Saul was told that David had escaped from Keilah, he gave up the expedition. [14][†]And David remained in the strongholds in the wilderness, in the hill country [m]of the wilderness of [n]Ziph. And Saul sought him every day, but God did not give him into his hand.

Saul Pursues David

[15]David saw that Saul had come out to seek his life. David was in the wilderness of Ziph at Horesh. [16][†]And Jonathan, Saul's son, rose and went to David at Horesh, and strengthened his hand in God. [17]And he said to him, "Do not fear, for the hand of Saul my father shall not find you. You shall be king over Israel, and I shall be next to you. [o]Saul my father also knows this." [18][p]And the two of them made a covenant before the LORD. David remained at Horesh, and Jonathan went home.

[19][†][q]Then the Ziphites went up to Saul at Gibeah, saying, "Is not David hiding among us in the strongholds at Horesh, on the hill of Hachilah, which is south of [r]Jeshimon? [20]Now come down, O king, according to all your heart's desire to come down, [s]and our part shall be to surrender him into the king's hand." [21][†]And Saul said, [t]"May you be blessed by the LORD, [u]for you have had compassion on me. [22]Go, make yet more sure. Know and see the place where his foot is, and who has seen him there, for it is told me that he is very cunning. [23]See therefore and take note of all the lurking places where he hides, and come back to me with sure information. Then I will go with you. And if he is in the land, I will search him out among all the thousands of Judah." [24][†]And they arose and went to Ziph ahead of Saul.

Now David and his men were [v]in the wilderness of Maon, [w]in the Arabah to the south of [r]Jeshimon. [25]And Saul and his men went to seek him. And David was told, so he went down to the rock and lived in the wilderness of Maon. And when Saul heard that, he pursued after David in the wilderness of Maon. [26]Saul went on one side of the mountain, and David and his men on the other side of the mountain. And David was hurrying to get away from Saul. As Saul and his men were closing in on David and his men to capture them, [27][†]a messenger came to Saul, saying, “Hurry and come, for the Philistines have made a raid against the land.” [28]So Saul returned from pursuing after David and went against the Philistines. Therefore that place was called the Rock of Escape. [1] [29][†] [2] And David went up from there and lived in the strongholds of [x]Engedi.

David Spares Saul’s Life

1 SAMUEL 24 [†] [1] [y]When Saul returned from following the Philistines, he was told, “Behold, David is in the wilderness of Engedi.” [2][†]Then Saul took [z]three thousand chosen men out of all Israel and went to seek David and his men in front of the Wildgoats’ Rocks. [3]And he came to the sheepfolds by the way, where there was a cave, and Saul went in [a]to relieve himself. [2] Now David and his men were sitting in the innermost parts [b]of the cave. [4][†]And the men of David said to him, [c]“Here is the day of which the LORD said to you, ‘Behold, I will give your enemy into your hand, and you shall do to him as it shall seem good to you.’” Then David arose and stealthily cut off a corner of Saul’s robe. [5]And afterward [d]David’s heart struck him, because he had cut off a corner of Saul’s robe. [6][^][†]He said to his men, [e]“The LORD forbid that I should do this thing to my lord, the LORD’s anointed, to put out my hand against him, seeing he is [f]the LORD’s anointed.” [7]So David persuaded his men with these words [g]and did not permit them to attack Saul. And Saul rose up and left the cave and went on his way.

[8]Afterward David also arose and went out of the cave, and called after Saul, “My lord the king!” And when Saul looked behind him, David bowed with his face to the earth and paid homage. [9]And David said to Saul, “Why do you listen to the words of men who say, ‘Behold, David seeks your harm’? [10]Behold, this day your eyes have seen how the LORD gave you today into my hand in the cave. [h]And some told me to kill you, but I spared you. [3] I said, ‘I will not put out my hand against my lord, [f]for he is the LORD’s anointed.’ [11]See, my father, see the corner of your robe in my hand. For by the fact that I cut off the corner of your robe and did not kill you, you may know and see that [i]there is no wrong or treason in my hands. I have not sinned against you, though [j]you hunt my life to take it. [12][†] [k]May the LORD judge between me and you, may the LORD avenge me against you, but my hand shall not be against you. 13[†]As the proverb of the ancients says, 'Out of the wicked comes wickedness.' But my hand shall not be against you. 14After whom has the king of Israel come out? After whom do you pursue? [l]After a dead dog! [m]After a flea! 15 [k]May the LORD therefore be judge and give sentence between me and you, and see to it and [n]plead my cause and deliver me from your hand."

16As soon as David had finished speaking these words to Saul, Saul said, [o]"Is this your voice, my son David?" And Saul lifted up his voice and wept. 17[^]He said to David, "You are more righteous than I, [p]for you have repaid me good, whereas I have repaid you evil. 18[†]And you have declared this day how you have dealt well with me, in that you did not kill me when the LORD put me into your hands. 19For if a man finds his enemy, will he let him go away safe? So may the LORD reward you with good for what you have done to me this day. 20[†]And now, behold, [q]I know that you shall surely be king, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be established in your hand. 21 [r]Swear to me therefore by the LORD that you will not cut off my offspring after me, and [s]that you will not destroy my name out of my father's house." 22[†]And David swore this to Saul. Then Saul went home, but David and his men went up [t]to the stronghold.

The Death of Samuel

1 SAMUEL 25 [†] [u]Now Samuel died. And all Israel assembled [v]and mourned for him, and they buried him [w]in his house at [x]Ramah.

David and Abigail

Then David rose and went down to [y]the wilderness of Paran. 2[†]And there was a man in [z]Maon whose business was in [a]Carmel. The man was very rich; he had three thousand sheep and a thousand goats. [b]He was shearing his sheep in Carmel. 3[†]Now the name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wife Abigail. The woman was discerning and beautiful, but the man was harsh and badly behaved; [c]he was a Calebite. 4[†]David heard in the wilderness that Nabal [b]was shearing his sheep. 5So David sent ten young men. And David said to the young men, “Go up to Carmel, and go to Nabal and greet him in my name. [6]And thus you shall greet him: [d]‘Peace be to you, and peace be to your house, and peace be to all that you have. [7]I hear that you have shearers. Now your shepherds have been with us, and we did them no harm, [e]and they missed nothing all the time they were in Carmel. [8]Ask your young men, and they will tell you. Therefore let my young men find favor in your eyes, for we come [f]on a feast day. Please give whatever you have at hand to your servants and to your son David.’”

[9]When David’s young men came, they said all this to Nabal in the name of David, and then they waited. [10][†]And Nabal answered David’s servants, [g]“Who is David? Who is the son of Jesse? [h]There are many servants these days who are breaking away from their masters. [11]Shall I take [i]my bread and my water and my meat that I have killed for my shearers and give it to [j]men who come from I do not know where?” [12]So David’s young men turned away and came back and told him all this. [13]And David said to his men, “Every man strap on his sword!” And every man of them strapped on his sword. David also strapped on his sword. And [k]about four hundred men went up after David, [k]while two hundred [l]remained with the baggage.

[14]But one of the young men told Abigail, Nabal’s wife, “Behold, David sent messengers out of the wilderness to greet our master, and he railed at them. [15]Yet the men were very good to us, and we suffered no harm, [n]and we did not miss anything when we were in the fields, as long as we went with them. [16]They were [o]a wall to us both by night and by day, all the while we were with them keeping the sheep. [17]Now therefore know this and consider what you should do, [p]for harm is determined against our master and against all his house, and he is such [q]a worthless man that one cannot speak to him.”

[18][†]Then Abigail made haste and took two hundred loaves and two skins of wine and five sheep already prepared and five seahs [1] of parched grain and a hundred clusters of raisins and two hundred cakes of figs, and laid them on donkeys. [19]And she said to her young men, “Go on before me; behold, I come after you.” But she did not tell her husband Nabal. [20]And as she rode on the donkey and came down under cover of the mountain, behold, David and his men came down toward her, and she met them.

[21]Now David had said, “Surely in vain have I guarded all that this fellow has in the wilderness, [r]so that nothing was missed of all that belonged to him, and he has [s]returned me evil for good. [22][†] [t]God do so to the enemies of David [2] and more also, if by morning I leave so much as one male of all who belong to him.”

[23][†]When Abigail saw David, she hurried [u]and got down from the donkey [v]and fell before David on her face and bowed to the ground. [24][^]She fell at his feet and said, [w]“On me alone, my lord, be the guilt. Please let your servant speak in your ears, and hear the words of your servant. [25]Let not my lord regard [q]this worthless fellow, Nabal, for as his name is, so is he. Nabal [3] is his name, and folly is with him. But I your servant did not see the young men of my lord, whom you sent. [26]Now then, my lord, [x]as the Lord lives, and as your soul lives, because [y]the Lord has restrained you from bloodguilt and from [z]saving with your own hand, now then [a]let your enemies and those who seek to do evil to my lord be as Nabal. [27]And now let this [b]present that your servant has brought to my lord be given to the young men who follow my lord. [28]Please forgive the trespass of your servant. For the Lord will certainly make my lord [c]a sure house, because my lord [d]is fighting the battles of the Lord, and evil shall not be found in you so long as you live. [29][^]If men rise up to pursue you and to seek your life, the life of my lord shall be bound in the bundle of the living in the care of the Lord your God. And the lives of your enemies [e]he shall sling out as from the hollow of a sling. [30]And when the Lord has done to my lord according to all the good that he has spoken concerning you and has appointed you prince [4] over Israel, [31]my lord shall have no cause of grief or pangs of conscience for having shed blood without cause or for my lord [z]working salvation himself. And when the Lord has dealt well with my lord, then remember your servant.”

[32][†]And David said to Abigail, [f]“Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, who sent you this day to meet me! [33]Blessed be your discretion, and blessed be you, [y]who have kept me this day from bloodguilt [z]and from working salvation with my own hand! [34]For as surely [g]as the Lord, the God of Israel, lives, [y]who has restrained me from hurting you, unless you had hurried and come to meet me, truly by morning there had not been left to Nabal so much as one male.” [35][†]Then David received from her hand what she had brought him. And he said to her, [h]“Go up in peace to your house. See, I have obeyed your voice, and I have granted your petition.”

[36]And Abigail came to Nabal, and behold, [i]he was holding a feast in his house, like the feast of a king. And Nabal’s heart [j]was merry within him, for he was very drunk. So she told him nothing [k]at all until the morning light. [37][†]In the morning, when the wine had gone out of Nabal, his wife told him these things, and his heart died within him, and he became as a stone. [38]And about ten days later [l]the LORD struck Nabal, and he died.

[39]When David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, [f]“Blessed be the LORD who has [m]avenged the insult I received at the hand of Nabal, [n]and has kept back his servant from wrongdoing. [o]The LORD has returned the evil of Nabal on his own head.” Then David sent and [p]spoke to Abigail, to take her as his wife. [40]When the servants of David came to Abigail at Carmel, they said to her, “David has sent us to you to take you to him as his wife.” [41]And she rose [q]and bowed with her face to the ground and said, “Behold, your handmaid is a servant to wash the feet of the servants of my lord.” [42]And Abigail hurried and rose and mounted a donkey, and her five young women attended her. She followed the messengers of David and became his wife.

[43][†]David also took Ahinoam of [r]Jezreel, [s]and both of them became his wives. [44][†]Saul had given Michal his daughter, David’s wife, to Palti the son of Laish, who was of Gallim.

David Spares Saul Again

1 SAMUEL 26 [†] [t]Then the Ziphites came to Saul at Gibeah, saying, “Is not David hiding himself on the hill of Hachilah, which is on the east of Jeshimon?” [2]So Saul arose and went down to [u]the wilderness of Ziph with [v]three thousand chosen men of Israel to seek David in the wilderness of Ziph. [3]And Saul encamped on the hill of Hachilah, which is beside the road on the east of Jeshimon. But David remained in the wilderness. When he saw that Saul came after him into the wilderness, [4]David sent out spies and learned that Saul had indeed come. [5]Then David rose and came to the place where Saul had encamped. And David saw the place where Saul lay, with [w] Abner the son of Ner, the commander of his army. Saul was lying within [x] the encampment, while the army was encamped around him.

[6][†]Then David said to Ahimelech the Hittite, and to Joab's brother [y] Abishai the son of Zeruiah, [z] "Who will go down with me into the camp to Saul?" And Abishai said, "I will go down with you." [7]So David and Abishai went to the army by night. And there lay Saul sleeping within [x] the encampment, with his spear stuck in the ground [a] at his head, and Abner and the army lay around him. [8][†]Then Abishai said to David, [b] "God has given your enemy into your hand this day. Now please let me pin him to the earth with one stroke of the spear, and I will not strike him twice." [9][^]But David said to Abishai, "Do not destroy him, for who can put out his hand [c] against the LORD's anointed and be guiltless?" [10]And David said, [d] "As the LORD lives, [e] the LORD will strike him, or [f] his day will come to die, [g] or he will go down into battle and perish. [11][†] [h] The LORD forbid that I should put out my hand against the LORD's anointed. But take now the spear that is [i] at his head and the jar of water, and let us go." [12]So David took the spear and the jar of water from Saul's head, and they went away. No man saw it or knew it, nor did any awake, for they were all asleep, because [j] a deep sleep from the LORD had fallen upon them.

[13]Then David went over to the other side and stood far off on the top of the hill, with a great space between them. [14]And David called to the army, and to Abner the son of Ner, saying, "Will you not answer, Abner?" Then Abner answered, "Who are you who calls to the king?" [15]And David said to Abner, "Are you not a man? Who is like you in Israel? Why then have you not kept watch over your lord the king? For one of the people came in to destroy the king your lord. [16][†]This thing that you have done is not good. [k] As the LORD lives, you deserve to die, because you have not kept watch over your lord, the LORD's anointed. And now see where the king's spear is and the jar of water that was [l] at his head."

[17]Saul recognized David's voice and said, [m] "Is this your voice, my son David?" And David said, "It is my voice, my lord, O king." [18]And he said, [n] "Why does my lord pursue after his servant? For what have I done? What evil is on my hands? [19][†]Now therefore let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If it is the LORD who has stirred you up against me, may he accept an offering, but if it is men, may they be cursed before the LORD, [o] for they have driven me out this day that I should have no share in [p] the heritage of the LORD, saying, 'Go, serve other gods.' [20]Now therefore, let not my blood fall to the earth away from the presence of the LORD, for the king of Israel has come out to seek [q] a single flea like one who hunts a partridge in the mountains."

[21]Then Saul said, [r] "I have sinned. Return, my son David, for I will no more do you harm, because my life was precious in your eyes this day. Behold, I have acted foolishly, and have made a great mistake." [22]And David answered and said, "Here is the spear, O king! Let one of the young men come over and take it. [23] [s] The LORD rewards every man for his righteousness and his faithfulness, for the LORD gave you into my hand today, and I would not put out my hand against the LORD's anointed. [24]Behold, as your life was precious this day in my sight, so may my life be precious in the sight of the LORD, and may he deliver me out of all tribulation." [25]Then Saul said to David, "Blessed be you, my son David! You will do many things and will [t] succeed in them." So David went his way, and Saul returned to his place.

David Flees to the Philistines

1 SAMUEL 27 [‡]Then David said in his heart, "Now I shall perish one day by the hand of Saul. There is nothing better for me than that I should escape to the land of the Philistines. Then Saul will despair of seeking me any longer within the borders of Israel, and I shall escape out of his hand." [2]So David arose and went over, he and [u] the six hundred men who were with him, [v] to Achish the son of Maoch, king of Gath. [3]And David lived with Achish at Gath, he and his men, every man with his household, and David with [w] his two wives, Ahinoam of Jezreel, and Abigail of Carmel, Nabal's widow. [4]And when it was told Saul that David had fled to Gath, he no longer sought him.

[5][‡]Then David said to Achish, "If [x] I have found favor in your eyes, let a place be given me in one of the country towns, that I may dwell there. For why should your servant dwell in the royal city with you?" [6][‡]So that day Achish gave him [y] Ziklag. Therefore Ziklag has belonged to the kings of Judah to this day. [7] [z]And the number of the days that David lived in the country of the Philistines was a year and four months.

[8][†]Now David [a]and his men went up and made raids against [b]the Geshurites, [c]the Girzites, and [d]the Amalekites, for these were the inhabitants of the land from of old, [e]as far as Shur, to the land of Egypt. [9]And David would strike the land and would leave neither man nor woman alive, but would take away the sheep, the oxen, the donkeys, the camels, and the garments, and come back to Achish. [10][†]When Achish asked, “Where have you [f]made a raid today?” David would say, “Against the Negeb of Judah,” or, “Against the Negeb of [g]the Jerahmeelites,” or, “Against the Negeb of [h]the Kenites.” [11]And David would leave neither man nor woman alive to bring news to Gath, thinking, “lest they should tell about us and say, ‘So David has done.’” Such was his custom all the while he lived in the country of the Philistines. [12][†]And Achish trusted David, thinking, “He has made himself an utter stench to his people Israel; therefore he shall always be my servant.”

Saul and the Medium of En-dor

1 SAMUEL 28 [†]In those days [i]the Philistines gathered their forces for war, to fight against Israel. And Achish said to David, “Understand that you and your men are to go out with me in the army.” [2]David said to Achish, “Very well, you shall know what your servant can do.” And Achish said to David, “Very well, I will make you my bodyguard for life.”

[3][†]Now [j]Samuel had died, and all Israel had mourned for him and buried him [k]in Ramah, his own city. And Saul had put [l]the mediums and the necromancers out of the land. [4]The Philistines assembled and came and encamped [m]at Shunem. And Saul gathered all Israel, and they encamped [n]at Gilboa. [5]When Saul saw the army of the Philistines, he was afraid, and his heart trembled greatly. [6][†]And when Saul inquired of the LORD, [o]the LORD did not answer him, either [p]by dreams, or [q]by Urim, or by prophets. [7][^][†]Then Saul said to his servants, [r]“Seek out for me a woman who is a medium, that I may go to her and inquire of her.” And his servants said to him, “Behold, there is a medium at [s]En-dor.”

[8][†]So Saul [t]disguised himself and put on other garments and went, he and two men with him. And they came to the woman by night. And he said, [u]“Divine for me by a spirit and bring up for me whomever I shall name to you.” [9]The woman said to him, “Surely you know what Saul has done, [l]how he has cut off the mediums and the necromancers from the land. Why then are you laying a trap for my life to bring about my death?” [10]But Saul swore to her by the LORD, [v]“As the LORD lives, no punishment shall come upon you for this thing.” [11][†]Then the woman said, “Whom shall I bring up for you?” He said, “Bring up Samuel for me.” [12][†]When the woman saw Samuel, she cried out with a loud voice. And the woman said to Saul, “Why have you deceived me? You are Saul.” [13][†]The king said to her, “Do not be afraid. What do you see?” And the woman said to Saul, “I see a god coming up out of the earth.” [14]He said to her, “What is his appearance?” And she said, “An old man is coming up, and he is wrapped [w]in a robe.” And Saul knew that it was Samuel, and he bowed with his face to the ground and paid homage.

[15][†]Then Samuel said to Saul, “Why have you disturbed me by bringing me up?” Saul answered, “I am in great distress, for the Philistines are warring against me, and [x]God has turned away from me and [y]answers me no more, either by prophets or by dreams. Therefore I have summoned you to tell me what I shall do.” [16]And Samuel said, “Why then do you ask me, since the LORD has turned from you and become your enemy? [17]The LORD has done to you as he spoke by me, for [z]the LORD has torn the kingdom out of your hand and given it to your neighbor, David. [18][a]Because you did not obey the voice of the LORD and did not carry out his fierce wrath against Amalek, therefore the LORD has done this thing to you this day. [19][†]Moreover, the LORD will give Israel also with you into the hand of the Philistines, and tomorrow you [b]and your sons shall be with me. The LORD will give the army of Israel also into the hand of the Philistines.”

[20]Then Saul fell at once full length on the ground, filled with fear because of the words of Samuel. And there was no strength in him, for he had eaten nothing all day and all night. [21]And the woman came to Saul, and when she saw that he was terrified, she said to him, “Behold, your servant has obeyed you. [c]I have taken my life in my hand and have listened to what you have said to me. [22]Now therefore, you also obey your servant. Let me set a morsel of bread before you; and eat, that you may have strength when you go on your way.” [23]He refused and said, “I will not eat.” But his servants, together with the woman, urged him, and he listened to their words. So he arose from the earth and sat on the bed. [24][†]Now the woman had a fattened calf in the house, and she quickly killed it, and she took flour and kneaded it and baked unleavened bread of it, [25][†]and she put it before Saul and his servants, and they ate. Then they rose and went away that night.

The Philistines Reject David

1 SAMUEL 29 [†] [d]Now the Philistines had gathered all their forces at [e]Aphek. And the Israelites were encamped by [f]the spring that is in [g]Jezreel. [2][†]As [h]the lords of the Philistines were passing on by hundreds and by thousands, and David and his men were passing on in the rear [i]with Achish, [3]the commanders of the Philistines said, “What are these Hebrews doing here?” And Achish said to the commanders of the Philistines, “Is this not David, the servant of Saul, king of Israel, who has been with me [j]now for days and years, and since he deserted to me [k]I have found no fault in him to this day.” [4][†]But [h]the commanders of the Philistines were angry with him. And the commanders of the Philistines said to him, “Send the man back, that he may return [l]to the place to which you have assigned him. He shall not go down with us to battle, [m]lest in the battle he become an adversary to us. For how could this fellow reconcile himself to his lord? Would it not be with the heads of the men here? [5]Is not this David, of whom they sing to one another in dances, [n]‘Saul has struck down his thousands,

and David his ten thousands’?”

[6][†]Then Achish called David and said to him, [o]“As the LORD lives, you have been honest, and to me it seems right that [p]you should march out and in with me in the campaign. For I have found nothing wrong in you from the day of your coming to me to this day. Nevertheless, the lords do not approve of you. [7]So go back now; and go peaceably, that you may not displease the lords of the Philistines.” [8][†]And David said to Achish, “But what have I done? What have you found in your servant from the day I entered your service until now, that I may not go and fight against the enemies of my lord the king?” [9]And Achish answered David and said, “I know that you are as blameless in my sight [q] as an angel of God. Nevertheless, [r] the commanders of the Philistines have said, ‘He shall not go up with us to the battle.’ [10]Now then rise early in the morning [s] with the servants of your lord who came with you, and start early in the morning, and depart as soon as you have light.” [11][^][†]So David set out with his men early in the morning to return to the land of the Philistines. But the Philistines went up to [t] Jezreel.

David’s Wives Are Captured

1 SAMUEL 30 [†]Now when David and his men came to [u] Ziklag on the third day, [v] the Amalekites had [w] made a raid against the Negeb and against Ziklag. They had overcome Ziklag and burned it with fire [2]and taken captive the women and all [1] who were in it, both small and great. They killed no one, but carried them off and went their way. [3]And when David and his men came to the city, they found it burned with fire, and their wives and sons and daughters taken captive. [4]Then David and the people who were with him raised their voices and wept until they had no more strength to weep. [5]David’s [x] two wives also had been taken captive, Ahinoam of Jezreel and Abigail the widow of Nabal of Carmel. [6][^][†]And David was greatly distressed, for the people spoke [y] of stoning him, because all the people were bitter in soul, [2] each for his sons and daughters. But David strengthened himself in the LORD his God.

[7][†] [z] And David said to Abiathar the priest, the son of Ahimelech, “Bring me the ephod.” So Abiathar brought the ephod to David. [8] [a] And David inquired of the LORD, “Shall I pursue after this [b] band? Shall I overtake them?” He answered him, “Pursue, for you shall surely overtake [c] and shall surely rescue.” [9][†]So David set out, and [d] the six hundred men who were with him, and they came to the brook Besor, where those who were left behind stayed. [10]But David pursued, he and four hundred men. [e]Two hundred stayed behind, who were too exhausted to cross the brook Besor.

[11][‡]They found an Egyptian in the open country and brought him to David. And they gave him bread and he ate. They gave him water to drink, [12]and they gave him a piece of a cake of figs and two clusters of raisins. And when he had eaten, [f]his spirit revived, for he had not eaten bread or drunk water for three days and three nights. [13]And David said to him, “To whom do you belong? And where are you from?” He said, “I am a young man of Egypt, servant to an Amalekite, and my master left me behind because I fell sick three days ago. [14][‡][g]We had made a raid against the Negeb of [h]the Cherethites and against that which belongs to Judah and against the Negeb of Caleb, and we burned Ziklag with fire.” [15]And David said to him, “Will you take me down to this band?” And he said, “Swear to me by God that you will not kill me or deliver me into the hands of my master, and I will take you down to this [i]band.”

David Defeats the Amalekites

[16]And when he had taken him down, behold, they were spread abroad over all the land, eating and drinking and dancing, because of all the great spoil they had taken from the land of the Philistines and from the land of Judah. [17][‡]And David struck them down from twilight until the evening of the next day, and not a man of them escaped, except four hundred young men, who mounted camels and fled. [18][j]David recovered all that the Amalekites had taken, and David rescued his two wives. [19][‡]Nothing was missing, whether small or great, sons or daughters, spoil or anything that had been taken. [j]David brought back all. [20]David also captured all the flocks and herds, and the people drove the livestock before him, [3] and said, “This is David’s spoil.”

[21]Then David came to [k]the two hundred men who had been too exhausted to follow David, and who had been left [k]at the brook Besor. And they went out to meet David and to meet the people who were with him. And when David came near to the people he greeted them. [22][‡]Then all the wicked and worthless fellows among the men who had gone with David said, “Because they did not go with us, we will not give them any of the spoil that we have recovered, except that each man may lead away his wife and children, and depart." [23]But David said, "You shall not do so, my brothers, with what the LORD has given us. He has preserved us and given into our hand the band that came against us. [24][‡]Who would listen to you in this matter? [l]For as his share is who goes down into the battle, so shall his share be who stays by the baggage. They shall share alike." [25][‡]And he made it a statute and a rule for Israel from that day forward to this day.

[26][‡]When David came to Ziklag, he sent part of the spoil to his friends, the elders of Judah, saying, "Here is a present for you from the spoil of the enemies of the LORD." [27]It was for those in [m]Bethel, in Ramoth of the Negeb, in [n]Jattir, [28]in [o]Aroer, in Siphmoth, in [p]Eshtemoa, [29]in Racal, in the cities of [q]the Jerahmeelites, in the cities of [r]the Kenites, [30]in [s]Hormah, in Bor-ashan, in Athach, [31]in [t]Hebron, for all the places where David and his men had roamed.

The Death of Saul

1 SAMUEL 31 [‡] [u]Now the Philistines were fighting against Israel, and the men of Israel fled before the Philistines and fell slain [v]on Mount Gilboa. [2]And the Philistines overtook Saul and his sons, and the Philistines struck down [w]Jonathan and [x]Abinadab and Malchi-shua, the sons of Saul. [3][y]The battle pressed hard against Saul, and the archers found him, and he was badly wounded by the archers. [4][‡][z]Then Saul said to his armor-bearer, "Draw your sword, and thrust me through with it, lest these [a]uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and mistreat me." But his armor-bearer would not, [b]for he feared greatly. Therefore Saul took his own sword [c]and fell upon it. [5]And when his armor-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell upon his sword and died with him. [6][^][‡]Thus Saul died, and his three sons, and his armor-bearer, and all his men, on the same day together. [7][‡]And when the men of Israel who were on the other side of the valley and those beyond the Jordan saw that the men of Israel had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned their cities and fled. And the Philistines came and lived in them.

[8]The next day, when the Philistines came to strip the slain, they found Saul and his three sons fallen on Mount Gilboa. [9]So they cut off his head and stripped off his armor and sent messengers throughout the land of the Philistines, [d] to carry the good news [e] to the house of their idols and to the people. 10[†] [f] They put his armor in the temple of [g] Ashtaroth, and they fastened his body to the wall of [h] Beth-shan. 11[†] [i] But when the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead heard what the Philistines had done to Saul, 12 [j] all the valiant men arose and went all night and took the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth-shan, and they came to Jabesh [k] and burned them there. 13 And they took their bones [l] and buried them under [m] the tamarisk tree in Jabesh and [n] fasted seven days.

Study Notes for 1 Samuel

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:1–7:17 The Story of Samuel. The birth of Samuel is God's answer to the prayer of a childless woman; he is also the answer to Israel's need for a prophet who will give God's guidance to his people in their transition from the period of the judges to the period of the kings.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:1–4:1a Rise of Samuel as Prophet. Like the book of Ruth, 1–2 Samuel begins with the story of an ordinary Israelite family during the period of the judges. Through one woman's grief and faith, a child is born who will be instrumental in leading Israel to the next phase of its history, the establishment of the Davidic monarchy. This section also contains the "Song of Hannah," the prototype of the Magnificat (the "Song of Mary" in Luke 1:46–55). The story of another family appears here too. The Lord is worshiped, with sacrifices, at the sanctuary of Shiloh. The priesthood is descended from Aaron. Although Eli the head priest is a good man, he has weaknesses, especially in controlling his sons. They have no interest in the demands of God, only in what they get from their position. This section alternates between passages about the growth of the boy (Hb. na'ar) Samuel and passages proclaiming the evil of the young men (also na'ar, in plural), the sons of Eli. The two themes come together when the Lord gives young Samuel his first message as a prophet, announcing judgment on the house of Eli. The section ends with the statement that Samuel was established as a prophet of the Lord before all Israel.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:1–28 Birth and Dedication of Samuel. Hannah, who has been barren, gives birth to Samuel and dedicates him to serve at the sanctuary.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:1 Ramathaim-zophim is called Ramah in v. 19 and 2:11. Samuel later lived there (7:17; 8:4; 25:1), and it is presumably the city in the land of Zuph (named after Samuel's ancestor Zuph) where Saul meets him (9:5).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:2 two wives. Probably Hannah was Elkanah's first wife, since she is named first. Presumably he married Peninnah because Hannah was barren; lack of an heir was a major problem in the ancient Near East, as in many other societies. Taking a second wife was one way to try to solve the problem (Gen. 16:2), as was levirate marriage (see note on Matt. 22:24; also Gen. 38:8; Deut. 25:6). Elkanah's pedigree suggests that it would be important to him to have an heir to continue the family and also that he was prosperous enough to afford a second marriage.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:3 year by year. This may have been an annual family or clan gathering, celebrated by all its members, including women and children, such as the one later held by David's family (20:6). the LORD of hosts. This is the first appearance in the Bible of the title "the LORD of hosts," to whom Elkanah sacrifices and Hannah prays (1:11) at Shiloh. The title is used in Samuel several times and very frequently in the Psalms and the Prophets. "Hosts" (Hb. tseba'ot) is probably the plural of an abstract noun meaning something like "plentifulness" or "numberlessness." Hence, it refers to numerous entities such as heavenly bodies (Isa. 40:26), angelic beings (Josh. 5:14, "army of the LORD"), the armies of Israel (1 Sam. 17:45), or all creatures (Gen. 2:1). The title may originally have been particularly connected with worship at the Shiloh sanctuary (see 1 Sam. 4:4), in which case "hosts" would probably have referred to angelic beings, portrayed as God's "armies." Shiloh, the modern Khirbet Seilun, is 20 miles (32 km) north of Jerusalem, toward the eastern border of Ephraim. The tent of meeting was set up there in Josh. 18:1. The city also appears in Judg. 21:19–24 as the place from which the Benjaminites took their brides. Its destruction, presumably at the time of the events of 1 Samuel 4, is mentioned in Ps. 78:60 and Jer. 7:12–14.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:4 portions. Elkanah's sacrifice is a "peace offering," in which parts of the sacrificial animal are burned, parts are given to the priest, and parts are eaten by the people who brought the sacrifice (Lev. 7:11–36; see also 1 Sam. 2:12–17).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:5 a double portion. The Hebrew is difficult here, literally "two noses as one portion," perhaps referring to two heads of sacrificed sheep. In ritual texts from the city of Emar, the head of a sacrificial animal is treated as a favored part. This probably means that Hannah was given a "double portion," possibly also of the most favored part.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:6 her rival used to provoke her. Cf. Hagar's attitude towards Sarah after she became pregnant (Gen. 16:4).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:7, 9 house of the LORD … temple of the LORD. Was this a "tent," or was it a building with solid walls? The word "house" refers to a dwelling without specifying the material. In 2 Sam. 7:2 David says that "the ark of God dwells in a tent," and in 2 Sam. 7:6 the Lord says, "I have not lived in a house … to this day." In 2 Samuel 7 the contrast is between a tent (i.e., a house of cloth) and a house of cedar. In 1 Sam. 2:22 there is a reference to the "tent of meeting," while "doorpost of the temple" (1:9) and "opened the doors" (3:15) suggest more of a building. Perhaps there was a more solid structure around a cloth structure. The word for "temple" (Hb. hekal) derives from the Sumerian word egal, meaning "big house." There are cases in Ugaritic and Mari documents where it in fact refers to a large and complex tent structure.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:8 Elkanah is truly concerned for his wife, but the history of Israel at this point turns on Hannah's actions and the Lord's response. Am I not more to you than ten sons? Elkanah attempts to comfort Hannah, though he seems not to understand Hannah's deep yearning for a child.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:9 The seat was a symbol of Eli's authority; normally people sat on the ground.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:11 I will give him to the LORD all the days of his life seems to mean that Hannah will dedicate her son as a Nazirite. According to Numbers 6, people might make a special vow to separate themselves to the Lord for a time. This involved letting no razor … touch one's head, eating nothing from the grapevine, and not going near a dead body. Hannah mentions only the razor in the text, but that part of the vow probably stood for the whole of the regulations. According to Lev. 27:1–8, a person as young as a month old could be vowed to the Lord, apparently to work in the temple. The Leviticus passage deals with redeeming someone who has been dedicated, but Hannah does not intend to redeem her son.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:12–19 Eli shows his piety in rebuking Hannah, whom he takes to be drunk (which would be an offense to the sanctuary). But Hannah explains that her visible display of emotion is genuine, due to deep anguish. Eli acknowledges his mistake and blesses Hannah—a blessing that proves effective.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:20 The most natural meaning of the name Samuel is "name of God," or possibly "offspring of God." Samuel bore the name of God, who gave him to Hannah.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:23 Elkanah has been in the background, but he supports Hannah and participates in the dedication (v. 25; 2:11).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:24 Either a three-year-old bull or "three bulls" (esv footnote). In either case Elkanah apparently was a prosperous man who was able to afford an expensive offering of a bull or bulls and large amounts of grain and wine. Three bulls would correspond to the priestly regulations, which specify that together with each bull sacrificed, three-tenths of an ephah of grain should be offered (Num. 15:9; 28:12, 20, 28). With three bulls, one would expect an offering of nine-tenths of an ephah, just a little less than the one ephah that Hannah offered. The skin (or "jar") may have held as much as 6 gallons (22 liters) of wine. The reference to the child anticipates references to "the boy" (the Hb. word in both cases is na'ar) in 1 Sam. 2:11.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:25 the bull. See note on v. 24.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:26 As you live, or "as your soul lives," is a common form of oath (2 Sam. 11:11; 14:19), as is the phrase "as the LORD lives" (see 1 Sam. 14:39; 26:16; Jer. 16:14–15). The two were often combined (1 Sam. 20:3; 25:26; 2 Kings 2:2).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:27 And the LORD has granted me my petition that I made to him repeats almost verbatim Eli's blessing in v. 17. Joyously, Hannah points to this child as the answer to her prayer. The words "petition" (here and v. 17), "asked" (v. 20), and "lent" (v. 28 twice) are all from the verbal root sha'al, so a wordplay may be intended.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:1–10 Hannah's Song. Hannah's song fits well in the narrative and marks the end of the story of Samuel's birth. Many of Hannah's themes are found in the Magnificat of Mary (Luke 1:46–56). The reference to the "king" in 1 Sam. 2:10 also looks forward to the rest of the book. At the other end of the grand narrative of 1–2 Samuel are the songs of David in 2 Samuel 22–23. These three songs are a frame around the entire narrative of 1–2 Samuel. Hannah's song is really a song of praise, or a hymn, to the God who reverses human fortunes by his mighty power, the Creator beyond all human understanding who protects the faithful. There are many similarities to psalms and other passages of the OT, as the numerous esv cross-references show. It is especially close to Psalm 113. It starts with Hannah's personal emotions, but it is not about gloating over Peninnah, who was presumably still living with her children in Elkanah's household. Rather, Hannah's emotions are a step toward glorifying the Lord for his guidance in human affairs. Hannah alternates between the themes of the Lord's holy sovereignty (1 Sam. 2:1b–3, 6–7, 8b–10a) and the reversal of human fortunes (vv. 4–5, 8a) and ends with the theme of kingship (v. 10b).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:1 my horn is exalted in the LORD. The song both starts and ends with the declaration that the Lord exalts. The verb translated as "exalt" or "raise up" appears also in vv. 7, 8, and 10 and expresses the theme of the song. The Hebrew for "horn" is often used as a symbol of strength (cf. Deut. 33:17; 2 Sam. 22:3; Ps. 89:17; etc.). With the expression my enemies, Hannah is not making a personal attack on Peninnah (one person) but is speaking against God's enemies. His enemies are also Hannah's enemies, because his enemies attack her trust in God and his dealings with her (see Ps. 139:21–22). The climax of this verse is because I rejoice in your salvation.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:2 The first and third lines of this verse are parallel: holy is parallel to rock, and the LORD is parallel to God, with different structure but similar meaning. The formula "there is no … like …" denotes incomparability. Thus, for there is none besides you states that there is no absolutely holy being besides the Lord; moreover, only the Lord is God, i.e., "monotheism" is true (see Deut. 4:35; 32:39; 2 Sam. 22:32). "Rock," a common OT epithet for God (e.g., Deut. 32:4, 15; 2 Sam. 22:2; 23:3), indicates God's protection and strength. In Ps. 118:22 and Isa. 8:14; 28:16; as well as in 1 Pet. 2:6–8, "rock" has a messianic significance (see note on 1 Sam. 2:10). With "our God," Hannah speaks as a member of the covenant community, whom she addresses in the next verse.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:3 by him actions are weighed. The esv follows the "spoken" (Qere) Hebrew tradition, and means that God's knowledge extends even to the motives behind human actions. The "written" (Ketib) tradition, "actions are not weighed," would not make sense unless one added "his actions are not weighed," i.e., God is not subject to human judgment.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:5 seven. Hannah herself actually bore only six children, including Samuel (v. 21), but this is a general statement, and seven is a poetic number for perfection. is forlorn. The Hebrew usually means “becomes a widow,” but here it means “becomes childless.”

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:6–7 The Lord has total authority over life and death, including material and social life. Verses 4–5 give examples of how the Lord reverses human fortunes; vv. 6–7 state it more generally. kills … brings to life, brings down … raises up, makes poor … makes rich, brings low … exalts. These are merisms, expressions in which two words on the extreme ends of a scale are used to express everything on the whole scale. The Lord controls not only birth and death, but also the whole of life in between.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:6 Sheol here refers to the place of the dead. In the Bible, it is usually found in idiomatic expressions such as “go down to Sheol” or “come up from Sheol.” God is also the One who raises up a soul from Sheol (e.g., Ps. 30:3), so he has authority over the dead as well as the living. He is the One who holds the key to Job’s question: “If a man dies, shall he live again?” (Job 14:14). Job remains confident: “For I know that my Redeemer lives, and at the last he will stand upon the earth” (Job 19:25). Hannah affirms that same confidence.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:8 The Lord is sovereign over life, for he created and owns the world. The exact meaning of the word pillars (Hb. metsuqe) is not known, but there are similar expressions using the ordinary word for “pillars” (Hb. ʿammudim; Job 9:6; Ps. 75:3) or “foundations” (2 Sam. 22:16). The reference to the foundation or support (“pillars”) of the earth is meaningful here, for the Lord upholds both the place where his people live as well as the moral order of this world; he protects his faithful, while he destroys the wicked (1 Sam. 2:9).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:9 Darkness functions here as a metaphor for the silence brought upon the wicked in death (Ps. 35:6–8).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:10 For the kingship of the Lord and his role as judge, see Ps. 96:10. The ends of the earth almost always appears in the context of describing the Lord’s uniqueness, majesty, and dominion (e.g., Ps. 67:7; 98:3; Prov. 30:4; Isa. 52:10; Mic. 5:4; Zech. 9:10). Since there was as yet no king in Israel, it is possible that the last two lines are a comment by the narrator rather than part of Hannah’s prayer. The law made provision for a king, however, and the institution was well known in Israel even before it was practiced (Judg.

8:22; 9:6; 1 Samuel 8), so there is no reason to think that these are not Hannah’s words. His anointed, or “his messiah,” appears here for the first time in the Bible (though Hb. mashiakh, “anointed,” is used of priests, e.g., Lev. 4:3). In the OT, priests and prophets are also referred to as “anointed,” but in Samuel most references are royal. Though the anointing of kings is known from various places in the ancient Near East, “messiah” as a royal title is attested only in the Bible. The song concludes with a twofold plea for the Lord to raise the king of Israel to a position of prominence (exalt the horn) worthy of the great God who appointed him.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:11–36 Samuel, and Eli’s Two Sons. At the same time that the boy Samuel is ministering to the Lord at Shiloh (vv. 11, 18; 3:1), Eli’s own two sons are hindering the worship there.

The Rise of Samuel, Israel’s Last Judge

View this chart online at http://kindle.esvsb.org/c73

Decline of Eli’s Sons	Rise of Samuel
Wickedness of Eli’s sons (1 Sam. 2:12–17)	Samuel approved by Eli (1 Sam. 2:18–21)
Eli reproves his sons (1 Sam. 2:22–25)	Samuel grows in favor (1 Sam. 2:26)
Prophecy against Eli and sons (1 Sam. 2:27–36; cf. 4:11–18)	Samuel called and given prophetic word (1 Sam. 3:1–4:1a)
The Philistines; the ark and Eli’s house [defeat/capture/covenant defiled] (1 Sam. 4:1b–22)	The Philistines; the ark and Samuel [return/victory/covenant renewed] (1 Sam. 7:2–17)

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:12–17 The priest’s servant (vv. 13, 15) was probably one of the worthless … sons of Eli (v. 12; cf. “young man” [Hb. na‘ar; vv. 13, 15, esv footnote] with “young men” [Hb. ne‘arim, plural of na‘ar, v. 17]), rather than merely a servant. Some interpret vv. 13–14 as being the accepted, though degenerate, custom, and vv. 15–16 as representing the perversion of this custom. Another interpretation is that the author condemns both practices. This latter view is supported by the use of the word moreover (Hb. gam) at the beginning of v. 15. Thus in this passage there are two general statements about the sons (vv. 12, 17) framing descriptions of two of their wicked practices.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:12–13 Custom (Hb. mishpat) usually means an expected standard (e.g., Deut. 18:3, “this shall be the priest’s due [mishpat] from the people, from those offering a sacrifice”); it can also mean “justice” (cf. 1 Sam. 8:3). Although it is hardly likely that the young men were ignorant of the regulations, their lack of real knowledge of the Lord or even concern for his honor (They did not know the Lord) meant that they completely ignored his commands.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:13–14 The priests were to be supported by portions of the sacrifices of the people. In various parts of the Mosaic law the portion to be given to the priests is specified for various sacrifices, e.g., Deut. 18:3 (shoulder, cheeks, and stomach) and Lev. 7:31–32 (breast and right thigh). But the practice in 1 Sam. 2:13–14 has little in common with the regulations on priestly rights.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:15–16 This is an extraordinary situation: the priest, who was supposed to know the rules of sacrifice, was engaging in behavior that shocked even the ordinary worshiper. The fat was normally removed from certain internal organs and offered as a burnt offering to God (see Ex. 29:13; Lev. 3:3–5). Also, the priest would normally take his share right after killing the animal, before giving it to the worshiper.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:17 It was because the sons of Eli did not know the Lord (v. 12) that they could treat with contempt his holy sacrifices that he had commanded for worship.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:18–21 The story returns to another na'ar ("young man, boy"), Samuel (cf. note on vv. 12–17, "young man"). Before, Samuel was ministering "in the presence of Eli the priest" (v. 11), but now he is ministering simply before the Lord, in the garment of a priest. The linen ephod was probably a simple tunic or apron worn by priests (22:18) or sometimes by others, as by David as he brought the ark to Jerusalem (2 Sam. 6:14).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:22–23 The women were not Canaanite cult prostitutes, as is sometimes speculated. Lying with them was considered among the sons' evil dealings.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:25 if someone sins against the Lord, who can intercede for him? This shows the need for a mediator between man and God. Because of Eli's sons' willful rejection of him, it was the will of the Lord to put them to death. When God is determined to destroy, no human intercession is effective. For the writers of the Bible, the fact that divine providence and human character mingle means that destinies are regarded as ultimately the result of the divine will. The most obvious example is Pharaoh in Ex. 7:13, 22, etc. But this does not mean that people are not accountable; Hophni and Phinehas had rejected God, even ignoring their father's warning.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:26 Similar language is used in Luke 2:52 to describe the physical and spiritual growth of the boy Jesus.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:27–28 Did I indeed reveal … ? Did I choose him … ? These are rhetorical questions, expecting "Yes, indeed!" as an answer. The house of your father in vv. 27, 28, 30 is a technical term referring to Eli's extended family. "Your father" probably refers specifically to Ithamar, son of Aaron, who was made a priest of the Lord at Mount Sinai along with his father and brothers (Ex. 28:1; cf. 1 Chron. 24:3). Eli was a descendant of this house, according to 1 Chron. 24:3, where it is stated that his great-great-great-grandson Ahimelech was "of the sons of Ithamar." The descent from Eli to this Ahimelech is as follows: Eli—Phinehas—Ahitub (1 Sam. 14:3)—Ahimelech—Abiathar (22:20)—Ahimelech (2 Sam. 8:17; 1 Chron. 24:6). The duties of the priest were to go up to the Lord's altar, i.e., (1) to burn offerings on the altar (e.g., Lev. 1:9), which was connected with the privilege of being sustained from portions of the sacrifices, a privilege that Eli's sons were abusing (1 Sam. 2:12–17); (2) to burn incense on the altar of incense (Ex. 30:1; see Luke 1:9); and (3) to wear an ephod before God. This ephod was probably not the linen garment of 1 Sam. 2:18, but the jeweled breastplate described in Exodus 28 that symbolized the people of Israel, with pockets for the sacred lots (for priests casting lots, see Lev. 16:8, etc.). According to 1 Sam. 21:9, that ephod was later kept in the sanctuary of Nob, and Abiathar took it with him when he escaped to David (23:6). I gave to the house of your father all my offerings by fire. Except for the case of burnt offerings, which were wholly burned, when an offering was made, part was burned as a "memorial portion," but the rest of the grain offerings, sin offerings, and guilt offerings and a part of the peace offerings were normally eaten by the priests (Lev. 6:14–18; 7:1–38).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:27 A man of God is a synonym for "prophet" (e.g., 9:6; 2 Kings 1:9). Thus the LORD has said is the regular prophetic "messenger formula." In Samuel this formula appears also in 1 Sam. 10:18; 15:2; 2 Sam. 7:5, 8; 12:7, 11; 24:12. In the ancient world, messengers were supposed to recite their messages verbatim, so the messenger would begin with "[The sender] has spoken thus" and use the first person in the body of the message (e.g., Gen. 45:9).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:29 You is plural here. The form of the verb scorn indicates a habitual action. By scorning the offerings, Eli is scorning the Lord and honoring his sons, while the Lord honors those who honor him and lightly esteems those who despise him (v. 30).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:30 Though the Lord promised, he can revoke his promise for willful disregard of the terms of the promise. Far be it from me is a statement of strong denial of the previous statement (e.g., Gen. 44:7; 1 Sam. 12:23; 2 Sam. 20:20; cf. also 1 Sam. 20:9).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:31–34 This is a curse for breaking the Lord's covenant, with punishment given in words of curses similar to the curses in the covenant. Behold, the days are coming is an eschatological formula often found in the Prophets. The only one who shall be spared is Abiathar, who escaped when the priests of Nob were killed (22:20). Solomon later banished him to Anathoth; see 1 Kings 2:26–27, where it is stated that the banishment was a fulfillment of the prophecy against Eli. Jeremiah was probably descended from this house (Jer. 1:1). All the descendants is a general statement, because there are references to those who were left (see the previous clause in 1 Sam. 2:33, as well as v. 36). Eli will not live to experience the punishment, but the death of his two sons on the same day will be a sign to him that the prophecy is true.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:35 The faithful priest with a sure house is probably Zadok, priest under David and a descendant of Ithamar's brother Eleazar, son of Aaron (2 Sam. 8:17; 1 Chron. 24:3; see also Judg. 20:28). The Hebrew word "faithful" is the same as "sure" later in the sentence: the ne'eman priest will have a ne'eman house. The anointed is the king. The wording here is similar to that in 2 Samuel 7, where David is promised a "sure" house (2 Sam. 7:16).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:1–4:1a Call of Samuel as a Prophet. This passage tells how the Lord called Samuel to be a prophet—the prophet who will anoint the first two legitimate kings of Israel. As a true prophet, he must speak the words of God and never hide them; Israel is to respond by believing these words and obeying them. God repeats his judgment on the house of Eli (2:27–36), foreshadowing his rejection of the house of Saul. The passage begins with a situation ("the word of the LORD was rare," 3:1), which God then relieves (3:19–4:1a). The Lord calls Samuel three times, each call increasing in intensity; but Samuel thinks it is only his foster father Eli who is calling. Finally the elderly Eli perceives who is calling, and Samuel receives his first communication from the Lord. The events of 4:1b–7:1 probably take place while Samuel is growing up, before he is established as a prophet. He reappears in 7:3.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:1 The word of the LORD was rare in those days, but that is about to change.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:3 The lamp of God was placed in the tent of meeting, outside the veil before the Most Holy Place, where the ark was, and burned every day from evening to morning (Ex. 27:20–21; Lev. 24:1–3). It had not yet gone out, so the time was probably just before dawn. The ark of God had probably been placed in Shiloh when the tent of meeting was set up there in Josh. 18:1. In Judg. 20:26–27 the ark is said to have been in Bethel, but it was apparently moved back to Shiloh.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:7 Samuel did not yet know the LORD in a personal relationship, though of course he knew about him.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:10 Samuel! Samuel! The Lord called other people twice by name at a crucial point in their lives; e.g., Abraham (Gen. 22:11), Jacob (Gen. 46:2), and Moses (Ex. 3:4).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:11 This is the Lord’s first word to Samuel as a prophet. It is often difficult for the recipient to receive the Lord’s initial revelation; cf. Moses (Ex. 4:13) and Isaiah (Isa. 6:9).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:12 all that I have spoken. Cf. 2:27–36.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:13 The MT reads “blaspheming for themselves” (see esv footnote). In Hebrew the phrases blaspheming God and “blaspheming for themselves” differ by just one consonant. That consonant was left out by pious scribes so that in copying they would not even need to write the offensive phrase “blaspheming God.” Cf. Ex. 22:28; Lev. 24:15.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:14 Eli’s house has despised God’s sacrifices and offerings (2:29), and hence these things will have no efficacy on their behalf. Though normal or inadvertent sins of priests could be atoned for by offering (Lev. 4:3–12), Eli’s sons sinned defiantly, and their guilt could not be removed (Num. 15:30; see also Heb. 10:26), as Eli himself recognizes (1 Sam. 2:25).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:17 May God do so to you and more also if is a form of solemn appeal to the Lord, a kind of oath. Cf. Ruth 1:17; 1 Sam. 14:44; 25:22; 2 Sam. 3:9; 19:13; 1 Kings 19:2.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:18 It is the LORD. Eli accepts the judgment humbly.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:19 the LORD … let none of his words fall to the ground. I.e., all that Samuel spoke was fulfilled, and thus he could be known as a prophet (Deut. 18:21–22). On the relationship between the prophet and the word of the Lord, see Jer. 20:8–9; Amos 3:8.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:20 From Dan to Beersheba is the traditional limits of Israel to the north and south (Judg. 20:1; 2 Sam. 17:11).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:1b–7:1 Story of the Ark of God. The ark of the covenant was the visible sign of the presence and power of God. Previously housed in the Shiloh sanctuary, it now takes center stage. After a disastrous defeat by the Philistines, the elders of Israel realize that the defeat was the work of the Lord, but there is no indication that they seek to know how they have sinned. Instead, they decide that their own action of bringing the ark to the battlefield will save them, almost as if they were forcing the Lord to do their will. But the ark is not a charm. Israel is defeated, the ark is captured by the Philistines, and Eli and his sons die. Probably Shiloh itself is destroyed soon after, since Eli's descendants go to Nob (21:1–9; 22:6–23). God, however, cannot let the enemy think that they have defeated him. For seven months he causes plagues and disturbances wherever the ark is taken, until the Philistines give up and send the ark back to Israel with a tribute of gold. It remains in Kiriath-jearim until David takes it to Jerusalem (2 Samuel 6). Samuel is completely absent from this story (reappearing in 1 Sam. 7:3), which indicates that these events took place while he was growing up. The Philistines, who appear in both Judges and Samuel, were one of the "Sea Peoples" who migrated from across the Aegean and settled on the coastal plain of southern Palestine about 1200 B.C., establishing a league of city-states. (The Philistines of Genesis were probably from an earlier wave of immigrants from across the Aegean.) They seem to have adopted the Canaanite language and proper names and gods soon after they arrived (see notes on 1 Sam. 5:2; 31:10). They were skilled in pottery and also in metallurgy (13:20).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:1b–22 Capture of the Ark. After suffering defeat in battle at the hands of the Philistines, the people of Israel try to use the ark of the covenant to ensure victory; instead, the Philistines defeat them again, killing Eli's two sons and taking the ark into exile. When Eli hears of it, he suddenly dies. For reflections on these events cf. Ps. 78:58–66 and Jer. 7:8–15.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:1b The Philistines make their first appearance in 1–2 Samuel. Aphek was 8 miles (13 km) east of Tel Aviv, north of the Philistia plain, and just to the west of the hill country of Ephraim. The Shillo River, which goes through the center of Ephraim, comes out of the mountains nearby. The location of Ebenezer is uncertain, but it may have been a site 2 miles (3.2 km) farther east. The Philistines were interested in expanding their control to the north.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:3–4 from Shiloh. The ark of the covenant had been "in the temple of the LORD" in Shiloh (3:3). (On the details of the ark, cf. Ex. 25:10–22; 37:1–9; and illustration.) Moses was commanded by the Lord to put the tablets of the covenant, or the "testimony," into the ark (Ex. 25:16; Deut. 10:5; cf. 1 Kings 8:9). Cherubim often appear in the iconography of the ancient Near East as hybrid figures, with animal and human characteristics. enthroned. The ark was the visible sign of the holy presence of the Lord, whose real throne is on high, above the heavens. But it was more than just a sign, for the ark was also the focal point of God's actual presence among his people (Ex. 25:22 says, "There I will meet with you, and from above the mercy seat, from between the two cherubim that are on the ark of the testimony, I will speak with you …"; cf. Num. 7:89; also Ex. 29:42–43; 30:6, 36; 37:1–9; 40:34–38; Lev. 16:2; Num. 17:4). The conception of the ark as a visible sign of the Lord's presence gave a military importance to the ark (as can be seen in Num. 10:33–36 and Joshua 3–4; 6); it functioned as a battle safeguard and showed that the Lord was present and fighting for Israel. This understanding was certainly behind the actions of the elders in the present story. They may have thought that the Lord smote them because they had not trusted in the ark and had neglected it. Or perhaps they just thought that it would perform a miracle if used magically. That the ark would inevitably grant victory was a persistent idea that even the present story was not able to dispel. For the phrase the LORD of hosts, see note on 1 Sam. 1:3; cf. chart. Let us bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD … that it may come among us. The Hebrew might also mean "that he [the LORD] may come" (see ESV footnote), but in either case, the elders are treating the Lord as a thing. By saying "bring," the narrator is probably conveying the idea that the people treated this sacred object disrespectfully as an instrument through which victory might be attained.

Surely, the covenant people had lost the sense of awe toward God’s holy presence. They brought from there the ark. The verb is literally “carried” (Hb. nasa’); to “carry” the ark by its poles was the proper way to move it (Ex. 25:14); see also 2 Sam. 6:13; cf. 2 Sam. 6:3, where “carried” is literally “made to ride” (Hb. rakab). That Hophni and Phinehas (cf. 1 Sam. 2:12–17, 27–36) were there suggests that they supported the move, at least to some extent. Eli, however, seems to have had reservations (4:13).

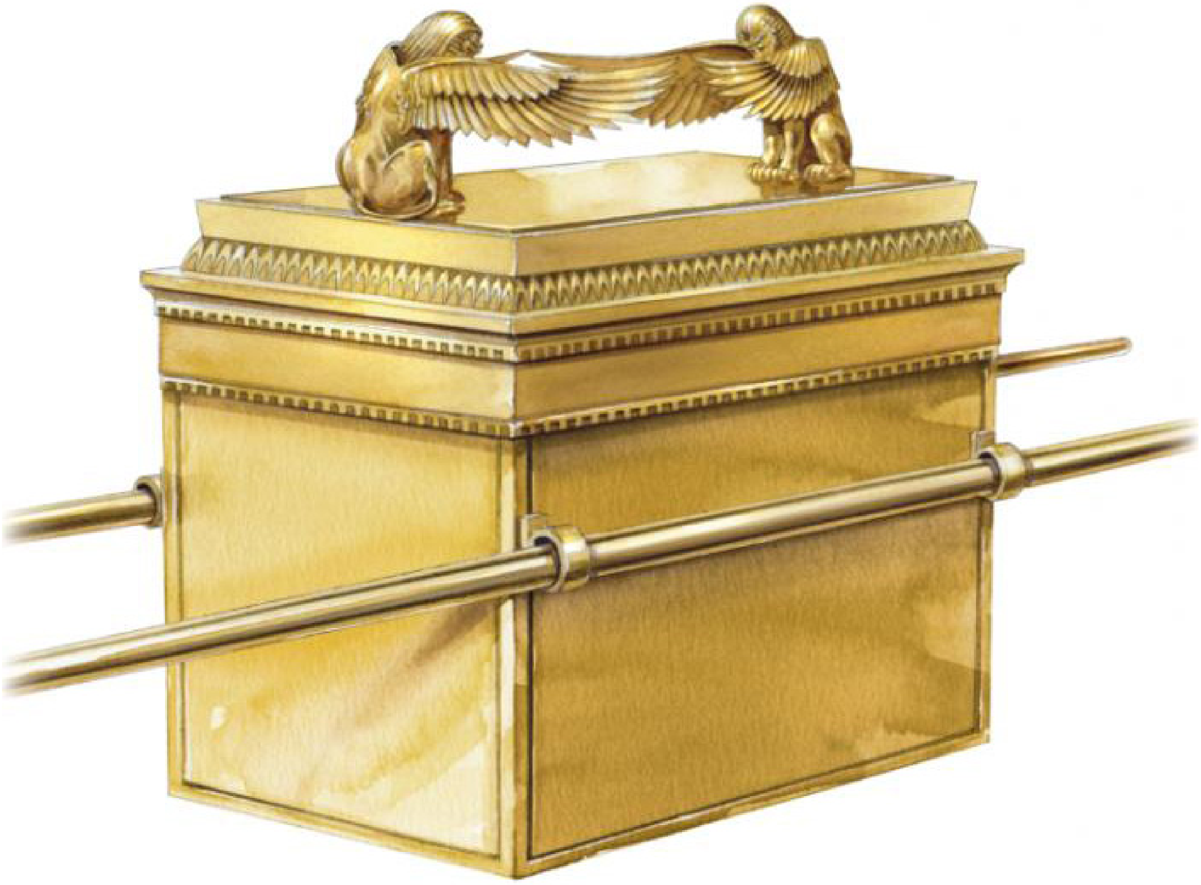
The Ark of the Covenant

The ark of the covenant (Ex. 25:10–22; 37:1–9) was the only piece of furniture in the Most Holy Place; the ark and its contents were kept hidden from view at all times. The ark itself was a wooden chest, overlaid with pure gold, measuring 3.75 feet long, 2.25 feet wide, and 2.25 feet high (1.1 m x 0.7 m x 0.7 m). It contained within it the two stone tablets of the Testimony (the Ten Commandments). The author of Hebrews adds that it also contained “a golden urn holding the manna, and Aaron’s staff that budded” (Heb. 9:4). The ark was not to be touched by human hands. Two wooden poles, overlaid with gold, were used to transport it and were not to be removed from the ark. The mercy seat, or atonement cover, was a solid golden slab that fitted perfectly on top of the ark. The golden cherubim, which were hammered out of the same piece of gold, had wings outstretched over the mercy seat and faces that looked downward (in reverent awe). It was here, from between the cherubim, that God spoke to Moses, the representative of the people of Israel. Ancient iconography often depicts cherubim as having a lion-like body, wings, and a human face.



The Ark’s Travels in 1 Samuel 3–7

After suffering losses in battle against the Philistines at Ebenezer, the Israelite forces called for the ark of the covenant to be brought to the battle from Shiloh. But the Israelites were defeated again, and the Philistines captured the ark. The ark’s presence in each Philistine city caused the people to suffer terrible tumors, so it was sent away to another city. Eventually the ark was returned to Israel at Beth-shemesh, and then it was brought to Kiriath-jearim, where it remained for some 20 years.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:3 The elders of Israel appear throughout the history of Israel. They were a group of senior tribal leaders entrusted with important decisions. They are mentioned from the time of the sojourn in Egypt through to the NT (e.g., Ex. 3:16; Num. 11:16; Josh. 24:31; 1 Kings 20:7; Ezra 5:5; Matt. 16:21; Acts 22:5). Other nations also had them (Num. 22:7). Cities also were governed by elders (e.g., Deut. 19:12; 1 Sam. 11:3; 16:4; 1 Kings 21:8). In Samuel the elders of Israel are instrumental in establishing a king. They ask Samuel for a king (1 Sam. 8:4); Saul is concerned with their opinion (15:30); they are leaders in choosing a king after Saul's death (2 Sam. 3:17; 5:3); and they are in Absalom's council (2 Sam. 17:4).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:5 a mighty shout. The Israelites are confident in the ark, but the rest of the story will show that they have failed to approach God's presence in faith and obedience.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:6 In Samuel, the term Hebrews is usually used by the Philistines as a designation for the Israelites (14:11; 29:3). The term apparently derives from the name Eber (Gen. 10:21–25). So in the biblical tradition, “Hebrew” is an ethnic term (see Gen. 14:13) distinct from religio-political designations such as “Israel,” “sons of Israel,” etc.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:7–8 A god … the gods. The Hebrew word for “god(s)” in both cases is ’elohim, the plural of ’eloah (“god”). Elohim is the usual word to refer to the God of Israel (e.g., Gen. 1:1); the plural form is used to express majesty, but it is always used with a singular verb. In 1 Sam. 4:7, the Philistines think that the ark is a god (or God) that has come (singular); in v. 8, they use the plural form for “struck.” The narrator seems to be mocking their misunderstanding of the one God of Israel. Exodus 7–12 describes how God “struck the Egyptians with every sort of plague.” Struck the Egyptians … in the wilderness probably reflects the Philistines’ ignorance about the exact course of events during Israel’s wilderness wanderings.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:10 Israel was defeated. In view of v. 3, one cannot suppose that the Philistines on their own were the cause. every man to his home. Literally, “every man to his tent.” This is a common cliché for disbanding an army, either by decision (Judg. 20:8; 1 Sam. 13:2; 2 Sam. 20:1, 22; 1 Kings 12:16) or because of defeat (2 Sam. 18:17; 19:8; 2 Chron. 25:22).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:12 The messenger ran a distance of nearly 22 miles (35 km). Tearing one’s clothes, often along with putting dirt on one’s head, was the normal reaction to grief or horror in the OT (e.g., 2 Sam. 1:2, 11; 3:31; 13:19, 31; 15:32; Job 2:12).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:13 Eli was sitting beside the gate (v. 18) watching the road. But he could not see the messenger when he entered. Presumably the people of the city brought the messenger to Eli to tell him the news in person.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:17 Your two sons … are dead is the sign that Eli had been told to expect as a forewarning of the near demise of his house (2:34), but it seems that he is even more concerned about the ark.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:19 Bowed is literally “crouched,” the position for giving birth. It was probably a premature delivery brought on by shock.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:21–22 Like Eli, Phinehas’s wife seems more concerned with the ark than with her husband. Ichabod means “where is the glory?” She mourns for Israel without the presence of God. Departed (Hb. galah) does not mean just to “go away,” but to be “exiled” (see esv footnote). She doesn’t know that the Lord is going to demonstrate his glory in the land of Philistia, as seen in ch. 5.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:1–12 The Ark in Philistia. The Philistines think their victory indicates that their god, Dagon, is superior to the God of Israel, and they bring the ark into Dagon's temple to honor their god. God, however, shows his power over Dagon.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:1 Ashdod and Ekron were the two northernmost cities of the Philistine pentapolis (five ruling cities: Ashdod, Gaza, Ashkelon, Gath, Ekron; see 6:17). Ashdod was near the coast, on the important Via Maris (Sea Road), about 30 miles (48 km) south of Aphek (see map).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:2 Dagon is a deity known from Early Bronze Age Mesopotamian and northern Syrian cities such as Ebla, Mari, Emar, and Ugarit. The Philistines apparently adopted him as their principal god (Judg. 16:23; 1 Chron. 10:10) soon after their arrival in Canaan. It was once thought that the name meant "fish," but this view is no longer accepted. More recently, derivation from a word meaning "grain" has been proposed, but it is not certain. The practice of capturing the enemy's gods was common in ancient Near East warfare and is often mentioned in documents such as the Assyrian royal inscriptions. It was understood that a people whose gods were in enemy hands was completely conquered.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:3 The next morning, the statue of Dagon is found in a position suggesting submission before the ark of the LORD. This has become a battle between deities. Dagon cannot protect himself or his people from the hand of the Lord (v. 6).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:5 The temple threshold was considered especially worthy of respect because it separated sacred and common areas; similarly, doorposts, which marked the entrance to a home, were important (e.g., Ex. 12:7; 21:6; Deut. 6:9). The narrator makes the observation that the Philistines to this day still bear witness to the humiliation of their god. This custom is said to have survived in Gaza into the first centuries A.D.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:6 The tumors, together with an apparently abnormal number of mice in the area (6:5), have led most commentators to identify the disease as bubonic plague. Yet 5:12 has no reference to the mice at all. See note on 6:4.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:8 The five (6:4, 16) lords were the rulers of the five ruling Philistine cities (i.e., the Philistine pentapolis; see 6:17). Gath was the city of Goliath (17:4), Achish (21:10; 27:2), and Ittai and the 600 Gittites (2 Sam. 15:18–19). Gath is probably Tel ets-Tsafi, about 12 miles (19 km) east of Ashdod and 5 miles (8 km) south of Ekron (1 Sam. 5:10), at the foot of the Judean hills.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:10 Ekron is another city of the Philistine pentapolis, most probably Tel Miqne, 22 miles (35 km) west of Jerusalem, on the western border between Philistia and Judah. This journey of the ark, taken from city to city by its panicky "captors," is almost a parody of a triumph march. Ekron has been discovered and excavated by archaeologists. A monumental inscription, belonging to the early seventh century B.C., has been found in what appears to be a temple complex. It is a plea to a goddess to protect Achish, the ruler of Ekron, and to bless him with long life, and to bless his land.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:11 a deathly panic. I.e., one that causes death.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:1–7:1 Return of the Ark. The Philistines test whether their troubles come from Israel's God, which leads to the ark's return to the territory of Israel.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:2 The Philistines reluctantly admit defeat and consult with their priests and diviners on how to send the ark back.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:3 While a guilt offering as described in Lev. 5:14–17 did not exist for the Philistines, the ancient Near East shared the concept of misappropriating holy things or places for profane use. Thus the Philistines viewed their current plight as God's "heavy hand" (1 Sam. 5:11) upon them for their desecration of the sacred ark; this desecration required a sacrifice as some kind of recompense to the God of the ark.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:4 Five golden tumors and five golden mice. The exact relationship between the tumors and the mice is difficult to determine, but from the list in vv. 17–18 one possibility is that only five golden objects are involved and that the "and" should be taken here as "namely," as is not uncommon in Hebrew, yielding "five golden tumors, namely, five golden mice" (see also v.

11). While that reading is grammatically possible, most interpreters understand 10 items set forth here: five golden tumors as well as five golden mice.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:5 Even the pagan Philistines must eventually give glory to the God of Israel.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:6 as the Egyptians. The Philistine religious professionals knew all about the events of the exodus (see esp. Ex. 10:1–2).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:7–9 This is an experiment to discover whether the cause of the Philistines' troubles was a natural event (coincidence, v. 9) or a supernatural one (it is he who has done us this great harm, v. 9). Untrained milk cows could not pull a cart together well, and if they went anywhere, it would be home to their calves. Therefore, if they pulled the cart uphill toward Israel, it must be the work of the Lord (v. 9).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:11 The golden mice and the images of their tumors refers either to 10 items or to five (see note on v. 4). If the latter, then the images would be "mouse-shaped" gold items made to symbolize their tumors.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:12 Beth-shemesh was partway up the Sorek Valley, a valley connecting Israel and Philistia, the scene of many of Samson's exploits. Zorah, Eshtaol, Timnah, and Delilah's home were all in that valley (Judg. 13:25; 14:1; 16:4). Ekron was near the place where the valley opens up into the plain.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:15 Beth-shemesh is listed among the Levitical cities in Josh. 21:16.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:17–18 This is a formal list with a heading, details (lit., "for Ashdod one; for Gaza one; for Ashkelon one; for Gath one; for Ekron one"), and summary. Many similar lists have been discovered all over the ancient Near East. In these, the summary always encapsulates the details. This structure suggests that the gold tumors in the heading and details may be the same as the gold mice in the summary (v. 18; see also the lists in 30:26–31 and 2 Sam. 23:8–39; but see notes on 1 Sam. 6:4; 6:11). The summary is: "and [or, namely] the golden mice, according to the number of all the cities of the Philistines belonging to the five lords," i.e., both walled forts and their surrounding unwalled villages. This phraseology was probably chosen to ensure that no part of the Philistine territory was left out. The five cities named in v. 17 would include “all the cities of the Philistines belonging to the five lords,” since each of the five Philistine cities would have unwalled villages associated with it. (Note “Ashdod and its territory” in 5:6; a similar phrase refers to a political unit in Assyrian annals. In 27:5–6, Ziklag is a “country town” belonging to the “royal city” of Gath.) This list may have been put into the box with the gold items.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:19 The Hebrew expression looked upon indicates staring, and perhaps gloating; this irreverence explains why God struck some of the men. The puzzling Hebrew text “seventy men, fifty thousand men” (esv footnote) may possibly mean “seventy men, i.e., five people out of every thousand” (or “every clan”). If this is the correct meaning, then the population of the city would have been 14,000 people (or 14 clans).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:20 The people of Beth-shemesh sound like the people of Ashdod (5:7–8).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:21 Kiriath-jearim was about 10 miles (16 km) farther up the Sorek Valley toward Jerusalem. It was a strategic location, situated on a hill at the juncture of the boundaries of Judah, Dan, and Benjamin.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:1 Eleazar is also the name of Aaron’s son (e.g., Ex. 6:23, 25; Num. 3:2); the name Eleazar was probably common in the Levitical families. In fact, it may be that Eleazar was descended from Aaron and that was why the people of Beth-shemesh asked Kiriath-jearim to take the ark.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:2–17 Judgeship of Samuel. Nothing has been heard of Samuel for 20 years (since 4:1), but then he calls the people to repent and put aside idolatry, and the people respond. Samuel is not a military figure, but through his prayer and worship the Lord works, and Israel is at peace with its neighbors. He is clearly the leader of “all … Israel” (8:4). Samuel is also a judge in the more modern sense of the word.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:3–4 Returning here is the act of repentance, i.e., a change of direction back to the Lord. Samuel gives three commands: (1) turn away from idolatry; (2) direct the heart to the LORD; and (3) serve him alone (see Deut. 6:4–15; Josh. 24:14–28; Judg. 10:6–16). Foreign gods and the Ashtaroth refers to the totality of idols. The Baals and the Ashtaroth has the same meaning.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:5–6 Mizpah is probably the modern Tel en-Natsbeh, about 7 miles (11 km) north of Jerusalem, near an important north-south road. It was a place of assembly for all Israel, as in Judges 20–21 and 1 Sam. 10:17–27, where Saul was proclaimed king. It was on Samuel's circuit for judging (7:16). I will pray to the LORD for you. Samuel was known as an intercessor (v. 8; 12:23; Jer. 15:1). They drew water and poured it out before the LORD and fasted. Like fasting, pouring out the water was an act of self-denial as part of Israel's confession. We have sinned against the LORD. The people's action was also an act of offering with similarities to the whole burnt offering in 1 Sam. 7:9—it was given completely to the Lord.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:9 nursing lamb. An animal could be sacrificed once it was eight days old (Ex. 22:30; Lev. 22:27). A basic purpose of the whole burnt offering was to make atonement (Lev. 1:4).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:10 The term for confusion (Hb. hamam) occurs first in Ex. 14:24, where the Lord threw the Egyptian army into "panic" (see also Ex. 23:27; Josh. 10:10). See especially 2 Sam. 22:15 (cf. Ps. 18:14), where the Lord's lightning routs (same Hb. word, hamam) the enemy.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:13 did not again enter the territory of Israel. The victory is here described as a decisive turning point, although Philistine garrisons appear in 10:5; 13:3. Perhaps this refers only to a temporary condition, such as during all the days of Samuel.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:14 from Ekron to Gath. Ekron and Gath were the easternmost cities of the Philistine pentapolis (see note on 5:1). This verse probably means that the cities and territories that had come under the control of those two ruling cities were freed from their control. The Amorites, broadly speaking, were the pre-Israelite Canaanites (see 2 Sam. 21:2). Thus Israel was not bothered by enemies from inside or from outside.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:15 Samuel judged (see v. 6) Israel all the days of his life. This is a summary of Samuel's activities as judge; from his hometown of Ramah, he visited the cities of Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpah, which are all in or around the district of the Benjaminite clans.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:16 Bethel was one of the most important sacred sites, being associated with the patriarchs (see Gen. 35:15). The ark was there at one time (Judg. 20:26–27). Joshua 18:21–22 lists it as a Benjaminite city, but during most of history it was a part of Ephraim. It was in Bethel, as well as in Dan, that Jeroboam established a sanctuary for worshiping a golden calf as a rival to Jerusalem (1 Kings 12:28–29). The modern site is Beitin, 10 miles (16 km) north of Jerusalem, at the intersection of two major highways—the mountain ridge road and the main road leading from Jericho to the coastal plain. The site of Gilgal has not yet been identified. It was the place on "the east border of Jericho" where Joshua and the Israelites camped after crossing the Jordan River (Josh. 4:19, etc.). This ancient city was a place of worship and sacrifice in the Benjaminite district. Gilgal was important in the kingship of Saul: he was ordered to go there and wait on God after his private anointing (1 Sam. 10:1); there the people made him king (11:15); and there his perpetual (i.e., dynastic) kingship was rejected (13:8–15) and finally negated (15:23). Later, in the eighth century, Amos (Amos 4:4; 5:5) and Hosea (Hos. 4:15; 9:15; 12:11) denounced Gilgal, along with Bethel, as an active but illegitimate place of worship. Thus, the narrator summarizes Samuel's era: Israel was secure and stable both externally and internally under the judgeship of Samuel, for the hand of the Lord was against the Philistines and there was peace between the Israelites and the Amorites. Samuel's annual visits from his hometown of Ramah gave the people confidence and trust in God and in Samuel's leadership. In the next episode, however, the people of Israel senselessly request a new institution (kingship) rather than a new judge, despite Samuel's opposition.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:1–22 Transition to the Monarchy. Chapter 8 is a turning point in OT history, marking the transition from judgeship to kingship. The people want a change: up until now they had depended on the Lord to raise up judges to lead them as needed, but now they want a monarchy, "like all the nations" (v. 5). Why did they want a king? Of course, Samuel's sons were causing problems, but instead of rejecting hereditary judges and demanding that Samuel's sons be removed, they ask for a hereditary kingship. Probably they were feeling the threat of the Philistines and Ammonites (v. 20; 9:16; 10:5; 12:12), but the phrase "like all the nations" seems to be a key. Rather than following God's way for them, they preferred to follow the ways of the world around them. It was ultimately a rejection of the kingship of God (8:7).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:1 he made his sons judges. Samuel himself may have contributed to the problem (see note on vv. 1–22) by appointing his sons as judges. There had not been hereditary judges before; Gideon had rejected the idea (Judg. 8:22–23).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:2 Beersheba was the extreme south of Israel in traditional descriptions (cf. 3:20). It appears in stories of the patriarchs (Gen. 21:31; 22:19; 26:33; 46:1), and Amos denounced it, together with Bethel and Gilgal (Amos 5:5). A fortress has been discovered at Beersheba (Stratum VII) that belongs to the period of the judges. Its length is about 164 feet (50 m), and it is surrounded by a double fortification wall. It was destroyed in the second half of the eleventh century B.C. The remains indicate that Beersheba was an important administrative center at this time.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:3 turned aside after gain … took bribes and perverted justice. When leaders use their office for self-enrichment, and as a result distort their decisions, they betray the fundamental purpose of judges and are a danger in all societies. Such practices are denounced over and over in the Bible (cf. Deut. 16:19; Ps. 26:10; Prov. 15:27; 17:23; Isa. 33:15; Ezek. 22:12; Amos 5:12; Hab. 1:2–4).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:4–5 appoint for us a king … like all the nations. Samuel had appointed judges. The elders, recognizing his authority, ask for a king. (To judge can also carry the nuance “to govern.”) They want to exchange their unique glory as the people of the incomparable God (2:2), who had brought them out of Egypt (8:8) and was even now protecting them (10:19), for status in the world, in order to be “like all the nations.” The law had given permission, but not a requirement, to appoint a king (Deut. 17:14–20).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:6 the thing displeased Samuel. Lit., “the thing was evil in Samuel’s eyes.” It was more than just a personal sense of rejection.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:9–18 Solemnly warn them is a legal expression that implies giving someone full knowledge of an action. the ways of the king. The word translated “ways” (Hb. mishpat, “judgment, decision, rule, justice, custom”) appears frequently in Samuel. In 2:13 it referred to the “customs” or “rights” of the priest (see note on 2:12–13; also Deut. 18:3, “this shall be the priest’s due from the people”). In 1 Sam. 8:3, Samuel’s sons “perverted mishpat.” In 10:25, Samuel writes the mishpat of the king in a book. Here one might paraphrase it as “normal kingly ways.” Some of these things were the normal cost of a central, standing administration, but others indicate a predictable abuse of power (see note on 8:14–15). There is no reason to think this passage comes from a later writer disillusioned with the Israelite monarchy.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:11 Chariots had long been known in Canaan as instruments of war (Judg. 4:13 and Ugaritic texts). Later, David experimented with them, and Solomon used them regularly (2 Sam. 8:4; 1 Kings 4:26). Having men run before his chariots was a status symbol—both Absalom and Adonijah had a chariot and horses and horsemen and 50 runners to run before them (2 Sam. 15:1; 1 Kings 1:5).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:12–13 The commanders of thousands and commanders of fifties were probably permanent officers over conscripted units—presumably military commanders were required due to the demand for a king to "fight our battles" (v. 20). To support this army, they need professionals to make weapons, provide food, and manufacture at least some comforts (perfumers and cooks and bakers; cf. "one of the perfumers," Neh. 3:8).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:14–15 The best of your fields and vineyards and olive orchards goes beyond what is needed for the administration of a government and predicts the corrupting influence of a king's power. Rather than serving the people without seeking self-enrichment (as Samuel did, 12:3–5), the king would use his power to "take" the best for himself (8:11–13) and those around him (vv. 14–15). Servants refers to high-ranking officials, as can be seen by seals that have been found inscribed with "servant of [King] X." As 22:7 shows, Saul would indeed make his "servants" commanders and give them agricultural properties.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:17 you shall be his slaves. The climax of Samuel's solemn warning. The Israelites and all their possessions are subject to the king's use. Conscripted labor (cf. 1 Kings 5:13–16; 12:4, 18) would probably be the most onerous form of this "slavery."

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:19–21 "We," "us," and "our" appear frequently in this short speech. The king's functions are (1) to give influence and status like all the nations; (2) to judge us—the fundamental function (2 Sam. 14:4; 15:2–4; 1 Kings 3:16–28; Psalm 72); and (3) to go out before us and fight our battles—i.e., be a war leader (e.g., 1 Sam. 11:1–11; 14:47–48; 23:27–28; 2 Sam. 5:19).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:22 make them a king. The Lord acquiesces to the people's demands, even though it means that they have rejected him (v. 7). By raising up David's dynasty, God will bring good out of their errant desire.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:1–15:35 The Story of Saul. Saul, the first king over all Israel, rises from obscurity and starts out well, but proves himself unsuited to the role because he will not listen obediently to the word of God that comes through Samuel.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:1–11:15 Saul Made King. This section starts with an ordinary family engaged in ordinary activities (similar to ch. 1), but it is soon clear that the Lord is working through these events. Here the story centers on Saul, who is told by Samuel that the Lord has chosen him to be the king to save his people. Saul is anointed, and the Spirit of the Lord comes upon him. Soon after, Saul is publicly chosen by lot. When Jabesh-gilead is threatened, Saul shows his leadership and saves the city. With this he is fully accepted as king, and there is a formal coronation ceremony at Gilgal.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:1–27 Saul's Meeting with Samuel. God uses circumstances to bring Saul to Samuel, and he informs Samuel of his plans to anoint Saul.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:1 The scene suddenly switches from Ramah (8:4) to a seemingly unrelated story, that of a young man looking for some donkeys, who just happens to come to a certain city on a certain day.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:2 handsome young man. Saul seems to be the ideal person, with excellent potential, particularly as a leader whom others would admire and follow. His physical appearance helps Saul to make a good impression on the people. From his shoulders upward he was taller than any of the people (cf. 10:23). This probably means that the heads of most people reached only to his shoulders.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:3 one of the young men. This could also mean "the first of the servants" (i.e., the head servant). The Hebrew (na'ar, lit., "young man") does not necessarily refer to someone who is young: Ziba, Saul's steward, was a na'ar who had 15 sons and 20 servants (2 Sam. 9:10).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:4–5 The text states that Saul and his servant went through the hill country of Ephraim and then gives the names of three places in Ephraim where they did not find the donkeys—the land of Shalishah, the land of Shaalim, and the land of Benjamin—and then states that they came to the land of Zuph, apparently the land of Samuel's ancestor Zuph in the hill country of Ephraim (1:1).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:6–8 Just as Saul is about to give up, God intervenes through the words of Saul's servant and through the fact that the servant just happens to have some silver. It was customary to take a present when seeking the help of a seer (see 1 Kings 14:3; 2 Kings 5:5; 8:8). Gifts were an integral part of social dealings in the ancient world.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:9 Inquire is a general verb used of legitimate inquiries of the Lord, either through a prophet or by lots (cf. 1 Sam. 10:22; 22:10; 23:2; 2 Kings 22:13; Jer. 21:2), though it could also refer to inquiring of pagan gods (2 Kings 1:2). Seer, prophet, and "man of God" (1 Sam. 9:6) are used almost indistinguishably in the OT.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:12 Samuel was just ahead of Saul, apparently returning to Ramah from his circuit (7:17), because there was a sacrifice today. Again, God's guidance is emphasized. Though later "high places," even those where the Lord was worshiped, were considered places for apostasy (2 Kings 23:15), worshiping the Lord at a high place was considered legitimate before the time of the temple (1 Kings 3:2, 4).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:14 they saw Samuel coming out toward them on his way up to the high place. The full name of Samuel's city, Ramathaim (1:1), means "two hills." Presumably the city was on one hill and the high place was on another.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:16 you shall anoint him. Various objects or persons were set aside for a divinely chosen task and anointed, such as the altar (Ex. 29:36), the tent (Ex. 30:26), the high priest (Ex. 28:41), or the king (Judg. 9:8; 1 Sam. 15:1; 2 Sam. 2:4; 1 Kings 1:34). The king was "the anointed one" or "messiah" of the Lord.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:20–21 for whom is all that is desirable in Israel? As king, who would receive the choicest things of the land (see 8:11–17), why should Saul concern himself with donkeys? However, Samuel's question may be an implicit condemnation since it may also be translated, "For whom is all the desire of Israel?" In Saul, Israel gets what it desires (ch. 8). Am I not … from the least … the humblest of all the clans? Saul's surprise at the sudden elevation of his importance by Samuel indicates that he understands this question in the former, positive sense.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:24 the cook took up the leg. The leg was the priest's portion (Ex. 29:27). Saul is told in 1 Sam. 10:4 to accept bread that probably was originally intended as an offering and would have been eaten by the priests (cf. Num. 18:8). These are indications of the sacredness of his kingship.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:27 Samuel made clear to Saul in vv. 20 and 23 that he had been given special knowledge, so now Saul would have no doubts that what he was to hear was truly the word of God.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:1–27 Anointing of Saul and His Election. Samuel anoints Saul privately, and then the whole nation discovers by means of lots that Saul is God's choice.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:1 the LORD has anointed you. This is a private anointing. Later Samuel will demonstrate publicly by lots that Saul has been chosen by the Lord, not just by Samuel (see vv. 17–27). his heritage. Or, "his inheritance." The Hebrew term nakhalah appears six times in Samuel and can refer either to the Lord's land or to his people Israel, and sometimes to both. Here, it seems that "the people" is meant (see 9:16).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:4 The two loaves of bread were probably intended for the sacrificial meal, because the men were "going up to God at Bethel" (v. 3). See note on 9:24. Thus Saul's new position and authority as divinely anointed king is acknowledged.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:5 group of prophets … with harp, tambourine, flute … prophesying. Though music may have been used in pagan worship to induce trances, these prophets were still able to walk and play instruments while prophesying. No practices such as self-flagellation or laceration are mentioned here, and the music was probably used to focus attention on the Lord. These same four instruments are mentioned as providing music for feasting in Isa. 5:12. The "harp" was similar to today's concert harp. The "tambourine" was similar to the modern tambourine, but without the small cymbals. The precise nature of the "flute" is unknown. Various types of wind instruments are known from pictures. Most depict pipes being played vertically, more like a recorder than today's concert flute. Examples of metal and bone flutes have been found; wood and reed were probably also common. The lyre was basically a sound box, with arms in a U-shape supporting a bar across the top. Depictions of musicians playing the lyre in the ancient Near East are common, and some specimens of the instrument itself have been excavated. The lyre seems to have been considered the premier instrument. In 1 Sam. 16:16, Saul's servants suggest seeking out a lyre player.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:6 In 1–2 Samuel, the phrase "the Spirit of the LORD" appears only in connection with his anointed ones, i.e., Saul and David (1 Sam. 16:13–14; 2 Sam. 23:2). The expression the Spirit of the LORD will rush upon (someone) appears only in Judges and 1 Samuel, ending with David (Judg. 14:6, 19; 15:14; 1 Sam. 10:10; 11:6; 16:13). It always speaks of God's Spirit coming suddenly on someone to equip and empower that person to serve the interests of God's people. The onrush of the Spirit of the Lord upon Saul is predicted, but not manipulated as in Canaanite practices; it is necessary in order to dispel any doubts Saul might have about his choice and as a public demonstration that he is now the "prince" (10:1). It is related to his election as king, and does not mean that he is becoming a prophet (cf. v. 11). be turned into another man. Not by losing self, but rather by being equipped with power to play a new role (see Judg. 6:34; 11:29). Cf. "another heart" (1 Sam. 10:9).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:8 Samuel instructs Saul to go down before him to the worship center at Gilgal, and to wait for him there for seven days. The events at Gilgal described in 11:15 and 13:8 were probably other occasions.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:9–10 In fulfillment of Samuel's prior predictions (vv. 2–7), Saul is given another heart and he prophesies, an action linked with the fact that the Spirit of God rushed upon him (cf. v. 6; 11:6). This might not be a permanent spiritual renewal or conversion, but Saul is confirmed as the one to deliver Israel (see 10:7, "do what your hand finds to do"; cf. 9:16) and is reminded of God's presence by means of this visible sign (cf. Judg. 14:6, 19; 15:14). Later the Spirit of the Lord "departed from Saul" (1 Sam. 16:14; 18:12).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:11–12 What has come over the son of Kish? The fact that Saul is now "another man" (v. 6) with "another heart" (v. 9) is externally evident to all who knew him previously. A second question, Is Saul also among the prophets? (also 19:24), became proverbial and was applied to situations where the participation or alliance of one person or group in the activities of another was unexpected. Saul's inclusion among the prophets was shocking.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:12 who is their father? The question may simply be about leadership, since “father” is elsewhere synonymous with the prophetic “leader” (2 Kings 2:12; 6:21; 13:14). If this is so, the implication may be either that no good leader would permit someone like Saul to join or that Saul is, in fact, the new leader of the prophets. There is some evidence that prophets were not always viewed positively, and so another possibility is that Saul’s presence with such “madmen” (cf. 2 Kings 9:11) is suspicious. Finally, if Samuel is their leader then it is an ironic statement, since Saul will ultimately oppose Samuel’s authority (see note on 1 Sam. 19:23–24).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:14–16 Saul’s uncle, probably Abner (see 14:50), asks where he had been and what Samuel said to him. Saul’s fate would be of great concern to Abner, since he was possibly next in line after Kish and Saul to inherit Abiel’s estate (see 9:1).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:17–27 This event is to show that the choice of Saul as king is not just Samuel’s, but God’s.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:20–21 Lots are also used for identifying a person in Josh. 7:14–18 and 1 Sam. 14:41–42, and for dividing the land in Josh. 14:2; 18:1–19:51; 21:1–45. See note on Acts 1:26.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:22 Saul had hidden himself, perhaps for fear of accepting his new responsibilities.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:24 At last Saul is publicly and officially presented and accepted by the people as the king. Samuel emphasizes the divine decision in Saul’s choice. Here he says that the LORD has chosen, while in 12:13 he says to the people, “you have chosen.”

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:25 The rights and duties of the kingship is lit., “the rule [Hb. mishpat] of the kingship,” i.e., the relationship between the king and the people, about which both the newly enthroned king and the people must have legal agreement. Legal agreements were usually written down and confirmed by the seals of the witnesses. Here Samuel was the intermediary and witness. He also laid the document before the LORD, i.e., deposited it in a sanctuary (cf. putting the Book of the Law or the covenant into or beside the ark; Ex. 25:16; 40:20; Deut. 31:26).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:26 Gibeah ("hill"), Saul's home, was about 3 miles (4.8 km) north of Jerusalem, with a panoramic view and a north-south road nearby. This is probably the same as "Gibeath-elohim, where there is a garrison of the Philistines" (v. 5). A fortress with casemate walls and corner towers has been excavated there, but it is not certain whether it was built by the Philistines or the Israelites.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:1–15 Making Saul King. This episode shows how Saul becomes the de facto king and is accepted by all Israel because of his victory over the Ammonites. The Dead Sea Scroll of Samuel, 4QSam^{a}, has an otherwise unknown paragraph about the background of an oppression by "Nahash, king of the Ammonites." It says that Nahash had been gouging out the eyes of the Transjordan Gadites and Reubenites and that 7,000 men had fled to Jabesh-gilead. But because 1 Sam. 11:1–2 says "Nahash the Ammonite," not "Nahash, king of the Ammonites," it seems unlikely that the paragraph in question was lost from the text in the course of transmission. More likely, it is a later addition. It is possible that the person who added this paragraph was following a true tradition, but one that was not part of 1 Samuel. The demand for a king in ch. 8 may have been made in the midst of such Ammonite oppression. Even if the biblical author knew about it, however, he may not have included it because he was more concerned with the deliverance of the Transjordan Israelites by Saul than with their oppression by Nahash.

Saul Rescues Jabesh-gilead

c. 1050 B.C.

Soon after Saul was anointed king of Israel, the people of Jabesh-gilead were attacked by the Ammonites. When Saul heard the news at Gibeah, he quickly mustered the Israelite forces at Bezek and defeated the Ammonites in battle. Samuel then called upon the people to confirm Saul's kingship at Gilgal.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON [11:1] Jabesh-gilead was probably east of the Jordan River near the western edge of the Gilead mountains (see map).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON [11:2] To make a treaty is literally "to cut a treaty," which usually involved sacrificial animals. But Nahash demands to cut the treaty with the men's eyes.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:3 For elders, see note on 4:3.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:4 There were probably strong blood ties between Jabesh-gilead and Gibeah (see Judg. 21:12). The 42-mile (68-km) journey from Jabesh to Gibeah may have taken two days.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:6–7 As in 10:6 (see note there), the Spirit of God rushed upon Saul, but here he is filled with power like one of the judges (Judg. 3:10; 6:34; 11:29; 14:6, 19; 15:14). He apparently did not need to identify himself to his fellow Israelites other than as "Saul"; the message itself seems to presuppose some degree of authority, though he also invokes Samuel's authority. Saul issues a conditional curse (Whoever does not come out), symbolized by his dismembering of the oxen (cf. Judg. 19:29–30).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:8 Bezek was probably on the opposite side of the Jordan from Jabesh.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:10 Give ourselves up to you can also mean "march out to you." The speech of the men is deliberately ambiguous.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:11 Saul uses the tactic of dividing the forces into three companies (cf. Judg. 7:16; 9:43; 2 Sam. 18:2; Job 1:17).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:12–15 After Saul's victory, the people are enthusiastic about him. Note that Samuel still plays the crucial role in establishing and promoting kingship in Israel (see v. 7). This ceremony at the worship center of Gilgal seems to be a religious coronation rather than the event of political recognition in 10:17–25.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:1–25 Samuel's Address to Israel. The setting of this address is not clear. The sentence structure at the end of ch. 11 suggests a complete end of a section and therefore that ch. 12 begins a new section. The address was probably given on an occasion different from that in ch. 11. From now on, Samuel is no longer the judge of all Israel: the age of kingship has begun. But this is neither a retirement ceremony for Samuel nor his last public address; his authority as the prophet who gives the word of God to the king and people of Israel remains powerful (see 12:18), and he has one more king to anoint (ch. 16).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:2 And now contrasts Saul as the king and Samuel as the judge. behold, the king walks before you. Saul has been ruling over the people for some time.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:3–6 Samuel asks the people to testify to the integrity of his life as a judge, in contrast with that of his sons (see 8:3). It is a case between him and the people, argued with the Lord as witness. He is not asking for judgment on his life as a prophet, a matter between him and God. Whose ox have I taken? Samuel has not used his power or office as a means of personal enrichment (cf. notes on 8:3; 8:14–15).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:7–12 Samuel turns to the relationship between the Lord and the people. His speech is similar to speeches by Joshua (Joshua 23–24) and Solomon (1 Kings 8:12–61).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:10 the Baals and the Ashtaroth. I.e., the foreign gods and goddesses; see note on 7:3–4.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:14–15 Samuel concludes his official speech by summarizing his admonitions to the covenant people. Not only the people but also the king should be obedient to the Lord; no king in Israel is exempt from obeying the Lord’s commandments.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:21 Empty things (Hb. tohu) refers here to vain idols. An idol is “nothing”—a vacuous entity that gives the one who trusts in it only vanity or emptiness in return.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:22 The Lord will not deal with his chosen people according to their wicked deeds (v. 25), but will treat them mercifully for his great name’s sake. This is the biblical principle of divine saving grace or favor.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:23 Praying (intercession) and instruction are two of Samuel’s major roles as the prophet of the Lord, even after the inauguration of kingship.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:25 Both the people and the king are obliged to obey the word of the Lord; otherwise both will be swept away (as in Saul’s case; see ch. 13).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:1–15:35 Reign of Saul. Saul, though chosen directly by God and initially zealous for the Lord, is easily moved by circumstances. He is successful against the Philistines and Amalekites, but he also does things in his own way or—even worse—in the people’s way, against the word of the Lord. As a result, Samuel tells Saul that his kingdom (13:14) and even his own kingship (15:23) will be taken away. This difficult relationship between Saul and Samuel continues even after Samuel’s death (see ch. 28). The two incidents of Saul’s disobedience frame the great victory against the Philistines at Michmash (ch. 14). Even in the midst of victory, however, Saul almost manages to destroy his own house by cursing his son, through whom the battle was won. Chapters 13–15 are a buildup toward David’s being chosen as king (ch. 16).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:1–23 Saul and the Philistines—First Rejection of Saul. In preparing for battle, Saul disobeys God’s commands given through Samuel; God cannot endure such a king over Israel.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:1 The Hebrew text of this verse is difficult, and various solutions have been proposed. One possibility (see esv footnote) is that some numbers, giving Saul’s age and length of reign, were lost from the text at a very early point in its transmission. (Most Septuagint manuscripts lack this verse completely.) Acts 13:21 says that Saul reigned for “forty years.” This has led some translations to say that Saul reigned “forty years” or else “forty-two years” (taking Acts 13:21 as a round number). Josephus, Jewish Antiquities 6.378, also has Saul reigning for 40 years, but the Latin text of that passage has 20 years, as does Josephus in Jewish Antiquities 10.143. The esv text attempts to make sense of the Hebrew as it stands, indicating the time gaps between the events. Another possibility is that the author is commenting on Saul’s immaturity (as if he were only a year old, after becoming “another man,” 10:6) and his ineffective reign (as if it were only two years), although this is only a speculative possiblity.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:2 In ch. 9 Saul is described as a “young man,” but here he has a son who can command troops, and thus a number of years may have passed. Michmash is about 7 miles (11 km) northeast of Jerusalem and 3 or 4 miles (4.8 or 6.4 km) south of Bethel. These three thousand men were his standing army.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:3 defeated the garrison. The word translated as “garrison” here and in v. 4 is singular, while in 10:5 it is plural. (“Garrison” in 13:23 is a different word.) The trumpet also signals a revolt in Judg. 3:27 and 2 Sam. 15:10. For Hebrews, see note on 1 Sam. 4:6.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:5 Thirty thousand chariots seems very high, and perhaps the Syriac translation (and one tradition of the Septuagint) preserves the true reading, “three thousand.” Beth-aven is probably the Beth-aven near Ai (Josh. 7:2).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:7 land of Gad and Gilead. Or “land of Gad, that is, Gilead” (cf. note on 6:4).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:8–15 Saul had summoned the army to meet at Gilgal, the place where he had “waited” (10:8) and been crowned (11:15). Again, “waiting” at Gilgal seems to have a special religious meaning. After this period of time, however, Saul offers sacrifices and breaks the commandment of the Lord (13:13). Some interpreters take this to mean that he did not obey the Lord’s word through Samuel recorded in 10:8, to the effect that Saul should wait seven days for Samuel to come and offer burnt offerings and show Saul what to do. Others think the statement in 10:8 occurred several years earlier, and that Saul violates another (unrecorded) command from Samuel, or the command that only a priest should offer sacrifices (Num. 18:7), or the general principle that he should have waited to learn God’s will through the prophet. In any case, Saul knows he has done wrong, for he starts making excuses (1 Sam. 13:11–12). Apparently he had been told not to make any move until Samuel gave him the word of the Lord. Here Saul shows his tendency to be moved by circumstances and to rely on religious ritual to gain God’s favor (see 14:24 and the incident in 4:3) rather than to trust and obey the word of the Lord.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:13–14 Saul’s disobedience brings a serious result—the cessation of his kingdom—for in Israel the kingship itself is under the authority of the word of God (see 12:20–25). Saul fails to acknowledge the prophet’s higher role as the divine messenger and to listen to the word of God (cf. 15:11, 13, 19, 22–23).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:16 Geba is only a mile or two from Michmash, separated from it by a deep ravine, which is an important pass from the Jordan Valley into the Ephraimite hills (see map). The Philistines were stationed at the hilltop that overlooks the ravine from the north, while Saul’s army was encamped to the south. See ch. 14.

The Battle at Michmash

As the Philistines strengthened their grip on the central hill country of Israel, they placed troops at Michmash and sent raiding parties into the countryside. After Saul’s son Jonathan captured the town of Geba, Saul mustered more Israelite forces at Gilgal and joined Jonathan. A daring raid by Jonathan across the ravine separating Michmash and Geba led to an Israelite victory over the Philistines, and the Israelites drove them from the hill country.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:17–18 The raiders' division into three companies, going in different directions, recalls Saul's own earlier tactics (see note on 11:11).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:19–22 no blacksmith (in) Israel. The Philistines apparently had been able to monopolize the production of the kind of metal (probably iron) needed for swords and spears, putting the Israelites at a great disadvantage. Thus the Israelite victory at Michmash (ch. 14) was indeed the Lord's doing. (Iron plow points have been found, however, in Israelite contexts as early as the 11th century B.C. at the site of Gibeah.) As the esv footnote explains, the Hebrew text refers to a weight called a "pim" (taken to be two-thirds of a shekel). A number of weights marked "pim" have been found.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:1–52 Saul and Jonathan. Jonathan's act of trust in this chapter is sandwiched between two instances of Saul's disobedience in chs. 13 and 15. The narrator thus clearly contrasts Saul and Jonathan before dealing with Saul and David (chs. 16ff.).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:2–3 The outskirts of Gibeah may mean "the edge of the hill." Migron may mean "threshing floor." Court was often held under a tree (22:6; Judg. 4:5) or on threshing floors (1 Kings 22:10). For ephod, see note on 1 Sam. 2:27–28.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:4 Bozez means "the gleaming one," and Seneh means "the thorny one."

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:6 Jonathan's trust contrasts with Saul's concern about numbers (13:11, 15). Uncircumcised was a customary derogatory epithet used of the Philistines (cf. Judg. 14:3; 15:18; 1 Sam. 17:26; 31:4; 2 Sam. 1:20).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:10 if they say, "Come up to us." This would give Jonathan and the armor-bearer the opportunity to get into the Philistine camp at what was probably its most thinly protected point, without raising an alarm. The guards' words in v. 12 suggest that an attack by these two lone men was the last thing on their mind.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:14 The Hebrew "yoke" (esv footnote) was a unit for measuring area.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:15 A very great panic is literally "a panic of God" (see esv footnote), suggesting divine intervention.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:16 Though Saul was in Gibeah, about 4 miles (6.4 km) from Michmash, his watchmen were probably stationed nearer, watching Michmash.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:18 The ark had apparently been brought from Kiriath-jearim to be with the army for some special reason, and Saul wanted Ahijah, who carried the sacred lots in the ephod, to cast the lots before the ark.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:21–22 These verses describe several groups who earlier distanced themselves from Israel. Some people called Hebrews had previously defected to the Philistines (cf. 29:3) while others had hidden themselves during this time of war. Now that the conflict goes favorably, both groups commit to fighting for Israel.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:23 beyond Beth-aven. This battle seems to have driven the Philistines from the central mountain areas.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:24 so Saul had laid an oath. Jonathan, of course, had not been present at the time.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:27 His eyes became bright suggests renewed vitality (cf. Ezra 9:8; Ps. 13:3; 19:8; 38:10; Prov. 29:13).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:28 this day. See v. 24 (“until it is evening”). The day began at sunset.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:32–33 When evening comes (v. 34) and the people are once again free to eat (cf. v. 24), they are in such a hurry that they do not put the animals they kill on a stone in order to drain the blood properly from them (v. 33). Eating meat with blood is strictly prohibited in the law (Gen. 9:4; Lev. 7:26; 17:10–14; Deut. 12:16).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:39 he shall surely die. Saul assumes that the Lord’s silence regarding Saul’s prior question (v. 37) is due to some unknown sin (v. 38). Just as it was Saul’s own willful (and faulty) decision to impose the ban on eating (v. 24), it is also his decision to kill the person, whoever it is, whose guilt has prevented the Lord from answering him.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:41–42 give Urim. … give Thummim. … Cast the lot. The Urim and Thummim (or just Urim) are mentioned also in Ex. 28:30; Num. 27:21; Deut. 33:8; 1 Sam. 28:6; and Ezra 2:63. They may have been two stones of two different colors—a bright color and a dark color, perhaps—one representing a positive and the other a negative answer, that were kept in the "breastpiece of judgment" of the priest's ephod (see Ex. 28:30; Lev. 8:8). They were the only legitimate means of directly seeking a "yes" or "no" answer from the Lord, apart from God's speaking directly to people.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:45 Shall Jonathan die … ? … ? … As the LORD lives … The people use the same oath that Saul used in v. 39. They obviously think God spoke much more clearly in Jonathan's victory than in Saul's rash oath (v. 24).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:47–48 These countries are mentioned in 2 Sam. 8:12 as having been subdued by David.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:49 It is possible, but not certain, that Ishvi is a variation of the name Ish-bosheth (2 Sam. 2:8; he is called "Eshbaal" in 1 Chron. 8:33).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:50–51 Abner's father was Ner, his brother was Kish, and his nephew (Kish's son) was Saul. When 9:1 says that Kish was the "son of Abiel," it probably means "grandson of Abiel (Jeiel)" (cf. 1 Chron. 9:35).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:1–35 Saul and the Amalekites—Second Rejection of Saul. Here, finally, Saul is rejected completely.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:2 Thus says the LORD. See note on 2:27. what Amalek did to Israel. The Amalekites, a nomadic tribe that inhabited the desert south of Judah (Num. 13:29), are the archetypal plunderers in biblical tradition. They attacked Israel at Rephidim (Ex. 17:8), and the Lord declared war on them (Ex. 17:14–16; Deut. 25:17–19). They joined other groups against Israel in Num. 14:41–45; Judg. 3:13; 6:3; 10:12. They attacked David's city of Ziklag (1 Samuel 30), and David subdued them in 2 Sam. 8:12.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:3 devote to destruction. This practice, known also as "imposing the ban," denotes setting aside something as the Lord's share. Usually such a ban meant that all living things—men, women, children, and livestock—were to be killed (cf. Deut. 20:16–17; Josh. 6:17, 21; see also 1 Sam. 22:19, where Saul unjustly carries this out on the priestly town of Nob). One purpose of such total destruction was to stop the spread of the "abominable practices" of paganism (Deut. 20:16–18). The ban against Amalek is based on Deut. 25:19.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:4 Although the army of Judah is mentioned separately (as also in 11:8), it seems that Judahites in general considered themselves part of the nation. This is suggested by David (a Judahite) going to serve Saul (16:14–23), the presence of David's brothers in Saul's army (ch. 17), and Saul's search for David in the Judahite region of Ziph (23:14–29; 26:1–4). It is not surprising that Judah was heavily involved in the battle against Amalek, since the territory of Judah was near the Amalekites and therefore must have been particularly subject to their raids (30:14).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:6 Kenites. Moses' father-in-law Jethro was a Kenite (Judg. 1:16), and he and his son had been helpful to the Israelites (Exodus 18; Num. 10:29–32). depart; … lest I destroy you with them. The Kenites had settled among the Amalekites. David likewise spared them during his time in Ziklag (1 Sam. 27:8–10; 30:29). Saul's action in this situation is commendable.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:9 Spared is in sharp contrast to Samuel's instructions ("Do not spare," v. 3). Saul and the people places most of the responsibility for this disobedience on Saul himself.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:11 I regret (also vv. 29, 35). Here, as in Gen. 6:6, the Lord "regrets" a decision. This means that God feels genuine sorrow when contemplating Saul's sin. But it does not mean that God thinks his decision to make Saul king was a mistake in the overall course of his plans for history (cf. Isa. 46:9–10). For more on divine regret, see note on 1 Sam. 15:29.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:12 Carmel here is a town in Judah about 7 miles (11 km) south of Hebron. It is the setting for ch. 25. That Saul has gone there to set up a monument for himself raises further suspicions about his character.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:15 Saul's excuse for his disobedience (the people spared) contrasts with the facts ("Saul and the people spared," v. 9). to sacrifice to the LORD your God. They probably did intend to sacrifice the animals, or there would have been no reason to go to Gilgal. But they were probably also planning to share in eating the sacrifices, contrary to the decree of destruction (see note on v. 3).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:17 Samuel reminds Saul here again (see v. 1) that the LORD anointed you king over Israel. Why should Saul, as God's anointed, yield to the people's opinion over God's? He became king because the people asked for a king; now he is rejected because he listened to them (cf. Prov. 29:25) rather than leading them to obey God.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:20–21 I have obeyed … but the people. Cf. note on v. 15.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:22 The Lord himself does not need sacrifices like gods in other religions. Rather, the people need to bring sacrifices in order to approach the holy God (see Leviticus 1–5). Even the best sacrifice without obedience gains nothing.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:23 Rebellion (cf. 12:15) and presumption mean rejecting the Lord, equivalent to apostasy. The Hebrew word terapim, here translated idolatry, refers to either "household gods" (Gen. 31:19; Judg. 17:5; 1 Sam. 19:13) or "ancestor figurines" used as aids to divination (Ezek. 21:21; Hos. 3:4; Zech. 10:2). Saul is rejected as king here and also in 1 Sam. 15:26 (see 13:13–14).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:24–26 Saul confesses, "I have sinned." At least he admits the basic issue in v. 24 (I feared the people); but instead of being struck with the awfulness of his sin, the guilt of which can be taken away by God alone, Saul is more concerned with his standing with the people and the elders (v. 30). the LORD has rejected you from being king. In 13:13 Saul's dynasty was rejected, while here he himself is rejected as king.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:27 Saul seizes the skirt of Samuel's robe as a final, deferential plea for mercy.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:28 The term this day is used in a legal sense: the rejection is final and has already taken effect (see Ruth 4:9–10; Ps. 2:7). In God's sight, God has already torn and given (past tense), though the actual realization is yet to come.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:29 The term "regret" poses a difficulty, since vv. 11 and 35 say that God did regret making Saul king, while here Samuel denies that God will ever lie or have regret (cf. Num. 23:19). The term for "have regret" (Hb. nakham) can be translated "relent" or "change one's mind" (e.g., Ex. 32:12, 14; Num. 23:19; 1 Sam. 24:16 [1 Chron. 21:15]; Ps. 106:45; Jer. 15:6; 18:8, 10; 26:3, 13, 19; 42:10; Ezek. 24:14; Joel 2:13–14; Amos 7:3, 6; Jonah 3:9–10; 4:2) or "have pity or compassion" (Deut. 32:36; Judg. 2:18; Ps. 90:13; 135:14) as well as “be sorry” or “have regret” (cf. Gen. 6:6–7). Thus the term as used in 1 Sam. 15:11, 35 describes God’s own feeling of sorrow or regret that Saul had turned out as he did (and does not even address the question whether God knew of it beforehand), while in v. 29 God will not regret or change his mind concerning a decision once he has made it. For further discussion of God’s “relenting” from sending good or disaster on a people, see note on Jonah 3:10.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:30 honor me now. What Saul wants most is now clearly seen (cf. vv. 24–25).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:31 Samuel, who is a man (cf. “is not a man,” v. 29), changes his mind and stays with Saul, whether out of concern for Saul personally (v. 35) or for the peace of the nation.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:32–33 Bring here to me Agag. Samuel himself takes on the task that Saul failed to finish. Hacked … to pieces was not the normal means of putting to death. Usually slaying before the LORD involves sacrificing an animal (cf. Ex. 29:11; Lev. 1:5), but in this case Agag himself is the sacrifice, justly put to death for his own sin (see note on 1 Sam. 15:3).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:34 Ramah is only 2 miles (3.2 km) from Gibeah.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:35 Formerly angry, Samuel now grieved over Saul. On the LORD regretted, see notes on vv. 11 and 29.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:1–31:13 The Story of Saul and David. Now that Saul has been completely disqualified as king, David is introduced as his successor, and God trains David, through suffering, to lead his people.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:1–23 Introduction of David. In chs. 13 and 15, Saul was told that he and his dynasty had been rejected and that the kingdom had been given to a neighbor, a man after the Lord's heart (cf. 13:14; 15:28). It is now revealed that this neighbor is a son of Jesse of Bethlehem—but his name is not stated until the middle of ch. 16. In the second half of the chapter, the Lord uses the words of one of Saul's attendants to bring David to court. The Lord is with David, while his Spirit has left Saul and has been replaced by a spirit that does harm and turns him against David.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:1–13 Anointing of David. God indicates to Samuel that of all the sons of Jesse, David, the least likely, is his choice. After David's anointing (which is done with a limited audience), the Spirit of God empowers him for service.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:1 Jesse was a descendant of Perez, son of Judah and Tamar (Gen. 38:29), and a grandson of Ruth and Boaz (Ruth 4:18–22). Bethlehem is in Judah, about 10 miles (16 km) from Ramah.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:2 and say, "I have come to sacrifice to the LORD." This was a true but incomplete statement of the reasons for Samuel to come to Bethlehem (see v. 1), and yet the Lord told him to say it, so it should not be considered morally wrong. It seems that telling part of what one knows to be true, in order to conceal other information, is morally right in some situations, particularly adversarial situations such as this one. Moreover, the Lord had the right to hide his intentions from Saul, who had proved himself faithless.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:5 Consecrate yourselves. They would probably wash themselves and perhaps also wash their clothes (Ex. 19:10; Num. 8:21; 11:18). As in 1 Sam. 9:22, the feast seems to have a selective guest list.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:7 man looks on the outward appearance, but the LORD looks on the heart. Outward appearance cannot predict whether someone will faithfully obey the Lord, for a person's actions flow from his heart (cf. 2 Chron. 16:9; Ps. 51:10; Prov. 4:23; Mark 7:21–23; Luke 6:45; 1 Thess. 2:4). The "heart" in Scripture refers to a person's inward moral and spiritual life, including the emotions, will, and reason.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:8–9 And he said. It is not clear whether the Lord is speaking to Samuel or Samuel is speaking to Jesse.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:10 seven of his sons. Was David the seventh son or the eighth? David is listed as "seventh" in 1 Chron. 2:15, but this may represent a “telescoping” of a genealogy to give David the number of perfection (see notes on 1 Chron. 2:9–17; Matt. 1:17). Other interpreters suggest that David may have had an additional brother who died childless and was omitted from the genealogy in 1 Chronicles 2 (1 Sam. 17:12 also says that Jesse had eight sons).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:13 David’s name is mentioned here for the first time. the Spirit of the LORD rushed upon David from that day forward. See note on 10:6. The narrator does not say who among those present knew what the anointing was for.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:14–23 David at Saul’s Court. Saul and David become acquainted when David begins serving Saul. As the story develops, David will become Saul’s most successful servant.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:14 The Spirit of the LORD departed from Saul as soon as the Lord’s Spirit came upon David to anoint him for kingship (see v. 13). This statement is not relevant to the issue of whether people can lose their salvation; it is not describing the Holy Spirit’s role in individual regeneration in a NT sense. Rather, in light of v. 13, it should be seen as being about gaining or losing the Spirit’s empowering for the role of king (see 10:1, 6, 10; 11:6; 16:13; and perhaps Ps. 51:11). From this point to the end of his life, Saul will continually make futile attempts to govern without the empowering of the Holy Spirit. A harmful spirit sent by the Lord tormented Saul as a form of judgment for his sin of turning against the Lord (1 Sam. 15:22–29). Though God himself never does evil, he sometimes sends evil agents to accomplish his purposes (such as the Babylonians coming to punish Israel, cf. Jer. 20:4–6; or sinful people crucifying Christ, cf. notes on Gen. 50:18–21; Mark 14:21; Acts 2:23; 4:27; 4:28; see also 1 Kings 22:20–23).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:16–18 David was already skillful in playing the lyre, but a man of valor, a man of war probably refers to his ability and not his experience (cf. 17:13, 33); perhaps some knew of how he single-handedly defeated both lions and bears (cf. 17:36). The LORD is with him is a continual theme in David’s story (17:37; 18:12; 20:13; 2 Sam. 5:10; 7:3, 9; see also Gen. 21:22; 26:3; 28:15; 31:3; 39:2; Ex. 3:12).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:20 donkey laden. Some scholars think this was a specific amount, similar to the Assyrian unit “donkey,” which was about 80–160 liters, or 2 1/2 to 5 bushels.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:21 An armor-bearer was a close personal attendant. Both Jonathan's armor-bearer (14:1) and Saul's (31:4–5) had a close relationship with their masters.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:22 As was his custom (see 14:52), Saul attached the valiant David to himself.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:23 and the harmful spirit departed from him. David is referred to as "the sweet psalmist of Israel" (2 Sam. 23:1) and as the author of several songs (2 Sam. 1:17–27; 22:1–51; 1 Chron. 16:7–36; see also Amos 6:5) and many psalms. He is also credited with establishing the temple musicians (1 Chron. 6:31). The music that David habitually played in Saul's presence was not merely beautiful, but music of worship to the Lord, causing Saul to be refreshed and the harmful spirit to flee (cf. 2 Chron. 5:13–14).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:1–54 David and Goliath: Battle at the Valley of Elah. The story of David and Goliath, one of the best-known in the Bible, tells how David trusted God and God delivered David and his people. It is the means by which young David, already chosen and anointed privately and taken up by Saul as a court musician, comes onto the public stage. David's victory leads to Saul's jealousy, which drives the plot of the rest of the book. David shows himself better qualified than Saul to serve as the king of Israel, who should be the "champion" (v. 4) of God's people in battle and in the life of faith.

The Battle at Elah

Sometime after being anointed as the next king of Israel, David was sent from Bethlehem by his father to take food to his brothers serving in the Israelite army near Socoh and Azekah. When David arrived, he learned of the Philistines' challenge to the Israelites to send a champion to fight their warrior Goliath from Gath. David took up the challenge and killed Goliath, leading the Israelites to rout the Philistines and chase them all the way to Gath and Ekron.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:1–2 The Valley of Elah runs westward from Bethlehem, from the hill country of Judah, toward Gath and Ekron (see v. 52; and map). It is immediately south of and parallel to the Sorek Valley (see note on 6:12). Control of this valley would give the Philistines entry into the hill country of Judah. Socoh is about 14 miles (22 km) west of Bethlehem toward the Philistine territory. Azekah, about 2–3 miles (3.2–4.8 km) northwest of Socoh, controlled the main road across the Valley of Elah.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:4–11 A champion in biblical, ancient Near Eastern, and Homeric literature is a man who steps out to fight between the two battle lines. Here Goliath offers to fight, on behalf of his side, against any champion that Israel will put forward; the victor's side then, would partake of his victory (vv. 8–10). Goliath's armament was the best that the highly skilled Philistines could obtain, either by manufacture or by trade. The shield (Hb. tsinnah) was a large standing shield that covered the whole body. Most of his armament was bronze, except his spear's head of iron—this was just the beginning of the Iron Age. It weighed 600 shekels (about 15 lb. or 6.6 kg). His coat of mail weighed 5,000 shekels (about 125 lb. or 55 kg). It is not surprising that the Israelites were dismayed. Six cubits and a span is about 9 feet 9 inches (3 m). At the site of Gath (Tel es-Safi), an early Philistine inscription has been found that dates to the tenth or early ninth century B.C. It is an ostracon, i.e., an inscription scratched on a piece of pottery. It seems that the name "Goliath" is written on the shard. Whether this is the Goliath of the biblical account is uncertain.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:11 It was Saul's job to accept the challenge on behalf of Israel; instead he was greatly afraid (cf. 15:24) along with everyone else.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:12 An Ephrathite refers to a man from the Judean Ephrathah, around Bethlehem (cf. Ruth 1:2; 4:11; Mic. 5:2).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:18 their thousand. The Hebrew term 'elep usually means "thousand," but in the present context it probably refers to a military unit of undetermined size. See note on 1 Chron. 12:23–37.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:25–26 Have you seen? "You" is plural; the question is not directed toward David. What shall be done? By faith, David grasps Goliath's challenge as directed toward the armies of the living God, hence toward the unseen God himself. To David, this battle is fundamentally spiritual in nature (see vv. 45–47; cf. Eph. 6:12). His father's house refers to a person's extended family, smaller than a tribe or clan, with 50 to 100 persons. Free means exempt from taxes and other obligations to the palace.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:28 Eliab the eldest brother (see v. 12; 20:29) is annoyed with the conduct of his youngest brother at this crucial time. David seemed to him to be just a show-off.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:34 a lion, or a bear. Both lions and bears were common in the Palestine of the Israelite period.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:36 for he has defied the armies of the living God. See note on vv. 25–26. David is confident that God will defend his own honor and defeat Goliath.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:37–39 The LORD … will deliver me. Because of his faith in God, David shows more willingness to do battle on behalf of God's people, and to defend God's honor, than the seasoned warrior Saul.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:43 sticks. Goliath sees David's staff (v. 40) but not the true weapon, the sling. Slings were known as weapons in Egypt from at least the beginning of the second millennium B.C., and slingers are pictured on the reliefs at Nineveh. See also Judg. 20:16. Goliath's gods are probably Dagon (1 Sam. 5:2) and Ashtaroth (31:10).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:44, 46 In Israel, being deprived of burial and exposed to birds and beasts was considered worse than death itself (see 31:8–13; 2 Samuel 21; Ps. 79:2–3; Jer. 7:33; 8:1–2).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:52 men of Israel and Judah. There were divisions between Judah and the rest of Israel from the earliest time of the Davidic monarchy (see 11:8; 15:4; 2 Sam. 19:41–43). "Gai" (ESV footnote) seems to refer to the valley that leads to Gath. For Ekron, see 1 Sam. 5:10.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:54 Jerusalem refers to a suburb in the area around Jerusalem, not the Jebusite walled city that David captured later (see 2 Sam. 5:6–9).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:55–18:5 Saul, Jonathan, and David. At first everyone loves David. Saul takes him into his service; all of Saul's officials (his potential rivals) love him; even members of Saul's own family love him. Jonathan, who had relied on the Lord in his own victory at Michmash, has an especially close relationship with David, despite realizing at some point that David will supplant him as king.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:55–58 whose son is this youth? Even though Saul knew David from before, he would not remember the name of David's father. Saul is asking about David's background—his family and hence his social status or pedigree—so that he may ask his father to let him keep David permanently (see 18:2).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:2 Saul took him—according to "the ways of the king" (8:11). His father's house refers to David's extended family (see 17:25–26).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:3–4 he loved him as his own soul. Jonathan would eventually give up any claim to the throne for David's sake (23:17) and even risk his life (20:30–33) for David; see note on 2 Sam. 1:26. Jonathan … gave it to David. Primogeniture, whereby the firstborn son received the primary leadership role and a double portion of the family inheritance, was a tradition but not an absolute rule. Nevertheless, as the popular eldest son, Jonathan would have been accepted as Saul's heir (1 Sam. 20:31; 23:17; 2 Sam. 1:4). Since to all appearances the dynasty had just begun, however, David was considered even more of a threat to Jonathan than to Saul. No one seems to have viewed Jonathan's gifts to David as a sign of abdication, but Jonathan's actions (perhaps unwittingly) foreshadowed the transfer of the kingship to David. It is not recorded at what point Jonathan realized that David was God's chosen.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:6–30 Saul Becomes David's Enemy. As David's success increases, Saul's jealousy also increases.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:6 Women in Israel celebrated a victory with singing and dancing and instruments, especially with tambourines (Ex. 15:20; Judg. 11:34; see note on 1 Sam. 10:5). Many clay figurines or plaques depicting women playing tambourines have been discovered in Israel, Phoenicia, and Transjordan. They may have had a connection with prayers or praises for victory.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:7–9 sang to one another. I.e., antiphonally or responsively. Because thousands/ten thousands is a common parallelism, the general meaning of the song is, "Saul and David have killed many thousands." Yet naming two distinct people in a number parallelism is unusual, and Saul interpreted it in the worst possible light. Hearing David even mentioned together with him in the same song, Saul begins to grow suspicious of David. The rest of the book is a description of Saul's attempts, more and more openly, to get rid of David.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:12 Saul was afraid of David because the LORD was with him. Cf. v. 14 and 16:18. Saul's primary concern was not the Lord's honor or the people's welfare but himself.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:17 fight the LORD's battles. See 17:47. Saul tried to make ill use of David's zeal for God, hoping that very zeal would lead to his death by the hand of the Philistines. Saul's plotting shows little faith in the Lord, for he thought the Philistines could defeat David even though "the LORD was with him" (18:12).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:18–19 Who am I? Saul used David's humble reply as an excuse to give Merab to another man. For Merab's children, see 2 Sam. 21:8.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:20–21 that she may be a snare for him. Saul again tries to make ill use of someone's love (cf. v. 17)—this time, his daughter's—to destroy David.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:25 The bride-price was normally money, but since David could not afford what was due a king's daughter, the king graciously let him display his valor instead. The Philistines had foreskins because they were "uncircumcised" (see 14:6 and note).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:1–20:42 Saul's Attempts to Kill David. Saul moves from trying to use the Philistines to kill David to actually ordering him killed. Jonathan brings about one reconciliation (and there may have been another one after ch. 19), but David finally flees the court permanently.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:4 Jonathan appeals to Saul the king on the basis of a king's obligation to do justice (see 25:31).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:5 took his life in his hand. I.e., risked his life (see also 28:21; Judg. 12:3).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:9 harmful spirit from the LORD. See note on 16:14.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:10 he struck the spear into the wall. David came close to losing his life, but “the LORD was with him” (see 18:12). David fled and escaped also in 19:12, 18. See note on Acts 9:25.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:13 The image (Hb. terapim) here was of human size and shape; contrast Laban’s smaller household gods in Gen. 31:19, 34–35.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:14 He is sick was apparently a lie, since David had fled. The biblical historians often record such actions without any explicit moral evaluation.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:18 Naioth may refer to a shepherds’ camp. The prophetic fraternities of Israel lived in such settlements.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:20–21 They also prophesied (twice in these verses) probably implies that Saul’s messengers uttered words of prayer and praise to God as well as admonition and rebuke to each other, under the influence of the Spirit of God. Their aggressive intent was humbled before the Lord’s anointed king. See also 2 Kings 1:9–15, where another king sends messengers three times in vain. Some interpreters also see parallels in 1 Kings 8:10–11 and 2 Chron. 5:14.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:23–24 he too prophesied before Samuel. The earlier question of 10:12, “Who is their father?” is answered by Samuel’s presence as “head” over the prophets (cf. 19:20). As three groups of messengers sent by Saul to take David succumb to prophesying (vv. 20–21), the Spirit of God came on Saul to take away his self-control and turn his hostility to prophetic praise. Even the will of the king is subject to the Lord’s will. And he too stripped off his clothes. The aggressive, angry king is humbled, even comically humiliated, before the power of the Lord, against whom he vainly strives. For the second time, background is provided for the old proverb (see note on 10:11–12), “Is Saul also among the prophets?” In the earlier context (10:11–12) Saul was being established as king. In ch. 19, he openly seeks to kill the Lord’s anointed (v. 1), and the throne, like his clothes, is beginning to be stripped from him.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:1 It seems that before Saul had arrived in Naioth, David had come there. After that David fled from Naioth and went back to Gibeah, and things settled down. Then he came … before Jonathan. Hence, it could be interpreted: “Now David had fled from Naioth in Ramah. He came before Jonathan and said. …”

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:3 David vowed again. Perhaps a reference to v. 1, since the triplet of rhetorical questions in v. 1 (“What … ? What … ? What … ?”) may resemble an oath. Another possibility is that David’s earlier oath is unrecorded.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:5 The new moon was the day of the new appearance of the crescent moon in the western sky at sunset, marking the beginning of the month in the lunar calendar. It was one of the principal festivals (see Num. 10:10; 1 Chron. 23:31; Isa. 1:14; Ezek. 46:3; etc.). It seems that the king, as head of the clan, presided over his household’s celebration of the festival. It was often impossible to predict the exact day when the new moon would become visible, so it may be that the feast was held on the first possible day, and if the moon did not appear on that day, the feast was held on the second day as well (1 Sam. 20:27). Hence, David proposed meeting on the “third day.”

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:13 The LORD do so to Jonathan and more also is an oath formula (see note on 3:17). as he has been with my father. The past tense may show that Jonathan recognizes that the Lord has left Saul.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:15 my house. I.e., “my offspring”; see v. 42 and 2 Samuel 9, where David fulfills his “kindness” to Jonathan’s son Mephibosheth.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:22 if I say to the youth, “Look, the arrows are beyond you.” To any other observer, Jonathan would appear to be shouting to the young man who had run to retrieve the arrows. But David, in hiding, would also hear the words and know they had another meaning, a warning to flee from Saul.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:26 Because the feast involved sacrifices, one had to be clean in order to participate.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:29 My brother presumably refers to David’s eldest brother, Eliab (17:28). It reflects a system of family leadership passing to the eldest son; his father Jesse had already retired (see 17:12; cf. Laban’s role in Gen. 24:50).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:30 to the shame of your mother's nakedness. The emphasis is on the disgrace or shame that Saul thinks Jonathan has brought to himself and his family.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:31 neither you nor your kingdom shall be established. This was true, but Jonathan had already come to terms with it (vv. 14–15). Saul took for granted that kingship was hereditary, though there was no divine justification for his doing so.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:37–38 Is not the arrow beyond you? See note on v. 22. Hurry! Be quick! Jonathan seeks to indicate to David the urgency of his warning.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:40–41 as soon as the boy had gone. Jonathan had presumably arranged the signal of the arrow (vv. 20–22) so that David would not be seen, but now he seems to decide that it was safe enough to risk the farewell meeting he longed to have.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:1–26:25 David's Escape from Saul. David begins his life as a fugitive. He moves around from place to place, gathering a group of 400 men, which later increases to 600, sometimes acting as a protector, sometimes fleeing Saul. Saul, on the other hand, is single-minded in his determination to kill David. He destroys the priests of Nob for innocently aiding David, and whenever he gets some firm news of David, he pursues him with his whole army. David continues to respect Saul as king and does not kill him, even when he apparently has God-sent opportunities to do so.

David Flees from Saul

David's growing reputation among the people as a warrior and leader incited Saul's jealousy, and Saul began trying to kill David. David fled from Saul in Gibeah (1) and went to Samuel at Naioth in Ramah (2), but soon Saul sought him there, and David fled back to Jonathan in Gibeah (3). After Jonathan warned David of Saul's determination to kill him, David fled to Ahimelech the priest at Nob (4), where he collected food and Goliath's sword. David briefly sought refuge in the Philistine city of Gath (5) and then set up his headquarters at the cave of Adullam (6), where the ranks of his army swelled to 400 men. In order to protect his parents from harm, David left them in the care of the king of Moab at Mizpeh (7) and went to live in "the stronghold" (8). After some time, David went to the forest of Hereth (9) and then left to rescue nearby Keilah (10) from some Philistine raiding parties. When David heard that Saul was coming to Keilah, he and his growing army of 600 men relocated to the wilderness of Ziph (11). After the men of Ziph betrayed David to Saul, David and his men went to live in the wilderness of Maon (12) and narrowly escaped capture there by Saul. Fleeing the strongholds of Engedi (13), David again evaded capture by Saul and refused an opportunity to take Saul's life. David returned to "the stronghold" (14) and then to the wilderness of Paran (15). While he was there, David was again betrayed to Saul by the men of Ziph and refused another opportunity to take Saul's life. Finally, David and his men sought refuge with Achish, the king of Gath (16).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:1–23:29 David's Escapes. Chapter 21 tells of David's visit to the shrine at Nob, and ch. 22 tells of the disastrous consequences of that visit. Interspersed throughout these chapters are various other stories of David's flight from Saul.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:1 Nob, a city between Jerusalem and Gibeah, apparently became the priestly city after the destruction of Shiloh. Ahimelech was the great-grandson of Eli (see note on 2:27–28). Jesus refers to this incident as being "in the time of Abiathar the high priest" (Mark 2:26). Though Ahimelech's son Abiathar was not yet high priest at that time, the phrase identified him for Jesus' audience by the title he later held. (See note on Mark 2:25–26.)

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:2 The king has charged me. David deceived Ahimelech the priest by implying that he (David) was on official business for the king. David's deception, however, resulted in the deaths of Ahimelech and the priests at Nob (22:9–19; cf. 22:22). Though David normally acted as an upright man, the Bible does not hesitate to record honestly his instances of wrongdoing.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:4–5 Common bread, which might be eaten by anyone, is distinguished from holy bread, which, like sacrifices, could be eaten only by the clean (e.g., Lev. 10:10). Sexual contact was one source of uncleanness (Ex. 19:15; Lev. 15:18), especially on a military expedition (see 2 Sam. 11:9–11). The "holy bread" was the bread of the Presence of Ex. 25:30; Lev. 24:5–9; etc. Ahimelech was bending the rules, since only priests were allowed to eat the bread, and only in a holy place. However, Jesus endorsed Ahimelech's judgment in putting mercy before ceremonial law.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:7 Doeg. Cf. 22:9–19.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:9 ephod. See note on 2:27–28.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:10–15 David apparently had the idea of serving Achish (into my house, v. 15) as an anonymous mercenary, but he was recognized. It is not clear why they called David "king." They may be speaking ironically, mocking David. Or perhaps the Philistines used the word in a somewhat different sense from the Hebrew term; thus here Achish is called "king," though Gath is just a city, not a nation. "Achish" may have been a title or a common name for a Philistine ruler, like "Pharaoh" for an Egyptian king (see 27:2). Psalms 34 and 56 were in response to this occasion.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:14 you see the man is mad. God's protection of David continues, as Achish is convinced by David's pretended insanity.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:1–4 Adullam is halfway between Gath and Bethlehem, and the cave is probably nearby. David's family is in danger from Saul, so they join him. But because life in the wilderness would be too difficult for David's aged parents, he takes them to Moab, where Jesse's grandmother Ruth had come from. It must have been a very difficult journey, presumably involving a descent of about 3,000 feet (914 m) to the Dead Sea, followed by a similar ascent back up to the plateau of Moab.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:2 everyone who was in distress. David was gathering the outcasts of Israel, but under his leadership they became an effective fighting force (cf. 23:5; 27:8), for "the LORD was with him" (18:12).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:5 The stronghold was probably not in Judah, since Gad told David to go into the land of Judah. It may have been Masada, the mesa on the western shore of the Dead Sea, which would be the last holdout of the Jews in A.D. 73. The location of Hereth is unknown. It took faith to go back to Judah despite the danger (23:3).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:6–23 This episode must have occurred soon after 21:1–9, since Ahimelech knows nothing about the break between Saul and David.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:6 Saul was sitting at Gibeah under the tamarisk tree. See note on 14:2–3.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:7–8 David apparently retains his popularity even with Saul's servants (i.e., officials; see 18:5, 22), who, though they remain with Saul, make no attempt to help him against David. As Samuel had predicted (8:12–14), Saul made men commanders and gave them fields and vineyards.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:8 Despite Saul's claims, there is no evidence that Jonathan, who had tried to calm things down, had stirred up David, or that David was lying in wait for Saul. all of you have conspired against me. Saul does not trust in the Lord, and now he trusts no one else either, fearing even his own servants. Saul's jealousy has distorted his vision. Trying to rule without help from the Holy Spirit (see note on 16:14), he is alone.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:9 Doeg's presence in Nob was mentioned in 21:7. He is called the Edomite three times in this episode (22:9, 18, 22; also 21:7), probably to point out that it was a foreigner who betrayed David and killed the priests, something that Saul's Israelite servants refused to do.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:10 In 21:1–9 there is no reference to Ahimelech's consulting the Lord; hence Doeg may be lying here. Saul's suspicions were inflamed by the fact that Doeg referred to an inquiry (often used in military situations), called the bread provisions, and mentioned Goliath's sword. Whom but Saul could David be planning to fight?

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:19 Saul treats Nob like some enemy city that has been "devoted to destruction" (cf. 15:3). Thus, Saul completely destroys the priests' city, though he failed to carry out the ban against the Amalekites (ch. 15). He is destroying part of his own kingdom.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:20 Abiathar, the one priest who escaped the massacre at Nob, will bring the ephod (see note on 21:9) with him when he comes to David (23:6). Thus the true priesthood and priestly counsel move from Saul to David. Abiathar will remain with David as his priest until David's death (2 Sam. 20:25), helping him against Absalom (2 Sam. 15:27–29; 17:15; 19:11). Solomon will eventually banish him (1 Sam. 2:33; 1 Kings 2:26–27).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:1 Keilah was probably a site 3 miles (4.8 km) south of Adullam and east of Gath, and was apparently closer to Philistine territory than Hereth was.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:2 It is not clear how David inquired of the LORD, since Abiathar did not come until David was already in Keilah (v. 6). Perhaps he inquired through the prophet Gad (cf. 22:5), or directly in prayer.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:5 Perhaps the Philistines brought their livestock to forage on the "threshing floors" at Keilah.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:7 God has given him into my hand. Saul apparently still believes that the Lord is on his side instead of seriously considering whether he himself is on the Lord's side. A town that has gates and bars could be a protection, but it could also be a trap (see Judg. 16:2).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:12–13 Will the men of Keilah surrender me? Saul had destroyed Nob on a lesser pretext, so he was certainly willing and presumably able to destroy Keilah. From the standpoint of the men of Keilah, David had brought more trouble than relief for them. The Philistines, after all, had gone after only grain. See the similar situation in 2 Sam. 20:14–22. They will surrender you. Accepting the answer from God, David acted accordingly.

Arose and departed suggests immediate action. They went wherever they could go, trusting in divine guidance each step of the way.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:14–15 Ziph was about 5 miles (8 km) southeast of Hebron, near where the land starts going down toward the Dead Sea. Horesh was probably a grove of trees nearby. God did not give him into his hand. Saul's greater authority and army cannot triumph over God's protection of David.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:16–18 Jonathan visits David during this difficult time. You shall be king over Israel. Though David's position is much worse than in ch. 20, Jonathan sees even more clearly than before that David will be king. Jonathan's trust in the Lord makes him able to accept anything the Lord has in store for him, so he can encourage David in God. They again make a covenant before the LORD (see 20:8, 16). Next to you is second in rank, but not an heir, as with Mordecai (Est. 10:3), or Elkanah, "the next in authority to the king" (2 Chron. 28:7).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:19 The Ziphites were Judahites, but they apparently were not happy to have David and his men in the area. Psalm 54 was in response to this occasion.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:21 for you have had compassion on me. Saul's only interest continues to be himself (see note on 18:12).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:24–28 Maon was about 5 miles (8 km) south of Ziph. The mountain was probably the one now called Mount Kholed. Apparently David was on the eastern slope trying to escape toward the Dead Sea, while Saul on the other slope divided his force into two flanks and sent them around the mountain to the north and south to encircle David. Since the land to the east was open country, he could easily have captured him.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:27 the Philistines have made a raid. The raid was undoubtedly caused by the Lord in order to save David at the last minute, when Saul and his men "were closing in on David and his men" (v. 26).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:29 Engedi is an oasis on the western shore of the Dead Sea, due east of Ziph.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:1–26:25 The three episodes in the next three chapters all have the same theme: David, who as a warrior has already killed many of the Lord's enemies, should not kill for his own advantage but let the Lord act for him. He has already thought through the matter regarding Saul, but in ch. 25 the same issue comes up unexpectedly, and he is about to act in a purely natural way when God sends Abigail to save him.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:1–25:1 David Spares Saul at Engedi. David has an opportunity to kill Saul, but shows his respect for God's appointment of Saul and his patience to wait for God's timing.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:2 Three thousand chosen men is five times as many as David's men (23:13) and suggests Saul's paranoia.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:4 The corner of Saul's robe proves that David could have killed Saul if he had so chosen (see v. 11). The robe was symbolic of royal authority (cf. 18:4).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:6 David respects Saul as the LORD's anointed because Saul is still on the royal throne as king over Israel, even though the Spirit of the Lord has already left him. The Lord had previously anointed Saul as king (10:1), and in David's eyes Saul still retains that status. The anointed of the Lord should not be killed or even cursed (cf. 26:9; Ex. 22:28; 2 Sam. 1:14; 19:21).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:12 May the LORD judge. David believes that Saul should be punished for his wrongdoing, but he is willing to let the Lord avenge him (cf. Deut. 32:35).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:13 Out of the wicked comes wickedness. That is, if David were indeed as wicked as Saul believed him to be, he would certainly have killed Saul.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:18 you have dealt well with me. Saul's only concern continues to be himself (cf. v. 21; also 23:21; and note on 18:12).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:20 I know that you shall surely be king. Saul acknowledges that David is right, but as with the reconciliation in 19:7, his calming down will only be temporary.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:22 but David and his men went up to the stronghold. Despite Saul's acknowledgment in v. 20, David does not trust him.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:1 When Samuel died, all Israel assembled and mourned for him. Scripture nowhere suggests that one should not mourn (see note on 1 Thess. 4:13). in his house. Burial in a house was common in some cultures of that day, though it was unusual in Israel. Perhaps David went to Paran because he feared that Samuel's death might turn Saul against him again.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:2–44 David Marries Abigail. Although Nabal's rudeness provokes David to anger, Nabal's wife Abigail manages to persuade David not to take vengeance. After Nabal dies, David takes Abigail as his wife.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:2–3 "The wilderness of Paran" (v. 1) usually refers to the northeast part of the Sinai peninsula (Num. 10:12). If the "stronghold" of 1 Sam. 24:22 is Masada (see note on 22:5), it would not have been very distant. Apparently David came back soon to the wilderness of Maon, south of Ziph, where he had been previously (23:24). Carmel is not the mountain in the north of Israel but a Judahite town between Ziph and Maon (cf. 15:12).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:3 The name Nabal means "foolish" or "boorish" (see v. 25). It appears to be his real name, but since it is unlikely that someone would be given a name with that meaning, its origin may have been another Hebrew word that is now unknown. Calebite may mean a descendant of Caleb, one of the scouts who was willing to enter Canaan (Num. 14:6–7) and who was given the land around Hebron (Josh. 14:6–14). Thus it would mean that Nabal was prominent both by wealth and by descent. Nabal's wife Abigail is a different woman from David's sister Abigail (1 Chron. 2:16–17), who married a different man, Ithra (Jether) the Ishmaelite (2 Sam. 17:25; 1 Chron. 2:17). David will later marry Nabal's wife Abigail (1 Sam. 25:42).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:4–8 Sheepshearing was a time of festivity (v. 8) as well as work. David addresses Nabal very politely and respectfully. David's sending ten young men suggests that he was asking for a substantial handout, but hardly enough to feed 600 men. David's claim that his men had caused Nabal no problem (v. 7) is backed up by Nabal's servant in vv. 15–16, who even adds that they were helpful. It may be that David is hoping to develop this spontaneous helpfulness into a regular relationship.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:10 Nabal answers David's polite request not just with refusal (which might have been justifiable) but with contempt. Like Saul and Doeg (20:27, 30; 22:8, 9, 13), Nabal seems to use the son of Jesse as a belittling term.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:18 The list of Abigail's gifts resembles (in items and quantity) a list of the food supplied to an Egyptian expeditionary force to Palestine during the reign of Ramses II.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:22 God do so to the enemies of David and more also is a common conditional curse formula (as in 3:17 and 14:44). Male (lit., "one who urinates at a wall") is a stereotyped formula that always refers to the killing of all males of a group (see 1 Kings 14:10; 16:11; 21:21; 2 Kings 9:8).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:23–31 Abigail first calms David's anger. She says, On me alone … be the guilt, i.e., "If you kill anybody, kill me," but then explains why he should not kill her: he can hardly kill a woman traveling alone who humbly presents him with provisions! Then she reasons with him, assuming that he has already agreed with her (the LORD has restrained you; v. 26). In this speech your servant is feminine, i.e., "your maidservant, Abigail." The concern about bloodguilt (v. 26) also appears in vv. 31 (shed blood) and 33, as well as 2 Sam. 16:7–8 and 21:1. The avoidance of bloodguilt should have been of supreme importance even to Saul as the ruler of Israel (see 1 Sam. 19:5), and this was the key issue to David in his relationship with Saul. Whether David spares or kills Nabal has a symbolic aspect, since David is preparing for his future kingship. The bundle of the living (25:29), or "the document of the living," is probably equivalent to "the book of the living" in Ps. 69:28. Like David's men (1 Sam. 24:4), Abigail in 25:30 seems to refer to a promise made by the Lord to David, though there is no explicit reference to it, so it is unknown when or to what audience it was made. There are also suggestions of it in 2 Sam. 3:9–10 and 5:2.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:32–35 David, having calmed down, agrees with Abigail completely and thanks the Lord and her. In his restraint about shedding the blood of fellow Israelites, David shows himself more qualified than Saul to be king. Giving up vengeance meant breaking the vow made in v. 22. If one vows to sin, however, it is better in the eyes of the Lord to break the vow than to commit the sin vowed, a principle that Jephthah (Judg. 11:29–40) and Herod the tetrarch (Matt. 14:7–9) should have heeded. (Of course, making a rash oath in the first place was a sin that needed to be compensated for, as Lev. 5:4–6 requires.)

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:35 Go up in peace to your house. This is more than just a conventional greeting. David is telling Abigail that her household is safe.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:37–38 and his heart died within him. Abigail's words had a devastating effect on Nabal. Whether he had a heart attack or a stroke (he became as a stone), ten days later the LORD struck Nabal, and he died.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:43 Ahinoam is from Jezreel in Judah, near Maon, Ziph, and Carmel. Because she is always mentioned first, David probably married her before he married Abigail. Ahinoam was the mother of David's eldest son, Amnon (2 Sam. 3:2; 13:1–13), and Abigail became the mother of David's little-known second son Chileab (2 Sam. 3:3), also known as Daniel (1 Chron. 3:1). Since no mention is made of him in the later squabbles, he probably died young. These marriages were undoubtedly important in helping David become king at Hebron.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 25:44 David had probably not seen his first wife, Michal, since she helped him escape from Saul in 19:11–17, but he apparently still wanted her as his wife, and perhaps still loved her (cf. 2 Sam. 3:14–16).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 26:1–25 David Spares Saul at the Hill of Hachilah. This chapter resembles ch. 24, but there are too many differences to say that they are different versions of the same event. The location is different, and it is difficult to see how an encampment in the open air could be the same as one that occurred in a cave.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 26:1 The Ziphites are no happier to have David among them now than they were in 23:19.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 26:6 Ahimelech the Hittite is mentioned nowhere else in Scripture; he may have been a hired warrior. Joab's brother Abishai the son of Zeruiah. Zeruiah was David's sister (1 Chron. 2:16–17), so Joab and Abishai were David's nephews. For the family background, see note on 2 Sam. 2:13.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 26:8–9 God has given your enemy into your hand. Abishai uses the same arguments as David's men in 24:4, and David again refuses, adding that God will surely strike Saul instead, a lesson he perhaps learned from the death of Nabal (25:39).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 26:11–12 “take now the spear. …” So David took the spear. The narrator can say that David took the spear because he was the one who ordered it to be taken. Similarly, Abiathar told David that Saul had killed the priests (22:21), although Doeg did the actual killing.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 26:16 you deserve to die, because you have not kept watch over your lord. The “you’s” are all plural here in Hebrew—David is accusing Saul’s men collectively.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 26:19–20 As in 10:1, heritage seems to refer both to Israel as the inherited land and to the people as the covenant community (see also 2 Sam. 14:16; 20:19; 21:3). Chasing David away from the Lord’s heritage so that he may have no share of it and trying to force him to serve other gods is a capital offense against the Lord of Israel, who owns the land of Israel and rules his people Israel through his representative, the king. Those who commit this sin should be cursed before the Lord. This is what David is conveying to Saul, the king of Israel (1 Sam. 26:20). David seems to be near the end of his endurance. “Serve other gods” reflects the common Near Eastern idea that a god could be worshiped only on its own soil (2 Kings 5:17) and also perhaps the idea that one worships the god of the people among whom one lives. This is not David’s own view, but his report of the views of others who were saying this. First and Second Samuel do not envisage a limitation to the power of the Lord. Certainly God is portrayed as being able to work in Philistia (1 Samuel 4–6), and God even seems to be directing the moves of the Philistine rulers (23:27; 29:4). When David is actually in Philistia, he does in fact worship the Lord (30:6–8; see also note on 29:6). Partridge is literally a “calling [bird].” Abner had asked who was “calling” the king (26:14), so David wryly compares himself to “the caller.”

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 27:1–30:31 David in Philistia. David and his men finally gain some stability by going to Philistia and serving Achish of Gath, though they manage to avoid attacking Israel. Yet when the Philistines mobilize for a massive attack on Saul’s army in the Jezreel Valley, it seems that David must become an enemy of his own people. The Philistine lords do not trust him in battle, however, so he and his men go back to their city of Ziklag (30:1), only to find that it has been destroyed by the Amalekites. David manages to pursue and destroy the raiders and gain much spoil, which he shares with the cities of Judah. Chapter 28, the story of Saul and the medium of En-dor, tells how Saul, faced with the Philistine invasion, seeks advice from Samuel through divination but receives only a prophecy of his own death.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 27:1–12 David and Achish. Here, as in 21:10, David goes to Gath as a mercenary. Whereas before he went anonymously and alone, here he goes in his own name, accompanied by his 600 men and their families, presumably having first negotiated their status with Achish. As he said in 26:19, he has finally concluded that he can no longer stay in Israel. The difficulties experienced by the families of the men (27:3) are also probably an important reason for his move. Whether this Achish is the Achish of 21:10 is not certain; "Achish" may have been a title. But if it is the same person, he is probably more impressed by David's resourcefulness than angry at the previous deception. While David stayed with the technically advanced Philistines, he may have learned some useful things (such as the military system). Though he is the rightful king, he must remain a while longer in exile from Israel.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 27:5 David does not mean a specific location with the term a place. Asking a lord for land was not an unusual practice. The feudal practice of giving land to the servants of the king was widespread in Israel (22:7) as well as among the Philistines. David probably pointed out to Achish that he and his men were uncultured Israelites; as fugitives, they were used to rough conditions and thus unsuited to life in the sophisticated and probably crowded capital. His real motive, however, was probably to get away from Gath so that he could act freely, without interference.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 27:6 The exact location of Ziklag, part of the Negeb (Josh. 15:31), is unknown (see note on 1 Sam. 30:9). The Negeb was comparatively distant from Gath, but the nearer cities probably belonged to other vassals of Achish, a fact that David must have been well aware of when he made his request. to this day. See Introduction: Date.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 27:8 The Geshurites are those mentioned as living near the Philistines (Josh. 13:2), not the Geshurites living near Bashan (Josh. 13:11). The Girzites are not mentioned elsewhere in the Bible. The Amalekites of 1 Samuel 15 and 30 were located to the south, toward the Egyptian border.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 27:10 The Negeb corresponds to today's northern Negev, i.e., the district east and west of Beersheba and north of Kadesh-barnea. David would tell Achish that he attacked Judahite, Jerahmeelite, or Kenite settlements in the area. The Jerahmeelites and Kenites are mentioned in 30:29 and seem to have been friendly to Israel. For the Kenites, see note on 15:6.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 27:12 always be my servant. Lit., "be my eternal servant," meaning a permanent servant or vassal. Cf. Deut. 15:17; Job 41:4.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:1–2 The Philistines Gather for War. After David has been with Achish for over a year, the Philistines decide on a major attack on Israel involving the forces of all five of their cities. The aim is apparently to gain control over the northern Jezreel Valley, a wide, agriculturally rich plain that goes as far east as the Jordan River. you and your men are to go out with me. David, as a vassal of Achish, is naturally expected to participate in the attack. Bodyguard is a specific position, while "my servant" (27:12) refers to David's status as the king's subject. The story of the Philistine attack on Israel resumes at 29:1.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:3–25 The Medium of En-dor. Saul faces overwhelming odds in the impending Philistine invasion. In his extremity he apparently decides that the only one who can guide him is the prophet who told him that he had been chosen by God as king to save Israel from its enemies (10:1). Contact with the dead was forbidden by the Lord (see note on 28:3–4), as Saul well knows (v. 3), but he goes ahead anyway. This passage should not be used as an argument for having séances. Though it suggests that in some circumstances a medium may be able to contact the dead, it stresses the wrongness of the practice. Furthermore, the only message from the dead Samuel, besides a repetition of the message of Saul's rejection, was that Saul and his sons would die. The Chronicler specifically mentions this incident as one reason for Saul's death: "So Saul died for his breach of faith … in that he did not keep the command of the LORD, and also consulted a medium, seeking guidance. He did not seek guidance from the LORD" (1 Chron. 10:13–14).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:3–4 Verse 3 gives the information necessary to understand the rest of this chapter, reminding the reader that Samuel was dead (cf. 25:1) and stating that Saul had driven out mediums (cf. 28:9). Verse 4 jumps chronologically to a point following ch. 29; here, the Philistines are already at Shunem, a city on the opposite (north) side of the Jezreel Valley from Mount Gilboa. The Mosaic laws forbade as abominations mediums and necromancers, who consult the spirits of the dead, as well as other forms of divination (Lev. 19:31; 20:6, 27; Deut. 18:10–12; see also 1 Sam. 15:23). Necromancy and other forms of divination were common throughout the ancient Near East, and many divination texts have been discovered; biblical religion is the only one known to forbid it. Such religious practices were widespread in ancient Canaan (Deut. 18:10–12), and they continued to be a problem throughout the Israelite monarchy (e.g., 2 Kings 21:6; 23:24; Isa. 8:19). By driving out the mediums, Saul was certainly trying to be faithful to the Lord, in his own way. The Hebrew word rendered "medium" in 1 Sam. 28:3, 9 ('ob) can mean (1) "the spirit of a dead person" in general (as in v. 8); (2) "necromancy," i.e., divining by an 'ob; or (3) "a medium," i.e., one who practices necromancy. In v. 7, "a woman who is a medium" is literally "a woman who has an 'ob." The term "necromancers" (yidde 'oni), which always appears with "mediums," is literally "(all-) knowing"; it refers to the practice of necromancy or to its practitioner, but not to the spirit of the dead.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:6 By dreams, or by Urim, or by prophets were the allowable means of determining the will of the Lord. The LORD did not answer because he had rejected Saul from being king (15:23).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:7 En-dor was 4.5 miles (7.2 km) northeast of Shunem, where the Philistines were encamped, so it was on the other side of the enemy from Saul.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:8 Night was the appropriate time for consulting the spirits of the dead. Saul's fasting (v. 20) may also have been in preparation for the ceremony.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:11 There is no description of the wording used to call up Samuel from the dead. Perhaps the writer did not even want to mention the actual deed.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:12 she cried out with a loud voice. Perhaps Samuel's appearance surprised the woman and she thought something was happening outside her control. Another possibility is that her previous activities had called up only deceptive demonic imitations of a dead person's spirit, but this time she suddenly realized that something much more real was happening. Readers are not told how the woman realized who Saul was. Perhaps the spirit called his name as he came up.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:13–14 A god is literally “gods” with a plural verbal form, so not “God,” which is a plural noun but takes a singular verb. This term is used of the spirits of the dead in ancient Near Eastern texts. The Moabite “gods” may also have been the spirits of the dead (see Num. 25:2; Ps. 106:28). Saul, however, is interested in Samuel as a person and asks about his (singular) appearance. The robe was Samuel’s characteristic garment (1 Sam. 15:27).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:15–19 Then Samuel said to Saul. The character of this event has long been debated—whether the spirit was really Samuel, or how the medium could command the spirit of a holy prophet. As far as the narrator is concerned, this really is the spirit of the dead prophet Samuel. He is called “Samuel” in vv. 15–16. He speaks much as he had spoken to Saul during his lifetime (cf. vv. 16–18 with 15:18, 26–28: in both places, Samuel describes David as Saul’s “neighbor”). He uses the name of the LORD seven times, and adds the true prophecy that Saul and his sons will die. It is hard to think that the narrator thought this was a deceptive illusion performed by the woman or some demonic spirit deceiving Saul. An evil spirit would not deliver a true prophecy or true words to Saul, as Samuel does in 28:16–19. That the woman’s actions brought Samuel up is implied by v. 15, Why have you disturbed me? So whatever the limits on a medium’s power normally were, in this case the Lord let her rouse the spirit of Samuel himself.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:19 Be with me may simply mean that Saul will die, but some think it implies more, that Saul’s spirit will join Samuel’s in the place of the dead (perhaps even among those whose sins are forgiven). In 2 Sam. 12:23, David says he will eventually go to his dead son. Sometimes the term “Sheol” refers to the place of the dead, which was pictured as being below the earth (the spirit of Samuel is “brought up”; cf. 1 Sam. 28:8, 13, 15). In such cases, no distinction is made between the pious and the wicked. In other cases, a distinction is crucial (see note on Ps. 49:15).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:24 A fattened calf is a stall-fed calf that was being prepared for eating, rather than a pasture-fed calf.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 28:25 Saul went away, back to Gilboa. Saul apparently accepted that his death was the unalterable word of the Lord; he does not try to escape the battle on the next day.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 29:1–11 The Philistine Rulers Reject David. Although Achish of Gath trusts David, the other Philistine commanders suspect that he would betray them, and they insist that he be sent home. In God's providence, David is thus spared the occasion to shed Israelite blood.

David Recovers Plunder from the Amalekites

As David and his men sought refuge in Philistia, the Philistines gathered their forces at Aphek to attack the Israelites. The Philistine commanders, skeptical of David's loyalty in battle against his fellow Israelites, sent him to his home in Ziklag. When David arrived, he discovered that the Amalekites had raided the Negeb and burned Ziklag to the ground, carrying away many captives and belongings. David and his men pursued them, crossing the Besor Brook and attacking the Amalekites. He recovered all that had been taken, returned to Ziklag, and sent a portion of the spoils to the leaders of towns in the region (the locations of Bethel, Siphmoth, Racal, and Athach are unknown).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 29:1 The story backtracks to right after 28:2, partially repeating 28:1. Here the Philistines are still at their gathering point in Aphek, while in 28:4 they had already advanced to Shunem. Aphek was also where the Philistines had camped in 4:1 (see maps, The Ark's Travels in 1 Samuel 3–7 and David Recovers Plunder from the Amalekites). Because it was at the northernmost point in the Philistine coastal plain, it was a strategic place to gather for a general attack on the Jezreel Valley. The spring is probably the spring of Harod, southeast of the city of Jezreel at the foot of Mount Gilboa; here Gideon encamped against the Midianites (Judg. 7:1).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 29:2–3 The lords of the Philistines are the rulers of the five Philistine cities (see 6:4, 16–18). These seranim (Hb.) in 29:2, 6, and 7 seem to be the same as the commanders, or "rulers" (Hb. sarim; plural of sar), in vv. 3, 4, and 9. An inscription from Ekron gives evidence that sar was the title of the ruler of a Philistine city.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 29:4 Unlike Achish, the other Philistine commanders mistrusted David, fearing that he would seek to regain the favor of Saul (his lord) by presenting to him the heads of the men here (probably meaning "our heads"). One can see the hand of the Lord working even through the Philistine commanders to keep David from fighting the Lord's people, which he had managed to avoid doing so far. That would probably have shut him off from being accepted by Israel as king (27:8–12) and would have been a terrible evil (see note on 25:32–35).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 29:6 It seems strange that Achish the Philistine ruler would say "as the LORD lives." Yet to polytheistic people, to make an oath in the name of gods other than the gods they normally serve is not unthinkable. So this Philistine king may well have sworn to David by the God David worshiped.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 29:8 fight against the enemies of my lord the king. One can suspect ambiguity here as to the identity of "my lord the king." On the surface the phrase refers to Achish, but it is possible David was actually referring to Saul, whose enemies were the Philistines. Readers are not told what David was thinking, but the commanders may have been wise.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 29:11 From here, the action splits. Chapter 30 follows David's actions, while ch. 31 is a continuation of Saul's actions in 28:5–25 and the Philistines' actions in ch. 29. The Philistines went up to Jezreel by way of Shunem (cf. 28:4, then ch. 31). Saul's visit to the medium (28:5–25) occurred within this location. Jezreel is at the northwest foot of Mount Gilboa and guards the eastern entrance to the Jezreel Valley.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:1–31 Amalekite Raid on Ziklag and David's Victory. David does the kingly work of delivering the people of Ziklag from their Amalekite captors, and of leading his own followers in dividing the spoil generously.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:1 the third day. It was about 50 miles (81 km) from Aphek to Ziklag. The Amalekites surely knew that the bulk of the armies of Philistia and Judah (v. 14) had gone to the battle in the north, and they took advantage of that fact.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:6 But David strengthened himself in the LORD his God, and God comforts and strengthens him. Rather than despairing, David turns to God in prayer and worship (cf. Ps. 56:3–4).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:7 As in 23:9–10, David has Abiathar inquire of the Lord, using the sacred lots kept in the ephod. The Lord is still guiding David (30:8).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:9 If the hypothesis is correct that Ziklag was Tel esh-Sheriah and the brook Besor was Wadi Ghazzeh, this takes place about 12 miles (19 km) southwest of Ziklag.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:11–12 Bread here may refer simply to bread, or it may be a general term for food, so that what they specifically gave the Egyptian is stated in the next sentence. The sugar of the dried fruit would have had an immediate effect.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:14 “Cherethites” seems to be a synonym for “Philistines” in Ezek. 25:16 and Zeph. 2:5. Since the Philistines are known to be of Aegean origin, the word probably derived from “Cretan.” So the Negeb of the Cherethites is probably southern Philistia. The Negeb of Caleb is the area south of Hebron.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:17 The word translated twilight usually means “dusk” but occasionally it can also mean “dawn,” and the sense here is disputed. If it means “dawn,” David and his men probably waited until morning to attack in order to avoid killing their own people or letting the Amalekites escape, and the battle continued during the daylight hours until sunset, which would be considered the start of the next day (see note on 14:28). The singular subject David in 30:17–20 stresses that this was David’s personal victory.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:19 Nothing was missing. Under God’s direction (vv. 8, 23), David, who would soon be king, rescued every one of the people who had sided with him, and for whom he was responsible.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:22 Worthless is also used variously to describe a supposedly drunken woman (1:16), Eli’s sons (2:12), the men who opposed Saul (10:27), Nabal (25:25), David as described by Shimei (2 Sam. 16:7), and the rebel Sheba (2 Sam. 20:1).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:24 They shall share alike. David, who will rule as a righteous king, generously distributes the spoils of victory to all who sided with him, and even gives gifts to others (vv. 26–31) who will soon be his subjects.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:25 Rule (Hb. mishpat) is translated elsewhere as “custom” (2:13), “ways” (8:11), and “rights and duties” (10:25).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 30:26–31 See note on v. 24. Hebron was the major city in the area. Bethel is not the famous Bethel (7:16; 10:3; 13:2) but an otherwise unknown city in Judah. Jattir and Eshtemoa are Levitical cities in the Judean hills (Josh. 15:48, 50; 21:14); Bor-ashan is probably Ashan in the Shephelah (Josh. 19:7). The locations of the other places are uncertain. The position of Hebron at the end of the list points toward David’s going to Hebron and being made king (2 Sam. 2:4).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 31:1–13 Deaths of Saul and Jonathan. The army of Israel is completely defeated, Saul’s sons are killed, Saul kills himself to avoid capture, and the Philistines take over the region. But the men of Jabesh-gilead, the city that Saul saved at the beginning of his reign, bravely rescue the bodies of Saul and his sons from dishonor.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 31:1 The events of this chapter directly follow those of chs. 28 and 29. The Philistines have left their camp at Shunem and are attacking the Israelite army on Mount Gilboa (cf. 28:4; see map).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 31:4 Saul took his own sword and fell upon it. See note on 2 Sam. 1:6–10 for the claim that Saul did not commit suicide but rather was killed by an Amalekite.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 31:6 As Samuel’s spirit had said (cf. 28:19), the Lord gave Israel into the hands of the Philistines, and Saul and his sons joined the dead. Truly, “Your glory, O Israel, is slain on your high places!” (2 Sam. 1:19).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 31:7 The other side of the valley is the north side of the Jezreel Valley.

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 31:10 Beth-shan is at the junction of the north-south road along the Jordan Valley and the road from Gilead to the Jezreel Valley. It was occupied almost continuously until the early Arab period. A temple of the eleventh century B.C. to the fertility goddess Anit has been discovered there. This may have been the temple referred to here, because Ashtaroth can refer to goddesses in general (see note on 7:3–4). During the Iron Age, Beth-shan was occupied by the Philistines. Excavations at the site have confirmed this settlement by the recovery of vast amounts of Philistine pottery, weapons, tools, and jewelry dating to the Iron I and II periods (1200–586 B.C.).

1 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 31:11–13 Saul had saved Jabesh-gilead at the beginning of his reign (ch. 11), a fact that the men of the city remembered. They cross the Jordan and go about 10 miles (16 km) to Beth-shan. The burning of bodies was usually considered desecration, but here the purpose may have been to keep them from further dishonor. bones. Even after lengthy burning, large bones would remain. David later reburied the bones (2 Sam. 21:12–14).

The Battle at Mount Gilboa

c. 1010 B.C.

Philistine forces advanced to Shunem from Aphek and prepared to attack the Israelites near their camp in Jezreel. Saul, fearing the great army that faced him, slipped away during the night to consult a medium at En-dor in order to seek the counsel of the deceased Samuel. When the Philistines attacked the next morning, the Israelites retreated up the slopes of Mount Gilboa. Saul and three of his sons were killed, and the Philistines mocked Israel by hanging their bodies on the wall of Beth-shean. Later, men from Jabesh-gilead traveled through the night and recovered the bodies.

David Hears of Saul's Death

2 SAMUEL 1 [†]After the death of Saul, when David had returned [a] from striking down the Amalekites, David remained two days in Ziklag. [2]And on the third day, behold, [b] a man came from Saul's camp, [c] with his clothes torn and dirt on his head. And when he came to David, [d] he fell to the ground and paid homage. [3]David said to him, "Where do you come from?" And he said to him, "I have escaped from the camp of Israel." [4]And David said to him, [e] "How did it go? Tell me." And he answered, "The people fled from the battle, and also many of the people have fallen and are dead, and Saul and his son Jonathan are also dead." [5]Then David said to the young man who told him, "How do you know that Saul and his son Jonathan are dead?" [6][†]And the young man who told him said, [f] "By chance I happened to be on Mount Gilboa, and there was Saul leaning on his spear, and behold, the chariots and the horsemen were close upon him. [7]And when he looked behind him, he saw me, and called to me. And I answered, 'Here I am.' [8]And he said to me, 'Who are you?' I answered him, 'I am an Amalekite.' [9]And he said to me, [g] 'Stand beside me and kill me, for anguish has seized me, and yet my life still lingers.' [10]So I stood beside him and killed him, because I was sure that he could not live after he had fallen. [h] And I took the crown that was on his head and the armlet that was on his arm, and I have brought them here to my lord."

[11]Then David took hold of his clothes and [i] tore them, and so did all the men who were with him. [12][†]And they mourned and wept [j] and fasted until evening for Saul and for Jonathan his son and for the people of the LORD and for the house of Israel, because they had fallen by the sword. [13]And David said to the young man who told him, "Where do you come from?" And he answered, "I am the son of a sojourner, an Amalekite." [14][†]David said to him, "How is it you were not [k] afraid to put out your hand to destroy [l] the LORD's anointed?" [15][†]Then [m] David called one of the young men and said, "Go, execute him." And he struck him down so that he died. [16][†]And

David said to him, [n]“Your blood be on your head, for your own mouth has testified against you, saying, ‘I have killed [o]the LORD’s anointed.’”

David’s Lament for Saul and Jonathan

17[†]And David [p]lamented with this lamentation over Saul and Jonathan his son, 18[†]and he said it [1] should be taught to the people of Judah; behold, it is written in [q]the Book of Jashar. [2] He said:

19[†] “Your glory, O Israel, is slain on your high places!
[r]How the mighty have fallen!
20[†] [s]Tell it not in Gath,
[t]publish it not in the streets of Ashkelon,
[u]lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of [v]the uncircumcised exult.

21[†] [w]“You mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew or rain upon you,
nor fields of offerings! [3]
For there the shield of the mighty was defiled, the shield of Saul, not [x]anointed with oil.

22[†] “From the blood of the slain,
from the fat of the mighty,
[y]the bow of Jonathan turned not back, and the sword of Saul returned not empty.

23[^][†] “Saul and Jonathan, beloved and lovely!
In life and in death they were not divided;
they were [z]swifter than eagles;
they were [a]stronger than lions.

24[†] “You daughters of Israel, weep over Saul, who clothed you luxuriously in scarlet,
[b]who put ornaments of gold on your apparel.

25 [c]“How the mighty have fallen in the midst of the battle!

“Jonathan lies slain on your high places.
26[‡] I am distressed for you, my brother Jonathan;
very pleasant have you been to me;
[d]your love to me was extraordinary, surpassing the love of women.

27 [c]“How the mighty have fallen, and the weapons of war perished!”

David Anointed King of Judah

2 SAMUEL 2 [‡]After this David [e]inquired of the LORD, “Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah?” And the LORD said to him, “Go up.” David said, “To which shall I go up?” And he said, “To [f]Hebron.” 2So David went up there, and [g]his two wives also, Ahinoam of Jezreel and Abigail the widow of Nabal of Carmel. 3And David brought up [h]his men who were with him, everyone with his household, and they lived in the towns of Hebron. 4[‡]And the men of Judah came, and there they anointed David [i]king over the house of Judah.

When they told David, [j]“It was the men of Jabesh-gilead who buried Saul,” 5David sent messengers to the men of Jabesh-gilead and said to them, [k]“May you be blessed by the LORD, because you showed this loyalty to Saul your lord and buried him. 6Now may the LORD show steadfast love and faithfulness to you. And I will do good to you because you have done this thing. 7Now therefore let your hands be strong, and be valiant, for Saul your lord is dead, and [i]the house of Judah has anointed me king over them.”

Ish-bosheth Made King of Israel

8[‡]But [l]Abner the son of Ner, commander of Saul’s army, took Ish-bosheth the son of Saul and brought him over to [m]Mahanaim, 9and he made him king over Gilead and the Ashurites and Jezreel and Ephraim and Benjamin and all Israel. [10][^][†]Ish-bosheth, Saul's son, was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and he reigned two years. But the house of Judah followed David. [11] [n] And the time that David was king in Hebron over [i] the house of Judah was seven years and six months.

The Battle of Gibeon

[12][†]Abner the son of Ner, and the servants of Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, went out from Mahanaim to Gibeon. [13][†]And Joab the son of Zeruiah and the servants of David went out and met them at [o] the pool of Gibeon. And they sat down, the one on the one side of the pool, and the other on the other side of the pool. [14]And Abner said to Joab, "Let the young men arise and compete before us." And Joab said, "Let them arise." [15]Then they arose and passed over by number, twelve for Benjamin and Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, and twelve of the servants of David. [16]And each caught his opponent by the head and thrust his sword in his opponent's side, so they fell down together. Therefore that place was called Helkath-hazzurim, [1] which is at Gibeon. [17][†]And the battle was very fierce that day. And Abner and the men of Israel were beaten before the servants of David.

[18]And the [p] three sons of Zeruiah were there, Joab, Abishai, and Asahel. Now Asahel was [q] as swift of foot as a wild gazelle. [19][†]And Asahel pursued Abner, and as he went, he turned neither to the right hand nor to the left from following Abner. [20]Then Abner looked behind him and said, "Is it you, Asahel?" And he answered, "It is I." [21]Abner said to him, "Turn aside to your right hand or to your left, and seize one of the young men and take his spoil." But Asahel would not turn aside from following him. [22]And Abner said again to Asahel, "Turn aside from following me. Why should I strike you to the ground? How then could I lift up my face to your brother Joab?" [23][†]But he refused to turn aside. Therefore Abner struck him [r] in the stomach with the butt of his spear, so that the spear came out at his back. And he fell there and died where he was. And all who came to the place where Asahel had fallen and died, stood still.

[24]But Joab and Abishai pursued Abner. And as the sun was going down they came to the hill of Ammah, which lies before Giah on the way to the wilderness of Gibeon. [25]And the people of Benjamin gathered themselves together behind Abner and became one group and took their stand on the top of a hill. [26]Then Abner called to Joab, “Shall the sword devour forever? Do you not know that the end will be bitter? How long will it be before you tell your people to turn from the pursuit of their brothers?” [27]And Joab said, “As God lives, if [s]you had not spoken, surely the men would not have given up the pursuit of their brothers until the morning.” [28][†]So Joab blew the trumpet, and all the men stopped and pursued Israel no more, nor did they fight anymore.

[29][†]And Abner and his men went all that night through [t]the Arabah. They crossed the Jordan, and marching the whole morning, they came to [u]Mahanaim. [30]Joab returned from the pursuit of Abner. And when he had gathered all the people together, there were missing from David’s servants nineteen men besides Asahel. [31]But the servants of David had struck down of Benjamin 360 of Abner’s men. [32]And they took up Asahel and buried him in the tomb of his father, which was at Bethlehem. And Joab and his men marched all night, and the day broke upon them at Hebron.

Abner Joins David

2 SAMUEL 3 [†]There was a long war between the house of Saul and the house of David. And David grew stronger and stronger, while the house of Saul became weaker and weaker.

[2][†] [v]And sons were born to David at Hebron: his firstborn was Amnon, of [w]Ahinoam of Jezreel; [3]and his second, Chileab, of [w]Abigail the widow of Nabal of Carmel; and the third, Absalom the son of Maacah [x]the daughter of Talmai king of [y]Geshur; [4]and the fourth, [z]Adonijah the son of Haggith; and the fifth, Shephatiah the son of Abital; [5]and the sixth, Ithream, of Eglah, David’s wife. These were born to David in Hebron.

[6][†]While there was war between the house of Saul and the house of David, Abner was making himself strong in the house of Saul. [7][†]Now Saul had a concubine whose name was [a]Rizpah, the daughter of Aiah. And Ish-bosheth said to Abner, [b]“Why have you gone in to my father’s concubine?” [8]Then Abner was very angry over the words of Ish-bosheth and said, “Am I [c]a dog’s head of Judah? To this day I keep showing steadfast love to the house of Saul your father, to his brothers, and to his friends, and have not given you into the hand of David. And yet you charge me today with a fault concerning a woman. [9][†] [d]God do so to Abner and more also, if I do not accomplish for David [e]what the LORD has sworn to him, [10]to transfer the kingdom from the house of Saul and set up the throne of David over Israel and over Judah, [f]from Dan to Beersheba." [11]And Ish-bosheth could not answer Abner another word, because he feared him.

[12][†]And Abner sent messengers to David on his behalf, [1] saying, "To whom does the land belong? Make your covenant with me, and behold, my hand shall be with you to bring over all Israel to you." [13]And he said, "Good; I will make a covenant with you. But one thing I require of you; that is, [g]you shall not see my face unless you first bring [h]Michal, Saul's daughter, when you come to see my face." [14]Then David sent messengers to Ish-bosheth, Saul's son, saying, "Give me my wife Michal, [i]for whom I paid the bridal price of a hundred foreskins of the Philistines." [15]And Ish-bosheth sent and took her from her husband Paltiel the son of Laish. [16]But her husband went with her, weeping after her all the way to [j]Bahurim. Then Abner said to him, "Go, return." And he returned.

[17][†]And Abner conferred with the elders of Israel, saying, "For some time past you have been seeking David as king over you. [18]Now then bring it about, [k]for the LORD has promised David, saying, 'By the hand of my servant David I will save my people Israel from the hand of the Philistines, and from the hand of all their enemies.'" [19]Abner also spoke to [l]Benjamin. And then Abner went to tell David at Hebron all that Israel and the whole house of Benjamin thought good to do.

[20]When Abner came with twenty men to David at Hebron, David made a feast for Abner and the men who were with him. [21]And Abner said to David, "I will arise and go and [m]will gather all Israel to my lord the king, that they may make a covenant with you, and that you may [n]reign over all that your heart desires." So David sent Abner away, and he went in peace.

[22][†]Just then the servants of David arrived with Joab from a raid, bringing much spoil with them. But Abner was not with David at Hebron, for he had sent him away, and he had gone in peace. [23]When Joab and all the army that was with him came, it was told Joab, "Abner the son of Ner came to the king, and he has let him go, and he has gone in peace." [24]Then Joab went to the king and said, “What have you done? Behold, Abner came to you. Why is it that you have sent him away, so that he is gone? [25][‡]You know that Abner the son of Ner came to deceive you and to know [o]your going out and your coming in, and to know all that you are doing.”

Joab Murders Abner

[26][‡]When Joab came out from David’s presence, he sent messengers after Abner, and they brought him back from the cistern of Sirah. But David did not know about it. [27][‡]And when Abner returned to Hebron, Joab took him aside into the midst of the gate to speak with him privately, [p]and there he struck him [q]in the stomach, so that he died, for the blood of Asahel his brother. [28][‡]Afterward, when David heard of it, he said, “I and my kingdom are forever guiltless before the Lord for the blood of Abner the son of Ner. [29][‡] [r]May it fall upon the head of Joab and upon all his father’s house, and may the house of Joab never be without [s]one who has a discharge or who is [t]leprous or who holds a spindle or who falls by the sword or who lacks bread!” [30]So Joab and Abishai his brother killed Abner, because [u]he had put their brother Asahel to death in the battle at Gibeon.

David Mourns Abner

[31]Then David said to Joab and to all the people who were with him, [v]“Tear your clothes and [w]put on sackcloth and mourn before Abner.” And King David followed the bier. [32]They buried Abner at Hebron. And the king lifted up his voice and wept at the grave of Abner, and all the people wept. [33]And the king [x]lamented for Abner, saying, [y]“Should Abner die [z]as a fool dies?

[34] Your hands were not bound;
your feet were not fettered;
as one falls before the wicked
you have fallen.”

And all the people wept again over him. [35]Then all the people came [a]to persuade David to eat bread while it was yet day. But David swore, saying,

[b]“God do so to me and more also, if I taste bread or anything else [c]till the sun goes down!” [36][†]And all the people took notice of it, and it pleased them, as everything that the king did pleased all the people. [37][^]So all the people and all Israel understood that day that it had not been the king’s will to put to death Abner the son of Ner. [38]And the king said to his servants, “Do you not know that a prince and a great man has fallen this day in Israel? [39]And I was gentle today, though anointed king. [d]These men, the sons of Zeruiah, are more severe than I. [e]The LORD repay the evildoer according to his wickedness!”

Ish-bosheth Murdered

2 SAMUEL 4 [†]When Ish-bosheth, Saul’s son, heard that Abner had died at Hebron, [f]his courage failed, and all Israel was dismayed. [2][†]Now Saul’s son had two men who were captains of raiding bands; the name of the one was Baanah, and the name of the other Rechab, sons of Rimmon a man of Benjamin from Beeroth ([g]for Beeroth also is counted part of Benjamin; [3][h]the Beerothites fled [i]to Gittaim and have been sojourners there to this day).

[4][†][j]Jonathan, the son of Saul, had a son who was crippled in his feet. He was five years old when the news about Saul and Jonathan [k]came from Jezreel, and his nurse took him up and fled, and as she fled in her haste, he fell and became lame. And his name was Mephibosheth.

[5]Now the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, Rechab and Baanah, set out, and about the heat of the day they came to the house of Ish-bosheth as he was taking his noonday rest. [6]And they came into the midst of the house as if to get wheat, and they stabbed him [l]in the stomach. Then Rechab and Baanah his brother escaped. [1] [7][†]When they came into the house, as he lay on his bed in his bedroom, they struck him and put him to death and beheaded him. They took his head and went by the way of [m]the Arabah all night, [8][†]and brought the head of Ish-bosheth to David at Hebron. And they said to the king, “Here is the head of Ish-bosheth, the son of Saul, your enemy, [n]who sought your life. The LORD has avenged my lord the king this day on Saul and on his offspring.” [9]But David answered Rechab and Baanah his brother, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, [o]“As the LORD lives, [p] who has redeemed my life out of every adversity, [10][†] [q] when one told me, ‘Behold, Saul is dead,’ and thought he was bringing good news, [r] I seized him and killed him at Ziklag, which was the reward I gave him for his news. [11][^]How much more, when wicked men have killed a righteous man in his own house on his bed, shall I not now [s] require his blood at your hand and destroy you from the earth?” [12][†]And David commanded his young men, and they killed them and cut off their hands and feet and hanged them beside the pool at Hebron. But they took the head of Ish-bosheth and buried it [t] in the tomb of Abner at Hebron.

David Anointed King of Israel

2 SAMUEL 5 [†]Then all the tribes of Israel [u] came to David at Hebron and said, “Behold, [v] we are your bone and flesh. [2][^]In times past, when Saul was king over us, [w] it was you who led out and brought in Israel. And the Lord said to you, [x] ‘You shall be shepherd of my people Israel, and you shall be prince [1] over Israel.’” [3]So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron, [y] and King David made a covenant with them at Hebron [z] before the Lord, and they anointed David king over Israel. [4]David was thirty years old when he began to reign, and [a] he reigned forty years. [5] [a] At Hebron he reigned over Judah [b] seven years and six months, and at Jerusalem he reigned over all Israel and Judah thirty-three years. [2]

[6][†] [c] And the king and his men went to Jerusalem [d] against the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land, who said to David, “You will not come in here, but the blind and the lame will ward you off”—thinking, “David cannot come in here.” [7]Nevertheless, David took the stronghold of Zion, [e] that is, the city of David. [8][†]And David said on that day, “Whoever would strike the Jebusites, let him get up the water shaft to attack ‘the lame and the blind,’ who are hated by David’s soul.” Therefore it is said, “The blind and the lame shall not come into the house.” [9][†]And David lived in the stronghold and called it [e] the city of David. And David built the city all around from the [f] Millo inward. [10][†]And David became greater and greater, for the Lord, the God of hosts, was with him.

[11][†] [g] And [h] Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar trees, also carpenters and masons who built David a house. [12]And David knew that the LORD had established him king over Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom for the sake of his people Israel.

[13][†]And David took more [i]concubines and wives from Jerusalem, after he came from Hebron, and more sons and daughters were born to David. [14][j]And these are the names of those who were born to him in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, [15]Ibhar, Elishua, Nepheg, Japhia, [16]Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet.

David Defeats the Philistines

[17][†]When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over Israel, all the Philistines went up to search for David. But David heard of it and went down [k]to the stronghold. [18]Now the Philistines had come and spread out in [l]the Valley of Rephaim. [19]And David [m]inquired of the LORD, "Shall I go up against the Philistines? Will you give them into my hand?" And the LORD said to David, "Go up, for I will certainly give the Philistines into your hand." [20]And David came to Baal-perazim, and David defeated them there. And he said, "The LORD has broken through my enemies before me like a breaking flood." [n]Therefore the name of that place is called Baal-perazim. [3] [21]And the Philistines left their idols there, and David and his men carried them away.

[22][†]And the Philistines came up yet again [o]and spread out in the Valley of Rephaim. [23][p]And when David inquired of the LORD, he said, "You shall not go up; go around to their rear, and come against them opposite the balsam trees. [24]And [q]when you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then rouse yourself, [r]for then the LORD has gone out before you to strike down the army of the Philistines." [25]And David did as the LORD commanded him, and struck down the Philistines from Geba [s]to Gezer.

The Ark Brought to Jerusalem

2 SAMUEL 6 [†] [t]David again gathered all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand. [2]And David arose and went with all the people who were with him from [u]Baale-judah [v]to bring up from there the ark of God, which is called by the name of the Lord of hosts [w]who sits enthroned on the cherubim. [3][†]And they carried the ark of God [x]on a new cart and brought it [y]out of the house of Abinadab, which was on the hill. And Uzzah and Ahio, [1] the sons of Abinadab, were driving the new cart, [2] [4]with the ark of God, and Ahio went before the ark.

Uzzah and the Ark

[5][†]And David and all the house of Israel were celebrating before the Lord, with [z]songs [3] and lyres and harps and tambourines and castanets and cymbals. [6][†]And when they came to the threshing floor of [a]Nacon, Uzzah [b]put out his hand to the ark of God and took hold of it, for the oxen stumbled. [7][^]And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Uzzah, and [c]God struck him down there because of his error, and he died there beside the ark of God. [8]And David was angry because the Lord had broken out against Uzzah. And that place is called Perez-uzzah [4] to this day. [9]And David was afraid of the Lord that day, and he said, “How can the ark of the Lord come to me?” [10]So David was not willing to take the ark of the Lord into the city of David. But David took it aside [d]to the house of Obed-edom the Gittite. [11][†]And the ark of the Lord remained in the house of Obed-edom the Gittite three months, [e]and the Lord blessed Obed-edom and all his household.

[12][†]And it was told King David, “The Lord has blessed the household of Obed-edom and all that belongs to him, because of the ark of God.” [f]So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom [g]to the city of David with rejoicing. [13]And when [h]those who bore the ark of the Lord had gone six steps, [i]he sacrificed an ox and a fattened animal. [14][†]And David [j]danced before the Lord with all his might. And David was [k]wearing a linen ephod. [15]So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the Lord with shouting and with the sound of the horn.

David and Michal

[16][†]As the ark of the Lord came into the city of David, Michal the daughter of Saul looked out of the window and saw King David leaping and dancing before the LORD, and she despised him in her heart. [17]And they brought in the ark of the LORD and set it [l] in its place, inside the tent that David had pitched for it. [m] And David offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before the LORD. [18]And when David had finished offering the burnt offerings and the peace offerings, [n] he blessed the people in the name of the LORD of hosts [19]and distributed among all the people, the whole multitude of Israel, both men and women, a cake of bread, a portion of meat, [5] and a cake of raisins to each one. [o] Then all the people departed, each to his house.

[20][‡]And David returned to bless his household. But Michal the daughter of Saul came out to meet David and said, “How the king of Israel honored himself today, [p] uncovering himself today before the eyes of his servants’ female servants, as one of the [q] vulgar fellows shamelessly uncovers himself!” [21]And David said to Michal, “It was before the LORD, [r] who chose me above your father and above all his house, to appoint me as prince [6] over Israel, the people of the LORD—and I will celebrate before the LORD. [22]I will make myself yet more contemptible than this, and I will be abased in your [7] eyes. But by the female servants of whom you have spoken, by them I shall be held in honor.” [23]And Michal the daughter of Saul had no child to the day of her death.

The Lord’s Covenant with David

2 SAMUEL 7 [‡] [s] Now when the king lived in his house and the LORD [t] had given him rest from all his surrounding enemies, [2]the king said to [u] Nathan the prophet, “See now, I dwell [v] in a house of cedar, but the ark of God dwells [w] in a tent.” [3]And Nathan said to the king, [x] “Go, do all that is in your heart, for the LORD is with you.”

[4]But that same night the word of the LORD came to Nathan, [5]“Go and tell my servant David, ‘Thus says the LORD: [y] Would you build me a house to dwell in? [6][‡]I have not lived in a house [z] since the day I brought up the people of Israel from Egypt to this day, but I have been moving about [a] in a tent for my dwelling. [7]In all places where [b] I have moved with all the people of Israel, did I speak a word with [c] any of the judges [1] of Israel, whom I commanded [d] to shepherd my people Israel, saying, “Why have you not built me a house of cedar?”’ [8][†]Now, therefore, thus you shall say to my servant David, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, [e] I took you from the pasture, from following the sheep, that you should be prince [2] over my people Israel. [9][f] And I have been with you wherever you went and have cut off all your enemies from before you. And I will make for you a great name, like the name of the great ones of the earth. [10]And I will appoint a place for my people Israel [g] and will plant them, so that they may dwell in their own place [h] and be disturbed no more. [i] And violent men shall afflict them no more, as formerly, [11][j] from the time that I appointed judges over my people Israel. And [k] I will give you rest from all your enemies. Moreover, the LORD declares to you that [l] the LORD will make you a house. [12][^][†] [m] When your days are fulfilled and [n] you lie down with your fathers, [o] I will raise up your offspring after you, who shall come from your body, and I will establish his kingdom. [13][p] He shall build a house for my name, and [q] I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. [14][^][†] [r] I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son. When he commits iniquity, [s] I will discipline him with the rod of men, with the stripes of the sons of men, [15][s] but my steadfast love will not depart from him, [t] as I took it from Saul, whom I put away from before you. [16][u] And your house and your kingdom shall be made sure forever before me. [3] [u] Your throne shall be established forever.’” [17]In accordance with all these words, and in accordance with all this vision, Nathan spoke to David.

David’s Prayer of Gratitude

[18][†]Then King David went in and sat before the LORD and said, [v] “Who am I, O Lord GOD, and what is my house, that you have brought me thus far? [19]And yet this was a small thing in your eyes, O Lord GOD. [w] You have spoken also of your servant’s house for a great while to come, and this is instruction for mankind, O Lord GOD! [20]And what more can David say to you? [x] For you know your servant, O Lord GOD! [21]Because of your promise, and according to your own heart, you have brought about all this greatness, to make your servant know it. [22][y] Therefore you are great, O LORD God. [z] For there is none like you, and there is no God besides you, according to all that we have heard with our ears. [23][a] And who is like your people Israel, the one nation on earth whom God went to redeem to be his people, making himself a name [b] and doing for them [4] great and awesome things by driving out [5] before your people, whom [c] you redeemed for yourself from Egypt, a nation and its gods? [24][d] And you established for yourself your people Israel to be your people forever. And you, O LORD, became their God. [25]And now, O LORD God, confirm forever the word that you have spoken concerning your servant and concerning his house, and do as you have spoken. [26]And your name will be magnified forever, saying, 'The LORD of hosts is God over Israel,' and the house of your servant David will be established before you. [27]For you, O LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, have made this revelation to your servant, saying, 'I will build you a house.' Therefore your servant has found courage to pray this prayer to you. [28]And now, O Lord GOD, you are God, and [e] your words are true, and you have promised this good thing to your servant. [29]Now therefore may it please you to bless the house of your servant, so that it may continue forever before you. For you, O Lord GOD, have spoken, [f] and with your blessing shall the house of your servant be blessed forever."

David's Victories

2 SAMUEL 8 [†][g] After this David defeated the Philistines and subdued them, and David took [h] Metheg-ammah out of the hand of the Philistines.

[2][i] And he defeated Moab and he measured them with a line, making them lie down on the ground. Two lines he measured to be put to death, and one full line to be spared. And the Moabites [j] became servants to David and [k] brought tribute.

[3][†]David also defeated [l] Hadadezer the son of Rehob, king of [m] Zobah, as he went to restore his power at the river Euphrates. [4][†][n] And David took from him 1,700 horsemen, and 20,000 foot soldiers. And David [o] hamstrung all the chariot horses but left enough for 100 chariots. [5][p] And when the [q] Syrians of Damascus came to help [l] Hadadezer king of [m] Zobah, David struck down 22,000 men of the Syrians. [6][†]Then David put garrisons in Aram of Damascus, and the Syrians [r] became servants to David and brought tribute. [s] And the LORD gave victory to David wherever he went. [7]And David took [t]the shields of gold that were carried by the servants of Hadadezer and brought them to Jerusalem. [8]And from Betah and from Berothai, cities of Hadadezer, King David took very much bronze.

[9]When Toi king of [u]Hamath heard that David had defeated the whole army of Hadadezer, [10]Toi sent his son Joram to King David, to ask about his health and to bless him because he had fought against Hadadezer and defeated him, for Hadadezer had often been at war with Toi. And Joram brought with him articles of silver, of gold, and of bronze. [11] [v]These also King David dedicated to the LORD, together with the silver and gold that he dedicated from all the nations he subdued, [12]from Edom, [w]Moab, [x]the Ammonites, [y]the Philistines, [z]Amalek, and from the spoil of Hadadezer the son of Rehob, king of [m]Zobah.

[13][†]And David made a name for himself when he returned from striking down 18,000 Edomites in [a]the Valley of Salt. [14]Then he put garrisons in Edom; throughout all Edom he put garrisons, [b]and all the Edomites became David's servants. And the LORD gave victory to David wherever he went.

David's Officials

[15][^][†]So David reigned over all Israel. And David administered justice and equity to all his people. [16] [c]Joab the son of Zeruiah was over the army, and [d]Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud was recorder, [17][†]and [e]Zadok the son of Ahitub and Ahimelech the son of Abiathar were priests, and [f]Seraiah was secretary, [18][†]and [g]Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was over [1] the [h]Cherethites and the Pelethites, and David's sons were priests.

David's Kindness to Mephibosheth

2 SAMUEL 9 [†]And David said, "Is there still anyone left of the house of Saul, that I may [i]show him kindness for Jonathan's sake?" [2][†]Now there was a servant of the house of Saul whose name was [j]Ziba, and they called him to David. And the king said to him, "Are you Ziba?" And he said, "I am your servant." [3]And the king said, "Is there not still someone of the house of Saul, that I may show [k]the kindness of God to him?" Ziba said to the king, "There is still a son of [l]Jonathan; he is crippled in his feet." [4]The king said to him, “Where is he?” And Ziba said to the king, “He is in the house of [m] Machir the son of Ammiel, at Lo-debar.” [5]Then King David sent and brought him from the house of Machir the son of Ammiel, at Lo-debar. [6][‡]And [n] Mephibosheth the son of Jonathan, son of Saul, came to David and fell on his face and paid homage. And David said, “Mephibosheth!” And he answered, “Behold, I am your servant.” [7]And David said to him, “Do not fear, [i] for I will show you kindness for the sake of your father Jonathan, and I will restore to you all the land of Saul your father, and [o] you shall eat at my table always.” [8]And he paid homage and said, “What is your servant, that you should show regard for [p] a dead dog such as I?”

[9][‡]Then the king called Ziba, Saul’s servant, and said to him, “All that belonged to Saul and to all his house I have given to your master’s grandson. [10]And you and your sons and your servants shall till the land for him and shall bring in the produce, that your master’s grandson may have bread to eat. But Mephibosheth your master’s grandson [o] shall always eat at my table.” Now Ziba had [q] fifteen sons and twenty servants. [11][‡]Then Ziba said to the king, “According to all that my lord the king commands his servant, so will your servant do.” So Mephibosheth [o] ate at David’s [1] table, like one of the king’s sons. [12][‡]And Mephibosheth had a young son, [r] whose name was Mica. And all who lived in Ziba’s house became Mephibosheth’s servants. [13]So Mephibosheth lived in Jerusalem, for [o] he ate always at the king’s table. Now [l] he was lame in both his feet.

David Defeats Ammon and Syria

2 SAMUEL 10 [‡] [s] After this the king of the Ammonites died, and Hanun his son reigned in his place. [2][^]And David said, “I will deal loyally [1] with Hanun the son of [t] Nahash, as his father dealt loyally with me.” So David sent by his servants to console him concerning his father. And David’s servants came into the land of the Ammonites. [3]But the princes of the Ammonites said to Hanun their lord, “Do you think, because David has sent comforters to you, that he is honoring your father? Has not David sent his servants to you to search the city and to spy it out and to overthrow it?” [4]So Hanun took David’s servants and shaved off half the beard of each and cut off their garments in the middle, [u] at their hips, and sent them away. [5]When it was told David, he sent to meet them, for the men were greatly ashamed. And the king said, “Remain at Jericho until your beards have grown and then return.”

[6][‡]When the Ammonites saw that they had become a stench to David, the Ammonites sent and hired the Syrians of [v]Beth-rehob, and [w]the Syrians of Zobah, 20,000 foot soldiers, and the king of [x]Maacah with 1,000 men, and the men of [y]Tob, 12,000 men. [7]And when David heard of it, he sent Joab and all the host of [z]the mighty men. [8]And the Ammonites came out and drew up in battle array at the entrance of the gate, and [w]the Syrians of Zobah and of Rehob and [y]the men of Tob and Maacah were by themselves in the open country.

[9][‡]When Joab saw that the battle was set against him both in front and in the rear, he chose some of the best men of Israel and arrayed them against the Syrians. [10]The rest of his men he put in the charge of Abishai his brother, and he arrayed them against the Ammonites. [11]And he said, “If the Syrians are too strong for me, then you shall help me, but if the Ammonites are too strong for you, then I will come and help you. [12][‡][a]Be of good courage, and [b]let us be courageous for our people, and for the cities of our God, and [c]may the LORD do what seems good to him.” [13]So Joab and the people who were with him drew near to battle against the Syrians, and they fled before him. [14]And when the Ammonites saw that the Syrians fled, they likewise fled before Abishai and entered the city. Then Joab returned from fighting against the Ammonites and came to Jerusalem.

[15]But when the Syrians saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they gathered themselves together. [16]And Hadadezer sent and brought out the Syrians who were beyond [d]the Euphrates. [2] They came to Helam, with [e]Shobach the commander of the army of Hadadezer at their head. [17]And when it was told David, he gathered all Israel together and crossed the Jordan and came to Helam. The Syrians arrayed themselves against David and fought with him. [18]And the Syrians fled before Israel, and David killed of the Syrians the men of 700 chariots, and 40,000 horsemen, and wounded [f]Shobach the commander of their army, so that he died there. [19]And when all the kings who were servants of Hadadezer saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they made peace with Israel [g]and became subject to them. So the Syrians were afraid to save the Ammonites anymore.

David and Bathsheba

2 SAMUEL 11 [†] [h] [i] In the spring of the year, the time when kings go out to battle, David sent Joab, and his servants with him, and all Israel. And they ravaged the Ammonites and besieged [j] Rabbah. But David remained at Jerusalem.

[2][†]It happened, late one afternoon, when David arose from his couch and was walking on [k] the roof of the king's house, that he saw from the roof a woman bathing; and the woman was very beautiful. [3][†]And David sent and inquired about the woman. And one said, "Is not this [l] Bathsheba, the daughter of Eliam, the wife of [m] Uriah the Hittite?" [4][^][†]So David sent messengers and took her, and she came to him, and he lay with her. ([n] Now she had been purifying herself from her uncleanness.) Then she returned to her house. [5]And the woman conceived, and she sent and told David, "I am pregnant."

[6][†]So David sent word to Joab, "Send me Uriah the Hittite." And Joab sent Uriah to David. [7]When Uriah came to him, David asked how Joab was doing and how the people were doing and how the war was going. [8]Then David said to Uriah, "Go down to your house and [o] wash your feet." And Uriah went out of the king's house, and there followed him a present from the king. [9][†]But Uriah slept at the door of the king's house with all the servants of his lord, and did not go down to his house. [10]When they told David, "Uriah did not go down to his house," David said to Uriah, "Have you not come from a journey? Why did you not go down to your house?" [11]Uriah said to David, [p] "The ark and Israel and Judah dwell in booths, and my lord Joab and [q] the servants of my lord are camping in the open field. Shall I then go to my house, to eat and to drink and to lie with my wife? As you live, and [r] as your soul lives, I will not do this thing." [12]Then David said to Uriah, "Remain here today also, and tomorrow I will send you back." So Uriah remained in Jerusalem that day and the next. [13]And David invited him, and he ate in his presence and drank, [s] so that he made him drunk. And in the evening he went out to lie on his couch with [q] the servants of his lord, but he did not go down to his house.

[14][†]In the morning David [t] wrote a letter to Joab and sent it by the hand of Uriah. [15]In the letter he wrote, "Set Uriah in the forefront of the hardest fighting, and then draw back from him, [u] that he may be struck down, and die.” [16]And as Joab was besieging the city, he assigned Uriah to the place where he knew there were valiant men. [17]And the men of the city came out and fought with Joab, and some of the servants of David among the people fell. Uriah the Hittite also died. [18]Then Joab sent and told David all the news about the fighting. [19]And he instructed the messenger, “When you have finished telling all the news about the fighting to the king, [20]then, if the king’s anger rises, and if he says to you, ‘Why did you go so near the city to fight? Did you not know that they would shoot from the wall? [21][†] [v] Who killed Abimelech the son of Jerubbesheth? Did not a woman cast an upper millstone on him from the wall, so that he died at Thebez? Why did you go so near the wall?’ then you shall say, ‘Your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.’”

[22]So the messenger went and came and told David all that Joab had sent him to tell. [23]The messenger said to David, “The men gained an advantage over us and came out against us in the field, but we drove them back to the entrance of the gate. [24]Then the archers shot at your servants from the wall. Some of the king’s servants are dead, and your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.” [25][†]David said to the messenger, “Thus shall you say to Joab, ‘Do not let this matter displease you, for the sword devours now one and now another. Strengthen your attack against the city and overthrow it.’ And encourage him.”

[26][†]When the wife of Uriah heard that Uriah her husband was dead, she lamented over her husband. [27][†]And when the mourning was over, David sent and brought her to his house, and [w] she became his wife and bore him a son. But the thing that David had done displeased the LORD.

Nathan Rebukes David

2 SAMUEL 12 [†]And the LORD sent [x] Nathan to David. He came to him and said to him, [y] “There were two men in a certain city, the one rich and the other poor. [2]The rich man had very many flocks and herds, [3]but the poor man had nothing but one little ewe lamb, which he had bought. And he brought it up, and it grew up with him and with his children. It used to eat of his morsel and drink from his cup and lie in his arms, [1] and it was like a daughter to him. [4][‡]Now there came a traveler to the rich man, and he was unwilling to take one of his own flock or herd to prepare for the guest who had come to him, but he took the poor man’s lamb and prepared it for the man who had come to him.” [5][‡]Then David’s anger was greatly kindled against the man, and he said to Nathan, [z]“As the LORD lives, the man who has done this deserves to die, [6]and he shall restore the lamb [a]fourfold, because he did this thing, and because he had no pity.”

[7][‡]Nathan said to David, “You are the man! Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, [b]‘I anointed you king over Israel, and I delivered you out of the hand of Saul. [8][‡]And I gave you your master’s house and your master’s wives into your arms and gave you the house of Israel and of Judah. And if this were too little, I would add to you as much more. [9][‡][c]Why have you despised the word of the LORD, [d]to do what is evil in his sight? [e]You have struck down Uriah the Hittite with the sword and [f]have taken his wife to be your wife and have killed him with the sword of the Ammonites. [10][‡]Now therefore the sword shall never depart from your house, because you have despised me and have taken the wife of Uriah the Hittite to be your wife.’ [11]Thus says the LORD, ‘Behold, I will raise up evil against you out of your own house. And I will take your wives before your eyes and give them to your neighbor, and he shall lie with your wives in the sight of this sun. [12]For you did it secretly, [g]but I will do this thing before all Israel and before the sun.’” [13][^][‡][h]David said to Nathan, [i]“I have sinned against the LORD.” And Nathan said to David, [j]“The LORD also has put away your sin; you shall not die. [14]Nevertheless, because by this deed you have utterly [k]scorned the LORD, [2] the child who is born to you shall die.” [15][‡]Then Nathan went to his house.

David’s Child Dies

And the LORD afflicted the child that Uriah’s wife bore to David, and he became sick. [16]David therefore sought God on behalf of the child. And David [l]fasted and went in [m]and lay all night on the ground. [17]And the elders of his house stood beside him, to raise him from the ground, but he would not, nor did he eat food with them. [18]On the seventh day the child died. And the servants of David were afraid to tell him that the child was dead, for they said, “Behold, while the child was yet alive, we spoke to him, and he did not listen to us. How then can we say to him the child is dead? He may do himself some harm.” [19]But when David saw that his servants were whispering together, David understood that the child was dead. And David said to his servants, “Is the child dead?” They said, “He is dead.” [20][†]Then David arose from the earth [n] and washed and anointed himself and changed his clothes. And he went into the house of the Lord [o] and worshiped. He then went to his own house. And when he asked, they set food before him, and he ate. [21]Then his servants said to him, “What is this thing that you have done? You fasted and wept for the child while he was alive; but when the child died, you arose and ate food.” [22]He said, “While the child was still alive, I fasted and wept, for I said, [p] ‘Who knows whether the Lord will be gracious to me, that the child may live?’ [23][†]But now he is dead. Why should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, [q] but he will not return to me.”

Solomon’s Birth

[24][†]Then David comforted his wife, Bathsheba, and went in to her and lay with her, and [r] she bore a son, and he called his name [s] Solomon. And the Lord loved him [25]and sent a message by Nathan the prophet. So he called his name Jedidiah, [3] because of the Lord.

Rabbah Is Captured

[26][†] [t] Now Joab [u] fought against [v] Rabbah of the Ammonites and took the royal city. [27]And Joab sent messengers to David and said, “I have fought against Rabbah; moreover, I have taken the city of waters. [28]Now then gather the rest of the people together and encamp against the city and take it, lest I take the city and it be called by my name.” [29]So David gathered all the people together and went to Rabbah and fought against it and took it. [30]And he took the crown of their king from his head. The weight of it was a talent [4] of gold, and in it was a precious stone, and it was placed on David’s head. And he brought out the spoil of the city, a very great amount. [31]And he brought out the people who were in it and set them to labor with saws and iron picks and iron axes and made them toil at [5] the brick kilns. And thus he did to all the cities of the Ammonites. Then David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

Amnon and Tamar

2 SAMUEL 13 [‡]Now [w] Absalom, David's son, had a beautiful sister, whose name was [x] Tamar. And after a time Amnon, David's son, loved her. 2And Amnon was so tormented that he made himself ill because of his sister Tamar, for she was a virgin, and it seemed impossible to Amnon to do anything to her. 3[‡]But Amnon had a friend, whose name was Jonadab, the son of [y] Shimeah, David's brother. And Jonadab was a very crafty man. 4And he said to him, "O son of the king, why are you so haggard morning after morning? Will you not tell me?" Amnon said to him, "I love Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister." 5Jonadab said to him, "Lie down on your bed and pretend to be ill. And when your father comes to see you, say to him, 'Let my sister Tamar come and give me bread to eat, and prepare the food in my sight, that I may see it and eat it from her hand.'" 6[‡]So Amnon lay down and pretended to be ill. And when the king came to see him, Amnon said to the king, "Please let my sister Tamar come and [z] make a couple of cakes in my sight, that I may eat from her hand."

7Then David sent home to Tamar, saying, "Go to your brother Amnon's house and prepare food for him." 8So Tamar went to her brother Amnon's house, where he was lying down. And she took dough and kneaded it and made cakes in his sight and baked the cakes. 9And she took the pan and emptied it out before him, but he refused to eat. And Amnon said, [a] "Send out everyone from me." So everyone went out from him. 10Then Amnon said to Tamar, "Bring the food into the chamber, that I may eat from your hand." And Tamar took the cakes she had made and brought them into the chamber to Amnon her brother. 11But when she brought them near him to eat, he took hold of her and said to her, "Come, lie with me, my sister." 12[‡]She answered him, "No, my brother, do not violate [1] me, for [b] such a thing is not done in Israel; do not do this [c] outrageous thing. 13As for me, where could I carry my shame? And as for you, you would be as one of [d] the outrageous fools in Israel. Now therefore, please speak to the king, for he will not withhold me from you.” 14But he would not listen to her, and being stronger than she, he violated her and lay with her.

15[†]Then Amnon hated her with very great hatred, so that the hatred with which he hated her was greater than the love with which he had loved her. And Amnon said to her, “Get up! Go!” 16[†]But she said to him, “No, my brother, for this wrong in sending me away is greater than the other that you did to me.” [2] But he would not listen to her. 17He called the young man who served him and said, “Put this woman out of my presence and bolt the door after her.” 18[†]Now she was wearing [e] a long robe [3] with sleeves, for thus were the virgin daughters of the king dressed. So his servant put her out and bolted the door after her. 19[†]And Tamar [f] put ashes on her head and [g] tore the long robe that she wore. And [h] she laid her hand on her head and went away, crying aloud as she went.

20[†]And her brother Absalom said to her, “Has Amnon your brother been with you? Now hold your peace, my sister. He is your brother; do not take this to heart.” So Tamar lived, a desolate woman, in her brother Absalom’s house. 21[†]When King David heard of all these things, he was very angry. [4] 22[^][†]But Absalom spoke to Amnon [i] neither good nor bad, for Absalom hated Amnon, because he had violated his sister Tamar.

Absalom Murders Amnon

23[†]After two full years Absalom had [j] sheepshearers at Baal-hazor, which is near Ephraim, and Absalom invited all the king’s sons. 24And Absalom came to the king and said, “Behold, your servant has sheepshearers. Please let the king and his servants go with your servant.” 25But the king said to Absalom, “No, my son, let us not all go, lest we be burdensome to you.” He pressed him, but he would not go but gave him his blessing. 26Then Absalom said, “If not, please let my brother Amnon go with us.” And the king said to him, “Why should he go with you?” 27But Absalom pressed him until he let Amnon and all the king’s sons go with him. 28Then Absalom commanded his servants, “Mark when Amnon’s [k] heart is merry with wine, and when I say to you, ‘Strike Amnon,’ then kill him. Do not fear; have I not commanded you? Be courageous and be valiant.” 29[†]So the servants of Absalom did to Amnon as Absalom had commanded. Then all the king's sons arose, and each mounted his mule and fled.

[30]While they were on the way, news came to David, "Absalom has struck down all the king's sons, and not one of them is left." [31]Then the king arose and [l] tore his garments and [m] lay on the earth. And all his servants who were standing by tore their garments. [32]But [n] Jonadab the son of Shimeah, David's brother, said, "Let not my lord suppose that they have killed all the young men, the king's sons, for Amnon alone is dead. For by the command of Absalom this has been determined from the day he violated his sister Tamar. [33]Now therefore let not my lord the king so [o] take it to heart as to suppose that all the king's sons are dead, for Amnon alone is dead."

Absalom Flees to Geshur

[34] [p] But Absalom fled. And the young man who kept the watch lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, many people were coming from the road behind him [5] by the side of the mountain. [35]And Jonadab said to the king, "Behold, the king's sons have come; as your servant said, so it has come about." [36]And as soon as he had finished speaking, behold, the king's sons came and lifted up their voice and wept. And the king also and all his servants wept very bitterly.

[37][†] [q] But Absalom fled and went to [r] Talmai the son of Ammihud, king of [s] Geshur. And David mourned for his son day after day. [38] [q] So Absalom fled and went to Geshur, and was there three years. [39][†]And the spirit of the king [6] longed to go out [7] to Absalom, because [t] he was comforted about Amnon, since he was dead.

Absalom Returns to Jerusalem

2 SAMUEL 14 [†]Now Joab the son of Zeruiah knew [u] that the king's heart went out to Absalom. [2]And Joab sent to [v] Tekoa and brought from there a wise woman and said to her, "Pretend to be a mourner and put on mourning garments. [w] Do not anoint yourself with oil, but behave like a woman who has been mourning many days for the dead. [3]Go to the king and speak thus to him." So Joab [x] put the words in her mouth.

[4][‡]When the woman of Tekoa came to the king, [y]she fell on her face to the ground and paid homage and said, [z]“Save me, O king.” [5]And the king said to her, “What is your trouble?” She answered, [a]“Alas, I am a widow; my husband is dead. [6]And your servant had two sons, and they quarreled with one another in the field. There was no one to separate them, and one struck the other and killed him. [7][‡]And now the whole clan has risen against your servant, and they say, ‘Give up the man who struck his brother, that we may put him to death for the life of his brother whom he killed.’ And so they would [b]destroy the heir also. Thus they would quench my coal that is left and leave to my husband neither name nor [c]remnant on the face of the earth.”

[8][‡]Then the king said to the woman, “Go to your house, and I will give orders concerning you.” [9]And the woman of Tekoa said to the king, [d]“On me be the guilt, my lord the king, and on my father’s house; let the king and his throne be guiltless.” [10]The king said, “If anyone says anything to you, bring him to me, and he shall never touch you again.” [11]Then she said, “Please let the king invoke the LORD your God, that [e]the avenger of blood kill no more, and my son be not destroyed.” He said, [f]“As the LORD lives, [g]not one hair of your son shall fall to the ground.”

[12]Then the woman said, “Please let your servant speak a word to my lord the king.” He said, “Speak.” [13]And the woman said, “Why then have you planned such a thing against [h]the people of God? For in giving this decision the king convicts himself, inasmuch as the king does not bring [i]his banished one home again. [14]We must all die; we are [j]like water spilled on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again. But God will not take away life, and he devises means [k]so that the banished one will not remain an outcast. [15]Now I have come to say this to my lord the king because the people have made me afraid, and your servant thought, ‘I will speak to the king; it may be that the king will perform the request of his servant. [16]For the king will hear and deliver his servant from the hand of the man who would destroy me and my son together from [l]the heritage of God.’ [17]And your servant thought, ‘The word of my lord the king will set me at rest,’ for my lord the king is [m]like the angel of God to discern good and evil. The LORD your God be with you!”

[18][†]Then the king answered the woman, “Do not hide from me anything I ask you.” And the woman said, “Let my lord the king speak.” [19]The king said, “Is the hand of Joab with you in all this?” The woman answered and said, [n]“As surely as you live, my lord the king, one cannot turn to the right hand or to the left from anything that my lord the king has said. It was your servant Joab who commanded me; [o]it was he who put all these words in the mouth of your servant. [20]In order to change the course of things your servant Joab did this. But my lord has wisdom like the wisdom of [m]the angel of God to know all things that are on the earth.”

[21]Then the king said to Joab, “Behold now, I grant this; go, bring back the young man Absalom.” [22]And Joab fell on his face to the ground and paid homage [p]and blessed the king. And Joab said, “Today your servant knows that I have found favor in your sight, my lord the king, in that the king has granted the request of his servant.” [23]So Joab arose and went to [q]Geshur and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. [24][†]And the king said, “Let him dwell apart in his own house; he is not to come into my presence.” So Absalom lived apart in his own house and did not come into the king’s presence.

[25][†]Now in all Israel there was no one so much to be praised for his handsome appearance as Absalom. [r]From the sole of his foot to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him. [26]And when he cut the hair of his head (for at the end of every year he used to cut it; when it was heavy on him, he [s]cut it), he weighed the hair of his head, two hundred shekels [1] by the king’s weight. [27][†]There were born [t]to Absalom three sons, and one daughter whose name was Tamar. She was a beautiful woman.

[28][†]So Absalom lived two full years in Jerusalem, without coming into the king’s presence. [29]Then Absalom sent for Joab, to send him to the king, but Joab would not come to him. And he sent a second time, but Joab would not come. [30]Then he said to his servants, “See, Joab’s field is next to mine, and he has barley there; go and set it on fire.” So Absalom’s servants set the field on fire. [2] [31]Then Joab arose and went to Absalom at his house and said to him, “Why have your servants set my field on fire?” [32]Absalom answered Joab, “Behold, I sent word to you, ‘Come here, that I may send you to the king, to ask, “Why have I come from [q]Geshur? It would be better for me to be there still.” Now therefore let me go into the presence of the king, [u] and if there is guilt in me, let him put me to death.'" [33][‡]Then Joab went to the king and told him, and he summoned Absalom. So he came to the king and bowed himself on his face to the ground before the king, and the king kissed Absalom.

Absalom's Conspiracy

2 SAMUEL 15 [‡]After this Absalom [v] got himself a chariot and horses, and fifty men to run before him. [2]And Absalom used to rise early and stand beside [w] the way of the gate. And when any man had a dispute to come before the king for judgment, Absalom would call to him and say, "From what city are you?" And when he said, "Your servant is of such and such a tribe in Israel," [3][‡]Absalom would say to him, "See, your claims are good and right, but there is no man designated by the king to hear you." [4][‡]Then Absalom would say, [x] "Oh that I were judge in the land! Then every man with a dispute or cause might come to me, and I would give him justice." [5]And whenever a man came near to pay homage to him, he would put out his hand and take hold of him and kiss him. [6]Thus Absalom did to all of Israel who came to the king for judgment. So Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel.

[7][‡]And at the end of four [1] years Absalom said to the king, "Please let me go and pay my vow, which I have vowed to the LORD, in Hebron. [8]For your servant [z] vowed a vow [a] while I lived at Geshur in Aram, saying, 'If the LORD will indeed bring me back to Jerusalem, then I will offer worship to [2] the LORD.'" [9]The king said to him, [b] "Go in peace." So he arose and went to Hebron. [10][‡]But Absalom sent secret messengers throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, "As soon as you hear the sound of the trumpet, then say, 'Absalom is king at Hebron!'" [11]With Absalom went two hundred men from Jerusalem [c] who were invited guests, and they went in their innocence and knew nothing. [12][‡]And while Absalom was offering the sacrifices, he sent for [3] [d] Ahithophel the Gilonite, [e] David's counselor, from his city [f] Giloh. And the conspiracy grew strong, and the people with Absalom [g] kept increasing.

David Flees Jerusalem

13[†]And a messenger came to David, saying, [h]“The hearts of the men of Israel have gone after Absalom.” 14Then David said to all his servants who were with him at Jerusalem, “Arise, and let us [i]flee, or else there will be no escape for us from Absalom. Go quickly, lest he overtake us quickly and bring down ruin on us and strike the city with the edge of the sword.” 15And the king’s servants said to the king, “Behold, your servants are ready to do whatever my lord the king decides.” 16So the king went out, and all his household after him. And the king left [j]ten concubines to keep the house. 17And the king went out, and all the people after him. And they halted at the last house.

18[†]And [k]all his servants passed by him, and all the Cherethites, and all the Pelethites, and all the six hundred Gittites who had followed him from [l]Gath, passed on before the king. 19Then the king said to [m]Ittai the Gittite, “Why do you also go with us? Go back and stay with the king, for you are a foreigner and also an exile from your home. 20You came only yesterday, and shall I today make you wander about with us, since I go [n]I know not where? Go back and take your brothers with you, and may the LORD show [4] steadfast love and faithfulness to you.” 21But Ittai answered the king, [o]“As the LORD lives, and as my lord the king lives, [p]wherever my lord the king shall be, whether for death or for life, there also will your servant be.” 22And David said to Ittai, “Go then, pass on.” So Ittai the Gittite passed on with all his men and all the little ones who were with him. 23[†]And all the land wept aloud as all the people passed by, and the king crossed [q]the brook [r]Kidron, and all the people passed on toward [s]the wilderness.

24[†]And [t]Abiathar came up, and behold, [u]Zadok came also with all the Levites, [v]bearing the ark of the covenant of God. And they set down the ark of God until the people had all passed out of the city. 25[†]Then the king said to Zadok, “Carry the ark of God back into the city. If I find favor in the eyes of the LORD, he will [w]bring me back and let me see both it and his [x]dwelling place. 26But if he says, ‘I have no [y]pleasure in you,’ behold, here I am, [z]let him do to me what seems good to him.” 27[†]The king also said to Zadok the priest, “Are you not a [a]seer? Go back [5] to the city in peace, with [b]your two sons, Ahimaaz your son, and Jonathan the son of Abiathar. [28][†]See, I will wait at [c]the fords of [s]the wilderness until word comes from you to inform me." [29]So Zadok and Abiathar carried the ark of God back to Jerusalem, and they remained there.

[30][^][†]But David went up the ascent of the Mount of Olives, weeping as he went, [d]barefoot and [e]with his head covered. And all the people who were with him covered their heads, and they went up, [f]weeping as they went. [31][†]And it was told David, "Ahithophel is among the conspirators with Absalom." And David said, "O Lord, please [g]turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness."

[32]While David was coming to the summit, where God was worshiped, behold, Hushai [h]the Archite came to meet him [i]with his coat torn and [i]dirt on his head. [33][†]David said to him, "If you go on with me, you will be [j]a burden to me. [34]But if you return to the city and say to Absalom, [k]'I will be your servant, O king; as I have been your father's servant in time past, so now I will be your servant,' then you will defeat for me the counsel of Ahithophel. [35]Are not Zadok and Abiathar the priests with you there? So whatever you hear from the king's house, [l]tell it to Zadok and Abiathar the priests. [36]Behold, [m]their two sons are with them there, Ahimaaz, Zadok's son, and Jonathan, Abiathar's son, [m]and by them you shall send to me everything you hear." [37][†]So Hushai, [n]David's friend, came into the city, [o]just as Absalom was entering Jerusalem.

David and Ziba

2 SAMUEL 16 [†]When David had passed a little beyond [p]the summit, [q]Ziba the servant of Mephibosheth met him, with a couple of donkeys saddled, bearing two hundred loaves of bread, [r]a hundred bunches of raisins, a hundred of summer fruits, and a skin of wine. [2]And the king said to Ziba, "Why have you brought these?" Ziba answered, [s]"The donkeys are for the king's household to ride on, the bread and summer fruit for the young men to eat, and the wine for those who [t]faint in the wilderness to drink." [3]And the king said, "And where is your master's son?" [u]Ziba said to the king, "Behold, he remains in Jerusalem, for he said, 'Today the house of Israel will give me back the kingdom of my father.'" [4]Then the king said to Ziba, "Behold, all that belonged to Mephibosheth is now yours." And Ziba said, "I pay homage; let me ever find favor in your sight, my lord the king."

Shimei Curses David

[5][†]When King David came to [v]Bahurim, there came out a man of the family of the house of Saul, whose name was [w]Shimei, the son of Gera, and as he came [x]he cursed continually. [6]And he threw stones at David and at all the servants of King David, and all the people and all the mighty men were on his right hand and on his left. [7]And Shimei said as he [x]cursed, "Get out, get out, you man of blood, you worthless man! [8][†]The Lord [y]has avenged on you all [z]the blood of the house of Saul, in whose place you have reigned, and the Lord has given the kingdom into the hand of your son Absalom. See, your evil is on you, for you are a man of blood."

[9][†]Then Abishai the son of Zeruiah said to the king, "Why should this [a]dead dog [b]curse my lord the king? Let me go over and take off his head." [10][†]But the king said, [c]"What have I to do with you, [d]you sons of Zeruiah? If he is cursing because the Lord has said to him, 'Curse David,' who then shall say, 'Why have you done so?'" [11][†]And David said to Abishai and to all his servants, "Behold, [e]my own son seeks my life; how much more now may this Benjaminite! Leave him alone, and let him curse, for the Lord has told him to. [12][^][†]It may be that the Lord will look on the wrong done to me, [1] and that the Lord will repay me with good for his cursing today." [13]So David and his men went on the road, while Shimei went along on the hillside opposite him and [f]cursed as he went and threw stones at him and flung dust. [14][†]And the king, and all the people who were with him, [g]arrived weary at the Jordan. [2] And there he refreshed himself.

Absalom Enters Jerusalem

[15][†] [h]Now Absalom and all the people, the men of Israel, came to Jerusalem, and Ahithophel with him. [16]And when Hushai the Archite,

[h] David's friend, came to Absalom, Hushai said to Absalom, [i] "Long live the king! Long live the king!" [17]And Absalom said to Hushai, "Is this your loyalty to your friend? [j] Why did you not go with your friend?" [18][†]And Hushai said to Absalom, "No, for whom the LORD and this people and all the men of Israel have chosen, his I will be, and with him I will remain. [19]And again, [k] whom should I serve? Should it not be his son? As I have served your father, so I will serve you."

[20]Then Absalom said to Ahithophel, "Give your counsel. What shall we do?" [21][†]Ahithophel said to Absalom, "Go in to [l] your father's concubines, whom he has left to keep the house, and all Israel will hear that you have made yourself a stench to your father, and [m] the hands of all who are with you will be strengthened." [22][^]So they pitched a tent for Absalom [n] on the roof. And Absalom went in to his father's concubines [o] in the sight of all Israel. [23][†]Now in those days the counsel that Ahithophel gave was as if one consulted the word of God; so was all the counsel of Ahithophel esteemed, [p] both by David and by Absalom.

Hushai Saves David

2 SAMUEL 17 [†]Moreover, Ahithophel said to Absalom, "Let me choose twelve thousand men, and I will arise and pursue David tonight. [2]I will come upon him while he is [q] weary and discouraged and throw him into a panic, and all the people who are with him will flee. [r] I will strike down only the king, [3]and I will bring all the people back to you as a bride comes home to her husband. You seek the life of only one man, [1] and all the people will be at peace." [4]And the advice seemed right in the eyes of Absalom and all the elders of Israel.

[5][^]Then Absalom said, "Call [s] Hushai the Archite also, and let us hear what he has to say." [6]And when Hushai came to Absalom, Absalom said to him, "Thus has Ahithophel spoken; shall we do as he says? If not, you speak." [7][†]Then Hushai said to Absalom, "This time the counsel that Ahithophel has given is not good." [8]Hushai said, "You know that your father and his men are mighty men, and that they are enraged, [2] [t] like a bear robbed of her cubs in the field. Besides, your father is expert in war; he will not spend the night with the people. [9]Behold, even now he has hidden himself in one of the pits or in some other place. And as soon as some of the people fall [3] at the first attack, whoever hears it will say, ‘There has been a slaughter among the people who follow Absalom.’ 10Then even the valiant man, whose heart is like the heart of a lion, will utterly [u] melt with fear, for all Israel knows that your father is a mighty man, and that those who are with him are valiant men. 11But my counsel is that all Israel be gathered to you, [v] from Dan to Beersheba, [w] as the sand by the sea for multitude, and that you go to battle in person. 12So we shall come upon him in some place where he is to be found, and we shall light upon him as the dew falls on the ground, and of him and all the men with him not one will be left. 13[†]If he withdraws into a city, then all Israel will bring ropes to that city, and we shall drag it into the valley, until not even a pebble is to be found there.” 14And Absalom and all the men of Israel said, “The counsel of Hushai the Archite is better than the counsel of Ahithophel.” [x] For the LORD had ordained [4] to defeat the good counsel of Ahithophel, so that the LORD might bring harm upon Absalom.

15 [y] Then Hushai said to Zadok and Abiathar the priests, “Thus and so did Ahithophel counsel Absalom and the elders of Israel, and thus and so have I counseled. 16Now therefore send quickly and tell David, ‘Do not stay tonight at [z] the fords of the wilderness, but by all means pass over, lest the king and all the people who are with him be [a] swallowed up.’” 17[†]Now [b] Jonathan and Ahimaaz were waiting at [c] En-rogel. A female servant was to go and tell them, and they were to go and tell King David, for they were not to be seen entering the city. 18But a young man saw them and told Absalom. So both of them went away quickly and came to the house of a man at [d] Bahurim, who had a well in his courtyard. And they went down into it. 19 [e] And the woman took and spread a covering over the well’s mouth and scattered grain on it, and nothing was known of it. 20When Absalom’s servants came to the woman at the house, they said, “Where are Ahimaaz and Jonathan?” And the woman said to them, “They have gone over the brook [5] of water.” And when they had sought and could not find them, they returned to Jerusalem.

21After they had gone, the men came up out of the well, and went and told King David. They said to David, [f] “Arise, and go quickly over the water, for thus and so has Ahithophel counseled against you.” [22]Then David arose, and all the people who were with him, and they crossed the Jordan. By daybreak not one was left who had not crossed the Jordan.

[23][†]When Ahithophel saw that his counsel was not followed, he saddled his donkey and went off home to [g]his own city. He [h]set his house in order and [i]hanged himself, and he died and was buried in the tomb of his father.

[24][†]Then David came to [j]Mahanaim. And Absalom crossed the Jordan with all the men of Israel. [25][†]Now Absalom had set [k]Amasa over the army instead of Joab. Amasa was the son of a man named Ithra the Ishmaelite, [6] who had married Abigal the daughter of [l]Nahash, sister of Zeruiah, Joab’s mother. [26]And Israel and Absalom encamped in the land of Gilead.

[27][†]When David came to Mahanaim, [m]Shobi the son of Nahash from [n]Rabbah of the Ammonites, and [o]Machir the son of Ammiel from Lo-debar, and [p]Barzillai the Gileadite from Rogelim, [28]brought beds, basins, and earthen vessels, wheat, barley, flour, parched grain, beans and lentils, [7] [29]honey and curds and sheep and cheese from the herd, for David and the people with him to eat, for they said, “The people are hungry and [q]weary and thirsty [r]in the wilderness.”

Absalom Killed

2 SAMUEL 18 [†]Then David mustered the men who were with him and set over them commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds. [2][†]And David sent out the army, one third under the command of Joab, one third under the command of Abishai the son of Zeruiah, Joab’s brother, and one third under the command of [s]Ittai the Gittite. And the king said to the men, “I myself will also go out with you.” [3][t]But the men said, “You shall not go out. For if we flee, they will not care about us. If half of us die, they will not care about us. But you are worth ten thousand of us. Therefore it is better that you send us help from the city.” [4]The king said to them, “Whatever seems best to you I will do.” So the king stood at the side of the gate, while all the army marched out by hundreds and by thousands. [5][†]And the king ordered Joab and Abishai and Ittai, “Deal gently for my sake with the young man Absalom.” [u] And all the people heard when the king gave orders to all the commanders about Absalom.

[6][†]So the army went out into the field against Israel, and the battle was fought in the [v] forest of Ephraim. [7]And the men of Israel were defeated there by the servants of David, and the loss there was great on that day, twenty thousand men. [8]The battle spread over the face of all the country, and the forest devoured more people that day than the sword.

[9][†]And Absalom happened to meet the servants of David. Absalom was riding on his mule, and the mule went under the thick branches of a great oak, [1] [w] and his head caught fast in the oak, and he was suspended between heaven and earth, while the mule that was under him went on. [10]And a certain man saw it and told Joab, “Behold, I saw Absalom hanging in an oak.” [11]Joab said to the man who told him, “What, you saw him! Why then did you not strike him there to the ground? I would have been glad to give you ten pieces of silver and a belt.” [12]But the man said to Joab, “Even if I felt in my hand the weight of a thousand pieces of silver, I would not reach out my hand against the king’s son, for [x] in our hearing the king commanded you and Abishai and Ittai, ‘For my sake protect the young man Absalom.’ [13]On the other hand, if I had dealt treacherously against his life [2] (and there is nothing hidden from the king), then you yourself would have stood aloof.” [14][†]Joab said, “I will not waste time like this with you.” And he took three javelins in his hand and thrust them into the heart of Absalom while he was still alive in the oak. [15]And ten young men, Joab’s armor-bearers, surrounded Absalom and struck him and killed him.

[16]Then Joab blew the trumpet, and the troops came back from pursuing Israel, for Joab restrained them. [17][†]And they took Absalom and threw him into a great pit in the forest and raised over him [y] a very great heap of stones. And all Israel [z] fled every one to his own home. [18][†]Now Absalom in his lifetime had taken and set up for himself [a] the pillar that is in [b] the King’s Valley, for he said, [c] “I have no son to keep my name in remembrance.” He called the pillar after his own name, and it is called Absalom’s monument [3] to this day.

David Hears of Absalom’s Death

[19][†]Then Ahimaaz the son of Zadok said, [d]“Let me run and carry news to the king that [e]the LORD has delivered him from the hand of his enemies.” [20]And Joab said to him, “You are not to carry news today. You may carry news another day, but today you shall carry no news, because the king’s son is dead.” [21]Then Joab said to the Cushite, “Go, tell the king what you have seen.” The Cushite bowed before Joab, and ran. [22]Then Ahimaaz the son of Zadok said again to Joab, “Come what may, let me also run after the Cushite.” And Joab said, “Why will you run, my son, seeing that you will have no reward for the news?” [23]“Come what may,” he said, “I will run.” So he said to him, “Run.” Then Ahimaaz ran by the way of [f]the plain, and outran the Cushite.

[24][†]Now David [g]was sitting between the two gates, and [h]the watchman went up to the roof of the gate by the wall, and when he lifted up his eyes and looked, he saw a man running alone. [25][†]The watchman called out and told the king. And the king said, “If he is alone, there is news in his mouth.” And he drew nearer and nearer. [26]The watchman saw another man running. And the watchman called to the gate and said, “See, another man running alone!” The king said, “He also brings news.” [27]The watchman said, “I think the running of the first is [i]like the running of Ahimaaz the son of Zadok.” And the king said, [j]“He is a good man and comes with good news.”

[28]Then Ahimaaz cried out to the king, “All is well.” And he bowed before the king with his face to the earth and said, [k]“Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delivered up the men who raised their hand against my lord the king.” [29][†]And the king said, [l]“Is it well with the young man Absalom?” Ahimaaz answered, “When Joab sent the king’s servant, your servant, I saw a great commotion, but I do not know what it was.” [30]And the king said, “Turn aside and stand here.” So he turned aside and stood still.

David’s Grief

[31]And behold, the Cushite came, and the Cushite said, “Good news for my lord the king! For [m]the LORD has delivered you this day from the hand of all who rose up against you.” [32]The king said to the Cushite, [l]“Is it well with the young man Absalom?” And the Cushite answered, [n]“May the enemies of my lord the king and all who rise up against you for evil be like that young man.” [33][^][‡] [4] And the king was deeply moved and went up [g]to the chamber over the gate and wept. And as he went, he said, [o]“O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! Would I had died instead of you, O Absalom, my son, my son!”

Joab Rebukes David

2 SAMUEL 19 It was told Joab, “Behold, the king is weeping and mourning for Absalom.” [2][‡]So the victory that day was turned into mourning for all the people, for the people heard that day, “The king is grieving for his son.” [3]And the people stole into the city that day as people steal in who are ashamed when they flee in battle. [4][‡]The king [p]covered his face, and the king cried with a loud voice, [q]“O my son Absalom, O Absalom, my son, my son!” [5]Then Joab came into the house to the king and said, “You have today covered with shame the faces of all your servants, who have this day saved your life and the lives of your sons and your daughters and the lives of your wives and your concubines, [6]because you love those who hate you and hate those who love you. For you have made it clear today that commanders and servants are nothing to you, for today I know that if Absalom were alive and all of us were dead today, then you would be pleased. [7]Now therefore arise, go out and speak [r]kindly to your servants, for I swear by the LORD, if you do not go, not a man will stay with you this night, and this will be worse for you than all the evil that has come upon you from your youth until now.” [8][‡]Then the king arose and took his [s]seat in the gate. And the people were all told, “Behold, the king is sitting in the gate.” And all the people came before the king.

David Returns to Jerusalem

Now Israel had [t]fled every man to his own home. [9]And all the people were arguing throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, [u]“The king delivered us from the hand of our enemies and [v]saved us from the hand of the Philistines, and now [w]he has fled out of the land from Absalom. [10][‡]But Absalom, whom we anointed over us, is dead in battle. Now therefore why do you say nothing about bringing the king back?”

[11]And King David sent this message to [x]Zadok and Abiathar the priests:
“Say to the elders of Judah, ‘Why should you be the last to bring the king back to his house, when the word of all Israel has come to the king? [1] [12]You are my brothers; [y]you are my bone and my flesh. Why then should you be the last to bring back the king?’ [13][†]And say to Amasa, [z]‘Are you not my bone and my flesh? [a]God do so to me and more also, if you are not [b]commander of my army from now on in place of Joab.’” [14]And he swayed the heart of all the men of Judah [c]as one man, so that they sent word to the king, “Return, both you and all your servants.” [15][†]So the king came back to the Jordan, and Judah came to Gilgal to meet the king and to bring the king over the Jordan.

David Pardons His Enemies

[16][†]And [d]Shimei the son of Gera, the Benjaminite, from Bahurim, hurried to come down with the men of Judah to meet King David. [17]And with him were a thousand men from Benjamin. And [e]Ziba the servant of the house of Saul, with his fifteen sons and his twenty servants, rushed down to the Jordan before the king, [18]and they crossed the ford to bring over the king’s household and to do his pleasure. And Shimei the son of Gera fell down before the king, as he was about to cross the Jordan, [19]and said to the king, [f]“Let not my lord hold me guilty or remember how your servant [g]did wrong on the day my lord the king left Jerusalem. Do not let the king take it to heart. [20]For your servant knows that I have sinned. Therefore, behold, I have come this day, the first [h]of all the house of Joseph to come down to meet my lord the king.” [21]Abishai the son of Zeruiah answered, “Shall not Shimei be put to death for this, because [i]he cursed the Lord’s anointed?”
[22][^]But David said, [j]“What have I to do with you, you sons of Zeruiah, that you should this day be as an adversary to me? [k]Shall anyone be put to death in Israel this day? For do I not know that I am this day king over Israel?” [23][l]And the king said to Shimei, “You shall not die.” And the king gave him his oath.

[24][†]And [m]Mephibosheth the son of Saul came down to meet the king. He had neither taken care of his feet nor trimmed his beard nor washed his clothes, from the day the king departed until the day he came back in safety. [25][†]And when he came to Jerusalem to meet the king, the king said to him, [n]"Why did you not go with me, Mephibosheth?" [26]He answered, "My lord, O king, my servant deceived me, for your servant said to him, 'I will saddle a donkey for myself, [2] that I may ride on it and go with the king.' For [o]your servant is lame. [27][p]He has slandered your servant to my lord the king. But my lord the king is [q]like the angel of God; do therefore what seems good to you. [28]For all my father's house were but men doomed to death before my lord the king, but [r]you set your servant among those who eat at your table. What further right have I, then, to cry to the king?" [29]And the king said to him, "Why speak any more of your affairs? I have decided: you and Ziba shall divide the land." [30]And Mephibosheth said to the king, "Oh, let him take it all, since my lord the king has come safely home."

[31][†]Now [s]Barzillai the Gileadite had come down from Rogelim, and he went on with the king to the Jordan, to escort him over the Jordan. [32]Barzillai was a very aged man, eighty years old. [t]He had provided the king with food while he stayed at Mahanaim, for he was a very wealthy man. [33]And the king said to Barzillai, "Come over with me, and I will provide for you with me in Jerusalem." [34]But Barzillai said to the king, [u]"How many years have I still to live, that I should go up with the king to Jerusalem? [35]I am this day [v]eighty years old. Can I discern what is pleasant and what is not? Can your servant taste what he eats or what he drinks? Can I still listen to the voice of singing men and singing women? Why then should your servant be [w]an added burden to my lord the king? [36]Your servant will go a little way over the Jordan with the king. Why should the king repay me with such a reward? [37]Please let your servant return, that I may die in my own city near the grave of my father and my mother. But here is your servant [x]Chimham. Let him go over with my lord the king, and do for him whatever seems good to you." [38]And the king answered, "Chimham shall go over with me, and I will do for him whatever seems good to you, and all that you desire of me I will do for you." [39]Then all the people went over the Jordan, and the king went over. And [y]the king kissed Barzillai and blessed him, and he returned to his own home. [40]The king went on to Gilgal, and Chimham went on with him. All the people of Judah, and also half the people of Israel, brought the king on his way.

[41][†]Then all the men of Israel came to the king and said to the king, "Why have our brothers the men of Judah stolen you away and [z]brought the king and his household over the Jordan, and all David's men with him?" [42]All the men of Judah answered the men of Israel, "Because the king is [a]our close relative. Why then are you angry over this matter? Have we eaten at all at the king's expense? Or has he given us any gift?" [43]And the men of Israel answered the men of Judah, "We have [b]ten shares in the king, and in David also we have more than you. Why then did you despise us? Were we not the first to speak of bringing back our king?" [c]But the words of the men of Judah were fiercer than the words of the men of Israel.

The Rebellion of Sheba

2 SAMUEL 20 [†]Now there happened to be there [d]a worthless man, whose name was Sheba, the son of Bichri, a Benjaminite. And he blew the trumpet and said, [e]"We have no portion in David, and we have no inheritance in the son of Jesse;

[f]every man to his tents, O Israel!"

[2]So all the men of Israel withdrew from David and followed Sheba the son of Bichri. But the men of Judah followed their king steadfastly from the Jordan to Jerusalem.

[3][†]And David came to his house at Jerusalem. And the king took [g]the ten concubines whom he had left to care for the house and put them in a house under guard and provided for them, but did not go in to them. So they were shut up until the day of their death, living as if in widowhood.

[4][†]Then the king said to [h]Amasa, "Call the men of Judah together to me within three days, and be here yourself." [5]So Amasa went to summon Judah, but he delayed beyond the set time that had been appointed him. [6][†]And David said to Abishai, "Now Sheba the son of Bichri will do us more harm than Absalom. Take [i]your lord's servants and pursue him, lest he get himself to fortified cities and escape from us.” [1] [7]And there went out after him Joab’s men and the [j]Cherethites and the Pelethites, and all the mighty men. They went out from Jerusalem to pursue Sheba the son of Bichri. [8][†]When they were at the great stone that is in Gibeon, Amasa came to meet them. Now Joab was wearing a soldier’s garment, and over it was a belt with a sword in its sheath fastened on his thigh, and as he went forward it fell out. [9]And Joab said to Amasa, “Is it well with you, my brother?” And Joab took Amasa by the beard with his right hand [k]to kiss him. [10][^]But Amasa did not observe the sword that was in Joab’s hand. [l]So Joab struck him with it [m]in the stomach and spilled his entrails to the ground without striking a second blow, and he died.

Then Joab and Abishai his brother pursued Sheba the son of Bichri. [11][†]And one of Joab’s young men took his stand by Amasa and said, “Whoever favors Joab, and whoever is for David, let him follow Joab.” [12]And Amasa lay wallowing in his blood in the highway. And anyone who came by, seeing him, stopped. And when the man saw that all the people stopped, he carried Amasa out of the highway into the field and threw a garment over him. [13]When he was taken out of the highway, all the people went on after Joab to pursue Sheba the son of Bichri.

[14][†]And Sheba passed through all the tribes of Israel to [n]Abel of [n]Beth-maacah, [2] and all [o]the Bichrites [3] assembled and followed him in. [15][†]And all the men who were with Joab came and besieged him in [n]Abel of Beth-maacah. [p]They cast up a mound against the city, and it stood against the rampart, and they were battering the wall to throw it down. [16][†]Then a wise woman called from the city, “Listen! Listen! Tell Joab, ‘Come here, that I may speak to you.’” [17]And he came near her, and the woman said, “Are you Joab?” He answered, “I am.” Then she said to him, “Listen to the words of your servant.” And he answered, “I am listening.” [18]Then she said, “They used to say in former times, ‘Let them but ask counsel at [n]Abel,’ and so they settled a matter. [19]I am one of those who are peaceable and faithful in Israel. You seek to destroy a city that is a mother in Israel. Why will you [q]swallow up [r]the heritage of the LORD?” [20]Joab answered, “Far be it from me, far be it, that I should [q]swallow up or destroy! [21]That is not true. But a man of [s]the hill country of Ephraim, called Sheba the son of Bichri, has lifted up his hand against King David.

Give up him alone, and I will withdraw from the city." And the woman said to Joab, "Behold, his head shall be thrown to you over the wall." [22][†]Then the woman went to all the people [t]in her wisdom. And they cut off the head of Sheba the son of Bichri and threw it out to Joab. So he blew the trumpet, and they dispersed from the city, [u]every man to his home. And Joab returned to Jerusalem to the king.

[23][†] [v]Now Joab was in command of all the army of Israel; and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was in command of the Cherethites and the Pelethites; [24]and [w]Adoram was in charge of the forced labor; and Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud was the recorder; [25]and Sheva was secretary; and [x]Zadok and Abiathar were priests; [26]and [y]Ira the Jairite was also David's priest.

David Avenges the Gibeonites

2 SAMUEL 21 [†]Now there was a famine in the days of David for three years, year after year. And David [z]sought the face of the LORD. And the LORD said, "There is bloodguilt on Saul and on his house, because he put the Gibeonites to death." [2]So the king called the Gibeonites and spoke to them. Now the Gibeonites were not of the people of Israel but [a]of the remnant of the Amorites. Although the people of Israel had sworn to spare them, Saul had sought to strike them down in his zeal for the people of Israel and Judah. [3][^][†]And David said to the Gibeonites, "What shall I do for you? And how shall I make atonement, that you may bless [b]the heritage of the LORD?" [4]The Gibeonites said to him, "It is not a matter of silver or gold between us and Saul or his house; neither is it for us to put any man to death in Israel." And he said, "What do you say that I shall do for you?" [5]They said to the king, "The man who consumed us and planned to destroy us, so that we should have no place in all the territory of Israel, [6]let seven of his sons be given to us, so that we may hang them before the LORD at [c]Gibeah of Saul, [d]the chosen of the LORD." And the king said, "I will give them."

[7][†]But the king spared Mephibosheth, the son of Saul's son Jonathan, because of [e]the oath of the LORD that was between them, between David and Jonathan the son of Saul. [8]The king took the two sons of [f]Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, whom she bore to Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth; and the five sons of Merab [1] the daughter of Saul, whom [g] she bore to [h] Adriel the son of Barzillai the Meholathite; [9][†]and he gave them into the hands of the Gibeonites, and they hanged them on the mountain before the LORD, and the seven of them perished together. They were put to death in the first days of harvest, [i] at the beginning of barley harvest.

[10][†][j] Then Rizpah the daughter of Aiah took sackcloth and spread it for herself on the rock, from the beginning of harvest until rain fell upon them from the heavens. And she did not allow the birds of the air to come upon them by day, or the beasts of the field by night. [11]When David was told what Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, the concubine of Saul, had done, [12]David went and took the bones of Saul and the bones of his son Jonathan from the men of Jabesh-gilead, [k] who had stolen them from the public square of [l] Beth-shan, where the Philistines had hanged them, on the day the Philistines killed Saul on Gilboa. [13]And he brought up from there the bones of Saul and the bones of his son Jonathan; and they gathered the bones of those who were hanged. [14]And they buried the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan in the land of Benjamin in [m] Zela, in the tomb of Kish his father. And they did all that the king commanded. And after that [n] God responded to the plea for the land.

War with the Philistines

[15][†]There was war again between the Philistines and Israel, and David went down together with his servants, and they fought against the Philistines. And David grew weary. [16][†]And Ishbi-benob, one of the descendants [o] of the giants, whose spear weighed three hundred shekels [2] of bronze, and who was armed with a new sword, thought to kill David. [17]But Abishai the son of Zeruiah came to his aid and attacked the Philistine and killed him. Then David's men swore to him, [p] "You shall no longer go out with us to battle, lest you quench [q] the lamp of Israel."

[18][r] After this there was again war with the Philistines at Gob. Then [s] Sibbecai [t] the Hushathite struck down Saph, who was one of the descendants [u] of the giants. [19][†]And there was again war with the Philistines at Gob, and [v] Elhanan the son of Jaare-oregim, the Bethlehemite, struck down Goliath the Gittite, [w] the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. [3] 20And there was again war at Gath, where there was a man of great stature, who had six fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in number, and he also was descended [x] from the giants. 21[†]And when [y] he taunted Israel, Jonathan the son of Shimei, David's brother, struck him down. 22These four were descended [x] from the giants in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

David's Song of Deliverance

2 SAMUEL 22 [†]And David spoke [z] to the LORD the words of this song on the day when the LORD delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul. 2 [a] He said,

[b] "The LORD is my rock and my fortress and my deliverer,
  3 [c] my [1] God, my rock, [d] in whom I take refuge, [e] my shield, and [f] the horn of my salvation,
  [g] my stronghold and [h] my refuge,
  my savior; you save me from violence.
4 I call upon the LORD, who is [i] worthy to be praised, and I am saved from my enemies.

5[†] [j] "For the waves of death encompassed me, the torrents of destruction assailed me; [2] 6 [k] the cords of Sheol entangled me;
  the snares of death confronted me.

7[†] [l] "In my distress I called upon the LORD;
  to my God I called.
From his temple he heard my voice, and my cry [m] came to his ears.

8[†] "Then [n] the earth reeled and rocked;
  [o] the foundations of the heavens trembled and quaked, because he was angry.
9 Smoke went up from his nostrils, [3] and devouring fire from his mouth;

[p]glowing coals flamed forth from him.
10[†] [q]He bowed the heavens and [r]came down;
[s]thick darkness was under his feet.
11 He rode on a cherub and flew;
he was seen on [t]the wings of the wind.
12 He made [s]darkness around him [u]his canopy, thick clouds, a gathering of water.
13 Out of the brightness before him
[v]coals of fire flamed forth.
14 [w]The LORD thundered from heaven, and the Most High uttered his voice.
15[†] And he sent out [x]arrows and scattered them;
lightning, and routed them.
16 Then the channels of the sea were seen;
the foundations of the world were laid bare,
at the rebuke of the LORD,
at the [y]blast of the breath of his nostrils.

17[†] [z]“He sent from on high, he took me;
he drew me out of many waters.
18 He rescued me from my strong enemy, from those who hated me,
for they were too mighty for me.
19 They confronted me in the day of my calamity, but the LORD was my support.
20[†] [a]He brought me out into a broad place;
he rescued me, because [b]he delighted in me.

21 “The LORD [c]dealt with me according to my righteousness;
according to the [d]cleanness of my hands he rewarded me.
22 [e]For I have kept the ways of the LORD and have not wickedly departed from my God.
23 [f]For all his rules were before me, and from his statutes I did not turn aside.
24 I was [g]blameless before him, and I kept myself from guilt.

25 [d] And the Lord has rewarded me according to my righteousness, according to my cleanness in his sight.

26[‡] [h] "With the merciful you show yourself merciful;
with the [g] blameless man you show yourself blameless; 27 with the purified you deal purely,
and with the crooked you make yourself seem tortuous.
28[‡] [i] You save a humble people,
[j] but your eyes are on the haughty to bring them down.
29 [k] For you are my lamp, O Lord, and my God lightens my darkness.
30 For by you I can run against a troop, and by my God I can leap over a wall.
31 This God—[l] his way is perfect;
the [m] word of the Lord proves true;
he is [n] a shield for all those who take refuge in him.

32[‡] "For who is God, but the Lord?
[o] And who is a rock, except our God?
33 This God is my [p] strong refuge and has made my [4] way blameless. [5] 34 [q] He made my feet like the feet of a deer and set me secure [r] on the heights.
35[‡] [s] He trains my hands for war,
so that my arms can bend a bow of bronze.
36 You have given me the shield of your salvation, and your gentleness made me great.
37 [t] You gave a wide place for my steps under me, and my feet [6] did not slip;
38 I pursued my enemies and destroyed them, and did not turn back until they were consumed.
39 I consumed them; I thrust them through, so that they did not rise;
they fell [u] under my feet.

40 For you equipped me with strength for the battle;
you made [v] those who rise against me sink under me.
41 You [w] made my enemies turn their backs to me, [7]
those who hated me, and I destroyed them.
42 They looked, but there was none to save;
they cried to the LORD, but [x] he did not answer them.
43 I beat them fine [y] as the dust of the earth;
I crushed them and stamped them down [z] like the mire of the streets.

44 "You delivered me from strife with my people; [8]
you kept me as the head of [a] the nations;
[b] people whom I had not known served me.
45 Foreigners came cringing to me;
as soon as they heard of me, they obeyed me.
46 Foreigners lost heart and came trembling [9] [c] out of their fortresses.

47[†] "The LORD lives, and blessed be my rock, and exalted be [d] my God, [e] the rock of my salvation, 48 the God who gave me vengeance and [f] brought down peoples under me, 49 who brought me out from my enemies;
you exalted me above [v] those who rose against me;
you delivered me from [g] men of violence.

50[^][†] [h] "For this I will praise you, O LORD, among the nations, and sing praises to your name.
51[^] [i] Great salvation he brings [10] to his king, and shows steadfast love to [j] his anointed, to David and his offspring [k] forever."

The Last Words of David

2 SAMUEL 23 [†]Now these are the last words of David:

The oracle of David, the son of Jesse,
the oracle of [l] the man who was raised on high, [j] the anointed of the God of Jacob,
the sweet psalmist of Israel: [1]

2[†] [m]“The Spirit of the LORD speaks by me;
his word is on my tongue.
3[†] The God of Israel has spoken;
[n] the Rock of Israel has said to me:
When one rules justly over men,
ruling [o] in the fear of God,
4[†] he [p] dawns on them like the morning light, like the sun shining forth on a cloudless morning, like rain [2] that makes grass to sprout from the earth.

5[†] “For does not my house stand so with God?
[q] For he has made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things and secure.
For will he not cause to prosper
all my help and my desire?
6 But worthless men [3] are all like thorns that are thrown away, for they cannot be taken with the hand;
7[†] but the man who touches them arms himself with iron and the shaft of a spear, and they are utterly consumed with fire.” [4]

David’s Mighty Men

8[^][†] [r] These are the names of the mighty men whom David had: [s] Josheb-basshebeth a Tahchemonite; he was chief of the three. [5] He wielded his spear [6] against eight hundred whom he killed at one time.

9And next to him among the three mighty men was Eleazar the son of [t] Dodo, son of [u] Ahohi. He was with David when they defied the Philistines who were gathered there for battle, and the men of Israel withdrew. 10He rose and struck down the Philistines until his hand was weary, and his hand clung to the sword. And the LORD brought about a great victory that day, and the men returned after him only to strip the slain.

[11][†]And next to him was Shammah, the son of Agee the [v]Hararite. The Philistines gathered together at Lehi, where there was a plot of ground full of lentils, and the men fled from the Philistines. [12]But he took his stand in the midst of the plot and defended it and struck down the Philistines, and the LORD worked a great victory.

[13][†]And three of the thirty chief men went down and came about harvest time to David at the [w]cave of Adullam, when a band of Philistines was encamped [x]in the Valley of Rephaim. [14]David was then [y]in the stronghold, and [z]the garrison of the Philistines was then at Bethlehem. [15]And David said longingly, “Oh, that someone would give me water to drink from the well of Bethlehem that is by the gate!” [16][†]Then the three mighty men broke through the camp of the Philistines and drew water out of the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate and carried and brought it to David. But he would not drink of it. He poured it out to the LORD [17]and said, “Far be it from me, O LORD, that I should do this. Shall I drink [a]the blood of the men who went at the risk of their lives?” Therefore he would not drink it. These things the three mighty men did.

[18][†]Now Abishai, the brother of Joab, the son of Zeruiah, was chief of the thirty.[7] And he wielded his spear against three hundred men[8] and killed them and won a name beside the three. [19]He was the most renowned of the thirty[9] and became their commander, but he did not attain to [b]the three.

[20]And [c]Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was a valiant man[10] of [d]Kabzeel, a doer of great deeds. He struck down two ariels[11] of Moab. He also went down and struck down a lion in a pit on a day when snow had fallen. [21]And he struck down an Egyptian, a handsome man. The Egyptian had a spear in his hand, but Benaiah went down to him with a staff and snatched the spear out of the Egyptian’s hand and killed him with his own spear. [22]These things did Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and won a name beside the three mighty men. [23]He was renowned among the thirty, but he did not attain to the three. And David set him over his bodyguard.

[24][e]Asahel the brother of Joab was one of the thirty; Elhanan the son of Dodo of Bethlehem, [25][f]Shammah of Harod, Elika of Harod, [26]Helez the Paltite, Ira the son of Ikkesh [g] of Tekoa, [27]Abiezer [h] of Anathoth, Mebunnai [i] the Hushathite, [28]Zalmon [j] the Ahohite, Maharai [k] of Netophah, [29]Heleb the son of Baanah [k] of Netophah, Ittai the son of Ribai of [l] Gibeah of the people of Benjamin, [30]Benaiah [m] of Pirathon, Hiddai of the brooks of [n] Gaash, [31]Abi-albon the Arbathite, Azmaveth of [o] Bahurim, [32][†]Eliahba the Shaalbonite, the sons of Jashen, Jonathan, [33] [p] Shammah the Hararite, Ahiam the son of Sharar the Hararite, [34]Eliphelet the son of Ahasbai [q] of Maacah, [r] Eliam the son of [s] Ahithophel of Gilo, [35]Hezro [12] [t] of Carmel, Paarai the Arbite, [36]Igal the son of Nathan [u] of Zobah, Bani the Gadite, [37]Zelek the Ammonite, Naharai [v] of Beeroth, the armor-bearer of Joab the son of Zeruiah, [38] [w] Ira the [x] Ithrite, Gareb the Ithrite, [39] [y] Uriah the Hittite: thirty-seven in all.

David’s Census

2 SAMUEL 24 [†] [z] [a] Again the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel, and he incited David against them, saying, [b] “Go, number Israel and Judah.” [2]So the king said to Joab, the commander of the army, [1] who was with him, “Go through all the tribes of Israel, [c] from Dan to Beersheba, and number the people, that I may know the number of the people.” [3][†]But Joab said to the king, [d] “May the Lord your God add to the people a hundred times as many as they are, while the eyes of my lord the king still see it, but why does my lord the king delight in this thing?” [4]But the king’s word prevailed against Joab and the commanders of the army. So Joab and the commanders of the army went out from the presence of the king to number the people of Israel. [5][†]They crossed the Jordan and began from [e] Aroer, [2] and from the city that is in the middle of the [f] valley, toward Gad and on to [g] Jazer. [6]Then they came to Gilead, and to Kadesh in the land of the Hittites; [3] and they came to Dan, and from Dan [4] they went around to [h] Sidon, [7]and came to the fortress of Tyre and to all the cities of the [i] Hivites and [i] Canaanites; and they went out to the Negeb of Judah at Beersheba. [8]So when they had gone through all the land, they came to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days. [9][†]And Joab gave the sum of the numbering of the people to the king: in Israel there were 800,000 valiant men [j] who drew the sword, and the men of Judah were 500,000.

The LORD's Judgment of David's Sin

[10][†]But [k] David's heart struck him after he had numbered the people. And David said to the LORD, [l] "I have sinned greatly in what I have done. But now, O LORD, please take away the iniquity of your servant, for I have done [m] very foolishly." [11]And when David arose in the morning, the word of the LORD came to [n] the prophet Gad, David's [o] seer, saying, [12]"Go and say to David, 'Thus says the LORD, Three things I offer [5] you. Choose one of them, that I may do it to you.'" [13][†]So Gad came to David and told him, and said to him, "Shall [p] three [6] years of famine come to you in your land? Or will you flee three months before your foes while they pursue you? Or shall there be three days' pestilence in your land? Now consider, and decide what answer I shall return to him who sent me." [14]Then David said to Gad, "I am in great distress. Let us fall into the hand of the LORD, [q] for his mercy is great; but let me not fall into the hand of man."

[15] [r] So the LORD sent a pestilence on Israel from the morning until the appointed time. And there died of the people from [s] Dan to Beersheba 70,000 men. [16]And when [t] the angel stretched out his hand toward Jerusalem [u] to destroy it, [v] the LORD relented from the calamity and said to the angel [u] who was working destruction among the people, "It is enough; now stay your hand." And [t] the angel of the LORD was by the threshing floor of [w] Araunah the Jebusite. [17][^][†]Then David spoke to the LORD when he saw the angel who was striking the people, and said, "Behold, I have sinned, and I have done wickedly. But these sheep, what have they done? Please let your hand be against me and against my father's house."

David Builds an Altar

[18][†]And Gad came that day to David and said to him, "Go up, raise an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of [x] Araunah the Jebusite." [19]So David went up at Gad's word, as the LORD commanded. [20][†]And when Araunah looked down, he saw the king and his servants coming on toward him. And Araunah went out and paid homage to the king with his face to the ground. 21And Araunah said, “Why has my lord the king come to his servant?” David said, “To buy the threshing floor from you, in order to build an altar to the LORD, that the plague [y] may be averted from the people.” 22Then Araunah said to David, “Let my lord the king take and offer up what seems good to him. Here are the oxen for the burnt offering and the [z] threshing sledges and the yokes of the oxen for the wood. 23[†]All this, O king, Araunah gives to the king.” And Araunah said to the king, “May the LORD your God [a] accept you.” 24But the king said to Araunah, “No, but I will buy it from you for a price. I will not offer burnt offerings to the LORD my God that cost me nothing.” So David bought the threshing floor and the oxen for fifty shekels [7] of silver. 25[†]And David built there an altar to the LORD and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings. [b] So the LORD responded to the plea for the land, and the plague was averted from Israel.

Study Notes for 2 Samuel

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:1–20:26 Story of King David. Most of 2 Samuel recounts the rise of David's kingship, first over Judah and then over all Israel, and the major challenge to David's rule resulting from David's own sins.

The Setting of 2 Samuel

c. 1000 B.C.

The book of 2 Samuel recounts David's reign over Israel and his battles to establish Israel as the dominant power in Syria and Palestine. David expanded Israel's borders from Saul's fledgling territory until, by the end of his reign, he controlled all of Israel, Edom, Moab, Ammon, Syria, and Zobah. Other kingdoms, such as Tyre and Hamath, established treaties with him.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:1–27 David and the Death of Saul. The earliest history of the Israelite monarchy now moves into its second stage, the era of King David. The narrator first looks back to the end of Saul's life (the death of Saul and his sons at Mount Gilboa; 1 Samuel 31). David, who is in Ziklag, hears of the death of Saul. But instead of rejoicing, he mourns Saul's death and executes the man who claims to have killed Saul. His elegy shows his deep personal grief over the deaths of Saul and Jonathan in battle. David was not a vengeful rebel against Saul, and thus can receive the kingship in good conscience.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:1–2 Verse 1 follows the events of 1 Samuel 30; in 2 Sam. 1:2 an Amalekite man (cf. v. 8) arrives to report the events of 1 Samuel 31. Saul probably died at about the same time that David returned to Ziklag, since the Amalekite arrived on the third day after David's return. The torn clothes and dirt are signs of mourning (see note on 1 Sam. 4:12).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:6–10 So I stood beside him and killed him (v. 10). The narrator (whom readers should believe) in 1 Samuel 31 says that Saul killed himself. Having already read that, readers know that this man is lying to gain favor with the person who was most likely to replace Saul as king. Saul had destroyed most of the Amalekites (1 Samuel 15), but since this man was the son of a sojourner (2 Sam. 1:13), his presence in Israel is no surprise. The crown and the armlet are the royal insignia; the crown was given to the king at the time of his investiture (2 Kings 11:12); "armlet" appears elsewhere only in Num. 31:50, where it is an ornament worn by Midianites.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:12 David and his men fasted as a sign of mourning (as in 1 Sam. 31:13; 2 Sam. 3:35). After this summary statement, the story resumes the actual dialogue between David and the young man who brought this news of Saul's death.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:14 How is it you were not afraid … to destroy the LORD's anointed? See note on 1 Sam. 24:6. As a sojourner who was subject to the laws of Israel (Lev. 24:22), the Amalekite should have recognized the sanctity of Saul as his king (contrast Saul's armor-bearer; 1 Sam. 31:4–5). David himself had refrained from killing Saul (1 Samuel 24; 26). Clearly, David did not ascend to the throne through violence or disloyalty (cf. note on 2 Sam. 1:1–27).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:15 Go, execute him. David believed the Amalekite's story (but see note on vv. 6–10), and on that basis had him put to death. David's action provides clear evidence that he had no complicity in Saul's death. Though the Amalekite intended to win David's favor, David made it clear that his action constituted the murder of "the LORD's anointed" (v. 14), for which the just punishment would be execution.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:16 Your blood be on your head means that the Amalekite (not David) is responsible for his own death (see Josh. 2:19; 1 Kings 2:32, 37; Ezek. 33:4).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:17–27 And David lamented. David's lament is a profound expression of public and personal grief. As part of the historical records of David's reign, the lament provides lasting evidence of David's innocent ascent to the throne (cf. notes on vv. 1–27 and 14). Though grievously wronged by Saul, David nonetheless chose to remember Saul in a generous way, setting an example of graciously emphasizing the good that someone has done after that person dies. The recurring theme of how the mighty have fallen (vv. 19, 25, 27) provides the structure of David's lament, which exhorts Israel first to mourn Saul (v. 23) and then to mourn my brother Jonathan (v. 26), then closes with the repetition of the haunting refrain, "How the mighty have fallen" (v. 27).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:18 The ESV text, saying it should be taught, refers to the lament that follows. The Hebrew text (see ESV footnote) is "the Bow should be taught to the people of Judah." This may be a heading, meaning, "In order to give the men of Judah military training (with the bow and other weapons)." Compare the heading of Psalm 60, "A Miktam of David; for instruction." Or, "the Bow" may be the name of the melody for this lament. The Book of Jashar is a non-biblical written source which also included Josh. 10:12–13 and, according to the Septuagint text, Solomon's poem in 1 Kings 8:12–13.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:19 How the mighty have fallen! This is the theme line of David's lament for Saul and Jonathan, repeated in v. 25 and at the end in v. 27. Verses 19 and 25 form a literary "envelope" (or inclusio) that constitutes an inverted distant parallelism. That is, v. 19a (Your glory … is slain on your high places) is parallel to v. 25b ("Jonathan lies slain on your high places"), while v. 19b ("How the mighty have fallen") is repeated in v. 25a.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:20 Gath and Ashkelon are Philistine cities. David cannot bear to think about the Philistine victory celebrations (cf. the Israelite women rejoicing in 1 Sam. 18:6–7).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:21 let there be no dew or rain … nor fields of offerings! David wishes for lack of blessing on the place where Saul and Jonathan died. The line the shield of the mighty was defiled is paralleled by the next line, the shield of Saul, not anointed with oil (i.e., "not in proper condition," since leather shields were treated with oil).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:22 Blood and fat are often used as a word pair to refer to the whole of a sacrifice. For bow of Jonathan, see 1 Sam. 20:20.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:23 The term lovely could be applied to outstanding "heroes" in Ugaritic. In life and in death means "all the time." One might wonder whether Saul and Jonathan were really "in life … not divided." In 1 Samuel 14 Jonathan acted without his father's knowledge and readily criticized him, and they disagreed over David (see esp. 1 Sam. 22:8). Yet from the fact that the Amalekite specified that "his [Saul's] son Jonathan" was dead (2 Sam. 1:4), it appears that Saul continued to treat him as his heir. Apparently they were able to maintain a relationship, working together and eventually fighting and dying together for Israel. This song, whose purpose is to celebrate and idealize, would not delve into these details.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:24 Scarlet cloth, colored with a dye made from the dried bodies of an insect, was a sign of prosperity (Prov. 31:21).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 1:26 Very pleasant refers to the way in which the relationship between David and Jonathan was uniquely "good," i.e., in a "pleasant" or "lovely" way (v. 23; cf. 23:1, where the same word is translated "sweet" in the phrase "sweet psalmist of Israel"). Jonathan deeply loved and supported David (as seen in 1 Sam. 18:1–20:42; 23:16–18), in accordance with their covenant with the Lord. surpassing the love of women. David's remark does not carry any sexual overtones. Rather, he is calling attention to Jonathan's radical self-denial in giving up any right to the throne of Israel (1 Sam. 23:17); instead, he gave his absolute support to David as the Lord's choice to succeed Jonathan's father Saul, even to the point of risking his life for David (1 Sam. 20:30–33).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:1–5:5 David Becomes King. Judah makes David its king. Saul's general Abner, however, seeks to restore Saul's kingdom with Saul's son Ish-bosheth as king. During the struggle between the two kingdoms, Abner, who has decided to go with David, is killed by David's commander Joab. Later, Ish-bosheth is killed by two of his own men, but David executes them for murder. With no candidate for king in the house of Saul, all of Israel unites to anoint the hero David as king. There are many cases of Israelites' shedding the blood of fellow Israelites, and this is tragic; but the narrator holds David innocent in each case, and thus he is qualified to be king over all Israel.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:1–3 With Saul no longer pursuing him and Ziklag burned, David, after inquiring of the Lord (as in 1 Sam. 23:2), moves to the Hebron area with his family and men. His wives were from the region, and he had sent parts of the spoil from his battle with the Amalekites to the elders of the area (1 Sam. 30:26–31). Hebron was the most important city of southern Judah and not far from Bethlehem. It was associated with Abraham (Gen. 13:18; 23:2; 25:10) and was a Levitical city (Josh. 21:13).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:4b–7 See 1 Sam. 31:11–13. David seems to be presenting himself as Saul's successor and suggesting that Jabesh-gilead should enter into a treaty relationship with Judah; Gilead, however, soon becomes part of Ish-bosheth's kingdom (2 Sam. 2:8–9). David is not motivated by mere politics when he sends messengers to Jabesh-gilead. He is moved by their faithfulness toward their mutual sovereign and wants to reward them with blessings from the Lord and with his own work on their behalf.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:4 Judah has apparently decided that having a king is a good thing; but rather than seeking out a relative of Saul (who was from the tribe of Benjamin, 1 Sam. 9:1), the people choose one of their own as king, the hero David, who was chosen by the Lord (1 Sam. 16:1–23; 25:30). Even in Saul's time, Judah formed a separate part of the army (1 Sam. 11:8; 15:4), and now it was prepared to act independently from the rest of Israel.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:8–9 Abner tries to continue Saul's kingdom, even on a reduced scale. (For Abner, see note on 1 Sam. 14:50–51.) Saul's son Ish-bosheth appears as Eshbaal in the genealogies in 1 Chron. 8:33; 9:39. It is uncertain whether he is the Ishvi of 1 Sam. 14:49. (For his name, see note on 2 Sam. 4:4.) From these verses and 3:9, it appears that Ish-bosheth was little more than a puppet for Abner. Mahanaim, a city on the Jabbok River, was apparently the capital of Gilead. The fact that the capital had to be in Transjordan suggests the precariousness of Ish-bosheth's reign. Gilead and the Ashurites and Jezreel refers to the northern and Transjordanian part of the country, Ephraim and Benjamin to the central and main part. Ish-bosheth did not necessarily have real control over all this area, especially since the Philistines apparently were in the Jezreel Valley (1 Sam. 31:7). All Israel is a summary description of the area just mentioned.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:10–11 For a time, there are two kings in the land of Israel. David has apparently decided that his allegiance to Saul as God's anointed king does not extend to Saul's descendants, as succeeding events will show. For example, in 4:11 he refers to Ish-bosheth just as a "righteous man," not as a king or an anointed one. Ish-bosheth reigned two years, but David's reign as king at Hebron in Judah lasted seven and a half years. It probably took some time after Ish-bosheth's death for Israel to recognize David (5:1); the period when David was king in Hebron over all Israel before capturing Jerusalem (5:5) may also be included in the seven years and six months.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:12 Gibeon is about 6 miles (9.7 km) north-northwest of Jerusalem. The "pool" (v. 13) is probably the huge round cistern cut into the rock on the north side of the site of Gibeon. Excavations at Gibeon have uncovered an elaborate water system. One part of the system is a large, circular shaft (37 feet [11 m] in diameter), which was cut into bedrock to a depth of 82 feet (25 m). At the bottom was the water table that formed a pool. The pool was reached by a staircase also cut into the limestone. This is probably the pool mentioned in the present text (cf. Jer. 41:12).

David's Struggle for Power

c. 1010 B.C.

Immediately after Saul's death, a struggle for power ensued between David and Ish-bosheth (or Eshbaal), Saul's youngest and only surviving son. David ruled over his native tribe of Judah from Hebron, while Ish-bosheth ruled over the rest of Israel from Mahanaim across the Jordan River, and they fought against each other for seven years. David's power continued to grow, and eventually Ish-bosheth and his commander Abner were assassinated, leaving David as the sole ruler of all Israel.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:13 This marks the first appearance of Joab the son of Zeruiah, though Abishai was referred to as his brother in 1 Sam. 26:6. Joab was commander over the army (2 Sam. 8:16) and appears frequently in 2 Samuel, often as a mover of events. Since Abner knows him and his brothers well (2:20–22), Joab probably came to Saul's court soon after David's rise to prominence. He was one of the three sons (Joab, Abishai, and Asahel) of David's sister Zeruiah, and thus was David's nephew (v. 18). Joab's father probably died young, since he had a grave in Bethlehem (v. 32) and it was unusual for a man to be known by his mother's name. Zeruiah is not identified in Samuel, but according to 1 Chron. 2:16, she and Abigail, the mother of Amasa (2 Sam. 17:25), were sisters of David and his brothers. Abigail is identified in 2 Sam. 17:25 as "the daughter of Nahash, sister of Zeruiah." Therefore, it appears that Abigail and probably Zeruiah were maternal half-sisters of David by an earlier marriage of their mother. (David's sister Abigail is a different Abigail from Nabal's wife, who later became David's wife; see note on 1 Sam. 25:3.)

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:17 This transitional verse connects the first episode, dealing with the fight at Gibeon, and the second episode, where the death of Asahel is recounted. After this episode, the enmity between the surviving sons of Zeruiah and Abner, the killer of Asahel, will be a major factor.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:19 Asahel was one of David's mighty warriors, "one of the thirty" (23:24; see also 1 Chron. 11:26; 27:7).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:23 Abner, an experienced warrior, apparently stopped suddenly, thrusting his spear backward so forcefully that it went right through Asahel's body as he ran into it.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:28 Here, as in 18:16 and 20:22, Joab uses a trumpet to summon an army to mark the end of fighting after a victory.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 2:29 The Arabah is part of the Jordan Valley rift that is south of the Dead Sea.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:1–4:12 Chapters 3–4 describe the slow steps of the process whereby David grew stronger and stronger (3:1) and thus became king over all Israel. A major concern of the author is to show that David was not guilty of involvement in the death of Abner or Ish-bosheth.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:2–5 A list of David's sons born in Hebron. David's sons Amnon and Absalom come to the fore in chs. 13–18, and the struggle for the succession between Adonijah and Solomon is described in 1 Kings 1–2. The other sons are not mentioned in the narratives of Samuel–Kings. It is assumed that Chileab (called Daniel in 1 Chron. 3:1) died young, since he is not mentioned as a possible successor in 1 Kings 1. After the deaths of Amnon (2 Sam. 13:28–29) and Absalom (18:15), Adonijah is apparently the eldest surviving son of David. Geshur was north of the area controlled by Saul's house, so David's marriage with the daughter of its king was one of the steps in strengthening him against Ish-bosheth (3:1). Absalom apparently named a daughter after his mother Maacah (1 Kings 15:2; 2 Chron. 11:20–22).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:6–39 Abner, after a quarrel with Ish-bosheth, convinces the elders of Israel that they should go with David. But Abner is killed by Joab. The author repeatedly stresses that David had not consented to this (vv. 21, 26, 28, 37); indeed, since Abner was plotting to make David king of Israel, it would seem that David would have had nothing to gain and something to lose from Abner's death.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:7 Saul's concubine Rizpah had borne him two sons. She would later protect their bodies after their deaths (ch. 21). Taking a king's wives seems to have been considered a prerogative of the throne (see 12:8; 16:21–22; 1 Kings 2:22), though that is not necessarily what Abner had in mind, even if the accusation about his relationship with Rizpah was true.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:9–10 As Saul's general, Abner must have known about Saul's recognition of David as his successor (1 Sam. 24:20). People in general also seem to have had knowledge about a promise of God to David (2 Sam. 3:18; see also 1 Sam. 24:4; 25:30).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:12–15 David clearly does not mind taking the Israelite kingdom from Ish-bosheth, and he stresses his closeness to Saul as Saul's son-in-law. In 1 Sam. 18:25–27, David gave Saul 200 Philistine foreskins though Saul had demanded only 100 as a bride-price, so the extra hundred was in essence a gift. David here just states that he has legally paid the bride-price. Apparently because David never divorced Michal even though her father Saul had given her to another man (1 Sam. 25:44), he still describes her as his wife. David presumably expects Abner to support David's argument when the matter is discussed in Ish-bosheth's court.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:17–19 The Israelites, even the members of Saul's own tribe of Benjamin, seem to think they are getting nowhere with Ish-bosheth as king.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:22–30 Here, as in 18:14 and 20:10, the motive for Joab's actions in killing Abner can be seen either as concern for David's position (3:25), concern for his own position (esp. since David had not told him what was going on, v. 23), personal revenge (v. 30), or a mixture. The readers are not told exactly what part Abishai (v. 30) plays, but he seems to have been a loyal supporter of his brother Joab (see 10:9–12; 18:2; 20:6–10; see also note on 8:13–14).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:25 Know your going out and your coming in mainly refers to military actions (as in 1 Sam. 18:13). In other words, Joab claims that Abner came as a spy.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:26 Sirah is about 2.5 miles (4 km) north of Hebron.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:27 into the midst of the gate. City gates were elaborate structures.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:28–39 Joab is apparently too important and useful for David to punish him for killing Abner, so he does the best he can by cursing him, having a funeral for Abner, and publicly mourning and chanting a lament for him. This is the only funeral described in detail in the OT. As elsewhere, tearing clothes, wearing sackcloth, and fasting are features of mourning. All Israel refers to Abner's own countrymen. It was important for David and his future kingdom that "all Israel" know it was not the king's will to put to death Abner son of Ner (see note on 1 Sam. 14:50–51).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:29 One who holds a spindle is one forced to do the work of spinning, i.e., in that culture, a woman.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 3:36 everything that the king did pleased all the people. The remarkable result of God's blessing on these initial days of David's reign.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:1–12 Chapter 4 relates the death of Saul's son, the rival king Ish-bosheth.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:2–3 Beeroth is about 2 miles south of Gibeon and is one of the cities, led by Gibeon, that tricked Joshua into making a treaty with them (Josh. 9:17). The Beerothites had probably fled to Gittaim (which according to Neh. 11:33 was a city in Benjamin) at the time Saul put the Gibeonites to death (see 2 Sam. 21:1). Apparently after that the Benjaminites, including Rimmon and his family, came to live there. If this is correct, it suggests that the incident of the Gibeonites occurred early in Saul's reign, since Rimmon, the father of Baanah and Rechab, is described as being "from Beeroth." This passage stresses that those who killed Ish-bosheth were not partisans of David but were from Saul's own tribe.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:4 The information about Mephibosheth is probably put here to show why there was no move to make him king after Ish-bosheth's death—he was still a child, and he was crippled. He is further mentioned in 9:1–13; 16:1–4; 19:24–29; and 21:7. (The Mephibosheth in 21:8 is a different person, the son of Saul and Rizpah.) Apparently his real name was "Merib-baal" (1 Chron. 8:34; 9:40). Because "baal" could mean "lord" in general, the name probably referred to the Lord of Israel (as in 2 Sam. 5:20), but at some point, in order to avoid using the name of the god Baal, it was euphemistically changed in Samuel to "Mephibosheth," boshet meaning "shame." Similarly, Saul's son Ish-bosheth is called "Eshbaal" in 1 Chron. 8:33 and 9:39, but "Ish-bosheth" in Samuel; and Jerubbaal (Judg. 9:1, 57) is called "Jerubbesheth" in 2 Sam. 11:21.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:7 This verse is an expansion of the previous verse.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:8 Saul, your enemy, who sought your life. It is true that Saul had sought David's life. Nevertheless, David had already rejected killing Saul (1 Sam. 24:4–6; 26:8–9), and furthermore, that did not provide an excuse to kill a "righteous man" (2 Sam. 4:11).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:10–11 This refers to the incident in 1:13–16. The Amalekite had at least given the excuse that Saul had requested his own death, but Ish-bosheth's death was outright murder. Yet David says nothing here about Ish-bosheth as the Lord's anointed.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 4:12 Unlike the case of Joab, there is no problem with executing the killers of Ish-bosheth. For hanging a body after death, see 21:6 and Josh. 10:26.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:1–25 It is not clear how soon the events of ch. 5 followed those of ch. 4 (see note on 2:10–11). Presumably the deaths of Abner and Ish-bosheth caused a shock among David's supporters in the north (3:19) and caused them to put off accepting David as king. Some of the shock seems to have remained at the time this account was written. David apparently just bided his time, waiting for the elders of Israel to decide that they wanted him as king.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:1–5 At last, David is accepted and anointed as king over the entire house of Israel. First, messengers from all the tribes come and ask him to become king; then the elders of Israel come themselves. David makes a covenant with them as representatives of the nation (cf. 1 Sam. 10:25), and they anoint him king over Israel (cf. 1 Sam. 11:15). David is one of them (see Deut. 17:15), he is a proven military leader, and he is the chosen of the Lord. Many critical scholars argue that the Bible contains little historically reliable information regarding David and his rule. Some believe it is mere fabrication. But no persuasive evidence contradicting the biblical account has been found. In 1993, an inscription was found at Tell Dan that mentions the "house of David," and it dates to the ninth century B.C. The term "house of David" may also appear on the Moabite stone that comes from the same century.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:1 we are your bone and flesh. Even though there is a distinct division between Judah and the rest of Israel, they still recognize each other as kin (cf. "brothers," 2:26–27).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:6–25 Jerusalem, the City of David. David captures the Jebusite city of Jerusalem to serve as the capital of his united Israel. He builds a palace in his royal city and continues to have children there. He also defeats the Philistines.

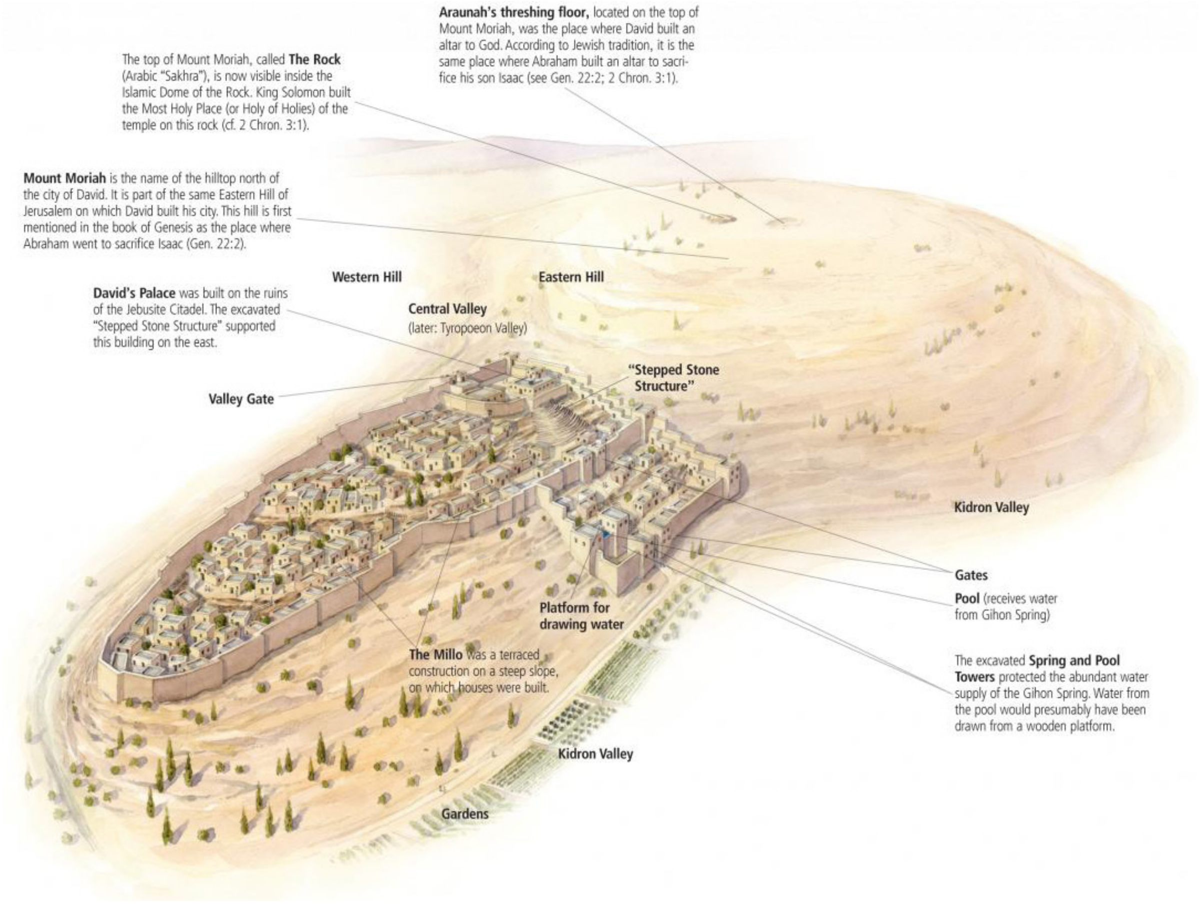
Jerusalem in the Time of David (c. 1010–970 B.C.)

About four millennia ago, Melchizedek was king of Jerusalem, which was then called Salem (Gen. 14:18). This was an unwalled city, which was taken over in c. 1850 B.C. by the Jebusites, who built a city wall around it and called it Jebus (cf. 1 Chron. 11:4).

King David captured this city after having ruled for seven years in Hebron (2 Sam. 5:5). The city was strongly fortified, especially the area around the Gihon Spring, where massive towers dating from this period have been excavated. The Jebusites were so confident of their fortifications that they taunted David, saying that even the blind and the lame would prevent him from capturing their city (2 Sam. 5:6).

However, Joab, David's commander-in-chief, managed to secretly enter the city through its water system and open the gates for David to take control (1 Chron. 11:6). The Jebusite Citadel was destroyed and replaced by the "stronghold of Zion, that is, the city of David" (2 Sam. 5:7).

Later on in his life, David built an altar on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite, which stopped a plague sent by God upon Israel from reaching Jerusalem (2 Sam. 24:18–25).



Araunah's threshing floor, located on the top of Mount Moriah, was the place where David built an altar to God. According to Jewish tradition, it is the same place where Abraham built an altar to sacrifice his son Isaac (see Gen. 22:2; 2 Chron. 3:1).

The top of Mount Moriah, called The Rock (Arabic "Sakhra"), is now visible inside the Islamic Dome of the Rock. King Solomon built the Most Holy Place (or Holy of Holies) of the temple on this rock (cf. 2 Chron. 3:1).

Mount Moriah is the name of the hilltop north of the city of David. It is part of the same Eastern Hill of Jerusalem on which David built his city. This hill is first mentioned in the book of Genesis as the place where Abraham went to sacrifice Isaac (Gen. 22:2).

David's Palace was built on the ruins of the Jebusite Citadel. The excavated "Stepped Stone Structure" supported this building on the east.

The Millo was a terraced construction on a steep slope, on which houses were built.

The excavated Spring and Pool Towers protected the abundant water supply of the Gihon Spring. Water from the pool would presumably have been drawn from a wooden platform.

David Captures the Stronghold of Zion

c. 1005 B.C.

After securing his reign over all Israel, David moved his capital from Hebron, a southern city of Judah, to a more central and tribally neutral location at Jerusalem. At the time, Jerusalem (called "the stronghold of Zion") was held by the Jebusites, and its terraced defensive walls and nearby steep hills and valleys made it seem impenetrable. But David sent men up a water shaft (believed by some to be Warren’s Shaft) to capture the stronghold, and he renamed it the city of David.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:6–13 The account of David's kingship over Israel starts with the capture of Jerusalem, on the boundary between Judah and Benjamin. It had not been controlled by any tribe, and thus it was both symbolically and geographically better suited to be the capital of all Israel than Hebron (in central Judah). Jerusalem was the "Salem" of Melchizedek (Gen. 14:18). It has been fortified since the Middle Bronze Age, i.e., the first half of the second millennium B.C. In the second half of the millennium it was one of the city-states of Canaan that was under the influence of Egypt. Several letters from the king of Jerusalem to the pharaoh exist among the fourteenth-century Amarna letters. The Jebusites are listed among the Canaanites in Gen. 10:16 and, broadly speaking, were considered to be among the Amorites (Josh. 10:5). The city was too strong to be conquered at the time of Joshua (Josh. 15:63; Judg. 1:21). The Jebusite city, the stronghold of Zion, was located on the western slope of the Kidron Valley above the city's water source, the spring of Gihon. An extensive network of water tunnels has been excavated, one of which was probably the water shaft through which David's men entered the city. This water shaft is often identified with "Warren's Shaft," which is directly over the water channel near the spring, though recent archaeological finds have challenged this. According to 1 Chron. 11:6, Joab led the attack and was therefore made David's chief commander.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:6–8 the blind and the lame will ward you off. The Jebusites probably meant that the fortifications were so strong that the city needed no able-bodied defenders. David quotes their words in ordering the attack, referring to the Jebusite defenders as "the blind and the lame." The blind and the lame shall not come into the house may mean that the Jebusites were not allowed at David's court.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:6 The Canaanite or Jebusite city of Jerusalem was located on a hill known as "Ophel." It is located in the southeastern part of the modern city. The Ophel was inhabited as far back as the Chalcolithic period (3rd millennium B.C.). The city is mentioned in Egyptian texts from the twentieth century B.C.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:8 water shaft. See note on vv. 6–13.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:9 the Millo. Cf. 1 Kings 9:15, 24; 11:27; 1 Chron. 11:8; 2 Chron. 32:5. The Hebrew word means "the fill." It was a series of terrace walls, built on a steep slope, supporting the fill behind it in order to create level areas. Houses were then built on these artificial platforms, which were connected by narrow staircases. It was apparently the king's duty to look after this construction. During heavy rainfalls, the fill became heavy and increased the pressure on the terrace walls, thus requiring regular maintenance of these walls. When this construction was neglected, the houses would fall down the steep slope and the city would disintegrate. Remains of these supporting walls have been found on the eastern slope of the city of David.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:10 For the LORD, the God of hosts, was with him, as he was when David was first anointed in 1 Sam. 16:18.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:11 Hiram king of Tyre is mentioned in 1 Kings 5:1–18 as a friend of Solomon who provides the cedars to build the temple, just as here he provides David with cedars to build his house. Tyre was a trading empire, and it was in its interest to keep the inland trade routes, especially those through Israel to Egypt, open to its merchants. According to Josephus, however, Hiram did not begin to reign until near the end of David's own reign. If that is correct, either this construction should be dated toward the end of David's reign or the Hiram in 1 Kings is the successor (probably son) of the Hiram here, who continued his father's good relationship with David. The cedars of Lebanon (which have now all but disappeared) were famous throughout the Near East. There are Assyrian reliefs of men cutting them down and transporting them to Nineveh.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:13–14 This is a summary statement about David's kingship in Jerusalem (cf. 3:2–5); it does not mean that these sons were all born before 5:17. The birth of Solomon is mentioned in 12:24. None of the other sons play a major role in the Samuel–Kings narratives. The parallel passages 1 Chron. 3:5–8 and 14:4–7 list two more sons in addition, and comparison with a Dead Sea Scroll suggests that the two names might have been omitted in the Masoretic text of Samuel. Nathan (2 Sam. 5:14) was an ancestor of Jesus (Luke 3:31; see note on Luke 3:23–38), as was Solomon (Matt. 1:6–7).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:17–21 Until now the Philistines may have considered that David was to some extent still their vassal (1 Samuel 27); at least they must have been happy about his struggle with Ish-bosheth. But when David becomes king over Israel (i.e., both Israel and Judah) and even captures Jerusalem, they realize that he is a threat. went down to the stronghold. This is probably a stronghold toward the Philistine country. The Valley of Rephaim is the valley leading toward Jerusalem from the southwest. The incident in 2 Sam. 23:13–17 may have happened at this time. David inquired of the LORD as he did in 1 Sam. 23:2, 11; 30:8; and 2 Sam. 2:1. like a breaking flood. Throughout the ancient Near East writings, battles are described in terms of floods. “Baal” in Baal-perazim is here a common noun meaning “lord” (see note on 4:4). The Philistines left their idols there (5:21) is a reversal of 1 Samuel 4, where the Philistines carried off the ark of the covenant. According to 1 Chron. 14:12, David had the idols burned.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 5:22–25 It may be that the sound of marching was a distinct sound caused by the Lord that frightened the Philistines (as in 2 Kings 7:6). Another possibility is that the Philistines knew the sound was the sound of trees, so David was able to use the sound as cover for his attack. By this victory, David drove the Philistines out of the central hill country.

c. 1000 B.C.

Soon after David moved his capital to Jerusalem, the Philistines prepared to attack David’s forces at the nearby Valley of Rephaim. David defeated them, but they regrouped and prepared for a second attack. This time David attacked them from the rear and struck them down from Geba (or perhaps Gibeon) to Gezer.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:1–23 Zion, the Place of Worship. Jerusalem was not only to be the political capital of a united Israel, it was to be the religious center also. David brought the ark of the Lord of hosts from Baale-judah, where it had been most of the time ever since the Philistines returned it in 1 Samuel 6. Psalm 132 refers to this occasion.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:1–2 Baale-judah. In 1 Sam. 7:1, the name of the city where the ark was kept is given as Kiriath-jearim; the fact that the name by David's time was Baale-judah suggests that 1 Sam. 4:1–7:2 existed as an earlier set of narratives and was carefully fit to the larger context of the books. the LORD of hosts who sits enthroned on the cherubim. See note on 1 Sam. 4:3–4.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:3–4 They carried the ark on a new cart. Presumably this refers to a ritually clean cart, as the Philistines had done when returning the ark (1 Sam. 6:7). But that was not the method that the Lord had commanded his people to use. Rather, God's command was that the ark should be carried by the Levites, using poles placed through rings on the sides of the ark (see Ex. 25:14–15; Num. 4:15; 7:9; Deut. 10:8; 31:9, 25; cf. Josh. 3:15). Uzzah and Ahio were probably brothers of Eleazar (cf. 1 Sam. 7:1), though they may have been sons, since it is phonetically possible that "Uzzah" is a variation of "Eleazar," similar to the variants "Uzziel" in 1 Chron. 25:4 and "Azarel" in 1 Chron. 25:18 or King Uzziah (2 Kings 15:32–34; 2 Chron. 26:1) and Azariah (2 Kings 15:1–7).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:5 Before the LORD, as in Ex. 28:29, means that the Lord himself was present above the ark (see note on 1 Sam. 4:3–4). Both this passage and 1 Sam. 4:1–7:2 show that the ark was not just an arbitrary symbol of God's presence, but God himself manifested his presence in a special way where the ark was, so the ark should not be treated lightly. with songs and lyres. Music is part of worship in most societies, and it was an important part of Israelite worship. The prophets in 1 Sam. 10:5 were accompanied by harp, tambourine, flute, and lyre. David sings God's praises in 2 Sam. 22:50, and in his old age he organized musicians to praise the Lord in the temple (1 Chron. 15:16; 23:1–5). The Psalms contain many references to using music in worship, as in Psalms 32; 71; 92; 149; and 150. For descriptions of lyres, harps, and tambourines, see note on 1 Sam. 10:5. The word translated castanets appears only here in the Bible. Since it means "shaking," "castanets" is a reasonable guess. It might also be a "sistrum," an instrument consisting of metal rings or disks shaken on rods. There were various types of cymbals in the ancient Near East; some were several inches in diameter. Some were held upright while playing, like the modern orchestral cymbal; in other cases, the two cymbals of the pair were held horizontally with rods, one above the other. If one follows the alternative translation in the esv footnote (reading "fir trees" for "songs") the meaning may be "branches of fir trees" (cf. Matt. 21:8), or "instruments made of fir wood."

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:6–11 and God struck him down (v. 7). The death of Uzzah resembles the outbreak against Beth-shemesh in 1 Sam. 6:19. Touching the ark was a direct violation of God's law (Num. 4:15). Even though Uzzah's motive was clearly to prevent desecration, his fault was occasioned by the earlier mistake in the mode of transporting the ark (see note on 2 Sam. 6:3–4). afraid of the LORD. This incident was a dramatic reminder to David of God's holiness and of the necessity of approaching God only according to his revealed instruction, so much so that David was afraid even to bring the ark back to Jerusalem.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:11 and the LORD blessed Obed-edom. The presence of the Lord brings much blessing to the household where the Lord is honored.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:12–15 those who bore the ark. This time the ark is carried, as is proper (v. 13; 1 Chron. 15:12–15; see also 2 Sam. 15:24). The text may indicate that only one sacrifice was offered at the beginning of the journey, when they had gone six steps. But some interpreters think it means that David sacrificed every six steps. There are other references to repeated sacrifices in relation to processions in Near Eastern literature. Solomon also sacrificed a huge number of animals when he dedicated the temple (1 Kings 8:63). he sacrificed. Here and in 2 Sam. 6:17 it is doubtful that David himself killed all the animals, but it was done at his direction, and this emphasizes that he was the central figure in the retrieval of the ark. David's ephod was the simple linen robe worn by priests (cf. 1 Sam. 2:18). The ram's horn was an instrument used especially for signaling. with rejoicing. David is filled with joy because the ark coming to Jerusalem means that God himself is bringing the blessing of his presence to David and his kingdom.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:14 David danced before the LORD. The term for "dancing" in vv. 14 and 16 does not appear elsewhere in Scripture and seems to describe a whirling dance. Dancing expresses joy (cf. Ex. 15:20–21; Ps. 30:11) and can be a part of jubilant worship (cf. Ps. 149:3; 150:4).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:16–19 Michal … despised him in her heart. Michal is identified not as David's wife but as the daughter of Saul, and she shares in Saul's lack of spiritual discernment. She should have been rejoicing with David "and all the house of Israel" (v. 5) at this great occasion, for the Lord himself was coming to dwell in the midst of his people in Jerusalem. The motif of a royal woman looking out a palace window is common in the Bible (see Judg. 5:28; 2 Kings 9:30), as well as on ivories discovered in Syria, Phoenicia, and Israel. The tent corresponds to the tabernacle of Exodus 26. These gift items are mentioned in a list formula, as in 1 Sam. 6:17 and 25:18.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 6:20–23 Although David returns to the members of his household for the purpose of blessing them, he is greeted by his wife Michal's sarcastic comment, "How the king of Israel honored himself today." No doubt she felt he should have worn his royal robes as would befit a king, but David stresses that he was dressed simply before the Lord. Michal accuses David of uncovering himself, which seems to be a reflection more of Michal's bitterness and contempt for David than a true statement of fact. The "linen ephod" worn by David (v. 14) was a simple white garment worn by priests in the fulfillment of their duties (1 Sam. 22:18). had no child. The text does not say what caused her childlessness, leaving the reader to reflect on whether it was a natural result of the rift between Michal and David, or whether it was due to God's judgment of Michal (as would seem to be the case) for her contempt toward David in his divinely appointed role as king of Israel.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:1–29 Davidic Covenant: Eternal Throne. This chapter, with its messianic promise, is a key passage in the history of salvation. The Lord promises to make one family, that of David, the representative of his people forever. Verses 8–17 are often described as the "Davidic covenant," even though the term "covenant" does not appear there. But in Ps. 89:3 this promise is described using the words, "I have made a covenant with my chosen one." David expresses his desire to build a house for the Lord. But the Lord does not approve, and instead states on his own initiative that he will establish David's house (i.e., dynasty) eternally, promising him an eternal throne: "And your house and your kingdom shall be made sure forever before me. Your throne shall be established forever" (2 Sam. 7:16). This is not, however, a guarantee that every occupant of the throne of David will himself enjoy the blessings without regard for his own piety (v. 14). Psalm 132:11 says that on this occasion the Lord swore to David with “a sure oath,” from which he would not turn back, that “one of the sons of your body I will set on your throne” (cf. 2 Sam. 7:12). This points to Solomon, who would “sit on the throne of Israel” and build “the house for the name of the LORD” (1 Kings 8:20), and eventually to Jesus, the Messiah who would sit on the throne eternally, thus establishing David’s throne forever (2 Sam. 7:16; Luke 1:32–33). See 2 Chron. 13:5; 21:7; Ps. 89:20–38; Isa. 55:3; Jer. 33:17, 20–22; etc.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:1–3 David contrasts his own cedar house (5:11) with the tent that houses the ark (6:17). It was common in the ancient Near East for a king to build a temple to honor his god. the LORD is with you. Nathan probably means these words as a general comment on David and gives his own opinion as David’s counselor. That night, however, he receives a specific revelation from God, which he delivers to David as a prophet, the messenger of God.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:6–7 I have not lived in a house. Nothing in the regulations about the ark in Exodus suggests that it was placed in a building; rather, it needed carrying poles (Ex. 25:10–16). The shrine at Shiloh did have a door and was called a “house” or “temple” (1 Sam. 1:9; 3:3, 15; see note on 1 Sam. 1:7, 9), but even a tent could be called a “house,” and since there is also a reference to the “entrance of the tent of meeting,” it may be that some kind of structure was built around the tent at Shiloh. The ark had also been in the house of Abinadab (2 Sam. 6:3) for several decades, but that was considered a temporary expedient.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:8–17 God will not let David build him a house; rather, he will build David a house, i.e., a ruling dynasty (see note on 1 Chron. 17:10b–14). According to 1 Kings 5:3, Solomon said David was not able to build the temple “because of the warfare with which his enemies surrounded him,” and in 1 Chron. 22:8 David says the Lord said he could not do so because “you have shed much blood and have waged great wars. You shall not build a house to my name, because you have shed so much blood before me on the earth” (see note on 1 Chron. 22:6–16).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:12 Your offspring after you refers to Solomon.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:14 Hebrews 1:5 applies the words I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son to Christ because, as Messiah, Jesus inherits David's role as representative of God's people (his "son," Ex. 4:22–23; cf. Ps. 89:26–27).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:18–29 In this moving prayer, David uses the phrase O Lord God (or "O LORD God") eight times, expressing his close intimacy with his God. This is instruction for mankind (v. 19) means that all people can learn about God's faithfulness and grace from his promises to David. The phrase could also be translated, "Is this your custom for mankind?" i.e., "You do not usually do this for humans." there is none like you, and there is no God besides you (v. 22). This is an explicit statement of monotheism (cf. 1 Sam. 2:2). Then follows the expression who is like your people Israel, which describes the incomparability (hence the uniqueness) of Israel, God's people, whom he has redeemed from Egypt and established for himself forever.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 7:18 Who am I, O Lord … , that you have brought me thus far? In spite of dramatic military success and the popular acclaim of the whole nation, David humbly considers himself unworthy of all the Lord's blessings, attributing his success instead to the Lord (cf. Prov. 3:34; James 4:6; 1 Pet. 5:5). He understands rightly that the covenant (2 Sam. 7:8–17) expresses God's faithfulness to his promises to his people (vv. 21–29).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:1–18 Catalog of David's Military Activities. Chapter 8 is a catalog of David's military victories, from the old enemies, the Philistines, to the Transjordan nations of Moab and Ammon, through the Syrian countries, and all the way to "the River" (the Euphrates), ending with a statement about his administration. The varied events of this chapter are not necessarily chronological with the rest of the book. The Ammon war of chs. 10–12 may have been the prelude to David's defeat of the important kingdom of Zobah in this chapter. Chapter 8 has ties with the title to Psalm 60: "when he strove with Aram-naharim and with Aram-zobah [cf. 2 Sam. 8:3], and when Joab on his return struck down twelve thousand of Edom in the Valley of Salt [cf. v. 13]." The older empires in Egypt and Mesopotamia were at a low point, which allowed David to take advantage of the international situation.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:1 Metheg-ammah is otherwise unknown—perhaps it refers to a type of land. After the time of David, there are no references to battles with the Philistines until the time of Hezekiah (2 Kings 18:8).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:3–12 The events of chs. 10–12 may have been the prelude to 8:3, as suggested by the references in ch. 10 to Zobah and Hadadezer (10:6, 16). If so, Hadadezer—after the disastrous defeat by David and the defection of his vassals (10:19) and the defeat of Ammon (12:31)—went to the Euphrates to try to restore his power over his vassals but was attacked on the way by David. Zobah and Damascus were both in Syria (Hb. 'Aram). Zobah was in the northern part of the Lebanon Valley (see Josh. 11:17; 12:7), in what is now called the Bekaa Valley. Hadadezer's name does not appear outside the Bible, but there are similarities to an unnamed Syrian king of David's time mentioned in Assyrian annals. Having captured chariot horses, David apparently decided to experiment with a small chariot force. It is not clear why he would hamstring the other horses (2 Sam. 8:4). It was probably to keep them from being used again by enemy soldiers, but it also may have been in response to the warning in Deut. 17:16 that the king must not acquire many horses for himself (cf. Josh. 11:6–9). The hamstrung horses supposedly could have been used as farm or pack horses. Hamath was on the middle Orontes River; it bordered Zobah on the north. The treasures (2 Sam. 8:11) later became part of Solomon's treasure, used either to build the temple or were placed in the temple treasury (1 Kings 7:51; 1 Chron. 18:8).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:4 While the verse says that David took from him 1,700 horsemen, 1 Chron. 18:4 says that he "took from him 1,000 chariots" and "7,000 horsemen." The Septuagint agrees with Chronicles. Although there is not enough information available to account for this difference, one possible explanation is that someone miscopied the text of Samuel, and the Septuagint (along with Chronicles) retains the true reading.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:6 And the LORD gave victory to David wherever he went. The narrator continues to point to God's blessing, not David's skill, as the reason for David's victories (cf. v. 14; 1 Sam. 18:12).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:13–14 The Valley of Salt must have been in the Edomite territory south and east of the Dead Sea. First Chronicles 18:12 states that Abishai killed the Edomites. The deeds of David's generals were ascribed to David, just as the deeds of Abishai's men were ascribed to Abishai. Joab seems to have led the campaign; it was at this time that Hadad, of the royal house of Edom, escaped to Egypt (1 Kings 11:14–22; title of Psalm 60).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:15–18 This is a list of David's officials (for similar lists, cf. 20:23–26; 1 Kings 4:1–6). Like the list in Kings, this one starts with the office of the king. It was the task of the king to establish justice and equity (see 1 Kings 10:9). Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud appears as recorder in all three lists. The offices of "recorder" and "secretary" (2 Sam. 8:17) were common in surrounding countries. Jerusalem, like other city-states of the time, had a long history of civil administration, which David could take over and use.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:17 Zadok helped David during Absalom's rebellion (15:27–28; 17:15; 19:11) and later supported Solomon (1 Kings 1:8). His father Ahitub was probably a different person from Ahitub the father of Ahimelech, priest at Nob (1 Sam. 22:9). Abiathar appeared in 1 Samuel accompanying David (1 Sam. 22:20; 23:6; 30:7) and worked with Zadok during Absalom's rebellion. Abiathar apparently named his son Ahimelech after his father (1 Sam. 22:20), a common practice. For Abiathar's genealogy, see note on 1 Sam. 2:27–28. Other passages such as the account of Absalom's rebellion and the lists of officials in 2 Sam. 20:25 and 1 Kings 4:4 refer to the priests as "Zadok and Abiathar." It is often suggested that "Ahimelech the son of Abiathar" is a scribal error for "Abiathar son of Ahimelech." Another possibility is that Abiathar retired his position as one of the chief priests in favor of a son, as Zadok later did (1 Kings 4:2), and then perhaps the son later died or had some other problem, so Abiathar resumed the position. The secretary Seraiah might be the same as the "Sheva" (2 Sam. 20:25) and "Shisha" (1 Kings 4:3) mentioned in the other two lists, but this is not established. It may be that it was a foreign name, which would be especially liable to variant spellings.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 8:18 Benaiah was in charge of David's personal force of Cherethites and … Pelethites. He was one of David's "mighty men" (23:20–22). Like Zadok, he supported Solomon against Adonijah and became commander of the whole army under Solomon (1 Kings 1:1–2:46; 4:1–6). The Cherethites and Pelethites were foreigners who made up the king's bodyguard (cf. 1 Sam. 28:2). David's sons were priests. It is not known what their duties were, but obviously their duties were not important compared to those of the Levitical priests Zadok, Abiathar, and Ahimelech, who were concerned with the ark (2 Sam. 15:24); the other lists do not mention David's sons in this capacity. They may have been just chaplains for the rituals carried out in the royal family. The priestly line and the royal line were essentially separate.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:1–13 Mephibosheth. David keeps his promise to Jonathan and Saul that he would not destroy their descendants (1 Sam. 20:14–17, 42; 24:21–22) as often happened in changes of dynasty (cf. 2 Kings 10; 11; etc.).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:2–4 For Ziba, the servant (here the Hb. word is ʿebed) of Saul's house, see note on v. 9. The exact location of Lo-debar is unknown, but it seems to have been in northern Transjordan (17:27). Mephibosheth had probably been taken to Transjordan soon after Saul's death (4:4), during the time his uncle Ish-bosheth ruled from the Transjordanian city of Mahanaim (2:8).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:6–8 For the name Mephibosheth, see note on 4:4. Note that the word father (Hb. ʾab) in 9:7 means "father" in one sentence and "grandfather" in the next. This phenomenon can also be seen in some of the genealogies (e.g., probably 1 Sam. 9:1). In 2 Sam. 9:9–10, the "grandson" is literally "son" (Hb. ben), as can be seen in the translation of the same Hebrew phrase in 16:3. Dead dog is a term of self-abasement here and in 1 Sam. 24:14; in 2 Sam. 16:9 it is used for contempt.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:9 Ziba is here referred to as a servant (Hb. naʿar, "young man, servant"), but because Ziba had 15 sons (v. 10), it was probably the more specific "steward of an estate." Ziba had probably continued to be the steward in charge of the land after Saul's death, but had paid the benefits of the estate to David or to someone to whom David had assigned the land. But from now on he is required to pay the benefits to Mephibosheth.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:11 Mephibosheth ate at David's table, like one of the king's sons. The arrangement David sets up for Mephibosheth is similar to that of at least David's older sons. Though the king's sons "ate at David's table," some of them lived in their own houses in Jerusalem (13:7, 20) and had fields and agricultural lands of their own to support them (13:23; 14:30).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 9:12 Mica (or "Micah") had many descendants, through whom the house of Saul and Jonathan was preserved (1 Chron. 8:35–40; 9:41–44).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:1–12:31 Israel-Ammon War. The Ammonite war is the background of the next three chapters. As far as David's empire went, it led to his domination of the Syrian kingdoms (see 8:3–12; 10:15–19). More importantly to the biblical writer, however, it was the setting for David's great sin (11:1–12:25).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:1–19 Beginning of Israel-Ammon War. The war began because the Ammonites disgraced David's ambassadors; it did not result from any wrongdoing by David.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:1–5 Nahash was presumably the Nahash of 1 Samuel 11. David wants to deal loyally with Hanun because of his father Nahash, who showed "loyalty" to David in accordance with their treaty. While his loyalty, or "kindness" (Hb. hesed), toward Mephibosheth (2 Samuel 9) was "for Jonathan's sake," this "kindness" is for diplomatic reasons: David wants to keep the Ammonites as peaceful neighbors. It may be that the princes of the Ammonites (10:3) are alarmed by the representatives of David, who had conquered Moab (8:2), the country directly south of them. Humiliating the official envoys (10:4) certainly means breaking off diplomatic relations. David allows his messengers to remain at Jericho so that they would not have to display their humiliation in court.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:6–8 Beth-rehob, Zobah, Maacah, and Tob were Syrian kingdoms in the northern Transjordan and Lebanon Valley. For the relationship of this passage with 8:3–4, see note on 8:3–12. Hiring armies was not uncommon (2 Kings 7:6). The numbers of troops are mentioned according to the usual list formula (see note on 1 Sam. 6:17–18). Syrians can also be translated "Aram" or "Arameans," the normal term for Syria or the Syrians. "Aramaic," the later common language (cf. 2 Kings 18:26), was the language of Syria. The gate (2 Sam. 10:8) is that of the city of Rabbah (11:1), the capital of Ammon, near present-day Amman, Jordan.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:9–19 David's army under Joab is trapped between the Syrians and the Ammonites, but they defeat the Syrians and force them to leave. Hadadezer of Zobah (see 8:5) attacks again at Helam, apparently a city in northern Transjordan, but is again defeated.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 10:12 let us be courageous … and may the LORD do what seems good to him. Joab expresses both faith in God and a resolve to fight with all his strength. Faith and human effort are not incompatible with each other. Joab is a complicated figure: as here, he can express sturdy piety (e.g., 24:3), and he can also display a chilling ruthlessness in preserving David's and his own position (e.g., 18:14–15; 20:9–10, 20–22). It is not surprising that David does not trust him to treat Solomon well after Joab supported Adonijah (1 Kings 1:7, 19; 2:5–6).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:1–12:25 David and Bathsheba. The story of the Ammonite war continues up through 11:1 and is concluded in 12:26–31. In between comes the account of David and Bathsheba (11:2–12:25). The story of the war thus is a “frame” around the story of David and Bathsheba: “Joab/Rabbah” and “David/Jerusalem” in 11:1 correspond to “Joab/Rabbah” in 12:26 and “David/Jerusalem” in 12:31.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:1 With the defeat of the Syrians, David is free to concentrate on besieging Rabbah (10:14). the time when kings go out to battle. … But David remained at Jerusalem. The connection of these two phrases hints that something is wrong: the kings go out to battle, but this king does not. And all Israel went out to battle, but Israel’s leader did not. Readers can see a contrast between the king who is at leisure (11:2) and the soldiers on the field (v. 11).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:2 The woman bathing is probably “purifying herself from her uncleanness” (v. 4) after her menstrual period (Lev. 15:19–24). Clearly, then, the child who would be conceived in 2 Sam. 11:5 was not Uriah’s. Beautiful is literally “very good in appearance.” Compared with the usual Hebrew adjective yapah for “beautiful” (as in 1 Sam. 25:3, where it is used of Abigail), the emphasis here is more distinctly on the woman’s appearance. A terraced structure, first built in the fourteenth or thirteenth century B.C., has been found in Jerusalem as part of the city of King David. Over 50 feet (15 m) in height, it may have served as the foundation for a large base that held the highest buildings of Jerusalem. David’s palace perhaps sat there, overlooking the entire city (see illustration).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:3 Uriah the Hittite is listed among David’s top warriors, the “thirty,” in 23:39.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:4 Given the elaborate attempt David makes (vv. 6–13) to cover up the initial act of his adultery, it is hardly likely that he makes his intention clear when he summons Bathsheba. Probably David makes inquiry about the welfare of the family of his trusted general during Uriah's absence and gives Uriah's wife the honor of a private interview, even sending messengers (plural) to invite Bathsheba; after Uriah's death, David takes Uriah's widow under his protection as his own wife (v. 27).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:6–13 The king had certain rights, but clearly adultery was not one of them. Instead of repenting and trying to settle the matter openly, David tries to cover it up by making it appear that his child by Bathsheba is Uriah's.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:9 Sexual intercourse was a source of ritual impurity (Ex. 19:15; Lev. 15:18), and so it was avoided during a military campaign, as is mentioned in 1 Sam. 21:5. (See Deut. 23:9. "Evil" in that passage refers to something "unseemly" or "improper," rather than morally evil. Certainly "excrement" [Deut. 23:13] is not morally evil, but like intercourse it does make one unclean.) Uriah considered himself still on duty, in contrast to David.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:14–15 It is ironic that Uriah should unknowingly take with him the letter that orders him killed. David is hopelessly overwhelmed by the need to cover up his wrongdoings, even if it means taking another person's life—and even more, the life of a faithful soldier.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:21 Abimelech was a son of Gideon, who was also known as Jerubbaal (Judg. 8:29–9:57). Here, the element "baal" in a name is changed to "bosheth" ("shame"), so it becomes son of Jerubbesheth, as can be seen elsewhere in Samuel with the names Ish-bosheth and Mephibosheth (see note on 2 Sam. 4:4). Did not a woman. Abimelech had told his armor-bearer to kill him "lest they say of me, 'a woman killed him'" (Judg. 9:54), but this was said of him anyway.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:25 Do not let this matter displease you. David probably knows that Joab would not have been happy about killing a good commander. David is saying, "He might have been killed anyway."

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:26–27 The mourning period was probably seven days (Gen. 50:10; 1 Sam. 31:13).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 11:27 But the thing that David had done displeased the LORD is literally, "The matter that David did was evil in the eyes of the LORD";

see 12:9 and Ps. 51:4. This contrasts with David’s words to Joab two verses earlier, “Do not let this matter displease you.”

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:1–31 David started by breaking the tenth commandment (coveting, Ex. 20:17), then the seventh (adultery, Ex. 20:14), and then the sixth (murder, Ex. 20:13), while the Lord silently watched his behavior. Here at last the Lord calls him to account for standing above the law. Psalm 51 was composed in response to this occasion. Nathan apparently asks David to intervene in a legal matter. The “parable” (2 Sam. 12:1–4) is similar to the plea of the wise woman of Tekoa in ch. 14 and that of the prophet in 1 Kings 20:35–43. In all these cases, it is pointed out to the king that his own actions do not match his judgments.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:4 That the Lord has special concern for the poor is a major theme in the Bible, and as his representative, the king and other judges were supposed to protect against abuse by the powerful (Ex. 23:6; Lev. 19:15; Prov. 31:9; Isa. 3:14; etc.). The rich man took the poor man’s lamb, just as David “took” Bathsheba (see 2 Sam. 11:4).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:5–6 David has a true concern for justice when he is not blinded by his own passion (cf. his ready acceptance of Abigail’s words in 1 Sam. 25:32–33). For fourfold, see Ex. 22:1.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:7–13 This passage has similarities with Nathan’s prophecy in ch. 7. In both, the Lord looks back on what he has done by grace for David. But while in ch. 7 the Lord graciously promised him an enduring house, here he announces that David by his own deeds will experience misery in his house. David has despised the Lord and his word.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:8 gave you … your master’s wives. There is no other record of David marrying Saul’s wives, but he was certainly in a position to do so.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:9 This sin was against the Lord, as David should have known through the word of the LORD (cf. Ps. 51:4). With the sword is a general term for causing violent death, as in 2 Sam. 11:25, not necessarily a reference to the specific mode of death (see 11:24).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:10–11 the sword shall never depart from your house. David’s sons Amnon (13:29), Absalom (18:15), and Adonijah (1 Kings

2:25) all will die by the sword. he shall lie with your wives in the sight of this sun. Absalom will rebel against David and publicly lie with David's concubines on a rooftop (2 Sam. 16:22).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:13–14 David confesses and appears to have genuine repentance. Yet the results of his actions remain. As the esv footnote explains, for scorned the LORD the Masoretic text has "scorned the enemies of the LORD," but this may not be the original wording. Modern scholars conclude that the word "enemies" was inserted (either by the author himself, or by a copyist) as a euphemism to avoid directly saying the words "scorn the LORD."

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:15–23 When the child falls ill, David still hopes that the Lord might change his mind and so petitions him with fasting (as in Judg. 20:26; Ezra 8:23; Est. 4:16; Ps. 35:13; etc.). washed and anointed himself … ate. Because fasting and refraining from anointing were also part of ordinary mourning (1 Sam. 31:13; 2 Sam. 3:35; 14:2), David's actions puzzle his servants, who seem to have thought he had been mourning.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:20 The house is presumably the tent where the ark of the covenant was housed (6:17). "House" can also refer to a tent, as it may in Ugaritic and Akkadian.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:23 I shall go to him. Some interpreters understand David to be saying simply that he, like the child, will someday die. But "shall go to him" seems to indicate the expectation of future personal reunion.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:24–25 First Chronicles 3:5 suggests that Solomon was the fourth son of David by Bathsheba. This verse may skip over a number of years to introduce the most important child of the union. And the LORD loved him hints at Solomon's future role as king; God's grace has triumphed over David's terrible sin. The line promised to David will continue through this son of David and Bathsheba, and from this line the Messiah will eventually come (Matt. 1:6).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 12:26–31 End of Israel-Ammon War. Having recorded the birth of Solomon, the author returns to the siege of Rabbah, last mentioned in 11:25. The "city of waters" was probably that section of the city that controlled the water supply. With no water, the surrender of the city itself would follow shortly. Therefore, Joab calls David to come to the front so that the king can get credit for its capture.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:1–14:33 Absalom's Banishment and Reinstatement. Chapters 13–20 show the "evil … out of your own house" that Nathan warned David of in 12:11, namely, the rebellion of his son Absalom. Absalom kills his half brother Amnon to avenge the rape of his sister, but is eventually pardoned by David. Absalom then forms a conspiracy and declares himself king, but the rebellion is put down and Absalom is killed. In the aftermath there is an attempt by a group of Benjaminites to withdraw from Israel, but the attempt is thwarted. Often in this section the narrator has to follow several simultaneous story lines. Several times he backtracks and picks up a line by repeating the last statement in that line with expansion or variation (see 13:34a and 37; 15:37 and 16:15; 18:17b and 19:8b; 18:33 and 19:4; 19:24a and 25). The writer of 1–2 Kings uses this same technique to keep track of reigns in Judah and Israel.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:1–22 After a time suggests that some time has passed since the end of ch. 12. This is an account of both rape and incest—the brother-sister relationship between Tamar and Amnon is referred to a dozen times. This rape was an outrageous thing (see Gen. 34:7; Deut. 22:21; Judg. 20:6; Jer. 29:23) that was not done in Israel (2 Sam. 13:12). Since it occurred in the royal family, it had implications for the whole nation.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:1–2 Tamar was Absalom's full sister and the half sister of Amnon, David's eldest son. he made himself ill. Amnon's "love" could better be described as "lust."

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:3 The term crafty (Hb. khakam) is normally translated as "wise" or "skillful." Here, however, it is used in a negative sense.

David and Absalom

c. 985 B.C.

In retaliation for the incestuous rape of his sister, Absalom killed his brother Amnon at Baal-hazor and fled to Geshur. After three years, arrangements were made for Absalom to return to Jerusalem, and later he and David were reconciled. Soon after this, however, Absalom led a coup against David in Hebron, and David fled to Mahanaim. When Absalom attacked David's forces in the forest of Ephraim, Absalom was defeated and killed, allowing David to return to Jerusalem.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:6–8 The word for cakes (Hb. lebibah) is used only here in Scripture. It is related to the word “heart” (Hb. lebab), so it may have been thought of as a food for the sick. The word translated baked (v. 8) usually means “boiled” (see 1 Sam. 2:13), so it may be a type of dumpling. It apparently never occurred to David to be suspicious, and Tamar, of course, would obey her father.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:12–13 such a thing is not done in Israel. Intercourse between brother and sister, even half brother and half sister, was forbidden in Lev. 18:9, and the stress on the outrageousness makes it seem likely that this prohibition was accepted at the time of David. he will not withhold me from you. Perhaps Tamar is saying that David would be willing to bend the rules, or perhaps she is just trying to escape.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:15–17 While Amnon’s response to Tamar may be an archetypal example of a “blame the victim” mentality, it is particularly striking in the context of sexual lust. wrong in sending me away. Tamar’s appeal is based on the fact that within this ancient Near Eastern cultural setting Amnon’s actions required marriage (Deut. 22:28–29). Put this woman out. Amnon’s hatred and contempt of his sister is expressed by his final refusal to heed her wishes or even use her name.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:16 this wrong … is greater than the other. If a man seduced an unmarried (or unbetrothed) woman, he had to marry her, unless her father refused; if he raped her, he was not permitted to divorce her (Ex. 22:16; Deut. 22:28–29). Having ruined her life, he had a responsibility toward her.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:18 The only other place this kind of robe appears in the Bible is in the Joseph story (Gen. 37:3, as the esv footnote explains).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:19 Putting ashes (or dirt) on one’s head and tearing one’s clothes were expressions of grief or humiliation (see note on 1 Sam. 4:12), as was covering the head with the hand(s) or a garment (2 Sam. 15:30; Est. 6:12; Jer. 2:37).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:20 Do not take this to heart, perhaps because it would be easier to remain quiet, or perhaps because Absalom was determined to take vengeance in his own time. Absalom himself did take it to heart (cf. vv. 23–29).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:21 David was very angry, but he did not do anything. He showed favoritism toward his eldest son (see esv footnote; cf. 3:2), which was the source of many of the later problems in David’s family (cf. 1 Kings

1:6). Heads of households have to deal justly with members of their household, but because of his sin with Bathsheba, David had lost his moral courage and clarity of judgment.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:22 Spoke … neither good nor bad may mean “do nothing against” (see Gen. 31:24, 29).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:23 As seen in 1 Samuel 25, sheepshearing was a time of feasting. Absalom invited all the king’s sons, and the next four verses explain how he gives the invitation. Absalom invited David, probably guessing that he would decline, in order to lend an aura of importance to the occasion and to mask his true intentions. If he had started out by inviting Amnon, it could have seemed suspicious.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:29 The king’s sons seem to have normally ridden mules. Absalom even rides one into battle (18:9).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:37 Talmai was Absalom’s maternal grandfather (3:3).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 13:39 The Hebrew for the spirit of the king longed to go out to Absalom is difficult. It could also mean “the spirit of the king ceased to go out against Absalom” (cf. esv footnote). The Hebrew lacks the word “spirit,” but the verb “longed” or “ceased” is feminine and thus implies that the spirit or soul is properly inferred as the subject. (Some manuscripts of the Septuagint, together with a text from Qumran, explicitly have “the spirit of the king,” though this may also be an inference.) The author is thus telling readers either that David yearned to see his son or that he no longer wanted to take vengeance on him; in either case, readers are set up for Absalom’s return in the next chapter.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:1–3 the king’s heart went out to Absalom. This does not necessarily imply that his thoughts were positive, just that he was thinking about the matter. Joab recruited a wise woman and put the words in her mouth in an effort to push the king toward reconciliation with Absalom. (Later, however, Joab certainly does not seem to favor Absalom; cf. 18:10–18.) Tekoa, hometown of Amos (Amos 1:1), is in the Judean hills about 10 miles (16 km) south of Jerusalem, near Bethlehem.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:4–7 The woman, using a “parable” as Nathan did (cf. 12:1–7), appeals to the king to set aside the ordinary laws demanding the death of a murderer (e.g., Num. 35:31), not because of any extenuating circumstances in the killing but for the good of the family. David must have first associated the woman's account with the story of Cain and Abel, and then soon realized that it would apply to Absalom's murder of Amnon.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:7 heir. Apparently Absalom was now considered the heir, at least in popular sentiment. The idea of a smoldering coal is an image of "hope for the family." Neither name nor remnant means "no remaining posterity."

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:8–17 Perhaps David already suspects that Joab is involved in the woman's coming to him, so he deliberately uses the vague word "anyone" (If anyone says anything to you) in v. 10. The woman, however, sticks to her own story by referring to my son, while she uses a very sensitive term, avenger of blood (v. 11), which would apply to the king himself, who has been thinking about his own son (v. 1). She asks for an immediate ruling on her own (bogus) case so that she can comment on it (cf. vv. 13–14). By his words in v. 11b, David indirectly expresses his determination (As the LORD lives) to bring back his own lost son. The woman says what Joab has sent her to say (vv. 13–14) and then goes back to her made-up story (vv. 15–17). This in v. 15 would refer both to her real message in vv. 13–14 and to her "family problem" in vv. 5–7. This woman wisely finishes her dialogue with King David by mentioning her own problem, thus placing herself on the side of the needy and helpless, not in the position of an accuser of the king.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:18–20 David suspects the woman's real purpose (cf. vv. 1–17). Having patiently heard her out, he now asks her straightforwardly if Joab was involved in her coming to him with her story.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:24 he is not to come into my presence. David's forgiveness is incomplete, as Absalom complains in v. 32. David is confused: he is unwilling to punish, but also unwilling to forgive fully, so the situation festers.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:25–27 These verses prepare readers for what is told later about Absalom, especially how he "stole the hearts of the men of Israel" (15:6) by his personal charms. The reference to his abundant hair looks ahead to his manner of death, i.e., by being caught by his head in a tree (see 18:9).

The king's weight indicates that there was a royal standard at the Israelite court.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:27 Since the three sons are unnamed and Absalom says he had no sons (18:18), these sons probably died young. His daughter, Tamar, was probably named for his sister (see note on 13:1–2).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:28–32 Believing that Joab could orchestrate a long-awaited audience with the king, Absalom compels Joab's attention by setting his field on fire. He finds his current status unsatisfactory and wants either restoration to the royal household or, if guilty, execution (v. 32).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 14:33 the king kissed Absalom. The kiss points to Absalom's restoration and closes the section consisting of chs. 13–14, which is a prologue to the revolt of Absalom in chs. 15–19. Clearly the king's kiss was less than full restoration since Absalom himself will soon "kiss away" the hearts of Israel (15:5–6).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:1–19:43 Absalom's Rebellion. This long section of 2 Samuel is divided into six parts: (1) Absalom's conspiracy and proclaiming himself king (15:1–12); (2) David's escape from Absalom, and the people he met on the way (15:13–16:14); (3) the war council where the competition between Ahithophel and Hushai determines David's fate (16:15–17:23); (4) David's favorable reception at Mahanaim (17:24–29); (5) the battle and the death of Absalom (18:1–19:8a); and (6) David's return to Jerusalem (19:8b–43).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:1–12 Absalom's Conspiracy. Absalom plans his conspiracy and proclaims himself king.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:1 a chariot and horses, and fifty men to run before him. Absalom's self-exalting pride stands in contrast to David's humility (1 Sam. 26:9–11; 2 Sam. 7:18; 15:25–26). Later Adonijah behaves similarly, exalting himself, "saying 'I will be king'" (1 Kings 1:5). See also 1 Sam. 8:11.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:3 there is no man designated by the king to hear you. Absalom's statement must be somewhat of an exaggeration, for the widow of Tekoa got a hearing, and if it were known that there was no chance of a hearing, people would not have come.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:4 Oh that I were judge in the land! Absalom is appealing to the tradition of the king as "judge" (cf. Prov. 31:9; Isa. 11:3–5), which is closely bound to the concept of the Lord as judge (Ps. 96:10; Isa. 33:22), not to the judgeships of the previous era (as seen in the book of Judges). Thus Absalom is saying, "Oh that I were king!" (see 1 Sam. 8:5). This is in line with his chariot and runners (2 Sam. 15:1). Since Absalom's conduct was public ("beside the way of the gate," v. 2), news of what he was doing must have quickly reached David, but he did nothing to stop it (see notes on 13:21; 14:24).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:7 Hebron, the chief city of Judah, was where David ruled as king of Judah (2:4) and where Absalom was born (3:2–3).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:10 The phrase the tribes of Israel sometimes refers to all of Israel, and at other times refers to Israel as opposed to Judah. Here, it refers to all of Israel, including Judah. It is clear that Judah participated in the rebellion. Absalom raises his revolt in Hebron, and his named associates—Ahithophel of Giloh (15:12; see Josh. 15:51) and Amasa, David's nephew (2 Sam. 17:25)—are both from Judah. Furthermore, in 19:11 David asks why the elders of Judah are reluctant to bring him back. In chs. 15–18, "Israel" usually means "Absalom's side," while David's side is referred to as "David's servants" or "the army."

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:12 These sacrifices were apparently part of a coronation ceremony (see 1 Sam. 11:14–15; 1 Kings 1:9–11) formally asserting Absalom's kingship (2 Sam. 15:10; 16:16).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:13–16:14 David's Escape from Absalom. This section describes David's flight from Jerusalem to the Jordan River. Psalm 3 is said to have been composed in response to this occasion. David flees Jerusalem, lest the city be destroyed. On the way he meets a loyal band of foreigners, the priests Abiathar and Zadok, his friend Hushai, Mephibosheth's servant Ziba, and the Benjaminite Shimei.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:18–20 The Cherethites and the Pelethites are David's bodyguard (8:18). The Gittites (i.e., men from Gath) are not likely David's own 600 men who had gone with him from Israel to Ziklag (1 Sam. 27:2), since they had come yesterday (2 Sam. 15:20), that is, recently, and could go back to their homes.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:23 The brook Kidron runs just east of Jerusalem; the Mount of Olives (v. 30) is to the east of the brook.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:24–37 Though David leaves the city, by the providence of God he is able to set up a messenger system—Hushai, to Zadok and Abiathar, to their sons (via a maid, 17:17), to David (15:36).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:25–26 Carry the ark of God back into the city. David does not try to use the ark as some sort of "good luck charm," in contrast to the attitude of the elders in 1 Sam. 4:3. Perhaps he realizes that Absalom's rebellion is partly the result of his own sins (2 Sam. 12:10), and he does not know how far the Lord intends to punish him (let him do to me what seems good to him). His symbols of mourning and penitence and acceptance of malice (15:30; 16:10) are probably related to this. Since he also considers the rebellion wrong, however, he is willing to use prayer and the human opportunities God gives him (15:28, 31, 34; see Neh. 4:9).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:27 Are you not a seer? Perhaps David is implying that Zadok does not know precisely what God will do about David (see note on vv. 25–26); or maybe he is indicating that Zadok, because the people hold him in honor as a seer, will be allowed to pass safely into the city, where he will be most useful to David.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:28 The fords of the wilderness were at the west bank of the Jordan River.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:30 Going barefoot and with his head covered were signs of mourning (cf. Est. 6:12; Isa. 20:2). weeping as he went. David had many reasons to weep: his own misfortunes and the dangers he now faced; the troubles now facing Israel and his own family, for which he was partly responsible; and the dishonor that would surely come to God as a result of all this.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:31–32 Ahithophel was David's trusted counselor (v. 12; cf. 16:23), but now he was among the conspirators. This led David to pray, "O LORD, please turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness." His prayer was answered in the very next verse by the arrival of Hushai, who would prove invaluable to him (see 16:15–17:23 and notes).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:33–36 whatever you hear … tell. Although earlier David may have questioned Zadok's "seeing" (v. 27), it is clear that what Zadok and Abiathar "hear" from the undercover work of Hushai in Jerusalem (v. 34) will benefit David and his followers (vv. 35–36; cf. 17:15–16, 22).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 15:37 David's friend. "Friend" may be a title because it is not the normal word for "friend" and it seems to be one kind of royal official described in 1 Kings 4:5. David is called the friend of Hushai in 2 Sam. 16:17, however, so it also expresses a relationship.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:1–4 Ziba, the servant of Mephibosheth (the disabled grandson of Saul, whom David had taken into his care; see ch. 9), arrives with provisions for David and his people. Ziba implies that the gifts are entirely his idea, and that Mephibosheth himself sees David's plight as an opportunity to reclaim the kingdom (Today the house of Israel will give me back the kingdom of my father). Mephibosheth will later present a somewhat different version of the situation (19:24–29). As the next section and ch. 20 show, some Benjaminites still felt animosity toward David, so David may have been very unsure about Mephibosheth's loyalty. Behold, all that belonged to Mephibosheth is now yours. David judged too quickly, without opportunity to hear a defense from the accused Mephibosheth. Cf. notes on 13:21 and 14:24. The list of food items in 16:1 is similar to the list in 1 Sam. 25:18.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:5 Shimei is apparently a prominent man (19:16). Bahurim is a Benjaminite town on the north side of the Mount of Olives, though it did have inhabitants who supported David (17:18). Shimei will act very differently the next time he meets David (19:16).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:8 Shimei was probably blaming David for the deaths of Abner (3:26–30) and Ish-bosheth (ch. 4), and possibly for the deaths of Saul's sons and grandsons (21:1–9) or even that of Saul himself, though he is not necessarily accusing David of actual complicity in the deaths. Since the writer of Samuel goes to great lengths to absolve David from complicity, one can surmise that some people harbored ill will toward David because of the house of Saul, even at the time 1–2 Samuel was written.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:9 As always, Abishai is ready to act (cf. 1 Sam. 26:8). Cursing a ruler is forbidden in Ex. 22:28.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:10 What have I to do with you? David's point is that he and Abishai do not see things the same way, and it would be disastrous for him to take Abishai's advice.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:11 let him curse, for the LORD has told him to. David expresses his trust in God's providence (cf. 15:25–26; 16:12). He still wonders whether all this opposition is the Lord's just punishment for his sin, and he humbly endures the abuse.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:12 It may be … that the LORD will repay me with good for his cursing today. Cf. the opposite perspective in Prov. 24:17–18: "Do not rejoice when your enemy falls … lest the LORD see it and be displeased, and turn away his anger from him" (cf. Prov. 26:2; also 1 Pet. 2:19–23; 3:9).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:14 arrived weary at the Jordan. The journey was 21 miles (36 km) from Jerusalem to the Jordan, and the road descended about 3,500 feet (1,067 m).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:15–17:23 Ahithophel and Hushai. The writer resumes his account from 15:37. For "Israel," see note on 15:10.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:15–17 As the rebellious Absalom arrives in Jerusalem, Ahithophel, who has deserted to him from David (see note on 15:31–32), comes with him. Soon Hushai, a friend of David (see notes on 15:31–32; 15:37), arrives as well, proclaiming "Long live the king!" Why did you not go with your friend? (i.e., David; cf. 15:37). Understandably, Absalom questions the sincerity of Hushai's greeting.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:18–19 No … I will serve you. Hushai probably knows it will be hard to convince Absalom that he has forsaken David and is now supporting Absalom.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:21–22 Following Ahithophel's advice, Absalom publicly had sexual relations with several of David's concubines who had been left behind to "keep the house" (15:16). Such an outrageous action would indeed have strengthened … the hands of Absalom's followers, as he made it clear that he was claiming the throne. Nathan had prophesied such an event (cf. in the sight of all Israel with "in the sight of this sun," 12:11), and the rooftop of 16:22 may have been the very rooftop from which David had seen Bathsheba (11:2).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 16:23 The high estimation of Ahithophel's advice suggests that Hushai has a difficult task before him, in which he can succeed only with the help of the Lord.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:1–23 This chapter presents the crucial contest between Ahithophel and Hushai before Absalom and the elders of Israel (vv. 4, 14). Ahithophel makes the very sound proposal to attack and kill David immediately. With no one else to turn to, he says, the whole country would embrace Absalom. If this "good counsel" (v. 14) had been followed, it is likely that David, whose large group was indeed weary and discouraged (v. 2; see 16:14), would have been defeated. Absalom, however, decides to hear the opinion of Hushai. He trusts him enough to hear him but, sensibly, not enough to invite him to take part in the deliberations of the war council (Call Hushai, 17:5). Hushai gives a vivid, time-consuming speech full of similes, making a proposal that is flattering to Absalom as leader of all Israel (v. 11), but that will let David regroup and choose his own time and place of battle with his experienced, trained force. Hushai apparently then withdraws while the council considers the proposals. Hushai knows that if Ahithophel's advice is accepted, there will be no time to lose, so even before he hears the results of the deliberations he sends word to David that he should at least cross the Jordan River (vv. 15–16). The council rejects Ahithophel's good counsel in favor of Hushai's deceptive and wrong counsel. The writer specifically says that this rejection was the work of the Lord: for the LORD had ordained to defeat the good counsel of Ahithophel (v. 14). The poor decision seals Absalom's doom. When Absalom finally gathers his army and goes after David (v. 24), David is already in Mahanaim in Gilead, with the forest of Ephraim (18:6) between him and Absalom.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:1 Ahithophel suggests that he himself lead the force against David.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:7–13 my counsel is that all Israel be gathered to you … and that you go to battle in person (v. 11). Hushai appeals to Absalom's pride and suggests that Absalom, not Ahithophel, should gather even more support and then personally lead the forces against David (v. 11).

Hushai also stresses the undisputed facts of the bravery of David and his men and David's reputation as a soldier among all Israel.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:13 Cities were often attacked by pulling down the walls by means of ropes attached to grappling hooks. Since cities were usually built on high places, they were hard to rebuild once the stones of their walls had been dragged into the valley. For attacking an entire city in order to get one person who had fled there, cf. 1 Sam. 23:7–13; 2 Sam. 20:14–22.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:17 En-rogel, now known as "Job's Well," is just south of where the Kidron Valley joins the Hinnom Valley, on the boundary between Judah and Benjamin (Josh. 15:7; 18:16). It would have been dangerous for the priests' sons, apparently known supporters of David (2 Sam. 17:18), to be seen in Jerusalem. Therefore, a necessary link in the chain from Hushai to David is the female servant, probably a maid in the household of one of the priests whose normal duties took her to the water.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:23 He set his house in order and hanged himself. Ahithophel is wise enough to realize that the rejection of his advice means the defeat of Absalom and his own ruin, for God is with David, not Absalom.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:24–29 David Arrives at Mahanaim. From the place where he crossed the Jordan River (see 16:14), David had traveled another 37 miles (59 km) north.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:24 As Hushai suggested (v. 11), Absalom gathers all the men of Israel and goes after David.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:25 For Absalom's cousin Amasa, see note on 2:13.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 17:27 Mahanaim, a city in the deep canyon of the Jabbok River, is where Ish-bosheth had his capital. Shobi the son of Nahash from Rabbah of the Ammonites apparently was the brother of Hanun, the king of Ammon (10:2). David had probably set him on the throne in place of his brother (12:30). It is remarkable that he did not try to revolt at this time. Machir had sheltered Mephibosheth in his childhood (9:4). Barzillai later accompanies David on his trip back to Jerusalem (19:31–39). The fact that these people came from a distance suggests that David had real support in the area of Gilead.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:1–19:8a Death of Absalom. After a brief description of the battle, the author focuses on how Absalom died and on David’s grief over his son’s death.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:2–3 Ittai was mentioned in 15:19. David’s men believe that the success or failure of the rebellion depends on whether Absalom can kill David, an opinion that was also expressed by Ahithophel (17:3).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:5 Deal gently … with … Absalom. Why did David make this request? Was it out of pure fatherly love, or also a feeling of guilt toward Absalom?

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:6–8 The forest of Ephraim was actually not in Ephraim, but east of the Jordan in Gilead. Gilead was apparently known for its forests (Jer. 22:6). Here David’s experienced army could effectively attack a much larger force, most of whom were apparently unable to move around effectively in a forest (the forest devoured more people … than the sword).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:9 Mules were the normal mounts of the king’s sons (13:29). his head caught fast in the oak. Most take this to mean that the specific part of Absalom’s head that got tangled in the tree was his hair (cf. 14:26). In God’s providence, the source of his pride became the cause of his downfall.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:14 The narrator stresses repeatedly (vv. 5, 12) that David had ordered all the troops to spare Absalom. Joab probably worries that Absalom, who had risen from disgrace once before, even using Joab himself (14:1–24), might be able to cause problems again.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:17 every one to his own home. See note on 1 Sam. 4:10.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:18 I have no son. See note on 14:27. The author contrasts the memorial pillar with Absalom’s actual tomb, a big pile of rocks (18:17; cf. Josh. 7:26; 8:29). The “Absalom’s Tomb” now seen in the Kidron Valley in Jerusalem is a Hellenistic or Roman-period structure.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:19–23 today you shall carry no news, because the king’s son is dead. Joab does not seem to be trying to hide anything from David (Go, tell the king what you have seen). But he apparently wants to protect Ahimaaz, son of Zadok the priest, from having to deliver the bad news to David. Then Ahimaaz … outran the Cushite. It may be that the Cushite took a direct road over the mountains, while Ahimaaz took the longer but easier way along the plain.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:24 The two gates are the outer gate and the inner gate of the gate complex.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:25 A man running alone would be a messenger; a group would probably be men fleeing.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:29 a great commotion. Ahimaaz may have been trying to break the news gently. He must have known Absalom was dead, or else he would have just said he did not know anything.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 18:33 O Absalom, my son, my son! David is overcome with grief. He has lost another son whom he loved. First he lost Absalom's love and loyalty, and now he has lost Absalom's life and all hope of reconciliation. It is possible that David is beginning to see how God's punishment for his sin with Bathsheba (prophesied by Nathan in 12:10–11) has tragically come to pass; but his grief is clouding his sight of his duties toward his loyal troops (19:1–8).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:2 So the victory that day was turned into mourning. David lets his own grief overcome not just his kingly responsibilities but even his gratitude to God for saving the nation.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:4–6 Because David has covered his face with grief, he has covered with shame the faces of his loyal servants. you love those who hate you and hate those who love you. The words for "love" and "hate" here can mean "be loyal" and "be disloyal."

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:8b–43 David's Return to Jerusalem. Although David can return to Jerusalem in triumph, there are still occasions for division. As Nathan had prophesied, because of David's sin, the "sword [would] never depart" from his house (12:10).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:8b–15 The whole country finally agrees to bring David back, but even this creates problems as it shows the division between Judah and the rest of Israel. Israel (in this chapter referring to the northern tribes) had spoken with David about coming back to Jerusalem, but David has to make a special appeal to Judah. So a Judean contingent accompanies David back, apparently without consultation with the other tribes. However, Israel and Judah argue over the ceremony of David's triumphal return to his capital (vv. 41–43).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:8 David makes peace with his men, behaving as king and sitting in the gate. Kings and elders are often described as sitting at the gate (Deut. 25:7; Ruth 4:11; 1 Kings 22:10; Jer. 39:3); at the excavations at Dan, what appears to be a canopy base has been found within the Iron Age gate. In the wake of Absalom's failed rebellion, David will have to work at reuniting the nation.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:10–11 why do you say nothing? The question highlights the factions that developed within both Israel and Judah concerning the validity of David's return to the throne. David uses the support he is getting from Israel to motivate Judah to action.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:13 commander of my army. It seems shocking to demote the victorious loyal general Joab in favor of the soundly defeated rebel general Amasa (17:25). Perhaps David pointed out that Joab had disobeyed his specific order about Absalom (18:5). He probably could have added that, if Joab claimed it had been necessary to kill Absalom, he (David) was also doing what was necessary to reunite the nation.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:15 Gilgal was an important religious center near Jericho and the Jordan River (Josh. 4:19; 5:10; 1 Sam. 10:8; 11:14; 13:12; 15:21), but its location is uncertain.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:16–23 At the Jordan (see v. 15), David meets various people he had encountered during his flight from Jerusalem. The first of these is Shimei, who had cursed him as he fled (16:5–13). Now that the Lord has repaid David with good for his patience under Shimei's cursing (16:12), Abishai thinks Shimei should be put to death as he deserves. But David wants this to be a day of rejoicing, not retribution. However he apparently did not fully forgive Shimei (cf. 1 Kings 2:8–9, 36–46).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:24–30 David also met Mephibosheth the son of Saul. Mephibosheth was actually Jonathan's son (4:4) and Saul's grandson. But here the narrator emphasizes that Saul’s rightful heir (9:1–3) is submitting to David. Mephibosheth tells David that Ziba was lying when he said Mephibosheth had chosen to stay in Jerusalem (16:3). The narrator does not directly state which one is telling the truth—after all, he may not have had direct information—but the sorrow evidenced in 19:24 suggests that he believes Mephibosheth, and Mephibosheth’s gracious humility in v. 30 also supports this view. In a city facing invasion, when even the king’s household was grateful for two donkeys (16:1), it is not surprising that Mephibosheth, who was lame (19:26), was stuck when his own donkey was taken by Ziba.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:25 To Jerusalem implies that Mephibosheth “came down” (v. 24) from his home and arrived in Jerusalem to meet the king, and that this event occurred later, after David had come to Jerusalem.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:31–40 As he crossed the Jordan (see v. 15), David also met Barzillai, who had helped him in Mahanaim (v. 32; cf. 17:27). I will provide for you with me in Jerusalem. David wanted to repay Barzillai’s kindness, but Barzillai, who was eighty years old, preferred to return home, that I may die in my own city. David never forgot Barzillai’s help (1 Kings 2:7).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 19:41–43 Apparently David left Mahanaim and came to the Jordan without allowing time for all the northern tribes to come and accompany him. They resent this, being the larger group and considering themselves more loyal to David (vv. 9–11) than Judah, which they accuse of “privatizing” the king. The men of Judah retort that David did not favor his own tribe with grants (unlike Saul in 1 Sam. 22:7). In making Jerusalem his capital and bringing the ark there, David seems to have made an effort to be an Israelite king, not a Judahite king ruling Israel. But he was not able to overcome the division. We, our, and us in 2 Sam. 19:42–43 are singular—“I,” “my,” and “me”—in the Hebrew, suggesting the acrimony of the debate.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:1–26 Sheba’s Rebellion. Sheba’s rebellion is directly connected with the split within the nation seen in 19:41–43. It does not seem to have gained support outside of his own clan (20:14), but the feeling that the king was not treating them well seems to have lingered among the northern tribes, then increased under Solomon (who did not require Judah to supply him with food in the list in 1 Kings 4:7–19), and finally caused the nation to split in two (1 Kings 12).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:1 Seeming to say, "If we do not have 10 shares, we have none," Sheba revolts. His rallying cry will later be used by Jeroboam (1 Kings 12:16). Saul (1 Sam. 13:3) and Absalom (2 Sam. 15:10) also announced their rebellions by a trumpet.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:3 The ten concubines are those whom Absalom had claimed in 16:22.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:4–5 David had made Amasa commander in 19:13, replacing Joab. Three days is a rather short time if he is supposed to gather men from all over Judah, and indeed he failed to gather an army in the set time that had been appointed him.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:6 When Amasa failed to produce an armed force on schedule (v. 5), David turned to Abishai, brother of Joab, David's former general whom he had passed over in favor of Amasa (see note on 19:13). Abishai and Joab had often worked together in battle (3:30; 10:9–10; 18:2; also 1 Kings 11:15; 1 Chron. 18:12), so David probably should not have been too surprised at what soon transpired (2 Sam. 20:10). Sheba … will do us more harm than Absalom. David seems to have overestimated Sheba's strength. Though "all the men of Israel" had initially followed him, apparently only the members of Sheba's own Bichrite clan were truly committed to his cause (v. 14). Your lord's servants refers to David's standing army, as does "the servants of David" in 18:7.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:8–10 Readers are not told why Amasa was in Gibeon instead of Judah. The sword conspicuously falls out of Joab's belt, but when he takes Amasa's beard with his right hand, with his left hand he either picks it up again or gets out a hidden sword (cf. the story of Ehud in Judg. 3:15–23). Compare Joab's similar murder of Abner in 2 Sam. 3:27 and his execution of Absalom in 18:14. brother. Joab and Amasa were first cousins.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:11–13 The people who are addressed in v. 11 and who stopped at the sight of Amasa were probably the "men of Judah" of v. 4 who had come from Judah to Gibeon with Amasa.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:14 Sheba and his men go to Abel, in the north of Israel, just east of Dan.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:15 The mound is a ramp built against the wall to get near its top. battering the wall. This might mean that Joab's men were undermining the walls or, more generally, attacking the walls, as by battering rams.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:16–22 The woman is wise (v. 16), i.e., skilled in choosing means for an end (in this case, to avert destruction) and in persuasive speech. In this narrative, "wisdom" is not necessarily morally positive. A mother in Israel (v. 19) describes a main city with associated (daughter) villages (cf. Judg. 1:27). Israel is the heritage of the LORD. Joab denies (2 Sam. 20:20) that he has any desire to swallow up or destroy (the woman's words): he will be content if Sheba is handed over to him. The woman goes one better, persuading the townspeople to cut off the head of Sheba to end the siege decisively. The hill country of Ephraim (v. 21) includes Benjaminite territory.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:22 Joab returned to Jerusalem to the king. Apparently David did not punish Joab for the murder of Amasa (since Joab was still commander at the end of David's reign; 1 Kings 1:19), but he did not forgive him either (1 Kings 2:5).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 20:23–26 This list is very similar to the lists in 8:15–18 and 1 Kings 4:1–6. The posts and officials overlap to a large degree, but the order is different, and unlike the others, this one does not start out with the king. For Benaiah (2 Sam. 20:23), see note on 8:18. An official in charge of the forced labor (20:24) is not mentioned in ch. 8, so it is possible that this list is dated toward the end of David's reign. The office is probably listed after the bodyguards as a military office because it involved mostly captured peoples, at least at first. Adoram was eventually stoned to death by the northern tribes at the time of Rehoboam (1 Kings 12:18). He is probably the same person as Adoniram in 1 Kings 4:6. The office of overseeing the forced labor is not mentioned again in the Bible, but a seventh-century seal bearing a similar title has been found. For the offices of recorder (2 Sam. 20:24) and secretary, and Zadok and Abiathar (v. 25), see notes on 8:15–18 and 8:17. David's priest (20:26) may have been similar to a private chaplain or adviser, probably the same office as Solomon's "priest and king's friend" (1 Kings 4:5).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:1–24:25 Epilogue. These last four chapters form an epilogue. There are six sections arranged concentrically. The first section deals with a drought, the last with a plague. The second and fifth talk about David's heroes, and the middle two are psalms of David. They are not placed in chronological order with the rest of the book (note the vague expression "in the days of David" in 21:1). The last section is climactic, describing the events leading to the purchase of the land on which Solomon would build the temple.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:1–14 Famine and the Death of Saul's Sons. When told by the Lord that a famine is the result of Saul's misdeed against the Gibeonites, David has Saul's sons slain to make atonement.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:1–2 Joshua 9 tells how the Gibeonites tricked the Israelites into guaranteeing their safety with an oath (Josh. 9:15). Because of his zeal, Saul had broken that oath and killed some Gibeonites. This incident is not recorded elsewhere, but Saul's ability to act ruthlessly (though hardly out of zeal for Israel) is also shown in 1 Sam. 22:16–19.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:3–6 Asked how Saul's misdeeds against them could be atoned, the Gibeonites requested that seven of his sons be given to them to be put to death. This apparently ignores the command in Deut. 24:16: "nor shall children be put to death because of their fathers." Various explanations have been offered as to why God allowed this to happen: (1) These seven were accomplices in Saul's acts. Yet the text in no way suggests this; furthermore, even Merab's oldest son could scarcely have been more than 10 when Saul died, because David must have been at least in his late teens when Merab married (1 Sam. 18:19) and was no more than 30 when Saul died (2 Sam. 5:4). See also note on 4:2–3. (2) A more plausible suggestion is that God still exacted punishment from Saul's house for some of the evil that Saul had done; this is consistent with a pattern elsewhere in which serious sins, especially of a king, result in punishment on the sinner's descendants as well (cf. Ex. 20:5; 1 Sam. 2:33–34; 3:13–14; 1 Kings 14:10–11; 2 Kings 9:7–9). (3) A third suggestion is that the execution of seven men was excessive punishment, because although the Lord told David that Saul's actions had caused the famine (2 Sam. 21:1), he did not tell David to put anyone to death. In that case, the solution proposed by the Gibeonites was excessively vindictive, while the text hints that a monetary payment (see v. 4) and the restoration of land (see v. 5) may have been sufficient. In any case, the narrator never tells readers that God approved of David's action here; thus David may simply be acting according to widespread beliefs or the Gibeonite demands rather than divine command (see notes on 13:21; 16:1–4). The relief from the famine (21:14) does show that the payment was enough (and indeed more than enough), but it is also a response to David's decency with the bones of these victims, as well as those of Saul and Jonathan.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:7–8 The writer lists the sons of Saul who were handed over to the Gibeonites. Mephibosheth the son of Rizpah (Saul's concubine; see 3:7) is different from Mephibosheth son of Jonathan, who was spared. Likewise Barzillai, grandfather of five of the hanged men, is not the Barzillai of 19:31–40. For Merab's marriage to Adriel, see 1 Sam. 18:19.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:9 The beginning of barley harvest was April.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:10–14 Rizpah, mother of two of the men hanged by the Gibeonites, sheltered their bodies from the birds and wild animals (cf. 1 Sam. 17:44, 46; Ps. 79:2). According to Deut. 21:22–23, the bodies of those who are hanged should be buried that same day (see Josh. 8:29). Until rain fell upon them may mean "until the rain should have fallen upon them." It may have been decided that the men would not be buried until the rains fell and the famine stopped. This suggests that, when David heard what Rizpah was doing, he buried them earlier than planned, and then God responded (2 Sam. 21:14), probably by sending rain. David also took the bones of Saul and … his son Jonathan (see 1 Sam. 31:12–13) and, presumably, buried them alongside the seven others of Saul's family who had just been killed. Saul was apparently from Gibeah (1 Sam. 11:4), but his family could have originally come from the Benjaminite town of Zela (Josh. 18:28).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:15–22 Philistine Wars. This section recounts four fights of David's men with Philistine giants. "There was war again" suggests that this is an excerpt from some writing about David's wars.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:16 The giants (Hb. rapah) are usually understood as referring to the Rephaim, the ancient, pre-Israelite inhabitants of Canaan (e.g., Gen. 14:5; 15:20; Deut. 2:10–11, 20–21; 3:11; Josh. 12:4; 13:12; 17:15).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:19 Elhanan … struck down Goliath the Gittite. Since in 1 Samuel 17 David killed Goliath of Gath ("Gittite" means someone from Gath), this statement has caused endless controversy. (1) Some say that the deed of Elhanan was later attributed to David, or that the name "Goliath" only later became attached to David's victim, but these interpretations would deny the truthfulness of 1 Samuel 17, and other solutions are preferable. (2) Based on the parallel passage in 1 Chron. 20:5, some think that "Lahmi the brother of” has been deleted from the text before “Goliath” in this verse, and given some of the challenges encountered in establishing the original text of 1–2 Samuel (see Introduction to 1–2 Samuel: Text), this is a distinct possibility. (3) Another suggestion is that the passages refer to two different men named Goliath. Because there are so many duplicate names in the OT, this is also a possibility. (4) A final suggestion, similar to the third solution, is that “Goliath” was a common noun for a giant, just as “Achish” (1 Sam. 21:10; 27:2) may have been a title or common noun for a Philistine ruler (just as “Pharaoh” is a title of the king of Egypt, not a name). There is therefore no conflict in saying that both David and Elhanan killed [a] “Goliath.” The name “Goliath” is traceable back to the non-Semitic Anatolian name Walwatta, and the name has been found in an early Philistine inscription.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 21:21 Jonathan may be the Jonathan listed as one of David’s 30 mighty men (23:32). Shimei was David’s third eldest brother. His name is given in various forms in 1 Sam. 16:9; 17:13; 2 Sam. 13:3; and 1 Chron. 2:13.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:1–51 Song of David. David’s song is almost identical with Psalm 18. There are many differences in spelling, etc., in the Hebrew text of the two passages, but few of the differences come across in a translation. Most of these differences can be understood when one realizes that, while the book of Psalms, regularly used in worship, uses “standard” Hebrew spelling, the spelling in the Samuel passage is much more phonetic in character because as a narrative it was written as it was meant to be heard. In other words, David’s personal song of 2 Samuel 22 has been adapted to serve as a public hymn in Psalm 18 (see note). Such phonetic spelling is common throughout the books of Samuel (see Introduction to 1–2 Samuel: Text).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:1 The heading to David’s song does not refer to one particular incident, but to David’s deliverance from the hand of all his enemies. Similar elaborate descriptions, followed by “He said” (v. 2), can be found in the headings of second-millennium Egyptian songs.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:5–6 The name Sheol can refer to the place of the dead; here it is used as a synonym for “death.” All four lines say in prose, “I was facing death.”

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:7 Having described his situation, David now describes the Lord’s response. Heard (Hb. shama‘) does not simply mean a passive “hearing”; it implies an attentive listening and, usually, a positive response. Temple probably refers to the heavenly temple of God, from which he came down (v. 10; see Ps. 11:4; Mic. 1:2–3).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:8–16 The Lord’s sudden appearance to help David is described in vivid metaphor. The natural phenomenon that would cover most of the description is a volcano, which causes earthquake, smoke, fire, fiery coals, and ash clouds. Earthquake imagery is often associated with the Lord (Ps. 77:18; Isa. 5:25; 24:18). Earthquakes, if not volcanoes, were well known in that region; see Amos 1:1. Judges 5:4–5 reads, “LORD, when you went out from Seir … the earth trembled and the heavens dropped, yes, the clouds dropped water. The mountains quaked before the LORD.” Many of the references can also be taken as storm images; describing battle in terms of a storm is common both in the Bible and in other ancient Near Eastern literature. In this song, the Lord is depicted as a mighty warrior riding in a chariot drawn by the wind or a cherub. David is probably thinking mainly of actual fighting, though he may have also been thinking of some instances of spiritual battle.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:10 The Lord bowed (or “spread open” or “parted”; Hb. natah) the heavens.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:15 Them refers to David’s enemies.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:17 many waters. Cf. v. 5, where “waves” and “torrents” of trouble were overwhelming David.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:20 The Hebrew for broad place is the opposite of an expression for being “greatly distressed” (lit., “the matter is narrow for”) in 1 Sam. 30:6; 2 Sam. 13:2; etc.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:26–27 In Hebrew these are four lines, all of the form “With the X [person] you show yourself X.” To the crooked, i.e., to deceptive, dishonest people, God shows himself tortuous, i.e., he makes simple truths seem confusing and impossible to understand.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:28 This verse restates the theme of Hannah’s song at the beginning of Samuel (1 Sam. 2:7–8): God controls human destiny, humbling the proud but raising the humble.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:32–33 This also (cf. note on v. 28) is similar to 1 Sam. 2:2 (in Hannah's song), extolling the Lord as a rock and the one and only God. It also reflects back to the beginning of David's song (2 Sam. 22:2–3), calling God a refuge. The first part of the song (vv. 2–31) has described the fight in terms of the actions of the Lord; this next section (vv. 32–49) covers the fight with enemies in terms of what David did, thanks to the Lord, who equipped him for battle (v. 40).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:35 A bow of bronze is probably a bow reinforced with bronze, which would be difficult to draw but powerful. Note that "bronze" is a symbol of strength in Job 6:12; 40:18; Jer. 1:18; etc. God gave David skill and strength to conduct warfare and defeat his enemies.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:47–49 These verses end the second half of David's song, summarizing what the Lord has done and repeating the key word rock.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 22:50–51 This is the conclusion of the whole of David's song, with a reference to ch. 7 and to the last verse of the Song of Hannah (1 Sam. 2:10).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:1–7 Last Words of David. The "last words of David" are a song praising God for establishing his house as the ruler; the song reflects back to God's promise in 7:8–19. Like the wisdom psalms, it also contrasts the just ruler and worthless men. This psalm uses two different metaphors. One compares the righteous ruler to the morning light at sunrise and the shafts of sunshine on the grass after rain; the other compares worthless men to uprooted thorns.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:1 This long title section is similar to some Egyptian poems with a title. The formula the oracle of … the oracle of the man also appears in Num. 24:3, 15 (see also Prov. 30:1). The man who was raised on high refers to David's kingly position. the sweet psalmist of Israel. Many psalms declare David as their author; cf. David's musical gifts in 1 Sam. 16:18; 2 Sam. 1:17–18; Amos 6:5.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:2 The Spirit of the LORD speaks by me shows that David represents himself as a prophet, whose songs and wise sayings come from God (cf. Matt. 22:43; Acts 1:16; 2:30; 4:25; Heb. 4:7).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:3 The king who rules justly over men is one who rules in the fear of God, according to the divine statutes.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:4 Like the morning light, like the sun … like rain are images for bringing health and life. He in this verse is the just ruler of the previous verse, not God.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:5 This verse refers to the covenant God made with David in ch. 7 (see also Ps. 89:29; 132:12). Ordered in all things and secure is probably legal terminology, stressing the validity of the covenant.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:7 The Hebrew for consumed with fire may be rendered "consumed with fire in the sitting" (see esv footnote), which perhaps suggests "consumed with fire on the spot." For fire as an instrument of God's judgment, cf. Isa. 9:18; 10:17.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:8–39 David's Heroes. This list of David's mighty men begins formally with "These are the names of" and ends with the total number, "thirty-seven in all" (v. 39). (For lists, see note on 1 Sam. 6:17–18.) The list is divided into two groups: "the three," i.e., Josheb-basshebeth, Eleazar, and Shammah (2 Sam. 23:8–12), and "the thirty" (23:18–39). Thirty-four names are listed among "the thirty": this could mean that (1) "thirty" is a round number, or (2) the group began with 30 members and continued to be called "the thirty" when others were added; or (3) the group remained at 30, but when some died they were replaced by other names on this list (the parallel list in 1 Chron. 11:10–47 has 16 additional names in 1 Chron. 11:41–47, probably for this reason). These 34 names plus "the three" make up the "thirty-seven" of 2 Sam. 23:39.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:11–12 Shammah was defending the plot, or rather the lentils in it, against theft. Compare the Philistines' robbing the threshing floors in 1 Sam. 23:1.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:13–17 These three men were apparently not the above "three," but rather members of the "thirty." This episode may have occurred while David was fleeing Saul, or possibly during one of the Philistine attacks in 5:17–25. Oh, that someone would give me water … from the well of Bethlehem. The taste of the water differs from place to place, and of course the water that one grew up drinking tastes best. David's words are not a command; it probably did not occur to him that someone might actually act on his words.

This episode shows the love that his men had for their leader and his regard for them.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:16–17 He poured it out to the LORD. This may at first seem wasteful of David, and ungrateful, but it is a gesture showing great value. He likens the water to the blood of his men, and for David to drink the water obtained at the risk of their lives would have been to take their blood lightly. But to pour it out before the Lord was a way of saying that he was not worthy of it, and he was offering it to the Lord instead. Such "drink offerings" were often poured out before the Lord: see Gen. 35:14; Num. 15:7–10; 28:7–15; etc.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:18–39 This is the list of David's "thirty men." They are Abishai, Benaiah, and the men listed in vv. 24–39. Most of the first dozen and a large part of the remainder are Judahites, so the group was probably formed early in David's career. The list has 34 names, probably representing 35 men (see note on v. 32). Probably those of "the thirty" who died in battle, such as Asahel (v. 24; 2:18–23) and Uriah (11:17; 23:39), were replaced by others. Some of the names appear as officers in 1 Chronicles 27, and most appear in the list in 1 Chron. 11:20–47, which is an expansion of this but is not labeled as being a list of "the thirty" (cf. 2 Sam. 23:24 and 1 Chron. 11:26).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 23:32 The sons of Jashen probably refers to two men, possibly twins. In the list of names, however, they seem to be counted as one item. The translation of vv. 32–33 given here is the most natural, but it should be noted that those verses have been translated a number of ways (see also 1 Chron. 11:34–35).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:1–25 The Census and the Threshing Floor. The Lord's anger and David's sin lead to a plague, but also to the purchase of a site in Jerusalem to offer burnt offerings to the Lord.

David's Census

David ordered his commander Joab to take a census of all the people in the regions in which he exercised direct control. The reason for this census was probably to assess David's military capacity (see 2 Sam. 24:9; 1 Chron. 21:5). Joab's men left Jerusalem and began the census at Aroer, on the edge of the Arnon River. They progressed to Jazer near Rabbah, to Gilead, and on to Dan. After turning toward Sidon and the fortress of Tyre, they headed to Beersheba in the Negeb of Judah, and then they returned to Jerusalem.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:1 Here the text says, the LORD … incited David, while 1 Chron. 21:1 reads, “Satan … incited David.” The Lord allowed Satan to incite David. God himself never does evil, but sometimes he uses evil moral agents (demons and sinful human beings) to accomplish his purposes. For more on how to reconcile the two accounts, see note on 1 Chron. 21:1; see also notes on Gen. 50:18–21; 1 Sam. 16:14; Mark 14:21; Acts 2:23; 4:28; 18:9–11; 27:30; 2 Tim. 2:10.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:3 By numbering the people for military purposes (v. 9), David apparently showed lack of trust in the Lord to supply the necessary men when needed, and wrongful pride in the hundreds of thousands of forces at his command (see v. 10). Joab knew it was wrong. Exodus 30:12 has a reference to the need for a “ransom” after the counting. Cf. note on 1 Chron. 21:5–6.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:5–8 The details of the census trip are not certain, but it seems that the men began at Aroer, a city on the Arnon River on the border with Moab, went north through Gilead and Bashan, and then went north-northwest to Dan. From there they went to the coast (the fortress of Tyre is probably not the city of Tyre, but an Israelite fortress), then south to Beersheba, and then back to Jerusalem.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:9 The numbering yields 800,000 valiant men in Israel and 500,000 in Judah. For the discrepancy in these numbers and those cited in 1 Chron. 21:5–6, see note there.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:10 David’s heart struck him. His conscience convicted him that his census was sin (see v. 17; and note on v. 3). I have sinned. The text does not specify why it was sin, but such an action could have been motivated by pride, trust in self, and lack of trust in the Lord.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:13 Although the Hebrew reads “seven years of famine”(see esv footnote), the text here follows the Septuagint and 1 Chron. 21:12, three years of famine, which makes good sense. If the Masoretic text is original, then “seven” is possibly used symbolically, since that time frame was a common theme in the ancient Near East (see Gen. 41:30; 2 Kings 8:1). Chronicles, then, would give the nonfigurative period. Famine, sword, and pestilence is a well-known trio of disasters (Jer. 14:12; 18:21; Ezek. 5:17; etc.). Probably the number of people who would die in each of these disasters would be approximately equal; pestilence kills faster (three days’) than famine (“three years”).

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:17 Behold, I have sinned. … But these sheep, what have they done? David pleads that the people may not suffer for his sin, but he is the representative of God’s people, and thus they bear the consequences of his behavior, whether good or evil. Please let your hand be against me. David offers personally to bear the punishment for this sin, but God does not accept the offer. This is, however, a worthy gesture on David’s part, and sets the pattern for his ultimate descendant, the Messiah, who will bear the punishment due his people.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:18 Go up. From David’s home there was a yet higher place, the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite. The Jebusites were the previous inhabitants of Jerusalem (see 5:6), some of whom still lived there.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:20 Araunah looked down. Threshing floors were usually on a high place so that the wind could blow the chaff away. This location would later become the site of the temple (see note on v. 25). It is on the top of the hill to the north of the city of David, about 450 yards (412 m) from it. (See illustration.)

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:23–24 David feels that because he is the one who sinned, and because it is for the sake of the nation, he should pay for the sacrifice. He pays fifty shekels of silver for the threshing floor and the oxen. First Chronicles 21:25 says that he paid “600 shekels of gold by weight for the site”; probably the “site” mentioned there is the larger piece of land on Mount Moriah.

2 SAMUEL—NOTE ON 24:25 God accepted David’s burnt offerings, and through the peace offerings David enjoyed the presence of the Lord. Thus God responded to the plea for the land. But this site will become much more significant in the future, for as the parallel account (in 1 Chron. 22:1) states, this threshing floor is the site on which Solomon would build the temple to the Lord—making this a fitting end to the story of David.

Introduction to 1–2 Kings

Author and Title

As the titles of the books indicate, 1–2 Kings describe the period of the monarchy in ancient Israel (970–586 B.C.), excluding most of the reigns of King Saul and King David (which are mainly described in 1–2 Samuel, with the conclusion to David's reign appearing in 1 Kings 1:1–2:11). Ancient Jewish tradition attributes this account to the prophet Jeremiah, although the books themselves do not specify the author. Internal evidence, however, does establish that the author or authors were deeply influenced by the book of Deuteronomy and sought to provide Israel with an explanation of its past in terms of the theological program outlined in that book. This is clearly signaled, for example, in the opening section of David's parting speech to Solomon (1 Kings 2:1–4), where the language closely parallels the following phrases from Deuteronomy: "keep the charge of the LORD your God" (Deut. 11:1); "walking in his ways" (Deut. 8:6); "keeping all his statutes and his commandments" (Deut. 6:2); "that you may prosper in all you do" (Deut. 29:9); "that he may confirm the word that the LORD swore to your fathers" (Deut. 9:5); "with all your heart and with all your soul" (Deut. 4:29). "Deuteronomic" language such as this appears again and again in 1–2 Kings, as first Solomon himself (1 Kings 11), and then almost all the succeeding kings of Israel and Judah, are weighed in relation to the Mosaic law code and found wanting (e.g., Jeroboam, 1 Kings 12:25–33; 14:1–16; Ahaz, 2 Kings 16:1–4). For this reason, the authors of 1–2 Kings have often been referred to in recent biblical scholarship as "Deuteronomists." Beyond this one fact, however, nothing can be said for sure about the authorship of these books. Some have speculated that these "Deuteronomists" were Levites or priests; others, that they were prophets; and still others, that they were the wise men of the Jerusalem court. No one can really know.

Date

In their present form, 1–2 Kings could not have been written before the sixth century B.C., since 2 Kings 25:27–30 describes the release of King Jehoiachin from prison in Babylon in 561 and the books must therefore date from some time after that. It is possible (and some scholars certainly believe) that this late exilic or postexilic version of Kings builds on earlier editions dating from before the exile of many Judeans to Babylon in 587 B.C., or from the period of the exile itself. There is also evidence that at least some editing of the text took place in the Persian period (539–c. 330 B.C.). Notice, for example, the intriguing references to "the kings of the west" and "the governors of the land" (1 Kings 10:15). These seem best understood as representing a Persian perspective on the region west of the Euphrates, which was administered on behalf of the Persian emperor by governors (cf. Ezra 8:36; Neh. 2:7, 9).

Theme

These two books set out to provide for their readers an explanation of Israel's later monarchic period in terms of the theological vision outlined in the book of Deuteronomy, so that these readers can move forward in their present times with a solidly grounded faith in the one God who controls both nature and history. The books maintain that it is this good and all-powerful God who oversaw the destruction of his chosen city and temple, and the exile to Babylon, in 586 B.C. because of Israel's great sinfulness (2 Kings 17:7–23; 24:1–4). Yet there remains hope because God's chosen royal line has not come to an end (2 Kings 25:27–30), and God remains ready to forgive those who are repentant (1 Kings 8:22–61).

Purpose, Occasion, and Background

In the year 609 B.C. the pharaoh of Egypt, Neco II, marched north to support his allies the Assyrians in their conflict with the Babylonians and their allies the Medes. On the way, Neco was opposed by King Josiah of Judah at the city of Megiddo, who was perhaps hoping to establish his independence from an increasingly powerful Egypt or hoping to benefit from being seen to take the Babylonians' side. Josiah was killed in the ensuing battle, and Judah’s independence was lost. The new king, Jehoahaz, found himself imprisoned in Egypt while his brother Eliakim reigned in Judah as a vassal of Egypt under the name of Jehoiakim.

Around 604 B.C., however, Jehoiakim switched his allegiance to Babylon. Then, a few years later, he rebelled against the Babylonian king. Consequently, at the end of the year 598 B.C., when the Babylonian army was before the gates of Jerusalem, Egyptian forces were not on hand to help. The city surrendered to the Babylonians in 597 B.C., and the new king, Jehoiachin, was deported to Babylon along with many other leading citizens and much plunder. Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, then placed Jehoiachin’s uncle Mattaniah on the throne and gave him the new name of Zedekiah. From early in his reign Zedekiah was involved in discussions with neighboring peoples about the possibility of revolt, and eventually revolt occurred. A new siege of Jerusalem by the Babylonians ensued. It was temporarily lifted when the new pharaoh, Apries, sent an army into Palestine, but resumed when the Egyptian army withdrew. After two years of siege, with all supplies of food exhausted, the city eventually fell in 587 or 586 B.C.

The fall of Jerusalem and the events that immediately followed it came as a devastating blow to the people of Judah. Jerusalem lay in ruins; both ordinary houses and the royal palace had been destroyed, and the city’s defenses had been pulled down. Most seriously of all, the temple—the great symbol of Yahweh’s presence with Israel—had been dismantled. Many had been killed, and many others had been deported to Babylon to work in the fields as well as in administration. Among the deportees were the leaders of the Judean community, who joined King Jehoiachin and the others deported there earlier. The people left in Judah were only the “poorest of the land” (2 Kings 25:12; see Jer. 39:10; 52:16), watched over by a garrison of troops in Jerusalem and initially by a native (non-Davidic) Judean leader named Gedaliah, who based himself in the city of Mizpah, about 7.5 miles (12 km) from the former capital. The pain and grief of the time is well expressed in Lamentations 1:1: “How lonely sits the city that was full of people! How like a widow has she become, she who was great among the nations! She who was a princess among the provinces has become a slave.” What did it all mean? Was Israel’s God not in fact in control of nature and history, as Mosaic religion claimed? Were there other, more powerful gods in Babylon who had engineered the Babylonian victory over Israel? If the God of Moses did exist, and was good and all-powerful, how was it that God's chosen city and temple had been destroyed, and how was it that God's chosen royal line (the line of David) had all but come to its end?

The books of Kings must be understood against this background. They represent a sustained response to such questions, and are designed to provide their readers a true interpretation of what happened to Israel in 586 B.C. Israel's God is indeed in control of nature and history; there are no other, more powerful gods anywhere. It is in fact this good and all-powerful God who has himself overseen the destruction of his chosen city and his temple, and the exile to Babylon. The reason for these actions lies in Israel's great sinfulness. Israel has not obeyed God or heeded his word through the prophets, from the reign of Solomon onward.

Solomon turned away from the true God to worship other gods (1 Kings 2:12–11:43). Jeroboam son of Nebat led northern Israel into independence from Solomon's son Rehoboam and Judah (1 Kings 12:1–24) and into institutionalized idolatry, with gods manufactured by Jeroboam (1 Kings 12:25–33) or introduced from elsewhere (1 Kings 16:29–2 Kings 10:31), and this ultimately led to exile in Assyria for the northern tribes (2 Kings 17). Although the religious situation in Judah was initially no better than that in Israel (1 Kings 14:22–24; 15:3–5), Judah's story afterward was not one of continuous apostasy. Relatively good kings did rule in the gaps between the wicked kings (1 Kings 15:9–22:50; 2 Kings 12:1–15:38); and toward the end of the monarchy ruled two of the best kings ever (Hezekiah, 2 Kings 18:1–20:21; Josiah, 2 Kings 22:1–23:30). Sin gradually accumulated, nevertheless, resulting in exile also for the kingdom of Judah. Yet it is implied that hope remains, for God's chosen royal line has not in fact come to an utter end (2 Kings 25:27–30), and God remains God, ever ready to forgive those who repent. The fact that God is "one" thus represents both the ultimate reason for the events of 586 B.C. and the ultimate ground for Israel's hope of restoration; for if there is only one God, nothing and no one can frustrate his purposes.

Key Themes

1. Yahweh is the only true God. There is only one living God, and he is the Lord (1 Kings 18:15; 2 Kings 5:15). This Lord is not to be confused with the various so-called gods worshiped in Israel and other nations, for these are simply human creations (1 Kings 12:25–30; 2 Kings 17:16; 19:14–19). They are part of the created order, like the people who worship them; and they are powerless, futile entities (1 Kings 16:13; 18:22–40; 2 Kings 17:15; 18:33–35). The Lord, by contrast, is the incomparable Creator of heaven and earth (1 Kings 8:23; 2 Kings 19:15). He is utterly distinct from the world that he has created (cf. 1 Kings 8:9, 14–21, 27–30, where he is neither truly "in" the ark nor "in" the temple; and 18:26–38, where the antics of the Baal priests apparently imply belief in an intrinsic connection between their actions and divine action, while Elijah's behavior implies quite the reverse). At the same time, the Lord is powerfully active within his world. It is he, and no one else, who controls nature (1 Kings 17–19; 2 Kings 1:2–17; 4:8–37; 5:1–18; 6:1–7, 27).

2. Yahweh controls history. The Lord, and neither an idol god, nor king, nor prophet, controls history (1 Kings 11:14, 23; 14:1–18; 22:1–38; 2 Kings 5:1–18; 10:32–33; 18:17–19:37). This is perhaps illustrated most clearly in the way in which prophets function within 1–2 Kings, describing the future before God brings it about (1 Kings 11:29–39; 13:1–32; 16:1–4; 20:13–34; 2 Kings 19:6–7, 20–34). Nothing can hinder the fulfillment of this prophetic word, although God himself, in his freedom, can override its fulfillment for his own purposes (cf. 1 Kings 21:17–29; 2 Kings 3:15–27, where the ending to the story is somewhat unexpected).

3. Yahweh demands exclusive worship. As the only God there is, the Lord demands exclusive worship. He will not take his place alongside the gods, nor is he willing to be displaced by them. He refuses to be confused with any part of the created order. He alone will be worshiped, by Israelite and foreigner alike (1 Kings 8:41–43, 60; 2 Kings 5:15–18; 17:24–41).

4. The content and place of true worship. Much of 1–2 Kings is therefore concerned to describe what is illegitimate in terms of worship. The main interest is in the content of this worship, which must neither involve idols or images nor reflect any aspect of the fertility and other cults of "the nations" (1 Kings 11:1–40; 12:25–13:34; 14:22–24; 16:29–33; 2 Kings 16:1–4; 17:7–23; 21:1–9). There is a subsidiary concern about the place of worship, which is ideally the Jerusalem temple, and not the local "high places" (1 Kings 3:2; 5:1–9:9; 15:14; 22:43; 2 Kings 18:4; 23:1–20).

5. The consequences of false worship. The books of 1–2 Kings also describe the moral wrongs that inevitably accompany false worship. They claim that true worship of God is always bound up with obedience to the law of God, and that the worship of something other than God inevitably leads to some kind of mistreatment of fellow mortals in the eyes of God; see 1 Kings 21, where the kind of abandonment of God envisaged in Exodus 20 leads to wholesale breach of the other commandments described there (2 Kings 16:1–4, esp. v. 3; 2 Kings 21:1–16, esp. vv. 6, 16). By the same token, true wisdom is defined in 1–2 Kings in terms of true worship and wholehearted obedience. It cannot be divorced from either (see 1 Kings 1–11, where much can be learned about the nature of true wisdom).

6. Yahweh as just and gracious Lawgiver. As the Giver of the law, which defines true worship and right thinking and behavior generally, the Lord is also the one who executes justice on wrongdoers. The world of 1–2 Kings is a moral world in which wrongdoing is punished, whether the sinner be king (Solomon in 1 Kings 11:9–13; Jeroboam in 1 Kings 14:1–18), or prophet (the unnamed Judean in 1 Kings 13:7–25; the disobedient man in 1 Kings 20:35–43), or ordinary Israelite (Gehazi in 2 Kings 5:19–27; the Israelite officer in 2 Kings 7:17–20). It is not a vending-machine world, however, in which every coin of sin that is inserted results in individually packaged retribution. There is no neat correlation between sin and judgment in Kings, even though people are told that they must obey God if they are to be blessed by him (e.g., Solomon in 1 Kings 2:1–4; Jeroboam in 1 Kings 11:38). This is largely because of the compassionate character of the Judge, who does not desire final judgment to fall on his creatures (2 Kings 13:23; 14:27) and who often delays or mitigates such judgment (1 Kings 21:25–29; 2 Kings 22:15–20). God's grace is to be found everywhere in 1–2 Kings (1 Kings 11:9–13; 15:1–5; 2 Kings 8:19), confounding expectations that the reader might have formed on the basis of an oversimplified understanding of law. Sin can, nevertheless, accumulate to such an extent that judgment falls, not only on individuals but on whole cultures, sweeping the relatively innocent away with the guilty (2 Kings 17:1–23; 23:29–25:26).

7. Yahweh as promise-giver. Israel's God is not only a lawgiver, however, but also a promise-giver. In 1–2 Kings it is a promise usually to be found at the heart of the Lord's gracious behavior toward his people. The two most important divine promises referred to are those given to the patriarchs on the one hand, and to David on the other.

The patriarchal promise to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—descendants and everlasting possession of the land of Canaan—clearly influences God's treatment of his people at various points in the story (2 Kings 13:23, and implicitly in 1 Kings 4:20–21, 24; 18:36). That promise also lies in the background of Solomon's prayer in 1 Kings 8:22–53, as Solomon looks forward to the possibility of forgiveness after judgment. The future-oriented aspect of the promise in this passage is interesting because it is a promise in clear tension with the story's ending in 2 Kings 25, where disobedience has led to expulsion from the land and exile in a foreign empire. It seems that the true fulfillment of the promise is thought still to be in the future, even though it has also played its part in the past.

The promise given to David, that he should have an eternal dynasty, shares in the same kind of tension, and indeed appears in 1–2 Kings in a curiously paradoxical form. In much of the narrative it provides an explanation for why the Davidic dynasty survives when other dynasties do not, in spite of the disobedience of David's successors (1 Kings 11:36; 15:4; 2 Kings 8:19). It is viewed, in other words, as unconditional in one aspect. Judah's fate is not to be the same as Israel's and Jerusalem's fate is to be different from Samaria's, because God has promised David a "lamp," a descendant who will always sit on his throne. So when Solomon sins, the Davidic line does not lose the throne entirely, but retains "one tribe" (1 Kings 11:36) in the meantime, with the prospect of restoring its dominion at some time in the future (1 Kings 11:39). When Abijam sins, likewise, his son still retains the Judean throne (1 Kings 15:4).

The background here is the promise to David recorded in 2 Samuel 7, where the sins of David's descendants are to be punished by the "rod of men" rather than by the kind of divine rejection Saul experienced (2 Sam. 7:14–16). This promise makes the ultimate difference between Davidic kings and those of other royal houses throughout much of the books of Kings, and makes the Judean dynasty unshakable even while the dynasties of the northern kingdom are like reeds "shaken in the water" (1 Kings 14:15). This dynasty survives in spite of the disobedience of David's successors. At other times, however, the continuance of the dynasty is made dependent on the obedience of David's successors (1 Kings 2:4; 8:25; 9:4–5). The promise is treated as conditional. As the books progress, it seems that this latter view prevails, as accumulating sin puts the promise in its unconditional aspect under great stress and in the end brings down God's judgment on Judah just as severely as on Israel (2 Kings 16:1–4; 21:1–15; 23:31–25:26).

Yet Jehoiachin lives (2 Kings 25:27–30). The authors of Kings did not need to record this fact. They could have allowed Jehoiachin to dwell in obscurity with Zedekiah (2 Kings 24:18–25:7), who effectively ends up as the eunuch in Babylon that the prophet Isaiah had foreseen (2 Kings 20:18)—a mutilated man deprived of the heirs who might later claim the throne. The significance of this postscript on Jehoiachin appears clearer in an earlier section of 2 Kings. After the reign of two relatively righteous kings (Asa and Jehoshaphat), Judah found herself with two kings who share with King Ahab's children both their names (Jehoram, Ahaziah) and their attraction to idolatry (2 Kings 8:16–29). Yet God had promised David an ever-burning "lamp" in Jerusalem (2 Kings 8:19; cf. 1 Kings 11:36; 15:4), an everlasting dynasty. Therefore, although Ahab's dynasty comes to an end in 2 Kings 9–10, David's dynasty does not. Although Ahaziah dies and his mother Athaliah tries to wipe out the entire royal family (2 Kings 11:1), one royal prince remains to carry on the family line (2 Kings 11:2). Against all the odds, Joash survives six years of his grandmother's rule to emerge once again as king in a land purified of the worship of foreign gods (2 Kings 11:3–20).

Later, Jehoiachin reappears in the narrative of 1–2 Kings in a manner strikingly reminiscent of this reappearance of Joash after that earlier destruction of "all the royal family" (2 Kings 11:1). Like Joash, he unexpectedly survives in the midst of carnage; and like Joash during Athaliah's reign, he represents the potential for the continuation of the Davidic line at a later time. All is not yet necessarily lost. The destruction of the family of the last king of Judah (Zedekiah) does not mean that no Davidic descendant is left. Second Kings 25:27–30 hints that the unconditional aspects of the Davidic promise may still, even after awful judgment has fallen, remain in force. Similarly, the prayer of Solomon in 1 Kings 8:22–53 looks beyond the disaster of exile, grounding its hope for the restoration of Israel to its land in God's gracious and unconditional election of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (see also 1 Kings 18:36–37; 2 Kings 13:23; 14:27). Solomon's prayer had also refused to accept that God's words about the rejection of people, city, and temple (e.g., 2 Kings 21:14; 23:27) were his final words. The words in 2 Kings 25:27–30 express the hope that God may indeed be found to be, in the end as in the beginning, a God of grace and not only of commandment, and that a Son of David will one day appear to introduce his righteous rule on the earth.

History of Salvation Summary

God’s purpose in establishing Israel had been to bring blessing to the world through the people’s covenant faithfulness. He instituted the Davidic dynasty to lead the people in their faithfulness. The history of Israel, as told by 1–2 Kings, is full of tragedies: the rupture of the kingdom so that the north was in rebellion against David’s house; the failures of so many kings, north and south, to live faithfully and to lead wisely; and the deportations of the north and then of the south. And yet God will not fail in his purpose: Kings ends with kindness shown to David’s heir (2 Kings 25:27–30), which leaves the hope that the Davidic line will continue, leading to the ultimate heir, the Messiah, and the hope that a chastened Israel may itself be restored and may fulfill its calling for the world. Literary Features

First and Second Kings are written in the form of historical narrative—specifically, a record of monarchical succession. The main rhetorical format of this court history is the summary of individual kings’ careers, consisting of the name of each king, what kingdom he ruled (Israel or Judah), the date of his accession to the throne, the length of his reign, his religious and other policies, the details of his death, and the name of his successor. Yet the authors are as much theologians as historians. It is not their intention to provide every historical detail, and on occasion they direct readers who want more information to consult other sources. The authors’ main intention is to interpret the history of Israel along theological lines, showing what happens when political and spiritual leaders foolishly choose to worship false gods instead of wisely choosing to worship the one true God.

Solomon is the dominant character in the first half of 1 Kings, and the prophet Elijah in the second half. These two “close-ups” are balanced by a host of brief vignettes, chiefly of kings. The book is also unified by the choice that each king (along with the nation itself) must make between following God and worshiping idols. The general movement of the book is from wisdom to folly, as Solomon’s downfall is recapitulated in the choices of his sons and grandsons. The archetype of the evil king dominates the book, with the figure of King David repeatedly invoked as the royal standard by which his successors are measured and found wanting. Subgenres that appear intermittently in 1 Kings are the farewell address, the list of government officials, the building description, the dedicatory prayer, the inventory, the curse, the miracle story, the bet, and the taunt.

Like 1 Kings, 2 Kings is encyclopedic in its scope, summarizing the careers of nearly 30 kings. The extensive portrait of the life of the prophet Elisha is an exception to this "broadstroke" format. The general shape of 2 Kings is tragic, depicting how a great nation falls into ruin. Some of the episodes in the book are narratives in their own right, and they fall into a number of subgenres, including confrontation story, medical case, ascension story, succession story, recovery story, battle story, hero story, miracle story, resurrection narrative, murder story, revenge narrative, prayer, prophecy, reformation story, and captivity narrative. Far from simply giving the facts, the historian tells what happened with a reporter's eye for the significant detail, a storyteller's flair for the dramatic, and a pastor's heart for teaching people the difference between right and wrong. The principle of organization is chiefly chronological, covering some 300 years of royal history. Despite the abundance of kings whose careers are summarized, a repeated cycle unifies the book, consisting of reformation, deformation, and decline.

1 Kings

David in His Old Age

1 KINGS 1 [‡]Now King David was old and advanced in years. And although they covered him with clothes, he could not get warm. [2][‡]Therefore his servants said to him, “Let a young woman be sought for my lord the king, and let her wait on the king and be in his service. Let her lie in your arms, [1] that my lord the king may be warm.” [3]So they sought for a beautiful young woman throughout all the territory of Israel, and found Abishag the [a]Shunammite, and brought her to the king. [4]The young woman was very beautiful, and she was of service to the king and attended to him, but the king knew her not.

Adonijah Sets Himself Up as King

[5][‡]Now [b]Adonijah the son of Haggith exalted himself, saying, “I will be king.” [c]And he prepared for himself chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. [6]His father had never at any time displeased him by asking, “Why have you done thus and so?” He was also a very handsome man, [d]and he was born next after Absalom. [7][‡]He conferred with [e]Joab the son of Zeruiah and with [f]Abiathar the priest. And they followed Adonijah and helped him. [8]But [f]Zadok the priest and [g]Benaiah the son of Jehoiada and [h]Nathan the prophet and [i]Shimei and Rei and [j]David’s mighty men were not with Adonijah.

[9]Adonijah sacrificed sheep, oxen, and fattened cattle by the Serpent’s Stone, which is beside [k]En-rogel, and he invited all his brothers, the king’s sons, and all the royal officials of Judah, [10]but he did not invite Nathan the prophet or Benaiah or the mighty men or [l]Solomon his brother.

Nathan and Bathsheba Before David

[11]Then Nathan said to Bathsheba the mother of Solomon, “Have you not heard that [b]Adonijah the son of Haggith has become king and David our lord does not know it? [12]Now therefore come, let me give you advice, that you may save your own life and the life of your son Solomon. [13][^][†]Go in at once to King David, and say to him, ‘Did you not, my lord the king, swear to your servant, saying, [m]“Solomon your son shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne”? Why then is Adonijah king?’ [14]Then while you are still speaking with the king, I also will come in after you and confirm [2] your words.”

[15]So Bathsheba went to the king in his chamber (now the king was very old, and Abishag the Shunammite was attending to the king). [16]Bathsheba bowed and paid homage to the king, and the king said, “What do you desire?” [17]She said to him, “My lord, you swore to your servant by the Lord your God, saying, [m]‘Solomon your son shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne.’ [18][†]And now, behold, Adonijah is king, although you, my lord the king, do not know it. [19][n]He has sacrificed oxen, fattened cattle, and sheep in abundance, and has invited all the sons of the king, [f]Abiathar the priest, and Joab the commander of the army, but [l]Solomon your servant he has not invited. [20][†]And now, my lord the king, the eyes of all Israel are on you, to tell them who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him. [21]Otherwise it will come to pass, when my lord the king [o]sleeps with his fathers, that I and my son Solomon will be counted offenders.”

[22][†]While she was still speaking with the king, Nathan the prophet came in. [23]And they told the king, “Here is Nathan the prophet.” And when he came in before the king, he bowed before the king, with his face to the ground. [24]And Nathan said, “My lord the king, have you said, ‘Adonijah shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne’? [25]For he has gone down this day and [n]has sacrificed oxen, fattened cattle, and sheep in abundance, and has invited all the king’s sons, the commanders [3] of the army, and Abiathar the priest. And behold, they are eating and drinking before him, and saying, [p]‘Long live King Adonijah!’ [26][q]But me, your servant, and Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and your servant Solomon he has not invited. [27]Has this thing been brought about by my lord the king and you have not told your servants who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him?”

Solomon Anointed King

[28]Then King David answered, “Call Bathsheba to me.” So she came into the king’s presence and stood before the king. [29]And the king swore, saying, [r]“As the LORD lives, who has redeemed my soul out of every adversity, [30][s]as I swore to you by the LORD, the God of Israel, saying, ‘Solomon your son shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne in my place,’ even so will I do this day.” [31][‡]Then Bathsheba bowed with her face to the ground and paid homage to the king and said, [t]“May my lord King David live forever!”

[32]King David said, “Call to me Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada.” So they came before the king. [33][‡]And the king said to them, “Take with you [u]the servants of your lord and have Solomon my son ride on my own mule, and bring him down to [v]Gihon. [34]And let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet there [w]anoint him king over Israel. [x]Then blow the trumpet and say, [y]‘Long live King Solomon!’ [35]You shall then come up after him, and he shall come and sit on my throne, for he shall be king in my place. And I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and over Judah.” [36]And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada answered the king, “Amen! May the LORD, the God of my lord the king, say so. [37][z]As the LORD has been with my lord the king, even so may he be with Solomon, [a]and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord King David.”

[38][‡]So Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, [b]and the Cherethites and the Pelethites went down and had Solomon ride on King David’s mule and brought him to Gihon. [39][‡]There Zadok the priest took the horn of [c]oil from the tent and [d]anointed Solomon. [x]Then they blew the trumpet, and all the people said, [y]“Long live King Solomon!” [40]And all the people went up after him, playing on pipes, and rejoicing with great joy, so that the earth was split by their noise.

[41][‡]Adonijah and all the guests who were with him heard it as they finished feasting. And when Joab heard the sound of the trumpet, he said, “What does this uproar in the city mean?” [42]While he was still speaking, behold, [e]Jonathan the son of Abiathar the priest came. And Adonijah said, “Come in, [f]for you are a worthy man and bring good news.” [43]Jonathan answered Adonijah, “No, for our lord King David has made Solomon king, [44]and the king has sent with him Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the [b]Cherethites and the Pelethites. And they had him ride on the king’s mule. [45]And Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet have anointed him king at [y]Gihon, and they have gone up from there rejoicing, so that the city is in an uproar. This is the noise that you have heard. [46] [g]Solomon sits on the royal throne. [47]Moreover, the king’s servants came to congratulate our lord King David, saying, [h]‘May your God make the name of Solomon more famous than yours, and make his throne greater than your throne.’ And the king [i]bowed himself on the bed. [48]And the king also said, ‘Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, [j]who has granted someone [4] to sit on my throne this day, my own eyes seeing it.’”

[49]Then all the guests of Adonijah trembled and rose, and each went his own way. [50][‡]And Adonijah feared Solomon. So he arose and went [k]and took hold of [l]the horns of the altar. [51]Then it was told Solomon, “Behold, Adonijah fears King Solomon, for behold, he has laid hold of the horns of the altar, saying, ‘Let King Solomon swear to me first that he will not put his servant to death with the sword.’” [52]And Solomon said, “If he will show himself a worthy man, [m]not one of his hairs shall fall to the earth, but if wickedness is found in him, he shall die.” [53]So King Solomon sent, and they brought him down from the altar. And he came and paid homage to King Solomon, and Solomon said to him, “Go to your house.”

David’s Instructions to Solomon

1 KINGS 2 [n]When David’s time to die drew near, he commanded Solomon his son, saying, [2][‡] [o]“I am about to go the way of all the earth. [p]Be strong, and show yourself a man, [3]and keep the charge of the LORD your God, walking in his ways and keeping his statutes, his commandments, his rules, and his testimonies, as it is written in the Law of Moses, [q]that you may prosper in all that you do and wherever you turn, [4][‡]that the LORD may [r]establish his word that he spoke concerning me, saying, [s]‘If your sons pay close attention to their way, [t]to walk before me in faithfulness with all their heart and with all their soul, [u]you shall not lack [1] a man on the throne of Israel.’

5[†]“Moreover, you also know what Joab the son of Zeruiah [v] did to me, how he dealt with the two commanders of the armies of Israel, [w] Abner the son of Ner, [x] and Amasa the son of Jether, whom he killed, avenging [2] in time of peace for blood that had been shed in war, and putting the blood of war [3] on the belt around his [4] waist and on the sandals on his feet. 6[^][†]Act therefore [y] according to your wisdom, but do not let his gray head go down to Sheol in peace. 7But deal loyally with the sons of [z] Barzillai the Gileadite, and let them be [a] among those who eat at your table, [b] for with such loyalty [5] they met me when I fled from Absalom your brother. 8And there is also with you [c] Shimei the son of Gera, the Benjaminite from Bahurim, who cursed me with a grievous curse on the day [d] when I went to Mahanaim. [e] But when he came down to meet me at the Jordan, I swore to him by the LORD, saying, ‘I will not put you to death with the sword.’ 9Now therefore do not hold him guiltless, [f] for you are a wise man. You will know what you ought to do to him, and you shall [g] bring his gray head down with blood to Sheol.”

The Death of David

10[†] [h] Then David slept with his fathers and was buried in [i] the city of David. 11[†]And the time that David reigned over Israel was [j] forty years. He reigned seven years in Hebron and thirty-three years in Jerusalem. 12[†] [k] So Solomon sat on the throne of David his father, and his kingdom was firmly established.

Solomon’s Reign Established

13Then Adonijah the son of Haggith came to Bathsheba the mother of Solomon. And she said, [l] “Do you come peacefully?” He said, “Peacefully.” 14Then he said, “I have something to say to you.” She said, “Speak.” 15He said, “You know that [m] the kingdom was mine, and that all Israel fully expected me to reign. However, the kingdom has turned about and become my brother’s, [n] for it was his from the LORD. 16And now I have one request to make of you; do not refuse me.” She said to him, “Speak.” 17[†]And he said, “Please ask King Solomon—he will not refuse you—to give me

[o] Abishag the Shunammite as my wife." [18]Bathsheba said, "Very well; I will speak for you to the king."

[19]So Bathsheba went to King Solomon to speak to him on behalf of Adonijah. And the king rose to meet her and bowed down to her. Then he sat on his throne and had a seat brought for the king's mother, [p] and she sat on his right. [20]Then she said, "I have one small request to make of you; do not refuse me." And the king said to her, "Make your request, my mother, for I will not refuse you." [21]She said, "Let [o] Abishag the Shunammite be given to Adonijah your brother as his wife." [22][‡]King Solomon answered his mother, "And why do you ask [o] Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? Ask for him the kingdom also, [q] for he is my older brother, and on his side [r] are Abiathar [6] the priest and Joab the son of Zeruiah." [23]Then King Solomon swore by the LORD, saying, [s] "God do so to me and more also if this word does not cost Adonijah his life! [24]Now therefore [t] as the LORD lives, who has established me and placed me on the throne of David my father, and who has made me a house, [u] as he promised, Adonijah shall be put to death today." [25]So King Solomon sent [v] Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and he struck him down, and he died.

[26][‡]And to Abiathar the priest the king said, "Go to [w] Anathoth, to your estate, for you deserve death. But I will not at this time put you to death, [x] because you carried the ark of the Lord GOD before David my father, [y] and because you shared in all my father's affliction." [27][‡] [z] So Solomon expelled Abiathar from being priest to the LORD, thus fulfilling [a] the word of the LORD that he had spoken concerning the house of Eli in Shiloh.
